Anee led the local tossers with 8 points. Novak, McCall and Smith each made 2. Rouse was Boyne's high point man with 5.

Out-playing Charlevoix in all but the final period, Boyne City's reserves won the preliminary 16 to 9. Far behind when the third period ended, the local reserves made a desperate come-back which fell short. A large delegation of local fans saw both contests.

Kipke's tossers journey to Harbor Springs Friday night for a contest which, from all present indications, should produce the Tip of Michigan class C conference favorite. Both teams are undefeated and Harbor has a championship of two straight seasons to defend. It would appear that Charlevoix has the best record of the present season, although Harbor boasts a victory over the strong East Jordan combination, and has yet to meet the teams Charlevoix has defeated. One thing is certain—it will be a mighty good game regardless of any and all hope.

PLAN EXTENSIVE ROAD WORK IN ANTRIM CO.

Will Build Bridge and Pave Main Street in Bellaire

A. E. Burridge of Cadillac, district superintendent of highway maintenance, E. A. Edye, state maintenance engineer, and Mr. Anderson, both of the state highway department at Lansing, attended a session of the board of supervisors at the court house Tuesday afternoon. It was revealed by the members of this group, that an extensive road building program in Antrim county will be given attention within the next five years and a portion of road construction will be done in 1931.

It was stated that the new bridge over the Bellaire river on M-88 would be erected this coming year, and that the main street of Bellaire would be paved. Central Lake's main street will be paved in the near future but probably not this year. — Central Lake Torch.

BILL BEFORE LEGISLATURE

We note with gratification that one of the first bills introduced before the 1931 legislature at Lansing, was one by Sen. Chester M. Howell seeking repeal of the fish and game law provision requiring small inland fishermen who sell their fish to pay a $10 license fee.

Only last week a petition signed by a large number of Charlevoix county sportsmen was sent to this district's legislators at Lansing, asking that they use their influence towards obtaining repeal of the provision. It will be no little satisfaction to know that our own county is not the only one looking with disfavor upon the law.

At Charlevoix, where fishing is available for perch, mackinaw trout and whitefish in Lake Michigan and connecting Round lake and Lake Charlevoix, there is opportunity for the line fisherman to commercialize in a small way. However, to put him in the same category as the purely commercial operator, is discriminatory and without reason.

In inland lakes, the measure would insure preservation of fish life. Locally, fish migrate from Lake Michigan into its connecting waters, and there is little danger of the hand-line angler making much of an inroad upon Lake Michigan's vast supply.

WINTER COASTING DANGERS

Several near accidents reported during the past week at Grant street hill, bring forcibly to mind the dangers of winter coasting.

In the old days before winter driving of automobiles, most any hill within the city limits was safe to slide upon. However, conditions have changed, and the same cannot now be said. Grant street, State street and Bridge street hills all converge upon trunk line highways, upon which there is almost endless automobile traffic. Coasting across such thoroughfares is mighty dangerous business.

In other northern cities, coasting hills, either policed or marked, are maintained. Over at East Jordan, the coasting hill crosses a main street, upon which signs reading, "Coasting Hill, Motorists Beware," are placed. Other cities block off streets intersecting their coasting hills and allow sliding certain hours. It seems that Charlevoix could also

Quickly Relieved by This Safe Prescription

Here's a doctor's prescription called Thoxine that is really throat insurance. Its success is due to its quick double action. With the very first swallow it soothes the sore throat and stops the coughing. It goes direct to the internal cause.

The remarkable thing about Thoxine is that while it relieves almost instantly it contains nothing harmful, and is pleasant tasting and safe for the whole family. Singers and speakers find Thoxine very valuable. Put up ready for use in 35c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Your money back if not satisfied. Sold by Central Drug Store and all other good drug stores.

RAISE THE PAY

Some time ago The Digest declared the pay of the governor of Michigan should be raised.

Wilbur M. Brucker, the new governor, is said to be opposed to the idea. There were pieces in the daily papers to the effect he doesn't think this is any time to talk of salary advances.

This journal still thinks the 1931 legislature should initiate a constitutional amendment at least doubling the pay of the executive. This is not a plea on behalf of Brucker, because he couldn't get the increase until 1933 anyway. There is a prohibition against raising the pay of any state officer during his current term.

The state budget director, who at present is George B. Thompson, gets $10,000 a year. Yet the governor has to pass on every bit of his work. The health commissioner, the insurance commissioner, the highway commissioner, the conservation commissioner, utilities commissioners and others get more than the governor. The executive is the boss of them all—and he has to bear the responsibility.

In the past Michigan has had governors of wealth, who were more interested in the honor than the remuneration. Brucker is a poor man. It may be, in the future sometime, that another poor man would like to seek the high office of governor—especially as there is something somewhere about all men being free and equal—and he won't be able to do it if the pay stays at $5,000, unless he has the Spartan taste for punishment that Brucker seems to have.—Michigan State Digest.

BUY AT HOME

Said the lady, "I'll take this couch. Send it to my home in Xville."

"But my dear madam," answered the salesman, "you shouldn't come here to buy, you should buy in your own town of Xville. You should buy at home."

The proprietor overheard the salesman, took him down cellar and shot him. He was tried for murder before a jury of the Chamber of Commerce, acquitted, and presented with a dozen loaded revolvers.

(We have great respect for buy-at-home movements; but keep your eye on the boomerang.)

We are informed that last year Henry Ford shipped over 6,000 tractors made in his Ireland plant with Irish labor, into the United States, duty free. If we had a great many Michigan citizens like this, it would be unnecessary to "wonder why" there are so many unemployed in Michigan.

In our opinion, if the next Legislature attempts to levy a state income tax, a lot of capitalists will migrate and leave us common mortals in worse shape than we are at present.

Instead of wishing you a Merry Christmas, we hope it was the worst one you will ever have. Guess you got our idea.

Have you done your part to prevent the raise on first class postage? Campbell's mid-winter Shoe Sale now on.—Adv. 211.

PROMINENT SUMMER RESORTER IS DEAD

Dr. Frank Chapman Committed Suicide at Galesburg, Illinois

A recent communication received by William F. Johnson from Galesburg, Ill., tells of the death of Dr. Frank Chapman, well known Sequanota summer resorter, who committed suicide on Friday, January 3rd, at his home in Galesburg.

Dr. Chapman, who owned a cottage and had been spending his summers at Sequanota for 20 years, was a sufferer from sacroiliac inflammation. He left two letters to friends, and the contents of each revealed that he had planned to take his own life to relieve his suffering.

DETROIT MAN FINDS HEALTH

Konjola, the New Medicine, Proves Just What This Man Needed—"Nothing Like It," He Says

MR. CHARLES CAMPBELL

"There is nothing like Konjola," said Mr. Charles Campbell, 219 Grand Boulevard, East, Detroit. "I suffered the misery of a run-down system for years. Constipation was a source of misery and discomfort and my nerves were fast becoming shattered. I had no vitality, was losing weight and had reached a point where I knew that something had to be done."

"I had not finished the second bottle of Konjola before I realized that this was a master-medicine. By the time I had finished the six-bottle treatment I had an excellent appetite and enjoyed every meal. The tired feeling left me, my bowels functioned regularly and I rose in the morning refreshed and ready for work. There is nothing like Konjola as a tonic and body builder."

Thousands have said the same. Konjola makes good on merit alone.

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix, Michigan, at F. J. Fessenden's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

COUNTY-STATE PLAN APPROVED

Idea to Distribute $6,000,000 for Road Improvements Wins Favor

Representatives of units interested in Michigan's highway building program have gone on record as favoring a proposal proceeding for the distribution of $6,000,000 for road improvement done by county road commissioners under the direction of the state highway commission.

Members of county and township road commissions met at Lansing under the joint auspices of the Michigan bureau of highway education and the legislative committee of the Michigan good roads association.

The proposal, as submitted by W. M. Connelly, former state senator and president of the association, stipulates that $2,000,000 is to be appropriated by the state highway department and a similar amount by the counties and the townships. The program is to be optional with the individual townships, each having the power to accept or reject aid from the state and county.

Ate Dykstra, originator of the Dykstra bill, presented a proposal involving state maintenance and construction of trunk lines through municipalities. His plan was given a vote of indorsement by the group.

MONEY TO BURN

The miser's gaze sought the caper and it was evident now that he was embarrassed. "Absolom," he stammered. "I got a confession to make. Some forty years ago I had a farm in Illinois—I'll give you the full legal description later—and I mortgaged it to a man for forty thousand dollars. I wanted the money to put into the worst investment I ever made, and that was a Nevada silver mine—Consolidated Virginia. I bought stock with that money during the days of the big Comstock excitement. I could have sold out and doubled my money two weeks after I'd made the investment, but I held on and on, taking more and more profit—on paper—until that underground river lusted into the Comstock lode on the two thousand-foot level and ruined the mine—and me."

"Well, I lost the farm. I couldn't repay the mortgage, Absolom, and after there was a flood and the Mississippi river changed its channel and ruined that farm, I didn't want to repay the loan. Of course the man who loaned me the money lost his forty thousand and the interest. He got a deficiency judgment against me, but I dodged it for twenty years and then his widow or his executor permitted the judgment to lapse—and well, Absolom, I reckon I'd ought to have paid the widow that money. However, I didn't and now I want to fix it in my will so that every dollar, both principal and interest, due under that judgment to date shall be paid to the widow or—"

"The legal heirs of her body," McPeake cut in professionally.

Old Butterworth nodded and handed him a fat envelope. "This contains all the information," he explained.

"Anything else?"

"Nothing, Absolom, except that—well, I reckon it's usual to have the executor give a bond, so you'd better stipulate in my will that the customary bond shall be filed with the court by the executor."

"Old Safety First," McPeake repeated. "I'll have your will ready in an hour. Stay where you are."

Within the hour Hiram Butterworth had signed his last will and testament. He carried a copy of the document away with him and left the original with his lawyer. On the first of the following month he received from Absolom McPeake a bill for fifty dollars for professional services drawing will.

"The dirty, cheap, two-for-a-cent legal jackal," he raved to his man Bunker. "Sending me a bill for drawing my will after all I've done for him." He telephoned immediately to Absolom McPeake and told the latter in lurid language exactly what he thought of him.

"You're a dirty robber!" the old man shrieked. "I'll change my will this very day. I'll learn you—"

He was terribly angry—so angry, in fact, that he quite forgot the advice for which he had paid so heavily to six heart specialists. He mumbled incoherently into the transmitter, then let it fall with a crash which was not lost on the lawyer at his end of the line. Then, very faintly, McPeake heard him say: "O God! Forgive me! I'm dying—dy—"

When McPeake reached his client's place of business he found Hiram Butterworth stretched out on the grimy, uncarpeted floor of his private office. He was quite dead. Bunker, a gray-haired, gray-faced, meek, cowed-looking little man, was sitting in a chair across the room watching the dead man.

He looked up as McPeake entered and a smile illumined his gray face, for he was free at last.

"The old man's heart went back on him," Bunker explained. "He's dead, and although I've worked for him nearly thirty years I can't say I'm sorry." "You ought to be glad, Bunker. In fact, you will be glad when I tell you that his will, which I drew two weeks ago, provides a specific bequest to you of ten thousand dollars."

"Ten thousand! Ten thousand!" the old clerk repeated, in crescendo. "Why, he—he—he promised me for years that he'd leave me a hundred thousand. I've devoted my life to that man and all I ever got for it was abuse and a bare living. And now he—he's betrayed me!"

Bunker's form quivered and two tears coursed slowly down his lined cheeks. "My wife will feel badly about this," he quavered. "She was sort of figuring on it. Well, what can't be cured must be endured, I suppose."

McPeake went back to his office. Two hours later, in Pilectos, Calif., Elmer Clarke received the following telegram:

"Muscatine, Iowa,
"August 1, 1924.

"Your uncle, Hiram Butterworth, died suddenly here today. Please wire disposition of body. I was your uncle's attorney during his lifetime, and am named executor of his estate."

"A. McPeake, Federal Trust Bldg."

This information was received by

Elmer Clarke half an hour before his departure for the home of his heart's desire, whom he planned to escort that evening to the municipal band concert in the plaza. To this young lady Elmer disclosed the contents of the telegram.

"What disposition are you going to make of the body, Elmer?" she inquired.

"I feel like wiring McPeake to send the old man's carcass to a medical college for dissection. In order that at the finish it might be said of him that once he accomplished something constructive, something for the benefit of the world in which he had his being."

"Oh, please don't do that, Elmer!"

"Oh, of course not, Nellie. He was my mother's brother, even if he was a heartless old skilful. I suppose he died penniless for all his miserly thrift, or his lawyer would not have wired me as he did. I'll send McPeake a night letter and instruct him to give the old man a plain, decent Christian burial, the expense of which shall not exceed one hundred and fifty dollars, and to draw on me at sight for the same. For mother's sake I can't have the old man buried in Potter's field."

Nellie patted Elmer Clarke's hand. "I'm glad you're going to do the right thing by him, even if he didn't deserve it."

They went to the band concert and when they parted at Nellie's front gate Elmer held her hand longer than seemed necessary.

"Nellie, my dear, you're a great comfort to me," he said very seriously, apropos of nothing. "I like to think that some day when my ship comes in—"

He checked himself, and after a pause added: "But then it will never come in until I sail in it, so what's the use dreaming until I know my dream can come true?"

"Elmer," the girl replied, "within a week your ship is going to come in. I feel it in my bones—somewhat after the fashion of old men who have rheumatic twinges just before the first rains. Wouldn't it be wonderful, Elmer, if your Uncle Hiram died with just cents of money and left it all to you? You have never met him, have you, Elmer?"

"No, and I have never desired to."

"Elmer, if the unexpected should happen and you should receive a substantial sum from your uncle's estate, what would you do?"

He looked down at her very soberly and seemed about to answer her question without the hesitation which almost instantly he developed. He bit his lip and sighed.

"I'd get into business for myself, of course," he replied.

The girl nodded soberly and he had a vague suspicion that his answer had been a disappointment, for she withdrew her hand and said good night.

"I'd get into business for myself, of course," he replied.

"I'm very happy at Elmer's good fortune," Mrs. Bray.

"Elmer's good fortune?" Old Lady Bray practically shrieked the words.

"What about your good fortune?"

"Have you just received the message over the wire, Mrs. Bray?" Nellie Cathcart's voice was calm.

"This very instant!"

"Well, then, Mrs. Bray, why not send the telegram to Elmer immediately and permit him to be the one to tell the world of his good fortune?"

"But I thought—why—I—I thought you'd want to know it first—"

"I fear you think too much about other people's business, dear Mrs. Bray." The telephone clicked; Nellie Cathcart had hung up.

"Miserable, ungrateful little cat," snarled Old Lady Bray, and immediately called Rev. Mr. Claude Goodfellow, pastor of the First Christian church, of which Elmer Clarke's mother—now deceased—had been a member.

To Mr. Goodfellow Old Lady Bray—in confidence (this time)—related the news of what she termed Elmer Clarke's windfall.

Mr. Goodfellow promised to respect her confidence and immediately returned to the breakfast table, and told his wife and eldest daughter.

Five minutes later his eldest daughter Alice telephoned Ansel Moody, president and sole owner of the Pilectos Commercial Trust & Savings bank. Mr. Moody was the treasurer of her father's church, and as a banker he would naturally be interested in the prospect of a new account of such magnitude.

Moreover, Miss Alice was Ansel Moody's housekeeper and was aware that some months previous Elmer Clarke had approached her employer with a proposition to lend him five thousand dollars on his house and lot in C street.

At the time old Ansel had turned a cold ear to the request and Elmer had left the bank disappointed and angry.

Now old Ansel told Alice she was a sharp girl and as she hung up the receiver she was smiling with the prospect of a salary raise.

Immediately upon hearing from Alice Goodfellow, Ansel Moody telephoned to Old Lady Bray and ordered her to withhold delivery of the telegram to Elmer Clarke for one hour.

The banker was the telegraph company's principal customer and Old Lady Bray would have trembled for her position had she failed to obey his order.

At half past seven o'clock that morning Elmer Clarke left his home and set forth to the locus of his labors in Sam Haskins Smoke Shoppe at the corner of Main and F streets.

Elmer Clarke was Sam Haskins' principal assistant and for his services drew a stipend of forty dollars a week—a sum regarded in Pilectos as truly princely.

At the corner of C and Main streets Elmer paused before a vacant store. Above the portal a faded blue and gold sign informed whoever might have been interested sufficiently to wonder what local industry had on this spot taken root, withered and died, that once upon a time H. Wasservogel had here dispensed Choice Stall-Fed Meats.

Every morning of his life, en route to the Smoke Shoppe, Elmer Clarke was wont to pause before this dusty and forlorn arena of H. Wasservogel's despoil and in his mind's eye make it over into Elmer Clarke's Smoke Shoppe, the Pilectos Sanitary Barber Shop and the Nourisher Billiard and Pool Parlor.

Elmer knew to the last penny and exactly how it could be done, provided he could borrow five thousand dollars on the lot and house, low he had inherited from his mother. Five thousand, together with his savings, would enable him to transform the deserted butcher shop into something that would draw trade from Sam Haskins' Smoke Shoppe so fast that within a year the latter place would resemble the ruins of one of those Maya cities in the jungles of Yucatan.

"The trouble with H. Wasservogel," Elmer mused, "was that he had too much overhead. He could have got along with half the space and subleased the other half. If I—"

"Morning, Elmer," a cheerful voice hailed.

He turned and gazed into a countenance that somehow appeared vaguely familiar. After the second look he recognized Ansel Moody, whom he had seen every day for five years.

"Why, I didn't recognize you, Moody," Elmer replied flippantly and disrespectfully to the banker. He had been the first man in Pilectos to call old Ansel to his face anything but Mr. Moody. "No, sir, I didn't recognize you at first. You were smiling."

"Ha-ha! Ha! Ha-ha!" old Ansel barked mirthlessly. "Still holdin' your little grudge, eh, Elmer?"

"I still feel the old pain," Elmer replied candidly. "You're a pawnbroker, not a banker. Most bankers lend some money on ability and integrity, but you want collateral worth fully 60 per cent more than the loan, and even then you require a responsible indorsement."

"Well, I know, Elmer, as bankers ain't got all the say 'bout that," old Ansel soothed him. "We got to be careful. However, I been thinkin' your proposition over since you was in the bank last and I've about come to the conclusion I'll take a chance on you, Elmer."

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rosall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, vacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

was the scene of a very pretty birthday party in honor of Mrs. Hyek. There were about 50 persons present. The Novotny boys furnished music for the dancing. Refreshments were served and everyone departed in the wee small hours of the morning, after wishing Mrs. Hyek many more happy birthdays.

We had our first serious coasting accident Sunday morning when Richard Struthers, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Struthers, living four miles north of Charlevoix, coasted in front of an automobile. A small hill obscured the driver's view of Richard and was unable to stop for several feet after striking him. It was necessary to jack up the car to lift Richard from beneath it. He was taken to Charlevoix hospital where it was ascertained no bones were broken. He will likely return home this week.

"Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, January 11th.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt." (Matt. 26:39).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus rose higher in demonstration because of the cup of bitterness he drank. Human law had condemned him, but he was demonstrating divine Science. The divine must overcome the human at every point." (p. 43).

W. C. T. U. NOTES

This is to be an educational year with the local Women's Christian Temperance Union. "What's It All About," by Rose W. Bull; "Prohibition At Its Worst," and "A Noble Experiment," by Prof. Irving Fisher; and "Alcohol and the Human Race," by Richmond Pearson Hobson, are the study books to be used.

Mrs. Otterbein presented the topic last Friday, giving scientific reasons for total abstinence. Alcohol has been proven to be a habit forming drug in the same class with morphine and opium.

Doctors have learned that the reaction from its effects under the good of the stimulation at first produced.

Insurance statistics show that its use even in moderation is injurious to health.

Since 1783 when Dr. Benjamin Rush of Philadelphia published the pioneer scientific pamphlet entitled, "An Inquiry Into the Effect of Spirituous Liquors Upon the Human Body," the study has been carried on and a strong case has been built up against alcohol which cannot be truthfully refuted.

Mrs. R. B. Armstrong will give the history of the temperance movement at the February meeting.

Mrs. Simmons, director of citizenship, listed the local offices to be filled at the spring election, January 26th is the last day for filing nomination petitions for the spring primaries. The county commissioner of schools, the superintendent of public instruction and several other state officials will also be elected in April. The state officials are nominated in state conventions, delegates to which are elected through the caucus and county convention system.

SAVE A TENTH

The suggestion to save a tenth of one's income for future use may seem hard to follow, but unless a careful budget of the income has been made, it is most probable that at least this much is spent unnecessarily. Those who spend according to a budget find that their money goes further, waste is reduced to a minimum, and systematic saving becomes a pleasant, easy game. It is certainly worth a trial.

Latin II

The Latin II classes have just finished an interesting project. They have been following the development of the Roman houses from its first stages, when it was only a square building to the beautiful home it later became. And the students pay tribute to the Roman who devised and built those wonders. Now the Latin students are making drawings of all the forms of the Roman house. They are to be kept and, later in the year, the best ones will be put on exhibit.

"Character Formation"

About a week ago the students enjoyed a speech given by Mr. Otterbein on character formation. For an example he used the story of Silas Marner which was written by George Eliot.

Silas Marner was a morbid old man who craved for nothing but gold. He saved all of his money and lived as cheaply as possible. One night as he was going after a pail of water he stumbled over something. When he first touched the object he thought it was gold. But upon investigating he found it to be a child. He finally decided to take the child to his home. He sacrificed some of his money to feed and clothe the child. After a short time he became entirely devoted to the child. It was the influence of this child, who grew up with Silas Marner, that gradually changed his character. He began to think of the world and of the people about him. He began to associate with his neighbors which he hitherto had disregarded.

Mr. Otterbein emphasized that boys and girls should form their characters while of high school age. If we know our weak points, we can strengthen them by resolving something each year and then carrying out our resolution. At the end of

Practice Debate

The negative team of Charlevoix's debating team debated with Boyne City Tuesday night. This debate was conducted in the same manner as a regular debate, but there were no decisions and it counted nothing in the points necessary to enter the elimination contest. Its main object was to give the negative team practice in debating.

Picture Study

The fifth graders are making picture booklets of some of the famous artists' pictures suitable for the grade. In their books, they put the miniature pictures, the story of the picture and the life of the artist. Last week they studied "The Gleaners." This is the P. T. A. picture which is in the fifth grade room this month for having the greatest number of parents present at the last P. T. A. meeting.

The score was 12 to 3 in favor of Boyne City junior high. Charlevoix boys were handicapped by the superior height of the opposing team.

Speed, deception, team work and faking are the fundamentals upon which the Charlevoix team will have to depend if victories are to be gained in the future games.

ANNUAL MEETING OF POTATO ASSOCIATION

To Be Held at Gaylord January 20th —Elected Officers

The annual meeting of the Top O'Michigan Potato association will be held in the Gaylord court house on Tuesday afternoon, January 20, at 1:30 o'clock, standard time. The report of last year's potato show will be given by Secretary B. C. Mellenkamp, along with the financial report by Treasurer F. W. Dilworth. Officers and directors for the new year will be elected.

Plans for a bigger and better show in 1931 will be discussed. Year by year the show has prospered and enlarged until today it is a vital agricultural force in the activities of northern Michigan. Starting out in 1922 in a very small way with only four counties contributing, and with only potato entries competing, it has grown until today twelve counties are financing the show, and exhibiting not only potatoes but apples, and last year alfalfa seed for the first time. Many believe a new grain department should be placed in the premium books for another year.

This last year in spite of the adverse conditions a fine financial statement can be boasted.

A cordial invitation is extended to all business men and farmers to meet with the directors and officers and help formulate plans for a bigger and better show for 1931.

New Co-Operative Creamery Gaining Headway

Very satisfactory progress is being made in preliminary plans for the organization of a large co-operative creamery to serve both Antrim and Charlevoix counties. At the present time fully 350 farmers have signed membership agreements. The work is being carried on by a fine and loyal group of solicitors in all the townships in the area. No rash promises are being made. No impossible statements have been uttered. Everyone seems to be highly interested.

The creamery expects to establish cream routes in all heavy dairy centers to gather the fresh cream direct from the farms. High quality cream is a necessity if premiums for the 92 score butter is possible. As a result of a very recent meeting it is planned to have five sub-stations co-operate with the co-operative creamery. These sub-stations no doubt will service their own patrons and the truck from the creamery will gather the cream from each of these stations. Several local meetings have been held in various sections of the county. It is expected that the creamery will handle over 300,000 pounds of butterfat the first year, as a result of co-operating with five highly successful co-operative and independently owned institutions already operating.

Presented, this is the biggest activity farmers in years for your consideration. Consider it well. Learn all the details pertaining to its organization and what it can do.

Remember this: If nothing is done about it you will continue to receive from 3 cents to 7 cents less for every pound of butterfat you sell for years to come, than other sections in the state are receiving. Or you can invest $20.00 in a co-operative creamery and get from 3 cents to 7 cents more a pound for butterfat than you get at the present time.

Which course of action do you wish to follow?

DISTRICT MEET ASSIGNED TO BOYNE CITY THIS YEAR

Regional Tournament at Petoskey—Eliminate Overtime Play and Use Point System

The Michigan High School Athletic association voted to eliminate overtime period in tie games next March when the annual high school basketball tournaments are held throughout the state.

If teams finish a regular game with a tie, the winner will be decided on a point basis. Five points will be allowed for the most field goals, four points to the team making the greatest percentage of its foul shots, and three points will be given to the team with the least number of personal fouls against it. Should the point system result in another tie, the winner will be decided by permitting each member of the two teams to shoot a round of foul throws with the victory going to the team making the greatest number of its shots.

Final matches will be played at demonstration hall, Michigan State college, March 21, while semifinals will be held in various cities the two preceding nights. Teams advancing to the semi-finals will select their opponents by lot and the committee of the association will decide in which of the two cities in each group the games will be held.

Name Regional Dates

The association decided that all applications by schools for advancement in their athletic classification must be filed by February 10th.

Regional tournaments will be conducted March 12, 13, 14, in the following places:

Western State Normal college, Kalamazoo, classes A, B, C and D; Grand Rapids Union, classes B, C and D; City of Grand Rapids schools to be decided later, class A; Ypsilanti Central, classes B, C, and D; Pontiac, classes A and B; St. Clair, classes C and D; Saginaw, classes C and D; Mt. Pleasant, B, C, and D; Petoskey, B, C, and D; Flint, A; Jackson or Ann Arbor, class A, and Fordson, class A.

A few cities remain to be selected for district tournaments to be played March 5, 6, 7. Tournament centers definitely selected are:

Niles, Sturgis, Dowagiac, Hillsdale, Tecumseh, Detroit, Fordson, Ypsilanti, Albion, Kalamazoo college, South Haven, Hastings, Boys' Vocational school at Lansing, Romeo, Roswell, Lake Orion, Lapeer, Flushing, Owosso, Belding, Saranac, East Grand Rapids, Fremont, Alma, St. Johns, Saginaw, Bad Axe, Mt. Pleasant, Manistee, Oscoda, Grayling, Traverse City, and Boyne City.

AT THE MOVIES

Kibitzer Knows the Whole Works
Baseball is not America's national game. It is all a myth about football being the great college sport, and if golf is the Scotchman's favorite pastime the Fourth of July comes on Christmas.

So says Harry Green, film comedian and claimant of the world's kibitzer championship.

"Kibitzing is the greatest sport the world has ever known," says Green. "It is confined to no nationality, race, creed or school of thought. It has no rules and fewer regulations. All one needs is a non-stop tongue and a lusty pair of lungs. 'A kibitzer can tell Bobby Jones what's wrong with his putting; he can tell Chris Cagle why he doesn't make more yardage on end runs; he can tell grandmother how to get distance on her tating; he can tell little Ger-tie why she failed in arithmetic and how the teacher failed to give 'the proper training; he can give dad a hot tip on the market—in a word he knows everything and doesn't hesitate in letting everyone in on a load of advice about their own business.'"

In Paramount's all-talking picture, "The Kibitzer," which comes to the Palace theatre for a two-day run beginning on Saturday next, Green plays the title role. He breaks the non-stop kibitzing record in this one. It is the most amusing dialect comedy part ever constructed for the audible films, or at least one learns from the lips of Green himself, who, one remembers, knows everything. Mary Brinn and Neil Hamilton supply the romantic background for this production. The picture is based on a highly successful Broadway play of a year ago, "Kibitzer," by Joseph Swerling and Edward G. Robinson.

President Hoover has signed a bill that will immediately give Michigan $2,500,000 to be used in highway construction.

CHARLEVOIX-HARBOR FIGHT TO TIE

EXTRA PLAY FAILED TO PRODUCE WINNER—SCORE 8-ALL

Evenly Matched Teams Give Large Crowd of Fans Great Thrill—Reserves Dropped Prelim.

Charlevoix and Harbor Springs still lead the Tip of Michigan class C basketball conference with two victories and no defeats each.

Through four regular and three overtime periods Friday night at Harbor, the two teams battled to break the deadlock. When players and a frantic crowd of fans were nearly at the point of exhaustion from the terrific strain, Referee Reinke of Rogers City, called the game a draw. In this respect, basketball history was made, and so it still stands.

Emerging as hero of the contest was "Cornie" McCall, Charlevoix's diminutive forward, whose goal from center court just before the final gun, tied the score at 8-all after Charlevoix had been trailing by a small margin for nearly three periods.

Harbor opened the scoring, Bradley, their center, broke through for a goal and was fouled while shooting. He sank the free throw for 3 points. Soon after, Charlevoix evened the count in exactly the same manner with Vic Smith as the scorer. The quarter ended with the count knotted 3-all.

Harbor made their strongest bid in the second period. Although closely guarded, they broke through for a pair of goals while holding Charlevoix scoreless, and at the half were leading 7 to 3. With the exception of a free throw, scored by Vic Smith, Charlevoix guard, the third period failed to produce a score. Both teams missed several opportunities. Play was extremely fast and guarding close. The period ended with the count Harbor 7, Charlevoix 4.

Soon after the final period opened, Novak sank a goal for Charlevoix, bringing the score 7 to 6. Charlevoix fans howled themselves hoarse for another goal. It finally came, but too late, for in the meantime Bradley made a free throw which put Harbor in the lead 8 to 6, and when McCall snared his goal from center court with less than a minute to play, the two points knotted the count at 8-all.

Three overtime periods followed. Had Charlevoix been able to sink their chances for goals, there would have been no tie. They had chances in every period, but could not make them drop. Their air-tight defense had Harbor at a stand-still. The Emmet county lads failed to get a shot at the ring, and can thank Charlevoix's erroneous basket-shooting for keeping them an undefeated team.

It was a great ball game between two evenly matched teams. Fans from both cities will be looking forward with anticipation for the return game to be played between the two teams here February 20. In the meantime, Charlevoix has an open date on January 23rd, and on the Friday following play at Mancelona.

In a well-played and interesting preliminary game, Harbor's reserves won from Charlevoix's second-stringers by a 9 to 4 count.

EXTENSION MEETINGS SET FOR NEXT WEEK

First in Local Community Room on Tuesday, January 27th

Two extension meetings for women have been announced by B. C. Melencamp, county agricultural agent.

The first will be held in the Charlevoix community room Tuesday afternoon, January 27th, at 1:30 standard time, and the second at Boyne City Library Wednesday afternoon, January 28th, at the same hour.

Miss Barbara VanHeulen, M. S. C. specialist, will be the speaker, discussing home budgeting and marketing.

Many women have considerably increased the farm and city home income by marketing a wide variety of products as a sideline. All women are interested in having a well-balanced financial program in the home—one which amply cares for health, food, clothing, recreation, and protection.

All interested are invited to this meeting.

M-66 TAKEN OVER BY HIGHWAY DEPT.

PORTION FROM EAST JORDAN TO CHARLEVOIX ACCEPTED

State Now Has Maintenance from Mancelona to Charlevoix—New Construction Authorized

While cities along M-131 are waging a battle to have that highway paved from Grand Rapids north to Mackinaw City, Charlevoix citizens can rejoice in the fact that on January 1st, the state highway department took over maintenance of M-66 from the south city limits of East Jordan to the intersection of Bridge and Antrim streets in Charlevoix.

Cooperating on this project, Charlevoix and East Jordan worked hard for several years to secure the location of M-66 from Mancelona to Charlevoix. The project was first secured from Mancelona to East Jordan, and, although marked from that point on to Charlevoix, was not officially taken over until January 1, 1931.

Another welcomed bit of news concerning M-66, was that at its first meeting under the new administration held January 12th, the administrative board, consisting of Grover C. Dillman, chairman; Frank D. Fitzgerald and Paul W. Voorheis, authorized the construction of 8.5 miles of gravel on M-66 north of Mancelona in Antrim county.

The work recently authorized will connect with parts already improved, thus providing a good gravel road from Mancelona on the south end of the route. It is also understood that a new bridge is under construction where M-66 crosses a small creek beyond the Michigan Central railroad tracks near Chestonia, and that that dangerous short corner was being widened. With the project completely approved, improvements may now be looked for in the future.

Besides providing one of the most scenic drives in Northern Michigan, M-66 gives Charlevoix and East Jordan a trunk line connection with U. S. 131.

Charlevoix can be grateful to those responsible for carrying the project to a successful conclusion.

LOCAL HOSPITAL SUE FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

Counsel for Mrs. Martha Ayres Filed Action Last Week

Charlevoix hospital was made defendant in a $10,000 damage suit filed in circuit court last week by prosecuting attorney Rollie L. Lewis, counsel for Mrs. Martha Ayres, well known local eccentric.

The complaint charges that improper treatment, lack of competent nurses and inadequate equipment has resulted in permanent mental and bodily injury to Mrs. Ayres, who entered the institution for treatment for a broken hip.

The suit is a counter action resulting from suit brought by the hospital to collect over $900 for services rendered while she was a patient in the institution. Private nurses who attended Mrs. Ayres also brought suit previously to collect for their services.

FULL PROGRAM OF SPORTS IS BEING ARRANGED

Skating Contests, Ski Races, Hockey Game and Coasting Listed As Day's Activities

Along with other Northern Michigan cities, Charlevoix will conduct its annual winter sports carnival program as in previous years.

Charles Gale, chairman of the Association of Commerce winter sports committee, announced Monday that the annual Charlevoix event would take place on Tuesday, February 10. The program will be confined to the one day.

A full list of winter sports contests will be sponsored, including skating races for men and for boys and girls of all ages at the municipal rink, ski jumping and distance contests, a cross-country ski race, in the afternoon.

On the evening program will be a hockey game between Charlevoix and an out-of-town team yet to be chosen. Bridge street hill will be put in condition for coasting and this popular sport will be enjoyed.

The winter sports committee, whose membership includes P. D. Campbell, A. L. Livingston, W. C. Bellinger, F. F. Bird, George Beeman, Fay Bradley, H. I. Ochs and C. S. Webster, will work out details of the program between now and the date set. It is probable that other features may be arranged before that time.

Other than the annual carnival as announced, Charlevoix will not sponsor any set program during the winter. Winter sports enthusiasts will participate in whatever activities they desire. The municipal skating rink at the school grounds will be maintained as in previous winters, and those desiring to use Bridge street hill for coasting will be lent every consideration necessary to put the hill in condition themselves prior to carnival time.

Charlevoix's carnival program will follow that of Cadillac, which has been set for February 7 and 8, and will precede the three-day Petoskey event to be staged February 12, 13 and 14.

PETOSKEY PASTOR AD-DRESSED LOCAL GROUP

Rev. Kruse Cited Pre-Volstead Days at Congregational Church

Rev. C. J. Kruse of Petoskey, vividly pictured the days before the liquor traffic was outlawed, in an address given at the Congregational church last Friday evening.

The speaker told of things he had personally witnessed in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and in many Michigan cities and towns showing the lawlessness of the saloon keepers and their kind in the days which the younger generation never experienced—and which many of their elders seem to have forgotten. The audience was challenged to find conditions today anything like as bad even in Chicago.

A reading by Miss McMillan, a violin solo by Mrs. Soule and music by a young people's choir and orchestra directed by Mrs. Steller, were also program features.

The meeting was sponsored by the W. C. T. U. to celebrate the eleventh anniversary of national prohibition.

STATE CEMENT PLANT ATTACKED

ASKS LAW MAKERS VOTE TO QUIT AT CHELSEA

Explains That Downstate Institution Has Always Been Operated At Heavy Loss

"Operation during the year 1930 of the Michigan Cement Industry, at Chelsea, as a prison industry of Jackson prison, not only cost the taxpayers of Michigan upwards of $100,000, but has added materially to the unemployment situation in the cement industry of the state," according to a letter written by John L. A. Galster of the Petoskey Portland Cement company to members of the 1931 legislature in this district.

"The cement industry in Michigan," according to Mr. Galster's letter, "has felt the business depression more than the industry in any other state. During the year a great portion of the cement sold in Michigan went into highway construction, and although the state lost in excess of 12 cents a barrel on all cement produced at Chelsea, it sold to the state highway department more than 500,000 barrels.

"In the face of a business depression the cement industry employing free labor, maintained its employment and wage schedules during the last year, to take care of its employees, in some instances thus entailing an actual loss upon each barrel of cement sold. Due to the operations of the state plant, however, the privately owned plants were forced to cease operations early in the fall, and their employees face an enforced lay off.

"The figures used in computing the loss on the operations of the state owned cement plant were based upon an audit report of this industry by Ernst & Ernst. The figures were obtained, using the usual depreciation figures on the plant, the same as are used on privately owned plants, but there was nothing charged against operation for sales costs, taxes, or other similar items, such as privately owned plants must face, nor was there anything charged for the feeding and clothing of the 200 or more prisoners employed at the plant, a charge which is made against Jackson prison."

Mr. Galster says in his letter that, "in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, there was a deficit of $85,000 in the operation of the plant, that the deficit for the last fiscal year was about as large. He said that the figures show the plant to be operating at a daily loss of more than $350 to the taxpayers, who are paying approximately $1.75 a day for the privilege of working each of the 200 convicts, in addition to the $1.17 per day it costs the state for their keep."

The letter points out that the privately owned cement plants in Michigan represent an investment of $75,000,000 and that these owners, more than 10,000 stockholders, with 5,000 employees, ask that the state stop operations of the Chelsea plant, not only as an economy measure, but as a protection to the industry and its employees.

Embezzlement of county funds to the amount of $12,000 was admitted by William J. Conlogue, former treasurer of Mackinac county, in circuit court at St. Ignace. Sentence will be imposed by Judge V. D. Sprague, February 2nd.

CHERRY FUTURE IS UP TO TARIFF

Michigan Industry Will Decline If Rate Is Lowered

The future of Michigan's cherry industry depends largely upon whether the federal tariff commission allows the present tariff rates to stand or whether the body decides to reduce the export levies, according to Howard Morgan, president of the Michigan Canners Association.

If the commission reduces the tariff on maraschino cherries from the present rate of 5 1-2 cents a pound on pitted and 9 1-2 cents a pound on unpitted products, the industry in Michigan will probably begin a downfall, Morgan said.

But if the commission reduces the tariff 50 per cent Morgan said, it will be impossible for the industry to pay American wages, operating costs and transportation charges and compete with the foreign products pitted by cheap labor and grown in countries where the standard of living is much below that of the United States.

GAS TAX MONEY BEING DELAYED

COUNTIES MUST WAIT ON LICENSE COLLECTIONS

Charlevoix County Is Listed for $34,478.71 for 1930—Wayne Gets $3,757.917

County road boards will be required to wait probably more than a month later than usual this year for their share of the weight and gas tax collections of 1930 because of the condition of the state highway fund, Grover C. Dillman, highway commissioner, admitted last Wednesday.

Dillman said that failure of both sources of revenue to make their anticipated increase during 1930 caused highway funds to be short at the close of the year and collections on 1931 license plates thus far has lagged. The latter condition comes as the result of decision of state officials to give motorists until February 1 to buy licenses because of economic conditions.

Reductions in the collections of the gas tax during the last year will result in a loss of $186,526 to the counties of the state compared with the 1929 receipts. M. DeGlopper, business manager of the department, revealed in a letter to county officials. Wayne county will suffer $110,760 of the entire loss, DeGlopper said.

Total gas collections during the year were $21,247,760, on the basis of which the counties will receive $10,623,880. Of this amount $4,142,500 was paid during 1930, leaving a balance of $6,481,380 to be paid as soon as state highway finances are stabilized. Following will be the payments to some of the counties for 1930:

Alpena, $45,139.82; Antrim, $30,073.41; Charlevoix, $34,478.71; Cheboygan, $31,454.97; Clare, $26,620.08; Crawford, $22,093.72; Emmet, $43,650.87; Grand Traverse, $53,083.50; Kent, $522,259.49; Leelanau, $28,591.22; Manistee, $42,875.44; Mecosta, $43,272.52; Montmorency, $19,621.86; Presque Isle, $31,712.45; Rosecommon, $20,438.87; Wayne, $3,757.917, and Wexford, $42,434.70.

KAMP KAIRPHREE HAS ITS ANNUAL REUNION

Delightful Affair Held Recently at Ann Arbor

The following interesting item was taken from a recent issue of the Ann Arbor Daily News. It concerns the annual reunion of Kamp Kairphree, a summer camp for girls on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix. The item follows:

"One of the delightful social events of the past week was the annual reunion of Kamp Kairphree. It was held Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. George Swain, directors, as hosts. Thirty guests were seated at the dinner table which was beautifully decorated in camp colors.

"The dinner was followed by a program of solo dances and recitations by three of the girls, reading of letters and telegrams from campers unavoidably absent, and the showing of movies and lantern slides of the camp, on the shores of Lake Charlevoix."

SPORTSMEN SEEK MANY NEW RULES

FISHING LICENSE FOR ALL—COMPLETE BAN OF SPEAR

Change in Upland Game Opening Dates—8-inch Buck Law—Drastic Punishment for Violators

If the organized sportsmen of Michigan have their way and the incoming legislature listens to them, fishermen and hunters will be confronted with the most drastic set of rules and regulations governing their sport ever set in this state.

A two-day meeting held in Lansing recently brought together over 300 delegates of sportsmen's organizations from every section of Michigan. After many hours of debate several important changes and additions to the state game and fish laws were recommended for adoption. Among the most important and far reaching are the following:

A resident fisherman's license of $1 for every person over 17 years of age and to cover all classes of fish found in our inland waters. This would exempt the Great Lakes and abolish the present trout fishing license of $1.00.

The banning of the spear for taking fish at any time of year in any of the inland waters of the State. This proposal would do away with spearing through the ice in January and February, the spearing of suckers, redhorse and mullet in spring, and the spearing of whitefish and ciscoes in fall.

The setting aside of one of the State's most important trout streams for fishermen who would be allowed to keep every trout they caught regardless of the length limit until they reached 15 in number. This is in the nature of an experiment in the attempt to establish a more satisfactory creel and length limit than that now in force.

The creation of a nine-man conservation commission instead of seven as now exists, so that every part of the State would have representation on this board.

The enactment of a law which would cause a hunter to lose his hunting license for one year if he was found guilty of violating any game law and taking away his hunting privilege for ten years if he was found guilty of seriously injuring or killing another hunter.

A proposal to repeal the private preserve hunting law was adopted by a close vote. This would do away with the privilege now extended to owners of private hunting preserves covering a 62-day hunting period on pheasants reared and released on their own lands.

The deer law was ordered changed to cover the killing of only a male deer with branching antlers at least eight inches long rather than the present three-inch limit now in effect.

The opening of all upland hunting was set to begin November 1. This would include everything except wildfowl. However, this last proposal did not meet with the approval of the conservation commission which will recommend to the Legislature (Continued on page 6.)

TRAGIC DEATH TOOK LOCAL YOUNG WOMAN

Miss Maxine Hanson Drowned at Hotel Noble Friday Morning

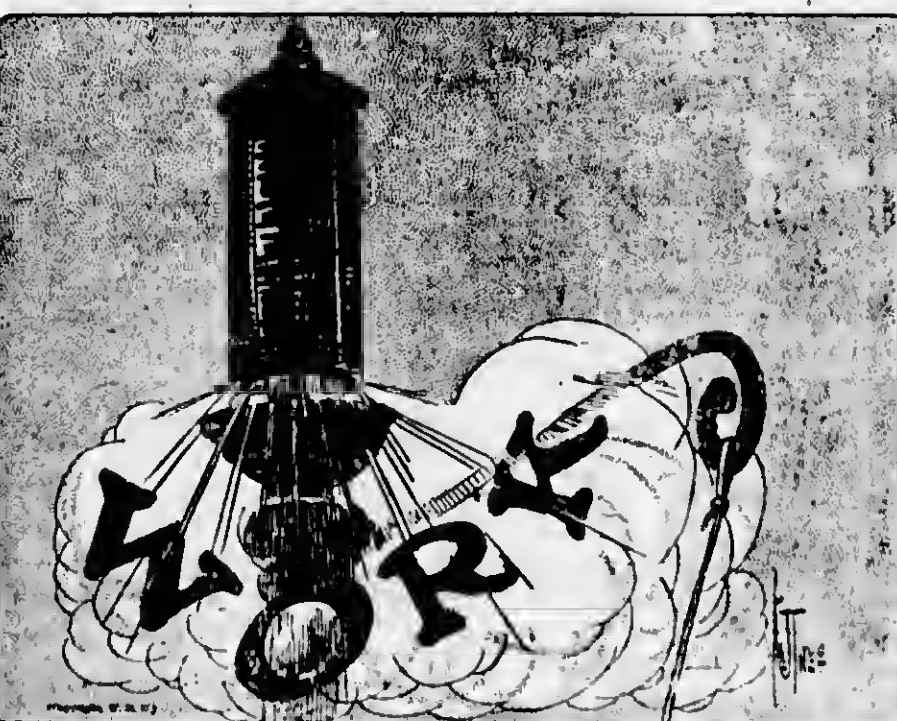

Charlevoix was saddened last Friday by the death of Miss Maxine Hanson, age 28, daughter of Mrs. Zula Hanson, manager of the Hotel Alhambra.

Miss Hanson had been a partial invalid for many years following a skiing accident at Grand Rapids. Friday morning she was left unattended while taking a bath at Hotel Noble, her winter home. When her mother returned, she was found beneath the water drowned. It is thought she had fainted, and in her crippled condition was unable to help herself.

Miss Hanson was born in Grand Rapids in 1902. She came to Charlevoix with her parents, attended the local schools and graduated with the class of '18. She later graduated from Ypsilanti normal college and afterwards taught a year at Mancelona and over two years at Cadillac. Since her injury in Grand Rapids, she had resided with her mother, who survives her.

The remains were taken to Grand Rapids Saturday afternoon and funeral services were held there early this week.

LOYALTY OVER-EMPHASIZED!
Loyalty to one's school is a wonderful thing, but often it is carried too far. We saw such an example over at Harbor Springs the other night.

Truly, Harbor Springs fans have a right to be proud of and give their basketball team moral support. That school has a wonderful record. Two years ago they won the district, regional and state class C titles. Last year they won the district and regional. In football, they annexed the 1930 Tip of Michigan title.

Throughout these successes, the teams have had the moral support of that city. But that support has overreached the stage of loyalty. Into it has crept a trace of boastfulness and disdain for competing schools. This aspect is not only apparent among fans, but with Harbor's athletes also.

During Friday night's Harbor Springs-Charlevoix basketball game, we could not help but note the sneering grin of over-confidence displayed by Harbor's players. They made efforts to confuse Charlevoix team members, while they were shooting from the foul line. They openly taunted their rivals.

From the side-lines, Bill Novak, Charlevoix's captain, was the target for ribes concerning his ineptibility during the football season. Harbor's fans shouted such remarks as: "Go home and play golf, your better at that." Their conduct was nothing less than shameful and disgusting. It detracted from, rather than bolstered the wonderful record Harbor has made in athletics.

We hope and expect Charlevoix's fans will give Harbor Springs no such treatment when they come here for a return game.

EXPRESSED APPRECIATION

We recently were in receipt of a copy of The Sandhill Citizen, published at Southern Pines, N. C., winter home of Andrew I. Creamer, manager of The Inn, Pere Marquette Railway company summer hotel at Charlevoix.

At Southern Pines, Mr. Creamer is co-owner of the Highland Pines Inn, and, according to various accounts in The Sandhill Citizen, does not confine his time to hotel operation alone.

It is very apparent from the tone of the various sketches that Mr. Creamer occupies a conspicuous place in the community life in Southern Pines, and further, that his activities and cooperation are appreciated by the citizens of that southern city.

Just as an example, we take the privilege of publishing several paragraphs from an editorial in The Sandhill Citizen entitled "The Friendly Spirit."

"The outstanding feature of the Churchman's Dinner which was held at the Highland Pines Inn last Thursday night was the predominance of spirit of friendliness that pervaded the entire atmosphere of the occasion. This was unquestionably due to the friendly personality of the host, Andrew I. Creamer. He is the type of man who just naturally wants to be your friend, not alone that he values your friendship but chiefly because he can't help being friendly. He was undoubtedly born that way; and what a splendid trait of character that is."

"The Highland Pines Inn is unquestionably a big asset to Southern Pines but it is not a fact that this big-hearted, friendly man is a greater asset to this community? The spirit of friendliness has advanced to a marked degree all over America during the past thirty years but it is doubtful if there is another community in this entire country where it has advanced to the extent that it has in the Sandhills."

"A friendly spirit is the greatest asset that can come to a community and Andrew Creamer has exhibited a spirit of friendliness that will be hard to duplicate."

What better tribute could he paid to any man? Is it not true that Charlevoix, too, owes Mr. Creamer a similar respect? There is nothing Mr. Creamer would do for Southern Pines, that he would not also do for Charlevoix.

Another article tells of the part

Mr. Creamer will play in the annual meeting of the Southern Pines Chamber of Commerce. He is one of the influences behind that organization. In this, alone, is a moral for Charlevoix. It will be noted Southern Pines holds its annual commerce meeting during the height of its winter resort season, when its citizens of influence—men who are most able—are at hand to participate. In our estimation, it is a wise move.

On the other hand, Charlevoix holds its meeting in the winter. It is a local affair. Members become highly imbued with future plans, which are talked over at subsequent meetings, and as the busy summer season approaches, are forgotten. Our summer visitors of influence and means are not taken into consideration. It is a great mistake.

However, the world rolls on, and, getting back to the original topic, we want to express our feeling of accord with The Sandhill Citizen's comments concerning Mr. Creamer.

CHARLEVOIX CLEANS UP

Charlevoix, having retained the same engineering firm that assisted Grand Rapids in solving its sanitary sewage problems, is now ready to hurry along a program that will overcome any danger of pollution of its nearby waters. We recommend Charlevoix's attitude to other northern communities, particularly those which are in any measure dependent upon the summer resort business. There never has been a suggestion that Charlevoix's beaches are not safe and healthful; but, instead of waiting until its fame as a summer playground is seriously damaged, the plan is to construct necessary sewage disposal facilities without delay.

Elimination or control of water pollution has got to come throughout Michigan. Now, when labor is abundant, is the best possible time to go about this job. The state can, if necessary, force delinquent cities to follow the course now decided upon by Charlevoix; but that shouldn't be necessary in an enlightened age.—Grand Rapids Herald.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Old age pensions would cost the taxpayers of Michigan about $15,000,000 a year. Within five years the cost would rise to $22,000,000 a year. This, mind you, for pensions of $1 a day for persons 70 years old or more, and with no relatives who could support them.

These figures are based on the actual number, and the actual estimated increase, of eligible persons in the state. In fact, however, the amount probably would be much larger. Sons and daughters would be encouraged to evade supporting parents. Aged persons with sufficient income to manage would be encouraged to conceal income to gain a more comfortable, charitable livelihood. The aged from other states would move into Michigan, and despite laws making a period of residence a qualifying necessity, they would find ways to collect the pension. Men and women capable of making a living, who would not go to a poor house, would throw up jobs and throw themselves onto the state.

The cost probably would soon mount high above $22,000,000 a year. It would require the doubling of the state tax.

The Utopian dream of abolishing poor farms and permitting aged, dependent persons to reside beside their own comfortable firesides, is humanitarian and pleasantly idealistic. It is too bad the state, or some benevolent billionaire, cannot provide the funds.

Unfortunately the taxpayers of Michigan are in no position to make this big-hearted, if impractical, gesture.

The legislature is elected to protect the interests of the citizens, including the taxpayers.—Michigan State Digest.

If the sensible clothing that women are wearing nowadays has reduced the number of accidents on trains, street cars and buses by 50 per cent, as soon as warm weather comes why not do away with accidents altogether.

An anti-smoking league for women has been organized in Massachusetts. Is there not some woman in Michigan who has the sense and stamina to start the ball rolling in this state. If not, we wonder why?

In Ohio, a white cross is placed by the roadside wherever a fatal accident occurs. These are not pleasant to view but we believe they materially lessen motor accidents.

If all the relief proposals offered in Congress were to become laws, the treasury would have to find $5,000,000,000.

It is true love if it endures after hearing her describe 82,942 different things as "perfectly precious."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Melencamp

Charlevoix was the scene of the first leaders training meeting, conducted for leaders, teachers, and friends of 4-H club work last Friday night. The group met at 5 o'clock in the community rooms and heard a most inspiring talk by Miss Pearl Bigge, county normal principal, on "The Teacher's Responsibilities." It was regretted that all rural teachers could not have been present and heard this fine address, as instructive a talk as we have ever been privileged to hear. William C. Palmer appeared next and gave his "Contacts With Club Work." Before his present capacity as school commissioner he was one of our best club leaders and firmly believes in this program.

The luncheon was served at the Hotel Noble, where 21 sat down together and busily engaged themselves with problems not too serious for pleasure. The group then had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Otterbein, superintendent of Charlevoix schools, talk on "My Contacts with Club Members in High School." Mr. A. G. Kettunen and Miss Sylvia Wixson, state boys' and girls' club leaders, next took charge, and the real discussion of the program immediately started. The group was divided into two divisions with Mr. Kettunen meeting with those interested in boys projects and with Miss Wixson meeting with leaders interested in girls work. This afforded a wonderful opportunity for the leaders to discuss their personal and local problems. All are enthusiastic with their club projects and went home with renewed pep and devotion to the worthy cause.

At the present time twenty-five different clubs are in operation with prospects for three more within the next week. My sincere appreciation is extended to the speakers for their kind assistance and to the many friends of the 4-H club program present, who made this occasion a real success.

CHEBOYGAN BOY GOES TO WORLD CONFERENCE

Will Represent This Y. M. C. A. District at Toronto Next July

Thirty men and boys from various towns in the Northern Y. M. C. A. district met in Petoskey Sunday in the Methodist church for the purpose of choosing delegates for the World's Conference which will be held in Toronto, Ontario, next July.

These world conferences are held once in five years. This is the first one to be held on this side of the ocean.

Our district is privileged to have one representative. Each school was invited to send one delegate to the Petoskey meeting last Sunday and from these the group selected as their first choice, Lewis Berry of Cheboygan; Earl Lawrence of Petoskey, second; and Hugh D. Allen of Mancelona, third.

This will be a conference of men and older boys from forty nations and they have reserved a place for a limited number of outstanding students from the various colleges of the world. Also reserving two hundred fifty seats for carefully selected boys who are still in high school. One hundred fifty of these to come from other nations and one hundred from the United States.

These conferences are held with the hope that out of meetings of this kind there may come a better international understanding and world brotherhood.

RED CROSS MAKES APPEAL FOR FUNDS

Nation-Wide Campaign in Progress to Aid Drought Sufferers

Charlevoix county has again been called upon in time of emergency, to contribute liberally to the American Red Cross.

A $10,000,000 campaign is being staged throughout the United States to prevent suffering and starvation in parts of twenty-one states in the area stricken by drought. Winter hardships have added more serious difficulties.

Mrs. J. M. Harris of Boyne City, acting chairman of the Charlevoix county Red Cross chapter, received an urgent appeal from the national organization last week, and she, in turn, asks the cooperation of everyone in the county. The county quota has been placed at $300. Local subscriptions may be left at the Charlevoix County bank.

"Why, Mr. Moody?"

The great man rumbled on. "I've come to the conclusion that if you was to get set up in a sweet place of your own, Sam, the blues trade would follow you, Elmer, like drunkards to a wrecked rim ship. Whenever you're ready, Elmer, come down to the bank and see me. I'll give you a loan of five thousand on your property in the street and—er—"

Old Ansel's face took on a hurried, quivering look. "You pretty sure you can get by on five thousand, Elmer? I wouldn't like off more'n I could chew if I was you, startin' out, but—er—"

"Well, I really ought to have ten thousand. I have twenty-five hundred in your savings department."

"If you'll put that twenty-five hundred into the venture, by golly that'll show confidence in your enterprise, Elmer, and I'll give you an open credit of twenty-five hundred more. That's fair, ain't it?"

"More than fair, Mr. Moody. I'm afraid I was a little hasty with you that day, and this morning, but then—"

Old Ansel raised a deprecating hand. "Don't mention it, Elmer. A fellow's bound to make mistakes. I've made 'em myself. Come see me when you're ready to shoot," and with a friendly wave of his hand he was off to open his little red-brick bank for the business of the day.

At the corner of Main and D streets Rev. Claude Goodfellow met Elmer, with a broad smile of brotherly love and appreciation.

He cut around Reverend Goodfellow and continued on his way. Before he had reached E street he had been accosted by four men and two women with whom he was not particularly well acquainted—certainly not friendly. And he could not help noticing that they had gone out of their way to speak to him kindly and shake hands. They had never done that before, so Elmer wondered what he had that they wanted and eventually came to the conclusion that it must be his lawn mower. Elmer was the only householder in his block who owned a lawn mower which was kept in excellent running order.

CHAPTER III

Elmer reached the Smoke Shoppe fifteen minutes late. Heretofore Sam Haskins had never failed to mark his assistant's rarely committed crime of tardiness. On such occasions Mr. Haskins was wont to cough loudly and look at Elmer. Then he would look at the clock, cough again and look back at Elmer. This morning, however, he varied his custom by crying joyously:

"Well, how's tricks with the old soldier this morning? Sleep well last night? Must have or you wouldn't be fifteen minutes late. Well, reckon you earn it, Elmer, if anybody does. And he dealt Elmer a hearty and affectionate blow between the shoulder blades.

Elmer sighed. He wished that Sam Haskins had not done that. He had planned to say:

"Well, Sam, take a good long, satisfying look, because it's the last in your repertoire. I'm giving you two weeks' notice, Sam. I'm going into this business for myself. If you will kindly step aside, Sam, I'll phone for the ambulance."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Haskins, that I'm late," he murmured confusedly. "I started in time, but all the people in town that never come to the Smoke Shoppe had to stop me and talk a minute. Anything new?"

"Not a thing," Mr. Haskins lied blithely.

From under the clear counter Elmer produced a bundle of clean cheese-cloth; one by one he took boxes of cigars from the shelves, dusted them carefully and replaced them, pausing from time to time to greet a customer and serve him. Presently, looking up from his task, he saw Nellie Cutbert standing on the edge of the sidewalk in front of the Smoke Shoppe looking at him in a manner that brought a warm, comfortable glow to his heart. He came out of the Smoke Shoppe and greeted her with a cheery:

"Hello, Nellie, old dear. How are you this morning? You look wonderful."

Nellie Cutbert was a golden blond—a real blond, if you know what is meant by that—and she had very dark eyebrows and wide, beautiful dark blue eyes beneath a wide, beautiful white brow overlooking a sweetly wistful patrician face. Her fine, even teeth were exposed as she carelessly favored Elmer with a million-dollar smile.

"Well, Elmer," she queried.

"Well, Nellie," he replied.

"I'm keeping something from me, Elmer."

"I am, Nellie. I don't know what it is, do you?"

"I've heard, Elmer, that Uncle Eben a Hutterworth has left you a million dollars."

"Well, Nellie, if true, Nellie. The stories that are circulated in this town and gain credence are unbelievable. However, Nellie, I have got some news for you, and you can believe this. That human leech Ansel Moody stopped me on the street half an hour ago and told me he'd accept my application for five thousand and give me an open credit for twenty-five hundred more. I'm going up at noon to chase my lease on H. Wasservogel's old butcher shop."

Nellie came closer to Elmer and took each lapel in her little brown hands. "Elmer," she warned, "beware the Greeks when they come bringing gifts. Do not accept that loan and do not rent for that lease today. Please?"

"Why?"

"I don't think you ought to. Today is not the day for you to discuss anything with anybody—even with me."

"Have you been going in for astrology, Nellie?"

"No, but the little birds tell me things."

"I had an impression that in Pillaritos that was the prerogative of old hens," he replied. "Very well, Nellie,

"It's a Rotten Trick to Play on Me, Elmer."

"I'll not do anything, then, without consulting my manager."

She drenched him with her smile and continued on to her work. She was paying teller for the Pillaritos Commercial Trust & Savings bank and one of old Ansel's dummy directors.

Nellie also was the trust officer of the bank and a notary public. Like Elmer Clarke, she was an orphan. She was twenty-two years old and while already in Pillaritos she was regarded as an old maid, more or less in the same and yellow leaf, she was still the recipient of much attention from the most presentable of the Pillaritos swains and was reputed to have declined to marry each of them.

Elmer Clarke, the last of a stricken field, was holding his own with Nellie, however. Two years had passed since first he had sat with her on the veranda of the Tully house, where Nellie made her home with old Mr. and Mrs. Tully.

Before Elmer could escape inside the Smoke Shoppe, he felt a hand plucking at his sleeve. The messenger had arrived with the telegram from Absalom McPeake. Elmer signed for it, read it, tucked it in his pocket and returned to the Smoke Shoppe. Sam Haskins waited for him to say something—waited five minutes, in fact, and then said:

"No bad news, I hope, Elmer."

Elmer shook his head and went on wiping dust off the stock. Presently Sam Haskins essayed another sortie.

"Elmer, they tell me you've fallen heir."

"I have," Elmer answered without enthusiasm.

Sam swatted him smartly between the shoulder blades again. "Well, why don't you say something, Elmer?"

"Nothing to say, Sam. The whole town knows it already. You couldn't expect Old Lady Bray to live with that news bottled up inside her, could you?"

"Reckon she'd last if she tried it, Elmer."

Sam heaved a heavy sigh.

"I suppose this means it's up to me to get myself some new help," he added.

Now that Sam had opened the ticklish subject Elmer was quick to take advantage of the opening. "Yes, Sam. I don't suppose either of us can afford the luxury of a million-dollar man working for forty dollars a week."

However, Sam, I was going to leave you, anyhow. In fact, it was my intention to slip you the bad news tonight. This telegram hasn't made the news it contains is as great a surprise to me as it was to Old Lady Bray. I was going to tell you to go into business for myself."

"In what line?" Sam's tone was freighted with anxiety.

"Same line as this."

"What? After workin' for me five years in 'legrin' the business' from me, you figure on startin' opposition?"

Sam Haskins lost his temper completely. "It's a rotten trick to play on me, Elmer."

"I'm sorry you think so. At any rate, your protest does not move me, so you have my resignation, to take effect immediately. I wouldn't work a split second for a man who thinks I'm capable of dirty tricks and who has as little appreciation of loyalty and ability as you possess."

And Elmer tossed the cheese-cloth under the counter, took his salary to date from the cash register, made out a receipt for it—and walked out of the Smoke Shoppe.

"You ain't to let me down without notice?" Sam cried incredulously.

"I wasn't—until you talked that way. Hereafter, Sam, get along the best way you know how."

He walked away down Main street, only to be stopped by a concerted rush of men congregated across the street.

They pumped his hand, stepped his back and showered him with congratulations.

At Nellie's window he paused long enough to hand her the telegram from McPeake and continued on to Ansel Moody's office.

The banker rose expeditiously and shook hands with him. "Well, Elmer, did you bring the search of the title of your C street property with you?"

He inquired with mock interest.

Elmer sat down. "I've decided not to go into that business after all, Mr. Moody," he announced. "Since speaking with you this morning I have received a telegram from a lawyer in Muscatine, Iowa, informing me that under the last will and testament of my Uncle Hiram Hutterworth, of that city, I am, with the exception of two minor bequests, the sole beneficiary of an estate conservatively estimated at a million dollars."

Of all the congratulatory handshakes he had received that morning none equalled in promptness and intensity of grip the one which old Ansel Moody gave him now. "By golly," cried the banker. "By golly! If this ain't the best news I've ever heard, Elmer, you're the richest man in Pillaritos and the second richest man in the county. I congratulate you with all my heart."

"Thank you, Mr. Moody. I must say I do not feel depressed about it myself. The first thought about it to me after receiving that telegram was that I had been going sixteen hours a day for five years without a vacation; and during that five years I have had to beat back a long way to regain my health. I was struggling for a prize—and now the necessity for further struggle is ended. I have come to the conclusion, therefore, that I'll leave Sam Haskins in possession of his monopoly."

At that moment Nellie entered to return the telegram to him. "I'm awfully happy for your sake, Elmer," she told him. "Still, this is not a surprise to me. I told you last night that within a week your ship would come in."

"Thank you, Nellie. I came down to tell you first, but of course you knew it already. Old Lady Bray had broadcast it."

"Yes, she telephoned me first, Elmer."

Ansel Moody turned to his paying teller and trust officer. "Why didn't you telephone me this great news, Miss Cutbert?" he demanded.

"I would have informed you when I reached the bank this morning, Mr. Moody, if Albee Goodfellow hadn't told me she had telephoned you at your home."

Old Ansel could have stabbed her with his paper knife. To cover his confusion he picked up the telegram and studied it carefully.

"Sure somebody ain't tryin' to play a practical joke on you, Elmer?" he asked finally. "If you want, I'll wire some bank in Muscatine and ask them to investigate an' report."

"If you will be kind enough to do that, Mr. Moody, I will be under obligation to you."

"Certainly," Miss Cutbert, attend to that matter, please, Elmer, if this bank can serve you in any way, always remember that that's what we're here for—to serve our customers. Good luck to you, hoy, an' God bless you."

He shook hands with Elmer again, very cordially, and answered the telephone.

Elmer followed Nellie out into the lobby of the bank.

"Don't be misled by Mr. Moody's friendliness, Elmer," she warned him. "He's after your account. If he hadn't had advance information he would not have waylaid you this morning and offered to finance you."

"Think so?" Elmer was a trifle doubtful.

"Know so. The man's a shark. Be careful of him. He'll try to get your confidence and unload some of his own cats and dogs on you under the guise of advising you in your investments. In fact, you'll have a great number of people sacrificing themselves to the solemn duty of safeguarding that million dollars, Elmer. Heretofore you had a host of friends who loved you for what you are. You will now double the number of your friends. Be careful of them, Elmer. They will love you for what you have. That, by the way," she added, "is the first, last and only advice I am going to give you and I prefer to give it to you before you come into your inheritance. I leave the competition."

Elmer was about to say something that had been close to his heart for two years, but reflected in time that the lobby of a bank was not the proper place to say it. Moreover, Mr. Crittenden, the cashier, had come out of his office now and was proffering a congratulatory handshake.

"You'll find that wealth is a burden," he informed the new millionaire sagely. "Put it in bonds, Elmer—Liberty bonds. The interest yield is small, but it is safe."

A Box of Dolls

The fourth grade pupils will give a musical, "A Box of Dolls," Tuesday, January 27, in the gymnasium at 8:45 a. m. All are invited to come.

Ancient History

The Ancient History class has been working on posters to illustrate the work studied during the semester on Rome and Greece. Very good work was turned in by many, and the printing on them was excellent. The scenes were varied, some of the ruins of ancient Rome and others illustrating the beautiful buildings such as the Parthenon and others which stood on the Acropolis. Therefore don't be surprised if some of our progressive freshmen pop into the limelight some of these days, having made a name for themselves as great artists.

Junior High School Girl's Basketball. The girl's basketball squad is now practicing with Miss Bodfish as their coach. The squad is divided into two groups of fifteen each, one of which is well represented, with many who played last year. The squad is looking forward to many good games, presumably with some of the high school girls' teams.

Jokes

Mr. Coleman: (to Richard McCann in English class after "Fat" has interrupted a recitation) "Richard I should think you would be better 'bread' than that!"

While discussing the Seminole Indians in American history: David Dick — "Well you 'know these Sem—iole Indians etc."

Miss Logan: "Norman, what was the name of the man who escorted the dead across the river Styx?" Norman Anee: "Old Man River."

Our Negative Team

The debaters were on the platform. Silence filled the air: They were waiting breathlessly, As the judge came up the stair.

With Dorothy Staley as timekeeper. The time must be right of course; Virginia being first negative. The speech was given with force.

Of course through the deathly silence The faces were tense and drawn; And, so they remained that evening, Until the judges had gone.

Surely with Virginia Nickerson, And Marjorie Manley, too; Not leaving out Albert McMillan. The points in our favor grew.

As you all know that one evening, Was the one to end the rest; For they enter the Elimination, To see who is the best.

Proteins Make Feeder's Grain Do More Work. Shortage of feeds, while serious in many areas, can be relieved to some extent by the use of linseed meal and other protein supplements, which will make the home grown grains go much farther and do much better work.

Many feeders, when they find themselves short of feed, cut down on their rations or eliminate the protein concentrates or other valuable elements from their feed. This is just what they should not do. A little extra money spent for proteins will return large dividends, when fed to any kind of livestock.

If the farmer does not have any grain, it will pay him to buy some while it is cheap, but it will not pay him to let his stock get in poor flesh. It will be much more expensive to get them back in condition in the spring than it will be to keep them in good condition through the winter.

MRS. MARIE SAUER

"I suffered fearfully from stomach and bowel trouble," said Mrs. Marie Sauer, 2238 East Forest avenue, Detroit. "Food soured in my stomach, my heart palpitated and I had smothering spells. I lost weight steadily and became very nervous. I tried many remedies and treatments without relief."

"You can imagine my surprise, when, after taking three bottles of Konjola, my stomach had improved wonderfully. My food digested as it should, I had an excellent appetite and really enjoyed my meals. As I kept on with the treatment I could feel my strength returning. My nerves became quiet and my bowels functioned normally and regularly. I still take Konjola occasionally because it keeps me feeling fit."

The files of Konjola contain many thousands of such endorsements. They have made Konjola a household word in thousands of homes.

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix, Michigan, at F. J. Fessenden's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

RENEW FIGHT TO SELL B. C. G. & A.

New York Central Puts in Bid of $1 for Northern Line

The New York Central and the Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena, a 92-mile line in Michigan, were at grips before the interstate commerce commission over the matter of how much the New York Central should pay for the small road.

The Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena prices itself at $1,313,000. The New York Central holds that $1 is about a fair price.

The interstate commerce commission has the duty of deciding which is right. It had authorized the New York Central to buy the Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena. It told the Central to make an offer. The Central promptly offered $1. The case was submitted to arbitrators, who held the road was worth $1,313,000.

The Boyne City assembled a formidable array of witnesses. First came R. W. Fletcher, an accountant, of Boyne City, Mich., who was certain the road was worth $1,313,000. Then J. R. Sensibar, a Chicago gravel contractor, revealed that he is planning to open a big gravel pit on the line of the Boyne City which will give the road a lot of rock to haul.

The state has made arrangements with the Mackinaw Transportation company to take care of passengers and automobiles until spring. The Chief Wawatam will be used, and the approximate schedule calls for trips leaving Mackinaw City at 7:30 a. m., 5:30 p. m., and 10:30 p. m.; and leaving St. Ignace at 5:30 a. m., 9:30 a. m., and 7:00 p. m. Freight trips may be added or cancelled depending on traffic. The distance across the Straits is eight miles, and the running time is fifty minutes.

The state boats have operated longer this season than ever before since the service went into effect.

Watch this paper for date and place of W. R. C. party and supper.—Adv. 311.

SAVE A TENTH

The suggestion to save a tenth of one's income for future use may seem hard to follow, but unless a careful budget of the income has been made, it is most probable that at least this much is spent unnecessarily. Those who spend according to a budget find that their money goes further, waste is reduced to a minimum, and systematic saving becomes a pleasant, easy game. It is certainly worth a trial.

IDEAL GIFT FOR THE BOY

What glorious adventures boys between the ages of ten and twenty have reading THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION! As if by magic, this well-known magazine carries boys to distant parts of the world, introduces them to strange people, lets them experience queer customs and revel in the adventures of foreign lands.

In a single issue, a boy will battle the frozen Northland with sled and dog team, cross Indian-haunted plains in a prairie schooner, zoom over war-torn lands in an army plane or on dangerous routes with a U. S. mail pilot, hunt wild animals in Africa atop the swaying back of an elephant, go cruising in a battleship, fight Arab raiders with the Foreign Legion and participate in many other thrilling experiences that come to readers of THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

It is such experiences as these that sharpen a boy's wits, kindle his imagination, strengthen his character, develop his understanding of the world in which he lives and of the people that inhabit it. Here, indeed, is the ideal gift for that boy in whom you are interested—that son, nephew, cousin, neighbor, or, perhaps, the son of a business associate.
An attractive gift card bearing your name will be sent to the boy if you request it with your order. Then every time the mailman brings the magazine to his door, the boy will think of you gratefully.

Subscription prices are only $2.00 for one year and $3.00 for three years. Mail your order direct to THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COM-
PANION, 550 W. Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. Service on your subscription will start with whichever issue you specify.

MASONIC ASSOCIATION HELD ANNUAL MEETING

Banquet, Business Session and Social Program Tuesday Evening

Annual meeting of the Masonic Building & Loan association was held Tuesday evening at the Masonic temple with an attendance estimated at 150. Reports indicate that the gathering was one of the most successful and enjoyable on record.

Banquet dinner was served at 6:30 by Eastern Star members. It is still being talked of. The annual husiness meeting followed.

Oluf Nordrum was a re-elected president of the association. Trusttees re-elected for three years were
A. L. Fitch, H. R. Fowler and S. M.
Rose. Archie L. Livingston was likewise re-elected member of the auditing committee for a similar term.

Report of D. S. Payton, secretary-treasurer, revealed that the mortgage indebtedness of the association had been decreased to $2,200. There is $250 still due from 1930 and this amount will be decrease the indebtedness to less than two thousand dollars during 1931. The association expects to "burn the mortgage" some time during 1932.

Following the business meeting, a delightful social hour was enjoyed.
Dancing and cards and a cleverly arranged impromptu program made the evening one long to be remembered.

CHARLEVOIX LOSES PIONEER RESORTER

Edward C. Waller Died Tuesday,
January 13, at Chicago

Charlevoix loses a pioneer summer resorter in the death January 13th, at Chicago, of Edward C. Waller, one of the first cottagers at the Chicago club, and owner of the property north of Charlevoix known as the Orchard Bay Farm.

According to James Gaskin, caretaker of the Chicago club, Mr. Waller had been coming to Charlevoix for over 40 years.

In addition to his holdings at the Chicago club, Mr. Waller's estate north of Charlevoix comprised approximately 3,600 acres with five miles of frontage on Lake Michigan.
Since abandonment of Loeb Farms, it was the largest agricultural enterprise in Northern Michigan. The farm specialized in blooded stock and its apples were famous. Mr. Waller carried out an extensive reforestation project at the farm, planting many acres of pine on the sand dunes fronting Lake Michigan. The planting was a marked success and will stand as a monument to its sponsor in years to come.

An item in Monday's Grand Rapids Herald stated Mr. Waller was 84 years of age. He left an estate valued at $4,500,000 with no will. He had been in ill health for several years.

LOCAL YOUNG COU- PLE WERE MARRIED

Miss Verda Shearer and Aubrey
Block United New Year's Eve

Miss Verda E. Shearer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shearer, and Aubrey Block, son of Mr. and Mrs.
Henry Block, were united in marriage at 10:30 New Year's Eve at the Methodist parsonage in East Jordan.
Rev. Leach, pastor of the first Methodist church of East Jordan, performed the ceremony, using the ring service. Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Stueck of that city were the attendants.

Following the ceremony the wedding party returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stueck where a luncheon, with a beautiful wedding cake as the center piece, was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Block are popular local young people and have the best wishes of their many friends. They are at home in Charlevoix.

SPORTSMEN SEEK MANY NEW RULES

that the upland season open October 1 in the upper peninsula and October 15 in lower Michigan and this would be the opening date for duck and goose hunting.

A tag system for all grouse and pheasants shot was also advocated.
In face of opposition from scientists the skunk was ordered kept on the predatory animal list and not to be protected as was recommended by zoologists from the University of Michigan.

The proposal to set aside a certain percentage of all hunting license money for the purchase of public hunting grounds and game refuges was lost by a vote of three to two.

All of these proposals will be presented to the various legislative committees in the hope that they will be erected into laws but the general impression seems to be that few will survive the statute books.

FORMER EMMET DEPUTY SHERIFF GOES TO JAIL

George Wilson of Carp Lake Pleads Guilty Shooting Deer Out of Season

A former deputy sheriff of Emmet county, George Wilson of Carp Lake, pled guilty to a charge of unlawfully killing deer and was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail by Justice Paul W. Rothe of Pellston. The charge was placed by Thomas Kohoski, conservation officer. Several complaints had been entered against Wilson before. John Wilcoxson, also of Carp Lake, was sentenced to 60 days by Justice Rothe on a similar charge.

Joseph Donatus was tried before Justice Joseph Murphy of Petoskey for unlawfully killing deer and was sentenced to 30 days in jail or $50 and costs. It is expected that Donatus will pay the fine. Donatus was mixed up in a fight with the Chingwa brothers on New Year's night—Emmet County Graphic.

NEW DISTRICTING PLAN AIDS WAYNE

BILL WOULD GIVE THREE COUNTIES ALL OF NEW MEN

Legislature Not Expected to Take Action for Two Years—Members May Be Named At Large

A proposal for congressional reapportionment of the state, based upon population which would give a majority of the Michigan delegation to the counties of Wayne, Oakland and Genesee, has been completed by Myles F. Gray, clerk of the state house of representatives.

It gives six of the 17 congressmen Michigan will have, if and when congress approves the 1930 census figures, to Wayne county outright and places Genesee and Oakland in such a grouping that their vote would dominate their districts, making a total of eight metropolitan congressmen.

Gray explained, however, that his outline of a possible redistricting is only the result of his spare time efforts and that he does not intend to offer it for adoption. Moreover, since congress will not officially pass upon the census report before March 4th there appears little possibility that the 1931 session of the legislature will have time to reach agreement on the question.

If no reapportionment is voted at the present session the additional four congressmen the state will receive will be elected at large for at least one term.

The lineup proposed for the 11th district follows:

Eliminate Menominee and Delta counties in the upper peninsula and include all counties north of the south line of Manistee, Wexford, Missaukee, Roscommon, Ogemaw and Arenac in the lower peninsula. The population distribution: Alger 9,370, Schoolcraft 8,451, Mackinac 8,783, Luce 6,528, Chippewa 26,047, Emmet 15,109, Cheboygan 11,502, Presque Isle 11,330, Charlevoix 11,981, Antrim 9,979, Otsego 5,554, Montmorency 2,814, Alpena 18,514, Leelanau 8,206, Benzie 6,587, Grand Traverse 20,011, Kalkaska 3,799, Crawford 3,097, Oscoda 1,728, Alcona 4,989, Manistee 17,409, Wexford 16,827, Missaukee 6,992, Roscommon 2,055, Ogemaw 6,595, Isosco 7,517, Arenac 8,007. Total 258,798.

Delta and Menominee counties would be added to the 12th district, under the proposed scheme.

ODD FELLOWS RETAIN THEIR CRIBBAGE LEAD

Added 529 More Points to Previous Advantage Monday Night

In the second of a series of cribbage contests between local Masonic and Odd Fellow lodges, held Monday evening at the Masonic temple, the Odd Fellows increased their lead by 529 points.

Adding this advantage to their previous lead of 518 points, the Odd Fellows are out in front by a total of 1,047. The series calls for eight contests, to be played alternately at the Masonic and Odd Fellow halls each Monday evening. Twelve tables were in play at the last session.

Interest is running high and competition between the two fraternities is keen. The Masons are confident Dame Fortune will soon reward their efforts, while the Odd Fellows are feeling comfortable with their advantage.

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB ORGANIZED

OFFICERS CHOSEN AT MEETING LAST WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Business and Professional Interests Sponsor Projects for Betterment of City—Entertainment

A representative group of Charlevoix business and professional men organized what will be known as the Charlevoix Business Men's Club at a meeting held last Wednesday evening at the council chambers.

L. S. See was chosen president, and Fred Alberts, secretary-treasurer.

The club has several definite purposes in view, namely: bringing about closer relationship between business interests; sponsoring closer cooperation between business interests and city government; providing entertainment and sponsoring improvements and legislation for city betterment.

Next meeting of the club will be held Friday evening of this week at Monte's Cafe with a luncheon. A program of athletics at the school gymnasium will follow. It is planned to organize basketball and indoor baseball teams. An entertainment committee composed of P. D. Campbell, C. F. Wood and M. A. Levinson was named to plan activities for the initial week. Membership of this committee will be changed each week.

Two important projects discussed at Wednesday night's meeting were that of extending Park avenue from the intersection of Bridge street east to Rond Lake, and the establishment of an alley from Clinton street north at the rear of stores on the east side of Bridge street. It was decided to petition the city council for these improvements. Acquisition of several parcels of valuable business property would be necessary to carry these needed improvements through to a successful conclusion.

NEW SCHEDULE FOR MEETINGS IS MADE

Days Set When Societies Will Work to Aid Local Needy

A new schedule of meeting dates at the community club room for the various societies affiliated with the Charlevoix Benevolent committee in their work to aid the needy has been announced by Mrs. Cassie Hart, general chairman, as follows:

Charlevoix Methodist ladies and Epworth Ladies' Aid will meet on the first Wednesday of each month. Mrs. F. F. McMillan is chairman. Episcopal and Christian Science groups, with Mrs. Clara Todd as chairman, meet the second Wednesday; Baptist ladies, Mrs. Harker Kirby, chairman, meet the third Wednesday, and the Mary Brewster Circle of the Congregational church, Mrs. Charles Lamphear, chairman, meet the fourth Wednesday.

Others interested in the work are invited to meet with any of the above groups on the appointed days. Cast-off clothing of any description is solicited.

Announcement

I wish to announce to the electors of Charlevoix county that I am a candidate for re-election to the office of county commissioner of schools at the primaries on Monday, March 2. I enjoy the work, and if I am the choice of the electorate, I shall be delighted to serve another term. Yours for service, W. C. Palmer.—Adv. 4t1.

HEAVY SMELT RUN EXPECTED IN SPRING

Large Catches Are Being Made Thru Lake Charlevoix Ice

The annual smelt spawning run next spring gives promise of being the largest on record, judging from the large catches of smelt taken through the ice on Lake Charlevoix this winter.

At Ironton, Boyne City, and East Jordan, fine catches of these tasty fish are being taken daily.

Because of the unusual open winter in this region, the smelt spawning run is expected earlier even than last year, when it started March 17. Ed. Deuell of Boyne City, district game warden, has obtained a permit to put a screen across Jordan river just above the mouth of Deer creek, in order to divert smelt into the smaller stream so they may be dipped. There was a heavy run in the Jordan a year ago, but the water is too deep for successful dipping.

At Boyne City, where one of the largest smelt runs in Michigan is claimed for Boyne river, preparations are also being made. Debris and obstructions have been removed from the river bottom. It is planned there to put wire netting across the river at a certain point from the lake so that smelt will be unable to go beyond a certain limit where dipping is allowed.

START PLANTING WHITEFISH FRY

SHIPMENT MADE TO MANISTIQUE MONDAY AFTERNOON

High Water Temperature Occasioned by Mild Winter Weather Hastened Propagation of Spawn

Twenty million whitefish fry were shipped Monday by special car from the Charlevoix hatchery for planting in Lake Michigan waters off Manistique and Fairport on the north shore. It is said to be the earliest planting on record from the local hatchery. The transfer follows out the conservation department's policy of planting fry at the points from which spawn is taken.

Ordinarily, whitefish spawn does not reach planting stage until late February or early in March. Last year planting was made in February, setting a precedent.

Mild weather of the present winter has brought about unusual conditions. Length of time necessary for propagation of spawn is governed largely by water temperatures. In other words, if water is cold, it retards development, and if warm speeds it up. Lack of cold weather this winter has kept Lake Michigan water between 39 and 41 degrees above zero, where normally it would be 35 degrees or less. Consequently, spawn development has been hastened, and thus the necessity for early planting.

The local hatchery has in the neighborhood of 60,000,000 whitefish eggs. The entire lot is hatching earlier than under normal conditions. It was intimidated by hatchery officials, that fry remaining after outside shipments would be planted by boat out of Charlevoix as it reached the proper stage. Unless weather conditions change greatly from what they are at the present time, there should be no difficulty in reaching open water for planting operations by boat.

MISSIONARY GROUP HOLD ANNUAL MEET

Play Feature of Program Wednesday at Congregational Church

The annual missionary luncheon of the Congregational women was served at the church by the Mary Brewster Circle last Wednesday at one o'clock.

The regular monthly meeting of the Missionary Society followed, and a feature of the program was a clever little play called "The Clinic of a Missionary Specialist." The following were members of the cast: Nurse, Mrs. Allan Campbell; Doctor, Mrs. Adah Shackley; Patients, Mesdames O. Smith, Charles Lamphear, E. VanAllsburg, E. C. Steritt, Clyde Ogden, James Krulick and Ernest Staley.

TAME DEER PRO- VIDES PROBLEM

BEAVER ISLAND ANIMAL DE-SIRES VILLAGE AS HOME

Efforts to Drive One Into Woods Prove Failure—Herd at Island Makes Large Increase

Residents of the village of St. James on Beaver Island have a pet deer. For some time past, a full grown doe has insisted upon making the village her domain, much to the worry of the islanders, who fear dogs will eventually bring her harm.

Early last week, members of the Beaver Island Game Protective association, headed by Gus Mielke, local conservation officer, made an unsuccessful attempt to drive the animal from the village into the safer fastness of nearby woods. The doe took momentary flight, but as soon as her would-be-benefactors disbanded, returned. She has since balked all efforts to drive her away and her friends are trying to figure out a more successful method.

This doe is but one of a large herd of deer on Beaver Island. In the early summer of 1927, 14 deer were transferred there from the private estate of Otto Schupp near Sault Ste. Marie. Under strict protection, the original herd has increased to approximately 80 since that time. Ruling the herd, it is claimed, is a buck of unusual size—a trophy any hunter would trek miles to capture.

Behind the conservation move was Harry W. Bundy, Detroit manufacturer and Beaver Island summer resort. Through his efforts the Beaver Island Game Protective association was formed. All fox hunting with dogs was prohibited, and an extra precautionary measure, canine inhabitants of the islands disappeared on a wholesale scale. Mr. Bundy carried the project further to include other species of wild life. Pheasants, hitherto unknown to the island, were introduced. They increased beyond the fondest hopes of the most optimistic, and finally became a nuisance until hunting was allowed during season. Several pairs of muskrat were taken to the island. They are increasing satisfactorily.

In addition to its historic interests, Beaver Island is destined to become a wild-life paradise in years to come. Many naturalists now visit the island, claiming it to have more species of wild life than any known spot in Michigan.

LOCAL TOSSERS PLAY AT MANDELONA FRIDAY

Open Second Semester Sched Away from Home—Boys Here Next

Charlevoix high school's undefeated class C basketball quintet swing into action again this week following a week's lay-off occasioned by a vacant date in their schedule.

The team has an engagement away from home, taking on Mancelona in their third conference game of the season. Judging from comparative records, Kipke's tossers should have little trouble taking the Antrim county combination into camp.

Charlevoix's combination will be materially strengthened for its second semester games by the addition of Joe Smith, who has become eligible to play. Joe is a brilliant offensive player with a dead-eye eye for the ring. He is equally strong on defense, and his addition bolsters the squad's strength to no small degree. Regular practice sessions have been the order during the week's lay-off and the team is in good trim for the second half of their season's tilts.

First home game following the Mancelona contest will be February 6th, when Kipke's warriors take on the snappy Boyne City outfit in a return engagement.

NEXT LECTURE NUMBER FEBRUARY 2ND

Three-Act Play, "Her Husband's Wife," Is Scheduled

"Jammed full of laughter and sparkling with bright dialogue," is the way the New York American, in part, described "Her Husband's Wife," the three-act comedy by A. E. Thomas, which is to appear in the school gymnasium Monday evening, February 2nd. The play, which is frankly an entertainment in the most popular sense, has been preserved as one of the dramatic hits of the decade.

The principal characters are Stuart Randolph, a good looking young husband; Richard Bolden, his brother-in-law; Irene Randolph, the wife of Stuart; Emily Ludew, the "successor," John Bolden, genial uncle of Irene and Richard.

The wife, who is constantly taking remedies for imaginary ills, decides to pick out her husband's second wife, and naturally selects an unattractive spinster, who consents to be the "successor." However, the "successor" begins to make herself attractive, until the husband really becomes interested in her, and the wife then begins to regret her bargain.

When the wife sets out to undo what she has done, the complications that ensue form the settings for much interesting action and many laughs. Of course, everything is cleared up at the finish, and things are brought to a happy ending.

The play will be presented by a professional New York cast. While "Her Husband's Wife" was written solely to be acted, with no thought of the printed page in mind, it has survived to be printed by virtue of its dramatic integrity.

MILES OF GILL NET SEIZED THIS YEAR

State Patrol Boat Confiscated Much Twine Set Illegally

Some 40 miles of gill nets set illegally in Michigan waters of the great lakes were lifted and seized by the state conservation department's boat, Patrol No. 1, during this past season, reports in the law enforcement division of the department show.

Some of the nets were of illegal mesh and others were set in closed waters.

Shortly before the opening of the whitefish season, December 15, 44 boxes of gill nets were seized in the Michigan waters of Green bay. Some of these nets apparently had been set by Wisconsin fishermen and were not marked by buoys, Capt. Charles J. Allers, in charge of Patrol No. 1, reported. The balance had no identifying marks on the buoys and in some cases were set with the buoys just even with the surface of the water to make them as nearly invisible as possible.

The spirit of co-operation shown by the commercial fishermen this fall during the spawn taking season on lake trout and whitefish is praised by Capt. Allers in his reports.

SUFFERED TEN YEARS OF PAIN

Then Konjola, America's Household Remedy Ended Rheumatism—But Seven Bottles Required

MR. DANIEL RUNYAN

"For ten years I suffered the aches and pains of rheumatism," said Mr. Daniel Runyan, 518 Lema street, Fenton, near Detroit. "Constipation added to my distress. My knees were so stiff, sore and swollen that I could not touch them without pain. This condition kept me awake at night and I was very weak."

The first bottle of Konjola helped me wonderfully and seven bottles of this great medicine put an end to rheumatism. Constipation was soon corrected and I feel better than I have for years. That is why I give this public endorsement to Konjola.

Konjola is free from alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs, or heart-depressing chemicals. It is all pure medicine and every drop works.

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix, Michigan, at F. J. Fessenden's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

The animals will be injured, good durable specimens of horseflesh are to be used and the riders will have to take their own chances on getting into and out of the saddles.

A team of trained mules which the owner, Jerry Hubbard, Ovid, says can do most anything except talk will occupy the spotlight as one of the acts.

Members of the physical training classes at the College will give gymnastic and athletic exhibitions. Both the men and women students have a place on the program. Another group of students will have a wrestling match and a tug-of-war on horseback.

The College military band will furnish the music for the series of events which will take place in demonstration hall.

FARM NOTES

Farm Accounts Help to Check Profit Or Loss

Do you know how much money you made or lost during 1930? Many farmers do not. Many do not even know whether they ended the year with a profit or loss. This may not seem possible, but the amount of money in the bank or the amount taken in during the year doesn't always indicate the financial progress made.

A farmer may end the year with more money in the bank than he had at the beginning of the year, but this extra amount may be due to sales of livestock or machinery which was not replaced. Then really he is not ahead so much. The only positive means of knowing whether or not you are making money is to keep a complete set of books, including every transaction made during the year.

The dairy farmer who belongs to a dairy herd improvement association knows that it paid him to buy linseed meal and feed a balanced ration because the tester is keeping books on the herd for him, but on other items he does not know how he stands, unless he keeps his own books.

The county agent will be able to help any farmer start his records. Two bulletins on the subject also are furnished by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. These are farmer's bulletin 1139, "A Method of Analyzing the Farm Business," and farmer's bulletin No. 1182, "Farm Inventories," which will be supplied free of charge.

NO TRACE IS FOUND OF YOUNG RUNAWAY

Attempts to find Willard Hoyt, 14-year-old Petoskey high school boy, who ran away from home Wednesday, January 14, have been futile. Young Hoyt, who lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hoyt, three miles southeast of Petoskey, has not been seen since he started to school on Wednesday morning. Sheriff Thomas L. Bryant is working on the theory that young Hoyt started for Grand Rapids. He expects to hear from the Grand Rapids police. Hoyt is the grandson of W. F. Hurd, clerk of the Emmet county road commission.

POTATO SHOW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Annual Meeting Top O' Michigan Association Held Last Week

Officers of the Top O' Michigan Potato show at Gaylord were re-elected last week at the annual meeting of the society.

The dates for the 1931 show were fixed for October 28, 29 and 30. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $48 after all bills for the 1930 show were paid. The show is now considering adding alfalfa to its premium list and organizing of a new department. Apples were added some time ago.

Officers are R. J. Gehrke, of Ossineke, president; Dale Nichols of Pellston, vice-president; County Agent B. C. Mellenkamp, secretary; and F. W. Dillworth of Boyne City, treasurer. County Agent C. H. Blivin of Alpena is business manager.

IMPROVE BASKETBALL GYM AT BOYNE CITY

Plans were made this week by the school board at Boyne City, for the immediate improvement of Boyne City's newly constructed gymnasium. New galleries on two sides of the building 90 feet in length, together with additional seats at both ends, will more than double the seating capacity of the building.

The contractor is required to complete his work before March 5 to accommodate the annual basketball tournament which commences on that day. The class C teams competing will be East Jordan, Mancelona, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Boyne City. The class D teams will be Bellaire, Central Lake, Ellsworth, Boyne Falls, Alba and Wolverine.

Elmer caught the small smile in back of Nellie's head as he left the bank. On the sidewalk he met Ed Wyatt, mayor of the town, who promptly corralled him.

"Conserve it, Elmer, conserve it," his Honor boomed in his mellow, round voice that hadn't any more sincerity in it than near beer. "When you get around to it, see me and I'll put you next to one of the grandest buys in an apricot orchard that is to be found in the state."

Elmer thanked him and proceeded on his way. But not very far. Late Kildwell, the chief of police, called him over to his car and, leaning out, gave him his card, after first writing on it: "To all peace officers."

"The bearer, Elmer B. Clarke, is a personal friend of mine. Any courtesies extended will be appreciated."

"You'll be getting yourself a new car, Elmer," the chief prophesied, "and this card might help you with the traffic officers."

Elmer tucked the card away in his wallet, a little pleased to have it in case of emergency. Arriving home, he changed into an old suit and gum boots, climbed into his second-hand flyover and departed for his favorite trout stream.

It was dark when he returned to Pluereitos. He changed his clothes and drove around to the Tully house. He found Nellie seated on the front porch.

"Have you had your dinner, Elmer?" she asked.

"No, Nellie. Thought I'd come around and take you to dinner out to Joe Angelotti's. Been fishing. Didn't have much luck, but got enough for you and me. Joe will cook them for us."

She climbed into the coupe and took the wheel. "I'll drive, Elmer. Something tells me you have had a bad day."

"I have, Nellie. I've been experiencing the burden of wealth. Already old enemies show a disposition to let sleeping dogs lie and the Elmer B. Clarke Benevolent and Protective Association is in process of organization exactly as you foretold."

"What are you going to do, Elmer?"

"I'm going to Muscatine as soon as I can, have a consultation with McPeake, learn what the estate consists of, and then decide what I am going to do. While I'm away you can use the silver."

"Thanks, Elmer. Want me to feed your dog and the chickens?"

He turned toward her impulsively and laid his hand over hers, where it clasped the wheel. "You're a sweet heart, Nellie," he murmured.

Nellie looked at him with love lights in her eyes, but suddenly remembering that he was now a millionaire and she must not be guilty tonight of a tendency toward a sentiment she would not have bothered to repress if Elmer had been as poor as John's famed turkey, she withdrew her hand from under his and asked him how many trout he had caught that day.

"Ten nice ones, Nellie. Somehow I couldn't keep my mind on the fish today. It's quite a shock to become a millionaire without warning."

"You'll grow accustomed to it. By the time the novelty of having whatever you want has worn off, you'll have learned much of men and motives. Probably, too, you'll have learned much about women. And of course you'll not live in Pluereitos."

"Really, Nellie, you wouldn't blame me for leaving this little country town of three thousand inhabitants. I've been weary of it for a long, long time."

"You've had the wanderlust ever since you went away to the war," Nellie complained. "However, I suppose you'll come back occasionally to visit your real friends in Pluereitos."

"Of course, Nellie. By the way, did Moody receive an answer from the Muscatine bank?"

"Not up to the time I left the office."

"I'm not going to make any definite plans until that telegram comes, Nellie. Suppose McPeake's telegram has been garbled in transit. Suppose some trick clause should develop in the will. Suppose I have to do some fool thing before I'll be eligible as a ready-made legatee; suppose I decide not to do it and the million dollars goes to charity."

"After play safe, Elmer. Tackle that money for a large unsecured loan tomorrow morning. If the bank refuses the McPeake telegram, he'll fall over himself to accommodate you. Then if your inheritance proves an disappointment you'll not be at Moody's mercy."

Elmer laughed. "I'll do it," he declared. "I'll be nice to know I have ten thousand dollar credit."

"Make it twenty thousand and see if you can get away with it."

"It would be nice to have the money in case a cog slipped in that will," he agreed. "Well, I'll try old Ansel out in the morning."

He and Nellie had dinner at Joe Angelotti's Italian tavern ten miles out on the country turnpike. They dined until midnight to jazz strains from a radio with a loud speaker and drove home very happy in the second-hand coupe.

At parting that night Elmer Clarke kissed Nellie Cathcart for the first time since he had known her—and he had known her since his twelfth year. Nellie offered no serious objection. However, with suddenly repression, she did not invite a shower of osculation, and when Elmer seemed about to unload the secret he had reserved for unloading until he could afford to offer Nellie worldly comforts far in excess of those she at present enjoyed, she reminded him that he was not to make any plans until the morning.

Elmer laughed. "Well, kiss me once more," he pleaded. "Unless a fellow can take a sporting chance he might as well be dead, so I'll take one sporting chance and tell you that I love you, Nellie. I'm crazy about you and I have been for years. I—I—"

"I've suspected this, Elmer," Nellie's face was uplifted to him again. "And I don't see any reason why you've kept it a secret from me when everybody else in town knows it! You old dear! I'm so happy about you I could cry—and I will if you don't let me go."

He let her go—but not until he had heard from her sweet lips an admission that she loved him better than anything or anybody in the whole wide world.

Long after Elmer Clarke, despite the strain and excitement of that momentous day, had fallen into his customary gentle slumber Nellie Cathcart sat before her dressing table, mechanically brushing her hair and thinking. For Nellie could think. Although beautiful she was brainy—the type of woman whom the Creator occasionally fashions seemingly for the express purpose of demonstrating to egotistic men that the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.

Just now Nellie was thinking that, although nobody, not even Elmer, would ever know it unless she told—well, which she would not do—she, Nellie Cathcart, was really responsible for Elmer Clarke's legacy.

When the First National Bank of Muscatine, Iowa, had written for a report on Elmer Clarke, and old Ansel with a grin had handed her the letter with the suggestion that she had better answer it since she knew more about Elmer Clarke than any girl in town, Nellie had thrilled at the opportunity to write a report calculated to present Elmer in a light which could not possibly fail to impress the valued customer of the Muscatine bank who sought the information.

Old Ansel hadn't the slightest suspicion that this customer was Elmer's queer uncle, but Nellie, who had learned from Elmer all that the latter knew about his crabbed relative, was convinced instantly that Uncle Hiram was about to develop a long-delayed interest in his nephew. With the adroitness of a clever woman she resolved instantly to foster that budding interest by forwarding a report calculated to appeal particularly to the sort of man she believed Uncle Hiram Butterworth to be.

That she had succeeded beyond her wildest expectations she now realized; wherefore, hers was now the quiet joy which comes of a consciousness of a worthy task put through to a happy and profitable conclusion.

"I do hope it doesn't spoil Elmer," Nellie soliloquized. "There's so much that's fine in Elmer and so little that isn't all man. Still, the receipt of a million dollars by a young man who has never known anything but hard work and sacrifice is apt to cause a mental reflex. Oh, dear, if Elmer should prove silly my heart would break. But he'll not! I know he'll not. . . . Wouldn't it be awful if I ruined Elmer?"

She resolved to marry him as quickly as possible, because she loved him tenderly and it was her duty to protect him from the pitfalls which she could see but which he did not even suspect. Like all women who devotedly love a man, she regarded Elmer as a particularly helpless, innocent, lovable boy, but little removed from the stage wherein he might reasonably be suspected of a tendency to neglect washing his neck and ears.

Eventually she had a good cry over nothing worth weeping about and fell into a troubled slumber.

CHAPTER IV

When Elmer Clarke strolled down town the following morning he found Sam Haskins struggling alone with the Smoke Shoppe and looking very sad and disconcerted. A night's rest and the knowledge that he was no longer dependent upon Mr. Haskins had erased all the irritability which Elmer had felt and manifested the day previous. He was congenitally incapable of holding a grudge. His heart went out now to Sam.

"Good morning, Sam," he cried cheerfully, and swung in behind the cigar counter. "I've been thinking about our silly little tiff yesterday and have come to the conclusion that I can't let you down without notice. I haven't been a millionaire long enough to be hard and disregard the feelings of folks, so get out of my way and let me take charge again while you go forth into the highways and byways and hire my successor."

Sam's harassed countenance lighted up like the Grand canyon of Arizona at sunset. He thrust out his hand. He was embarrassed. "Guess I was a little hasty myself, Elmer," he admitted.

"Well, we both feel better now," Elmer declared.

Throughout the morning trade was brisk, due to the fact that news had spread around town that the new millionaire was still on duty at the Smoke Shoppe. Apparently none the worse for wear. Consequently the citizenry, naively curious, congregated to study Elmer with new interest. Among them was the Clarion reporter, Charles Terrill, who considered this manifestation of democracy of such news value that he sent in a wire story to the United Press association.

The Los Angeles Record printed it in bold-faced type, boxed, on the front page, where it was seen and read that very day by the promoters and humbug stevedores who had overlooked the story the day previous. Among the latter was one known to the room clerk of the New Biltmore hotel as Mr. James P. Hutton, a coal baron from Pennsylvania. To the police, however, Mr. Hutton was known as Colorado Charley.

Upon the instant that he read that story, Colorado Charley's eyebrows elevated automatically, which was always a sure indication that he had struck a lead worth following. For two weeks he had been living in luxury at the New Biltmore. In the hope of working an elaborately conceived real estate swindle on a local bank. However, while he had by no means abandoned this enterprise, he had been disturbed of late by an apprehension common to all predatory animals. He believed that he was being watched by a plain man who haunted the hotel lobby and read the same newspaper too long and too thoroughly.

It would be well, therefore, Colorado Charley concluded, in view of his rapidly disappearing fund of ready money, to branch out in some other line of endeavor—one that promised speedy action and equally speedy returns. In the recently created millionaire cigar clerk and pool-hall manager of Pluereitos he saw a golden prospect and acted immediately.

In response to a telephone message there appeared at his suite within the hour the companion of Colorado Charley's lighter moments—a gorgeous brunette female of perhaps twenty-five summers.

"Well, old thing?" she queried.

Her voice, low and sweet, filled the room like a chord from a violinello.

"There's game afoot, Mae," the man answered in husky tones, and handed her the Los Angeles Record with a well-manicured thumb nail indicating the boxed story.

The woman read it and smiled lazily. "He hasn't got the million yet, Carlo darling," she reminded him. "Why waste your little girl friend's fragrance on the desert air?"

Something New in Film Story

Something different in an underworld story is "One Night at Susie's," which comes to the Palace theatre on Saturday and Sunday. The picture deals with the story of a woman "fence"—one of those characters who disposes, in a mysterious manner, of stolen goods and gems after thieves and gangsters have taken them.

Helen Ware, the famous stage character actress, who has given so many outstanding performances, plays the role of the "fence," Susie. It is heralded as one of the strongest parts of the year, and one of the most unusual.

The story is not essentially of the underworld, but of Susie's care and love for a youth, son of a former gangster, whom she has reared and started on a straight path. The role is admirably played by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

The love story involves a dancer in a theatre, Billie Dove, whom young Fairbanks has fallen in love with while working at the theatre as a press agent.

John Francis Dillon directed the picture for First National from Frederick Hazlitt Brennan's magazine serial, which Forrest Halsey and Kathryn Scola adapted. Among the others in the cast are Tully Marshall, James Crane, John Loder and Claude Fleming.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Sadie A. Curtis, who passed away January 29, 1930.

A shadow rests upon our home,

We miss her smiling face;

But she left us to remember,

None on earth can take her place.

While on earth she did her best,

Her heart was truly kind;

Her memory will be ever dear,

To those she left behind.

Taken in her early youth,

So young and sweet and fair;

God took her home to be with Him,

And dwell forever there.

And the flowers we lay upon her grave,

May wither and decay;

But the love we have for Sadie dear,

Will never fade away.

Mother, father, sisters and brothers.—Adv. 411 pd.

FORD SMOOTHNESS

The new Ford has more than twenty ball and roller bearings

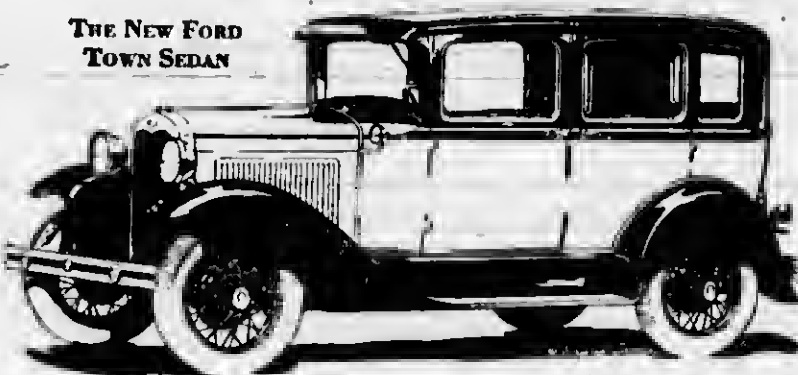

EVIDENCE of the high quality built into the new Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all—an unusually large number. Each bearing is adequate in size and carefully selected for the work it has to do.

At some points in the Ford chassis you will find ball bearings. At others, roller bearings are used regardless of their higher cost. The deciding factor is the performance of the car.

The extensive use of ball and roller bearings in the new Ford insures smoother operation, saves gasoline, increases speed and power, gives quicker pick-up, decreases noise, and gives greater reliability and longer life to vital moving parts.

Other outstanding features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, three-quarter floating rear axle, Rustless Steel, the extensive use of fine steel forgings, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

A Correction

In last week's issue of the Courier, through erroneous information, we stated Miss Frances Bolton was born in England, which should have read LaCrosse, Wis., also that funeral services were held at the Church of God, which should have been the Methodist church with Rev. J. E. Lockyer officiating.

It's a strange man who can't get more pleasure from reading the entries in his savings pass book than he can from the most interesting fiction.

The figures that show the growth of a savings account from a small beginning to substantial proportions make the most interesting reading in the world, and in the end they tell a story of success which is sure to come to the man who reads his pass book regularly and proudly, and strives to make it ever more interesting with added figures.

MAGAZINE IS PAL OF BOYS

Those boyhood years between the ages of ten and twenty are the impressionable years—the formative years when the fundamental character of a boy is molded into the pattern it will maintain throughout the remainder of his life.

That is why so much importance is placed on the factors that govern the lives of adolescent boys—their companions, their environment, their reading, the food they eat, etc. At this age is determined whether the boy will develop into a cheerful or airy man, generous or selfish, intelligent or dull, ambitious or indolent.

School teachers, librarians, Scout leaders and others engaged in boy activities have found that THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION magazine is one of the most favorable influences a boy between ten and twenty can have. Its stories and articles are a force for good—wholesome, alive, inspiring.

The million or so boys who read this magazine every month consider it their closest friend. In it they find the keenest entertainment, adventure, mystery, athletics, aviation, humor, everything that delights a live-wire American boy. Its sports articles by famous coaches and athletes help boys win places on their school teams. Its professional articles and biographical sketches aid them in selecting their life's work. Its keenly analytical editorials guide them in their daily problems.

That boy or young man in whom you are interested would have a world of pleasure reading THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION. Make a subscription to this magazine your gift to him. Subscription prices are only $2.00 for one year or $3.00 for three years. Mail your order direct to THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION, 550 W. Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.

Hi-Y Breakfast

The Charlevoix Hi-Y had their first breakfast Wednesday morning, at 7:00 o'clock, in the home economics department. The menu consisted of bacon, eggs, cocoa, etc. Bill Brown was the hero of the morning, turning the eggs in an experienced fashion. Everybody enjoyed the breakfast of course, and all joined in and washed the dishes after the hearty meal. The boys are looking forward to the next one which will be next Wednesday morning.

Home Economics

The home economics classes have finished their cooking course and are taking up sewing for the second semester. There have been some additions to the class, the enrollment now being seventeen.

The first problem the girls will undertake is the making of undergarment, the second a woolen dress, and the third a make-over project.

The department is very proud of its new sewing machine and chairs which has improved the laboratory very much.

Personals

It has been announced, much to the surprise of the students of the Charlevoix high school, that on the night of October 18, 1930, Miss Ruth Critchlow was united in marriage to Robert Wilson of Petoskey. It has remained a secret until Miss Critchlow discontinued her schooling and went to reside with her husband in Petoskey. Charlevoix high school students extend best wishes.

Jokes

Father: "John, I see you are at the foot of the class."
John: "What's the difference, they teach the same thing at both ends."

First Student: "What was that I smelled in the assembly?"
Second Student: "I don't know, maybe it was the dead silence."

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES

Program for the Charlevoix and Ironton Congregational churches for Sunday, February 1st:

Charlevoix
Morning worship 10:45 a. m.
Church school 12:00 noon.
Young People's service 6:00 p. m.

Ironton
Morning worship 10:30 E. S. T.
Church school immediately following.

The subject for the morning service at Ironton and Charlevoix will be "A Christian and Courage." This will be a topical sermon. Its inspiration is based upon the courageous conduct of Paul after his stoning at Lystra. His enemies left him as dead outside the city walls. As his friends stood about, Paul regained consciousness and instead of fleeing to another city went back into Lystra for the night. The next day Paul and Barnabas went to Derbe. From there he returned to Lystra to confirm the Christian believers, and then he went to Iconium and Antioch, the cities from which his enemies came to stone him. This is a vital message for today.

In order that we might keep our subjects and church activities before the public a bulletin will be placed this week in the local post office. A bit of spice will season the announcements to insure them against becoming too dry. The privilege of placing the bulletin was granted by the local post office authorities and we wish to take this manner of publicly thanking them for their kindness.

Our growing church school offers a great opportunity for good to the unattached boy or girl, young man or young woman, and the adults. Plans are being laid for a more interesting and helpful Young People's service.

EAST JORDAN-IRON- TON LINE COMPLETE

POWER PROJECT SERVES MANY RURAL PATRONS

Cable Across South Arm Reaches
Cottages on Hemingway Point—Expect Further Extensions

The Michigan Public Service company have completed construction of a power line from East Jordan to Ironton and vicinity.

The line is 12 miles in extent and includes in its scope the territory along the lake between East Jordan and Ironton, all the village of Ironton and across the Arm to the Hemingway cottage.

The cost of construction was $14,000, which includes a cable under the Arm, all transformers, leads into the houses or buildings and all labor and material. Of this cost the company defrays three times the annual income. In this case the yearly revenue was estimated at $2,500, so the Michigan Public Service contributed $7,500.

The remaining $6,500 was donated by property owners along the right-of-way, namely: G. R. Hemingway, R. S. Wilson, C. A. Todd, H. H. Ratcliffe, J. W. Harris, Irving Levinton, Mrs. C. F. Messinger, Mrs. Robert Stuart, Charlevoix county, Sam Alexander, H. L. Barnum, Camp Manitou, J. W. Mosher, Oscar Ward, Ironton church, Ironton school, James Tumath, George McMullin, Glenn Williams, Hugh King, Clyde Ogden, Ralph Price, Emerson Price, Vaughn Orvis, J. R. Nelson, George Hanson, P. C. Pillsbury, Lewis Boyer, John Cooper, Franklin C. Sears, Eveline Fruit & Land Co., Fred Dye, W. C. Weed, L. G. Cornell, John Porter, B. J. Becker, Charles Strehl, L. G. Balch, Eveline and South Arm townships.

This is a splendid improvement and will not only enhance the value of all property contiguous to the line, but will act as a lead from which other lines will ultimately extend in all directions. The people who made this improvement possible by their contributions, especially at a time when finances are at low tide, are to be commended as well as the Michigan Public Service Co., for their business-like methods and courtesy.

COUNTY NORMAL NEWS

The normal class is being initiated into the "Health Program" that is being launched in the rural schools of the county. Dr. Dean, health director, on Friday presented to the class the subject of skin diseases. Miss Congdon has agreed to come up some time soon and tell of the conditions which her rural school visits have disclosed. Arrangements are being made for various members of the class to take a day's tour with her.

There is more to rural school work than just "teaching a rural school." That the normal students may keep up with the housewives of the vicinity two representatives, Miss Bird and Miss Szepelak, were delegated to attend the lessons on "Home Budgeting," given by Miss Barbara VanHeuben.

Three members of the class have completed their final examinations for teacher's Palmer method certificates.

A novel method of grading is being tried out in class this week. The students have been requested to grade themselves in one subject for a week. No reason in the world why there shouldn't be an "A" class for once.

Miss Turner of the Michigan Department of Health, gave a very interesting speech on "Visual Aids in Teaching Health," January 21.

The normal students have completed the study of school law. Their final test was given Monday.

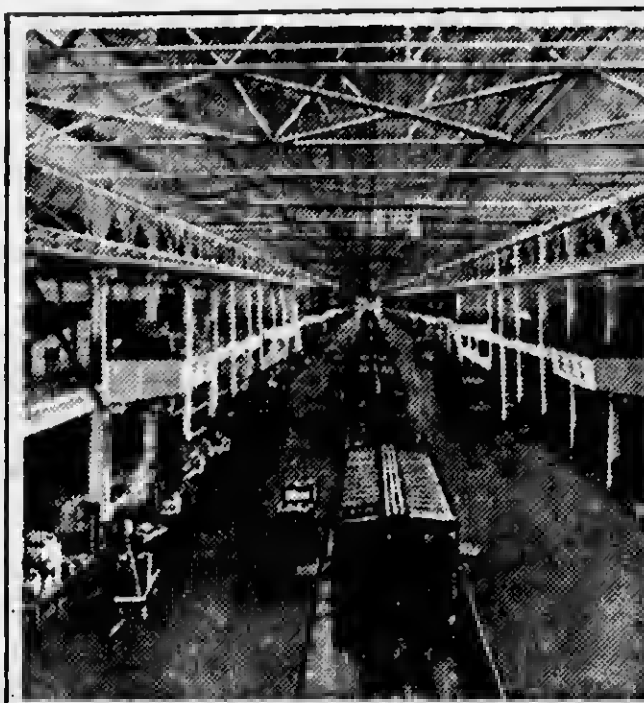

Arrangements have been made for Mrs. Dick and Miss Biggo to visit the Manelona county normal, Tuesday, January 27. Mrs. Chapin and Miss Baumbach are taking charge of work in the normal room.

Frances Meggison has her name added in the dental honor roll. A number of others hope to soon.

McCABE LIKED HARBOR. CHARLEVOIX GAME HERE

Yes, we saw that tie game between Harbor and Charlevoix. It was one of the most exciting and interesting games we have seen in many a month. Two mighty good teams. The best of any class in Northern Michigan. The Monkey Wrench suggests that this tie game be played off in the best gym in Michigan—in the Petoskey gym. That would give 2200 people a chance, to see something worth while.—Monkey Wrench.

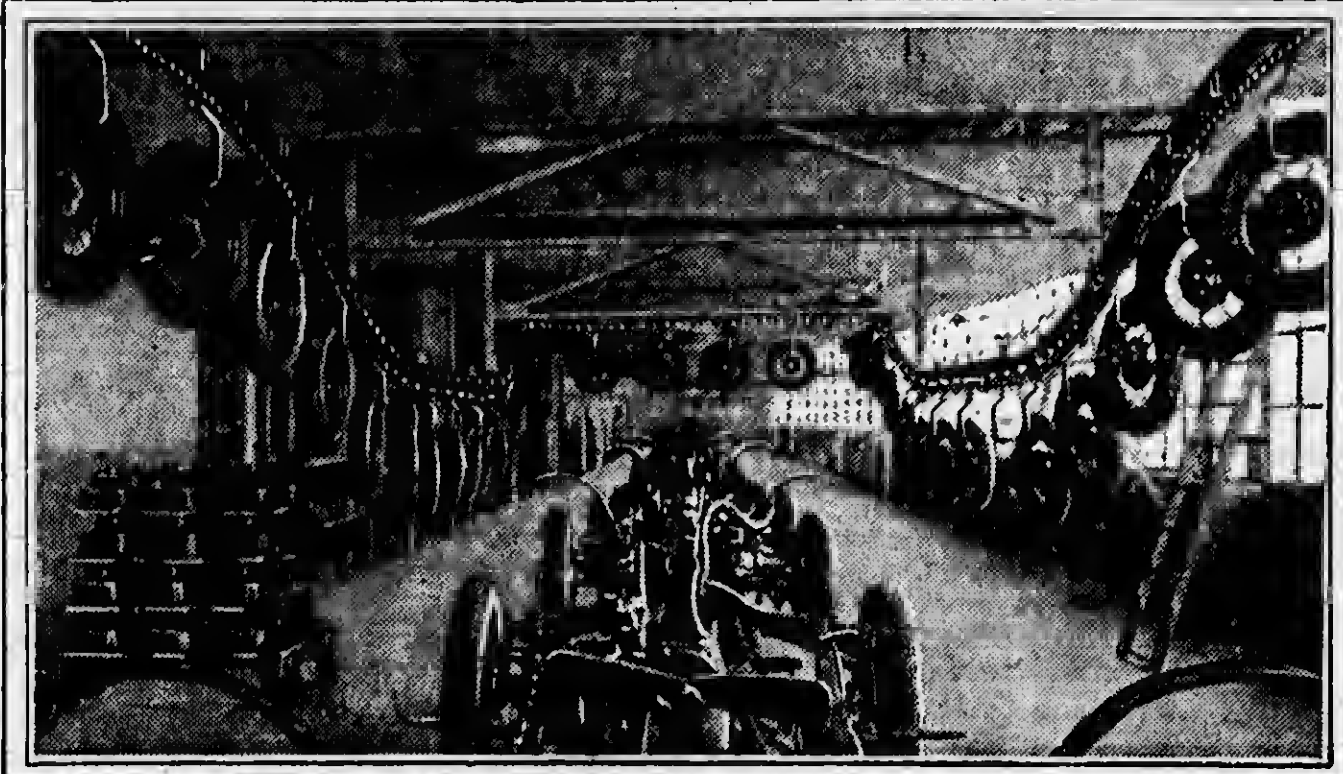

Conveyors Carry Ford Car Parts

Trains unload in the plant.

Bodies starting through the shop.

Conveyors carry wheels with mounted tires over a line on which cars pass to completion.

The highly important part played by conveyor systems in all Ford Motor Company manufacturing and assembly plants is graphically shown in the above three pictures taken in the recently opened Edgewater, N. J., plant. One of the pictures shows how parts may be unloaded from freight cars within the plant only a few feet from the various assembly lines. Another picture shows automobile bodies starting their trip on a conveyor while the third view is of the conveyor system used to bring wheels to the chasses which are also moving on a conveyor. As indicated in the picture, a constant flow of wheels on which the tires have already been mounted moves around and over the chassis assembly line. As a chassis enters the section, workers, in groups of four, each take a wheel from the hooks and fasten it to the chassis.

COUNTIES RECEIVE PART OF TAX MONEY

Checks Totalling Two Million Dollars Mailed Out Saturday

Checks, totalling $2,000,000 were mailed out to county officials on Saturday, January 24th, according to M. DeGlopper, business manager of the state highway department.

The sum represents a partial payment on what the state still owes the counties as their share of the weight and gas tax collections for 1930. The remainder, more than $4,000,000, will be paid late in February.

"Truth" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, January 25.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Lead me in thy truth, and teach me; for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day." (Ps. 25:5).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "My angels are exalted thoughts, appearing at the door of some sepulchre, in which human belief has buried its fondest earthly hopes. With white fingers they point upward to a new and glorified trust, to higher ideals of life and its joys." (p. 299).

ANNUAL MID-YEAR MEETING AT LOCAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Many Delegates from Northern District Expected Friday—Prominent Speakers Listed

The annual mid-year meeting of the Grand Traverse Baptist Association will be held Friday at the Charlevoix Baptist church. Sessions will open at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at 7:00 o'clock in the evening.

Among the speakers of prominence who will address the sessions are Dana Albaugh, who has been a missionary in Africa several years; Miss Martha Mixer, director of the Strong Place Community House, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Dr. A. W. Rider of Los Angeles, Calif., field secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society.

The Northern Baptist News Bureau says the following in regard to Miss Martha Mixer and Dr. A. W. Rider, two of the speakers:

"Miss Martha Mixer, who is director of Strong Place Community House, a Northern Baptist institution in Brooklyn, New York, has given her life to work among the children of Italian immigrants and to the young folk from that country who have come to America to make their homes. She has brought to this work a thorough educational background, as a B. A. of Mount Holyoke college and an M. A. of the Teacher's college, Columbia University. Prior to taking her present post in 1922, she taught at Mount Holyoke, was attached to the home service department of the Red Cross, New York, and did field work in religious education at the Fordham Italian Church of St. John the Baptist.

"In 1923 Miss Mixer spent four months in Italy, where she visited extensively in the homes of the people, learning much of the background which these people have when they come to America, and thus adding to her understanding of their problems and aspirations.

"Strong Place House is situated in a district where the need is great. Many gangsters, racketeers and other criminals inhabit the neighborhood, and not a few of their children attend Sunday school and other classes.

"Miss Mixer has a stirring story to tell of how these 'new Americans' are being developed in Christian citizenship."

"Dr. A. W. Rider, of Los Angeles, Calif., field secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, is a man of wide and varied experience in the field of religious service. As pastor and organizer of a Los Angeles church; as a traveler through the mission fields of Latin America, China, Japan and the Philippines, as well as much of Europe; as a Y. M. C. A. secretary; as a Sunday school organizer and as a promoter of home and foreign mission enterprise, he has seen and touched the world of Christian activity at all its angles.

"Much of Dr. Rider's work has lain on the Pacific coast, but he has traveled and campaigned in every part of the country. When the Judson fund was launched in 1928 he became an active member of the general committee, and is credited with a goodly measure of the success which crowned that effort.

"Years of platform experience, a colorful background and an ability to present whatever message he is charged with, have won for him a reputation as one of the most effective speakers in the Northern Baptist ranks."

Delegates from the entire northern Michigan district will attend, and the public is cordially invited to come and hear these speakers of wide experience. A hearty welcome is extended to all.

BIRTHDAY PARTY A PLEASANT AFFAIR

Miss Freda McMillan Entertained for Miss Genevieve Supernaw

Miss Freda McMillan entertained at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. F. F. McMillan, Monday, honoring the birthday anniversary of Miss Genevieve Supernaw.

The early part of the evening was spent playing bridge, after which the hostess assigned roles from a mystery story, which was enacted by the guests. This was followed by a mock jury trial and conviction of the culprit. Miss McMillan, assisted by her sister, Lila, and Arlyne Supernaw, then served a two-course lunch. Honors at bridge were won by Madelynn Lemieur and Mrs. Walter Bergeon. Miss Supernaw was given a gift to commemorate the occasion.

Guests were the Misses Mary and Madelyn Lemieur, Monica and Katherine Smith, Ada Yettaw, Irene McCann, and Genevieve Supernaw and Mesdames Walter Bergeon, Lloyd Curtis, Arthur Weststaff, Vane Smith and Henry Buddy.

LEGISLATURE ASKS MONTH'S GRACE BE ALLOWED

License Plates No Protection for Out of State Driving, Says Fitzgerald

Law enforcement officers of the state were requested last Friday by Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, to allow motorists to continue the use of 1930 auto plates until March 1st.

Fitzgerald's request was made a few minutes after the house of representatives had approved a senate resolution, asking Fitzgerald to make the request. Ordinarily the resolution would have been referred to committee but the house's action was taken immediately after resolution was received under a suspension of the rules.

The legislative action precedes passage of a bill now under consideration by the senate whereby the secretary of state will have power to allow license plates to be used until March 1st of each succeeding year. Fitzgerald issued the following statement:

"In compliance with the expressed wish of the legislature in asking an extension of time until March 1st to secure automobile license plates, I am requesting police, sheriffs and other law enforcing officers of the state to show motorists the courtesy of using their 1930 plates until March 1st.

"Although such action is contrary to law, it appears certain that the legislature will give immediate consideration to a bill which will legalize extension of time for the purchase of plates not only for this year but for the future. The action at this time is due to widespread unemployment and economic conditions.

"In asking the law enforcement officers to cooperate in this matter, it should be understood that no extension beyond March 1 will be granted and the state of Michigan cannot assume responsibility for automobiles driven without the state."

Charlevoix Takes Conference Lead When Boyne Defeats Harbor—Boys Here Friday Night

Coach Ray Kipke's Charlevoix basketballers are this week in possession of the Tip of Michigan class C conference lead. While they were administering a decisive trouncing to Mancersona Friday night, Boyne City toppled the champion Harbor Springs five, leaving Charlevoix the only undefeated conference team.

Charlevoix's teams scored a double victory at Mancersona. The reserves walked off with the preliminary by a 23 to 17 margin in a free scoring contest which was anyone's game until the finish. In the main contest, Kipke's first-stringers buried their Antrim county opponents by a 28 to 8 score.

Mancersona showed its greatest strength on defense, although it was not sufficiently strong to stop Charlevoix's constantly shifting attack. The local eagles piled up a 7 to 3 advantage in the first period and extended their lead 11 to 3 at the half. Mancersona were held scoreless in the second quarter.

During the last two periods, the Antrim county combination succeeded in breaking through for five points, while Charlevoix was adding 13 more to their total.

Captain Novak led Charlevoix scoring with 11 points. McCall was next with 7 and Ance, center, scored 6.

Charlevoix has a battle on their hands Friday night to retain their conference lead. Coach Brotherton of Boyne City, brings Mike Rouse and company here for a return game and the battle has all the earmarks of being one of the best Charlevoix fans have had an opportunity to witness this year. On successive nights last week, Boyne took over Harbor Springs and Traverse City, a nice record for any team. They overcame an overwhelming lead to defeat Harbor and led Traverse all the way. Brotherton's combination have evidently struck their stride and it is no secret that they are set on evening things up with Charlevoix.

REGION INVITED TO JOIN FUN HERE NEXT TUESDAY

Cross-Country Ski Race, Dog Race, Skating Contests, Hockey Game and Carnival Dance on Program

On Tuesday, February 10th, Charlevoix will hold its 6th annual Winter Sports Carnival. Along with other Northern Michigan cities, Charlevoix has joined in the effort to prove that this region can be made equally as attractive in winter as in summer.

At a meeting of the Association of Commerce winter sports committee Monday evening, a fine program of events was outlined for the amusement of local citizens and all outsiders who care to come and join in the fun.

The program opens Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with a cross-country ski race. The contemplated course is from a point on Bridge street north to Dixon avenue, east to Lake Charlevoix, south to a point opposite Belvedere avenue and then west on Belvedere avenue to the starting point. This event is in charge of William Bellinger and H. I. Ochs and entries are to be made with them.

The afternoon program starts at 1:00 o'clock with dog-sled races. It is planned to block off Mason street between State and Sherman and hold the event in these two blocks adjacent to the skating rink. Charles Gale and Fay Bradley will handle the event and entries may be made to them. Following will be a free-for-all skiing race and ski-joring races. At 3:30, Charlevoix Polar Bear and Traverse City Winter Club hockey teams meet at the hockey rink, closing the afternoon program. The Polar bears dropped a red-hot battle to Traverse last Sunday, and this return game will be an interesting contest.

In the evening, commencing at 7 o'clock, there will be a program of skating races for all. Divisions will be for boys and girls under 10 years, 10 to 12 years, 12 to 15 years and for men and women. A. L. Livingston and George Beeman will be in charge and will receive entries. Coasting contests will be held on Grant street hill. Work of putting the hill in readiness started this week, following action of the city council designating this place as the city coasting hill. It is planned to put partial barricades across Antrim street and post warning signs. Regular hours for children to coast afternoons will be announced, as well as set hours for evening. While coasting is in progress, the trunk line intersection will be policed.

The day's festivities will be brought to a close with a free carnival dance at the school gymnasium. Miss Lola Fessenden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Fessenden, who was chosen as Charlevoix high school's most popular girl by her classmates last Friday, will be crowned as Queen of the Winter Carnival. It might be added that the dance will be strictly informal and everyone is invited to attend.

First and second prizes will be awarded winners in all competitive events. Early entries will be appreciated by committees in charge. Out-of-town, as well as local people, are invited and urged to enter the events. In fact, Charlevoix extends a cordial welcome to every Northern Michigan resident to come and enjoy the day's festivities.

BOAT RECEIPTS SHOW INCREASE

Mackinac Straits Ferries Have Gain of $3,084.25 Over 1929

State ferry receipts for fares across the Straits of Mackinac this year showed an increase of $3,084.25 over those of 1929, according to a report of the state highway department. The state ferry service was discontinued last month.

Total collections for 1930 were $396,183, the report shows, while in 1929 they were $392,378.75. The number of passenger cars transported during 1930 varied little from the previous year, there being 125,223 this year to compare with 125,427 for 1929. Trucks carried increased 1,226 while 650 more trailers were transported.

The number of passengers accompanying vehicles decreased 421, there being 222,400 this year to compare with 222,821 in 1929.

BUSINESS MENS' CLUB MET FRIDAY

SECOND GATHERING HELD AT MONTE'S RESTAURANT

Plans Made for Dollar Day—All Enjoyed Athletic Program Later at Gymnasium

Charlevoix Business Men's club held their second meeting Friday evening at Monte's Cafe with a luncheon. Approximately thirty were in attendance.

Opening the business session, a petition asking that Park avenue be extended east to Round lake was circulated and signed by those present. The petition will be presented to the city council.

Discussion concerning a dollar day followed. The plan met unanimous approval of the assemblage and Saturday, February 14th, was designated tentatively for the proposed bargain day. A committee composed of M. A. Levinson, Clarence Wood and P. D. Campbell was appointed to promote the project and a more definite announcement will be forthcoming.

A general discussion of the proposed extension of Park avenue, also obtaining a street right-of-way and several parcels of lake frontage from Clinton street north on the east side of Bridge street, was held. A committee of five, composed of A. L. Livingston, Robert Bridge, Benjamin Brown, Dr. R. B. Armstrong and M. A. Levinson, was appointed to work with the city council on the project.

Following the business session, practically all in attendance adjourned to the school gymnasium for an athletic program. Everyone had a lot of fun. Indoor baseball and basketball were the principal features and some mighty good timber was uncovered. 'Tis true that Saturday morning found many an aching bone, but what of it? Many of the boys just weren't in training, that's all. Just give them a few more training periods and these same fellows will put many of their younger brethren to shame.

Another athletic program is planned for Thursday evening of this week and every business man in the city is invited to join the fun.

FISH TUG SANK AT DOCK LAST THURSDAY

Open Sea-Cocks Cause of Accident—Boat Raised Saturday

Open sea-cocks on the Diesel-powered fish tug Isabel H., owned by Charles Hendrickson, Sr., caused sinking of the craft at Hamilton's dock last Thursday evening.

Aided by derricks on the Str. Marquis Roen, the boat was successfully lifted Saturday. Outside of a bad wetting, no other damage resulted from the accident. The boat has been employed planting whitefish fry in Lake Michigan from the government hatchery.

PYTHIAN SISTERS TO ENTERTAIN HUSBANDS

Regular meeting of Pythian Sisters No. 149 will be held Wednesday evening, February 11th, at the K. of P. hall.

A 6 o'clock supper will be served and husbands of members are invited to attend.

REGION TURNS TO WINTER PROGRAMS

CARNIVAL EVENTS WILL OCCUPY NEXT TWO WEEKS

Cadillac and Grayling Start Ball Rolling—Charlevoix Next and Then Big Petoskey Carnival

The next two weeks is Winter Carnival time in Northern Michigan. Cities throughout this region are busy preparing programs to entertain their own people and all others who care to come to join them in the fun. Some are planning elaborate three-day events, while others will confine their sports program to a single day.

Cadillac and Grayling will start the ball rolling. In the former place, a two-day program is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, February 7 and 8. Over at Grayling, a carnival program is being advertised for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, February 6, 7 and 8. Charlevoix's 6th annual carnival will be held Tuesday, February 10, and starting Friday, February 12th, and continuing through Saturday, February 14th, will come Petoskey's big mid-winter sports program.

While no detailed program is available from Cadillac, Grayling's plans have been announced. The event opens Friday evening with a carnival dance, at which the queen will be chosen. Saturday morning will be devoted to skating, tobogganing, skiing and an amateur hockey game. In the afternoon comes a big carnival parade, climaxed by crowning of the queen at Lake Margrethe. In the evening will be tobogganing on Grayling's famous slide and a basketball game. Sunday afternoon's events will provide plenty of thrills. Skiers will race down the toboggan slide and behind airplanes. There will also be a glider demonstration along with other events at Lake Margrethe.

Details of Charlevoix's annual carnival will be found in another column of this issue, and following is a brief outline of Petoskey's three-day program:

Thursday, at 12 at the Hotel Perry will come the annual Reindeer dinner. At 2:30, championship hockey game, Petoskey vs. Traverse City, skating and skiing exhibitions. In the evening, a night parade to City Park and crowning of Miss Naomi Hooker, the winter queen. Comic, fancy and figure skating and barrel jumping will follow and the evening closes with a fireworks display. Friday morning will witness the annual fox chase. In the afternoon comes skating exhibitions, skiing, tobogganing and a snowshoe hike. In the evening, the Harbor Springs-Petoskey basketball game, closing with the carnival ball at Elks Temple.

Saturday is one of the three big days. Opening the fun in the forenoon will be the regional championships in all the winter sports. The junior skiing event occupies the forenoon with some thrilling jumps promised by the boys and girls. Then at 2:00 opens the speed skating races for all classes of entries. The figure skating contests for both young and old skaters follows. The grand classic race for Petoskey Winter Sport club members will form a part of this program. A special three-mile speed race for men is an added feature. The regional skating races will close the afternoon, this being limited to Northern Michigan amateur skaters.

The big Masked Carnival, open to all skaters, and which is expected to draw thousands of spectators, will be the closing part of the program Saturday evening. Prizes are offered for the best costumed persons taking part. The entire rink will be reserved for the costumed skaters.

Closing the night will be the hockey game between the Petoskey Winter Sports club and the Grand Rapids All Stars; a comedy broom hall game, fireworks and a general Mardi Gras on the ice.

MRS. JOHN McCANN HONORED AT PARTY

Miss Irene McCann entertained Sunday evening with a dinner party in honor of her mother, Mrs. John McCann. The pleasant affair, given at the McCann home on Bridge street, was in honor of Mrs. McCann's birthday anniversary.

The recent $10,000 fire in the state capitol has brought out a number of different opinions as to its cause. Someone said it was caused by friction between some of the departments. Others are of the opinion that it was caused by a red hot speech some representative had fled away in an old newspaper and which he intended to deliver at some future date. One party thought it was caused by a little alfalfa rolled in tissue paper and carelessly thrown in a waste basket. Our opinion is that our new Governor has been making everyone "step on the gas" and someone had a backfire.

Representative Miles M. Callaghan of Reed City, one of the leading rural members of the House of Representatives, is opposed to the state income tax. He takes the position "we should do nothing that will disturb industry in any way." When I was a small boy, father always taught me to "never monkey with a buzz saw." Believe that would be good advice to members who are advocating this law. We believe this also applies to the law pertaining to changing the township road act.

We are informed there will be a bill presented to dispense with all township roads. It would seem local men who are acquainted with local conditions are better fitted to look after these roads than some outsider who is interested only in having a job. Better see your Representative about this.

When ice is freezing on your windshield loosen the rear clip on one side of the hood and insert a small block of wood or roll of paper between the hood and cowl so the warm air coming out of the opening strikes the windshield and prevents ice forming.

Second Manufacturer: "So will I."

CROOKED RIVER SURVEY PASSED BY U. S. SENATE

A Washington dispatch reports that the United States Senate has passed Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's bill calling for a preliminary survey of Crooked River between Crooked Lake and Burt Lake, and of Indian River, between Burt Lake and Mullet Lake, with a view of improving the river by dredging. Representative Bohn has introduced a similar measure in the House. If passed there, the matter would be made a part of the next Rivers and Harbors bill.

The polls of said election will be open at 7:00 a. m. and will remain open until 5:00 p. m., standard time. Frank Richardson, Twp. Clerk.—Adv. 5t2.

DR. JOHN REYCRRAFT DIED AT PETOSKEY

Founder of Petoskey Hospital Victim of Apoplexy

Dr. John Reyecraft, one of the most noted physicians in Northern Michigan, was dead Thursday.

He died of apoplexy at his quarters in the Perry Hotel, which he owned. Dr. Reyecraft was owner of numerous large timber tracts, including the famous Reyecraft forests on Walloon lake, and was noted for his fight for conservation of forests and natural resources.

He was founder of the Petoskey hospital.

Baptist Ladies' Aid will serve a 25c supper, followed by entertainment, at the church, Wednesday evening, February 11.—Adv. 5t1.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Annual Meeting Held Last Friday Afternoon—Made Future Plans

President, Mrs. G. W. Houfnagle; vice-president, Mrs. F. P. McMillan; secretary, Mrs. Henry Partridge; treasurer, Mrs. Allen Campbell.

Ambitious plans were made for work on projects to aid the hospital.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday services 10:45 a. m.

Subject, "Spirit."

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first

Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend all services.

"Love" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, February 1.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." (1 John 4:18).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Truth and Love come nearer in the hour of woe, when strong faith or spiritual strength wrestles and prevails through the understanding of God. The Gabriel of His presence has no contests. To infinite, ever-present Love, all is Love, and there is no error, no sin, sickness, nor death." (p. 567).

FARM NOTES

Poultry Profits Depend on Feed

The careful poultry farmer should be able to produce eggs at the present prices and still make a profit, for feed prices are comparatively low, and the feed cost under present conditions should not be over 10 cents per dozen. Many farmers produced eggs last year at little over this figure.

One Wisconsin woman tells of making a profit of $1.13 per hen over feed cost in 1930, and one North Carolina poultryman tells of making a profit over feed cost of $1.50 per hen. All poultry raisers agree that a good ration is the most important factor in producing profitable eggs.

The North Carolina poultryman mixed his own laying mash, which consisted of 300 pounds of corn meal, 200 pounds of wheat middlings, 200 pounds of hulled ground oats, 100 pounds of gluten meal, 50 pounds of linseed meal, and 150 pounds of high quality beef scraps. Others who have used this ration claim that it produces eggs at a minimum of feed cost.

Careful selection of chicks is the first requisite, of course, but after a good flock is acquired the proper kind of feed must be provided if a profit is expected, even at high prices.

BUCK DEER, ANTLERS LOCKED, FOUND DEAD

Battle in Mason County Fatal to Both Animals

Heads of two buck deer, their antlers firmly interlocked, were found by Frank Knowles, Ludington, conservation officer, in the woods of Mason county. The deer had apparently starved to death when they were unable to untangle their antlers following a fight.

Instances of bucks locking their horns during fights are relatively common in Michigan. A year ago a game refuge keeper found two bucks in this condition, but saved the lives of the animals by breaking the antlers with a club.

METHODIST NOTES

Divine worship will be on Sunday morning at 10:30 and since this week approaches Lincoln's anniversary we shall consider Lincoln's attitude to many of the problems we have with us today. What would this great American say about our labor problems; our great wealth; our inequalities; our temperance problem? These are vital matters and he said something that might guide us in each of them.

Church school meets at 12 noon.

Epworth League at 6:00 p. m. continues its study of great Americans. Speakers are: Dr. McMillan, Mr. Otterbein and Mrs. J. Simmans. Everybody invited.

No evening service.

This Thursday the Literary club meets with Mrs. Fred Trimble on West Garfield avenue.

Mid-week service at 7:00 p. m. continuing the topic, "What Is Coming in Religion."

Last Monday A. L. Livingston read a paper on the history of banking before the Men's Community club, and Mr. Hammett spoke on "The Asset of Insurance." Our next speaker on February 16 will be Mr. Faulstich, who has recently returned from studies in Italy. This will be worth reserving a date for attendance.

CHEBOYGAN HAD A THRILLING RESCUE

Eight Fishermen Taken from Ice Floe There Last Monday

Cheboygan had a thrilling ice rescue last Monday.

Eight fishermen were found floating out in Lake Huron in the Straits of Mackinac by Mrs. Charles LeDuc, wife of one of the men. When she discovered their plight, she signalled to them and then called state police and stopped passing autoists for aid. Three small boats went to the rescue, saving the men and their dogs.

The village of shanties drifted over onto the shore of Bois Blanc Island.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellemcamp

New Co-Operative Creamery Organized at East Jordan

Of great interest to all dairymen of Charlevoix county is the realization of our dreams for an agency that will give the producers of dairy products a better price. Some 400 farmers gathered at East Jordan last Thursday afternoon for the purpose of organizing the creamery. Arthur Howland, marketing specialist of the Michigan State college, was present and steered the group through the legal entanglements and other problems that always arise in a new organization. The total of 354 farmers signed the membership agreements which should give the new organization the kind of support so necessary.

After adopting the tentative by-laws and articles of association, the election of the board of directors resulted as follows: Elmer Murray, East Jordan; Arlo Wickersham, Charlevoix; Robert Watson, Central Lake; Howard Stephens, Boyne City; Ed. Nemecek, East Jordan; Harold Nyland, Ellsworth; and Archie Murphy, East Jordan.

Immediately after adjournment, the first board of directors' meeting was held and resulted in the following officers being elected: Elmer Murray, president; Arlo Wickersham, vice-president; and Archie Murphy, secretary-treasurer.

It is sincerely hoped that with this splendid board of directors, well distributed throughout the area, and with the splendid support as indicated by the number of stockholders that the new co-operative creamery will accomplish wonders for the dairymen of Northern Michigan. Thus the start has been made in the right direction. The ultimate success now rests in the hands of the dairymen and the judgment and executive ability with the board of directors.

AT THE MOVIES

Tropic Romance, Adventure Theme of Carroll Film

Love in the balmy, alluring tropics where men fight boldly for wealth is the theme of the exciting melodrama which brings Nancy Carroll forward as Paramount's new star. The picture is "Dangerous Paradise" and it will show, all-talking, at the Palace theatre for two days, starting next Saturday. Richard Arlen is the popular leading man.

Characters which have been vivid personalities for readers of Joseph Conrad's novels will live and act and talk from the screen in "Dangerous Paradise." The drama was adapted from incidents in the Conrad story by William Slavens McNutt, well-known Saturday Evening Post writer, and Grover Jones, veteran screen writer. William Wellman, director of "Wings," made the picture.

Nancy Carroll has an especially able supporting cast for her, first starring role in which she is seen as a girl musician in a South Sea hotel, a rendezvous for unsavory characters from the underworld of all the great cities of the earth. Menaced by her ruthless employer, she seeks safety on a tiny island where Richard Arlen, an embittered recluse, is living and working, alone. Friendship turns into hate, when Nancy resents Arlen's suspicious coldness. However, when three desperadoes trail Nancy to the island and menace Arlen's life, her love is revealed in one great, dramatic scene.

"Dangerous Paradise" is an unusual picture in many ways. It is one of the first all-talking pictures to be filmed largely at sea, and its swiftly moving climatic action is thrilling and logical. Warner Oland, remembered for his mastery characterization in "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," has an important role, and Gustav von Seyffertitz, Francis McDonald and George Kotsaropoulos portray a trio of villains it would be difficult to match anywhere. A master of dynamic action, Wellman maintained a speed in action and filming which keeps the suspense mounting in tremendous crescendo until the final surprise episode.

"According to this press story he's going to get it, and when he does we'll take it away from him. Nothing could be simpler, Mae. As the proposition unfolds itself to me, your job is to go up to Pilectos tomorrow. You will call upon Elmer Clarke at his home, introduce yourself as a Sunday supplement news writer come to interview him so you can write a feature story for an Eastern paper—say the New York American—entitled 'How It Feels to Be Poor Today and a Millionaire Tomorrow.' He will be flattered. Do not confine yourself to a mere interview with him. Have a nice little vault and do your stuff. Mae, if you can't land this poor fish out in the grass there isn't another woman in the world who can."

"Suppose he's already married?" Colorado Charley's white, handsome teeth flashed in a gay smile. "So much the better for our purposes, Mae. The most pitiful thing I know of is a small-town married man in the coils of a lady who threatens trouble if he doesn't divorce the wife of his bosom and marry her. In such situations the settlement is always larger and easier to collect. The man is usually the first to suggest a monetary bail."

The pair stared at each other for a minute. "You will be the coy, sweet, shy, trusting little thing, just breaking in as a newspaper woman, and the success of this interview is going to mean so much to you," Colorado Charley went on glibly. "If he should take you to luncheon and offer you a cocktail, don't take it. If he proffers a cigarette, look horrified. If he suggests a ride in his new automobile, mention the desirability of a chaparral. And for the Lord's sake, dress for the part and act it. You've done it before. After you've won him, get him to write to you, but fight his advances, because you don't want him to think you're after his money."

"But I can't hang around Pilectos indefinitely to pull off a play like that, Carlo. I'll have to return here after I've interviewed him."

"Naturally. Meanwhile I'll have rented a modest furnished bungalow here. I'll be your brother. You and I are orphans, living on a modest income. Lure him down here, invite him to the house for dinner and the rest will be as easy as hitting an elephant with a handful of bird shot."

"I hope he won't turn out to be a tightwad, Carlo."

"He won't. Boobs who have learned to caress a dollar bill before they spend it always put on the dog with the first million that's left them. The only money that means anything to anybody is money that's tolled for and accumulated dollar by dollar. That's why money means nothing in our young lives, Mae."

"Sometimes I think we work hard enough for what we get," the girl sighed.

"Oh, but we do not get it dollar by dollar," he reminded her. "It comes to us in chunks—when it comes."

"So does trouble, Carlo. . . . Well, this does look like an easy job. I'll tackle it."

Colorado Charley rewarded her with a grateful smile, a kiss and a hug and a hundred dollars for expense money.

At noon Elmer Clarke called at Ansel Moody's office. "Well, how's my credit this bright summer day?" he hazarded nonchalantly.

"A-1, Elmer, an' going up. Bank in Muscatine says their attorneys have read the will an' there ain't a Chinaman's chance to bust it. Thinkin' of borrowin' a little money, Elmer?"

"Why, yes, if you don't mind, Mr. Moody. I'd like to have twenty thousand dollars for, say, a year. It may be that long before the estate is liquidated and I'll have to be in Muscatine and traveling back and forth considerably, I dare say."

"Naturally, naturally, Elmer. I understand. The banker pressed a button and Mr. Crittenden entered. "Take Elmer's promissory note for twenty thousand at—well, let's see now, Elmer. The bank's gittin' as high as 10 per cent on chattel mortgages an' 12 per cent on farm mortgages an' 8 per cent on call loans. I reckon we can let you have this for eight an' a half."

"Quite satisfactory, Mr. Moody." It wasn't, really, because Elmer knew he was about to be exploited successfully for the first time, but being a millionaire he concluded not to worry about an extra per cent or two.

Mr. Crittenden made out the note, Elmer signed it and Mr. Crittenden credited the twenty thousand dollars to his account in the bank, entered the deposit in a pass book and with a flourish handed Elmer pass book and pocket check book. Elmer thanked Mr. Moody and Mr. Crittenden and on his way out of the bank was captured by Nellie Cathcart, who carried him off to luncheon at the Palace grill.

"Well, Elmer," said Nellie when they found themselves in the quasi privacy of a booth, "how does it feel the day after? Are you finding your riches a burden?"

"I am not, dear, but a great many people are. A hundred well wishers, advisers and salesmen have visited me this morning. By the way, I've gone back to help Sam out until we can break in a new man."

Nellie beamed upon him. "By the way, I have been the recipient of numerous congratulations myself. The impression appears to be fairly prevalent in Pilectos that I am a cozier with you—after a fashion."

Elmer grinned mischievously. "Pilectos is a smart town," he admitted. "Where would you care to live, Nellie? In Los Angeles or San Francisco or New York?"

"I take it," Nellie replied, "that you and I are not formally engaged to be married and that a discussion of our future residence would be premature. Or is your query by way of being a proposal?"

"But—Nellie darling—"

"Now, Elmer, I love you to death. I've admitted that twice within twenty-four hours. You're the only man I've ever loved. But I'm not engaged to you."

"Why not?"

"Yesterday I would have replied, 'Because you've never asked me.' Today I say that I've decided not to engage myself to you until you've had ample opportunity to see the world, juggle that million dollars awhile and see what the other girls look like. If you please, Elmer, I'd much prefer to marry you after you've got used to ready money rather than before."

Meanwhile I'll continue to love you just as devotedly as if I were wearing a diamond engagement ring on my finger, and in the interim we will not discuss the matter of our future residence. After we're married I'll live wherever you want to live and be quite happy if you are happy, but if I were to be granted a preference—"

"Yes, of course," he interrupted.

"That's why I asked the question."

"Brace yourself for a shock, dearest. I'd like to live in Pilectos."

"In this gay town? Why, Nellie, you're not serious—really?"

"I am—really. What's wrong with Pilectos?"

"Everything. It's dull, quiet, provincial—nothing doing."

"But it's a pretty town, Elmer. I like the rows of locust trees along the sidewalks; I like the pretty hedges with roses and bougainvillea covering them; I prefer to be a householder, not a cliff dweller; I like a garden, and my own little garage, and a big kennel and run for a dog; I like a big Shanghai rooster for an alarm clock and I like babies and baby carriages and the kind of mothers who manage their own babies and baby carriages. The country hereabouts is an Eden. God made only one Santa Clara valley. You can have London in the season but I prefer the Santa Clara in blossom time, Elmer."

"Good Lord, Nellie, how you surprise me! Why, there are no social or intellectual contacts here, no—"

"Halt! The dust-brown ranks will stand fast!" Nellie commanded. "Only the day before yesterday a certain altruistic, ambitious and enthusiastic young man, by name Elmer Butterworth Clarke, was planning ways and means for transforming H. Wasservogel's defunct butcher shop into a number of profit-making enterprises to which he meant to cling while growing up with the country. Pilectos was a pretty nice town the day before yesterday, wasn't it?"

"Why, Elmer, if you lived in New York it would cost you thousands of dollars a year to support a membership in a rich man's gun club, whereas you and three other small-town scions control the best duck grounds in this county at a cost of about seventy-five dollars a year. The same is true of your trout fishing. You get just as good trap shooting in Pilectos as rich town do at Pinehurst, and there are just as good sheds here, even if most of them do wear overalls instead of plus fours."

"I'm flattered. You have entirely too many reasons, Nellie."

"I have more reasons if pressed for them."

"Well, I've been thinking I'd like to see the other side of the picture, Nellie."

Nellie's soft, brown, firm little hand came across the table and closed on Elmer's. "Dear old adventurous boy! Of course you want to see it, and you want to go prowling alone. I don't blame you. You yearn for liberty and independence and you've never known it. Elmer, step out and see the world. When you've seen all you want of it and find its rocks and dirt, nosey, gossip, mean, cruel, good, tender and lovable people wherever you go, and that no spot on earth has a monopoly on life's pleasures, you might come back to me. I'll be so glad to have you! On the contrary, if you've changed your mind about me—well, I'll understand. I'd rather have you change your mind before marriage than after it. Sometimes I think that young men who marry nowadays give hostages to fortune."

"What a remarkable philosopher you've grown to be!" he exclaimed admiringly.

"In a warlock, dear. I play hunches and I have a hunch about you. Normally, you're too big for this town, but—when pain and anguish wring your brow, perhaps this town will be just right for you. At any rate, it will be not less than eleven months before offer; when she appeared he sat and glared at her ferociously over the tops of his square spectacles. After a half minute of this he spoke in a voice trembling with rage.

"Look here, miss, if you expect to continue to work in this bank, you got to get out of the insurance business."

Nellie sat down—uninvited. "Mr. Moody, this is the first intimation I have had that my work as an employee of this bank has been insatisfactory. In fact, I find the flattering mention to my suit that I was the most efficient person on your payroll."

"You are—and your work's all right; I'm not kickin' at that. It's your side lines that rile me."

"You've known for a year that in my spare moments I have been selling all kinds of insurance. You have not hitherto objected to that provided my work in the bank did not suffer to consequence."

"Well, hereafter you cut it out. Hear me?"

"Repeat your side lines tangle up in mine one't in a while. For instance, when I loaned Elmer Clarke that twenty thousand dollars yesterday on his unsecured note, you knew I did it because of his prospects."

"Now, then, I didn't get no assurance, have I, that Elmer'll live long enough to come into his fortune? I got to have some security for that loan, don't I? What security can I get from him now? Nothin' except life insurance. Well, I figure Elmer won't offer no objection to takin' out a policy to protect the bank, so I stroll up to the Smoke Shoppe this mornin' an' suggest it to him. He's right agreeable an' says he's already thought of that, for which reason he's applied for a policy with a company represented in this town by you."

"That is quite true. It occurred to me that you had overlooked suggesting the matter to Elmer when you made the loan, so I, realizing that the bank should be protected, took Elmer out to luncheon yesterday, and he taken the soup and the milk I sold him a hundred thousand dollar policy. The bank is a beneficiary to the extent of any approved claim against his estate and somebody else is the beneficiary of all that's left."

"Yes, but does this bank get a fifty-fifty cut on the commission you earn on that policy? That's what I'd like to know."

"Oh, so that's where the shoe pinches, is it? Well, Mr. Moody, I'm not going to give up my side line and I'm not going to continue it provided I permit you to graft off me. Consequently I shall have to accept your alternative and resign my position here. How much notice do you require?"

The white population of the Belgian Congo has tripled in the last ten years.

After a Half Minute of This He Spoke in a Voice Trembling With Rage.

Your Uncle Elmer's estate can be distributed to you and—

"How do you know, Nellie?"

"I'm a trust officer in a bank and trust officers have to know considerable about estates."

"Oh!"

"Estates of over ten thousand dollars usually drag through the probate courts that long."

"Then by golly, Nellie, I'm going to hop it to Muscatine, Iowa, and speed up the machinery of the law."

"I'd try if I were you, but it will not get you very far."

"I don't quite like your unreasonable preference for Pilectos as the scene of our married life, Nellie."

"My dear, I can take Pilectos or leave it none. I merely said I preferred it to a big city."

"Oh!"

Nellie sailed wistfully as she noted his slight hesitation. "You've been to the Great War and you've seen something of the world, Elmer, but really you don't know very much about it."

She reminded him. "I'm ages older than you. One sees so much of life, even in a small-town bank."

"You're certainly practical."

As Elmer walked back to the Smoke Shoppe, after parting with Nellie in front of the bank, it occurred to him that Nellie was not only practical but the most practical girl he had ever known.

While he did not take the trouble to analyze the slight feeling of discomfort that harassed him in the knowledge of her undoubted practicality and common sense, the fact was that, like ninety-nine and nine-tenths per cent of his sex, he yearned for a clinging vine rather than a lively upstanding wild flower, although of this he was happily unaware.

CHAPTER V

When Nellie returned to the bank after luncheon she went into Ansel Moody's office and for the second time perused the telegram which had arrived that morning from the First National Bank of Muscatine. It ran as follows:

"McPeake's estimate estate extremely conservative. Think appraisal will develop double that. Our counsel have read will and pronounce it absolutely airtight and free from attack on any known grounds. Your customer sole legatee with exception one specific bequest of ten thousand. Will also instructs executor to pay a certain mortgage given to one Benedict Catherton together with interest as per terms of mortgage. Principal sum of mortgage forty thousand dollars. In event death Elmer Clarke before distribution estate his share goes to state university."

"First National Bank of Muscatine."

Nellie sighed and retired to her desk, where she figured rapidly for half an hour. As she surveyed the result of her computations a gurgling little chuckle escaped her; then as if overcome with shame at her levity, her sea-blue eyes filled with tears.

The following day was Saturday and the Pilectos Commercial Trust & Savings bank closed as usual at noon. About half past eleven Ansel P. Moody summoned Nellie to his private

BAND DUCKS TO CHECK FLIGHTS

MALLARDS TAGGED IN MICHIGAN SHOT OVER WIDE AREA

Michigan Hunters, However, Kill Largest Number of Local Ducks—Flight Varies

How long do the wild ducks remain in Michigan after the opening of the season? When and where do they migrate? Are Michigan hunters getting a fair share of the ducks which are raised here or which migrate across Michigan? Answers to these and other similar questions of importance in waterfowl conservation have long been sought.

At least a partial answer to these questions has been obtained by the game division of the department of conservation by the use of numbered leg bands placed on 845 wild black ducks at the Munuscong waterfowl refuge during the past three years. Since more than 85 per cent of these ducks were banded in August and early September, the "return" records should indicate what usually happens to black mallards in Michigan during the hunting season.

Quite a number of the birds which were banded in early September continued to visit the traps until six and eight weeks later; proving that by no means all of them migrated south as soon as the "fireworks" began on September 16th.

Most of the records were obtained from hunters who shot banded ducks and reported the numbers to the department or to the biological survey at Washington, where the official banding records are handled.

Of the 845 banded black ducks, 164, or approximately 20 per cent have been shot and reported. Of these, Michigan hunters got 80, or nearly one half; 19 were taken in Ontario, 13 in Ohio, 12 in Wisconsin; and the remaining 43 were taken in 16 other states, from Minnesota to Louisiana, Florida and Maryland.

Although 72 of the banded ducks were shot in Michigan in September and October, only one was taken south of Michigan in this period. However, in November and December the tables were turned, for then Michigan's total was only 8, and 45 of the banded ducks were shot in states to the south of us. Evidently few of these ducks migrated south of Michigan before the last of October or early November, but ran the gamut of Michigan hunters for five or six weeks.

These figures do not show an excessive slaughter of black ducks in the south; but it is possible that the number of birds shot but not retrieved, in addition to those recovered but not reported, would bring the total casualty list far above the 164 birds which were reported. In spite of intensive hunting, the black duck is one of our most abundant ducks, probably owing to its fondness for isolated beaver ponds and its reluctance to decoy.

The records also indicate the migration routes followed by the ducks in leaving the Munuscong area. Quite a number of the birds moved west along the Lake Michigan shore of the upper peninsula to Green Bay and the lakes region of eastern Wisconsin. A few migrated east from Drummond island into Ontario; but the most of them came south into lower Michigan. Here they apparently held to the larger rivers and lakes, especially along the Muskegon river, Saginaw Bay, and the west end of Lake Erie.

Six of the banded birds were shot in southern Illinois, four along the Tennessee river, and eight in Louisiana and Mississippi. Without doubt many of the black ducks from the north winter in the Mississippi and Gulf regions.

Aside from indicating the migration routes and recording the numbers killed by hunters, the return records have proved that all of the ducks present in a locality are not similarly influenced by refuge areas, special food supplies, etc. For example, certain ducks revisited the traps day after day and remained at Munuscong during two months of the hunting season; while others banded at the same time migrated even before shooting had started in the nearby marshes. Refuge protection, plus an abundance of pondweed seeds and the unflinching supply of barley and corn used to bait the traps, failed to overcome this wanderlust. "We shall often be wrong," says Dr. Miles D. Pirnie, ornithologist of the conservation department, "if we forget that the birds are individuals as well as members of a species."

We understand big Bill Thompson has been taking baths at Mt. Clemens. He selected a place near the Canadian border. We wonder why?

What Makes It Easy To Sell Merchandise?

Perhaps the average merchant of the smaller town will be of the opinion that it isn't "easy to sell merchandise" today. Maybe he is taking it for granted that the so-called "business depression" has caught up with him, and there just isn't any use. Or perhaps he is waiting for things to readjust themselves.

There is one thing he MUST KNOW, however, and that thing is that someone is managing to sell merchandise, even though it "isn't easy to sell." He sees the young woman go past his place of business wearing clothes of the very latest mode. He MUST KNOW this merchandise WASN'T purchased last summer—someone sold this merchandise to her quite recently.

"Business depression" or readjustment had little to do with the person or persons who are able to buy and do buy merchandise every day or every week in the year. "What Made It Easy To Sell This Merchandise?"

ADVERTISING!

"This year advertising is more needed, not because people have less to spend but because they hesitate to spend it. It will be a fine test of advertising. It is far more logical to advertise when sales are hard than when sales are easy. Yet many otherwise logical merchants curtail advertising at the first sign of a business cloud."

"The daily purchases of millions of people are conditioned by advertising. The breakfast foods, catsups, tooth pastes and safety razors that they could do without and which their grandparents did without were introduced by advertising manufacturers in the magazines, retailers in the newspapers or by posters and window displays, etc. Cut this advertising sharply off and we would have a slump beside which the stock exchange debacle would be a mere incident."

"During the newspaper strike in New York departments stores were deprived of their daily advertising announcements and sales fell off immediately and alarmingly. Reminders to buy are essential. Our prosperity depends on the state of mind of the ultimate consumer, and the ultimate consumer is at the other end of the advertisement."

LOCAL PUCK-CHASERS LOST TWO CONTESTS

Drop Games to Petoskey and Traverse by 1 to 0 Scores

Charlevoix's Polar Bear hockey team saw their first competition in the informal Northern Michigan hockey league last week. In two successive contests, the first at Petoskey last Thursday evening, and the second at Traverse City Sunday afternoon, they were nosed out by a 1 to 0 score.

Charlevoix's strictly amateur team gave Petoskey the hardest tussle they have had this season. They presented a powerful defense, stopping all efforts of the Northmen to score until the third period, when Golden, Petoskey wing, broke through for the lone goal of the contest. Charlevoix had the puck in their possession a good share of the time, but apparently lacked sufficient team work to net scores. Their most determined drive was in the third period, but this also fell short when several shots failed.

In their contest Sunday with the Traverse Legionnaires, Charlevoix skated circles around the opposing puck-chasers, but the goal work of Lamn stopped their scoring efforts cold. They had at least two dozen shots at the wicket and should have won by a good margin. As a whole, the contest was a rough and tumble affair, with play exceedingly fast. Don Campbell, who is managing the local hockey team, refereed the game.

Charlevoix used the following lineup in both games: Livingston and LaBlanc, wings; Foster, center; Lemieux and Hoise, defense; Neilson, goalie; Winder, McCann, Bartlett, spares.

Use Judgment

Unless we are misers, and few of us are, we get great pleasure from spending money—and the more we have to spend, the better we like it.

—But once it's gone, there's no way of getting it back. It's gone forever and it's done us little good.

Judicious spending is, of course, necessary, for we must live and we must have a fair proportion of pleasure. —And it's far better to spend wisely and save the difference than it is to spend foolishly and save nothing.

Saving means comfort and peace of mind. Without them life is hardly worth living. Why not come and see us some time soon?

The advanced French classes have recently completed their illustrated notebooks which include pictures of the house, furniture, family, food, flowers, clothing, etc. These notebooks are very artistic as well as instructive and have given the students a vivid way of reviewing the French vocabulary. Mrs. Logan is pleased with the results and is planning some other special feature for the second semester.

Hockey Game
The Charlevoix Polar Bear hockey team played Traverse City in the opponents' rink, last Sunday. The game was fast and thrilling and was accompanied by many hard bumps and falls. By a good bit of team work Traverse slipped a nice clean shot past "goalie" Nielson. The rest of the game was played in the Traverse defending zone, but the boys were not able to slip one through their goalie. The final whistle blew with the score, Traverse City 1, Charlevoix 0. The line-up was as follows: David Livingston and George LaBlance, wings; Bob Foster, center; Ralph Lemieux and Glenn Heise, defense; Ole Neilson, goalie, with Kerth, McCann, Winder, and Bartlett substituting.

Lola Fessenden Queen of C. H. S.
Last Friday morning Lola Fessenden was elected as Charlevoix high school's winter queen. She was voted the most popular girl in C. H. S. and we are sure she will represent the school in a charming way.

Other nominees were Mary Simmons and Kathleen McCall. The position of Winter Queen is honorary in Charlevoix and she will not be given an outfit or a trip. However, the honor of being elected the most popular girl in Charlevoix is one that will distinguish her through school life.

Pep Club Meeting
The Pep club held a meeting Monday evening. A committee was appointed to plan for entertainment to be given during the half at the game with Boyne City in the local gymnasium Friday night.

Drama Club
Last Tuesday a meeting of the Drama club was held. A new feature has been established. In the place of roll call the members are to answer by giving a brief account of some current dramatic event.

Bob Foster reported on the manner of running a talking picture machine. He has had personal experience in this line of work and the account was both interesting and instructive.

Grade School Notes
The fourth grade under the supervision of Miss Manson, presented a very interesting play for the grade assembly last Friday morning. Twelve children took special parts representing a box of Japanese dolls on their way to America. The parts were well taken and the Japanese lanterns and costumes were very pretty.

Art Classes
The Art classes in the grades are taking up color theory this month. They will apply this in projects involving monochromatic analogous complementary, and split complementary color harmonies.

The China Shop
The high school glee clubs have begun work on "The China Shop," a clever Chinese operetta which will be presented some time in early May.

Junior Rings
The junior class have received their rings and pins from the Terry-Berry company.

They are the best looking rings that the junior classes have had for several years. The crest is green gold, with a black enameled background, and a green gold shank. Some of the juniors wanted pins instead of rings, and these are also very pretty, having the same crest as the rings, and a guard with "32" on it.

The juniors are all very proud of their rings, and we have noticed a great deal of hand-waving in the assembly lately.

These rings and pins mean a great deal to the students, and will mean more to them when they are graduated from C. H. S. The rings will recall to them the happy days spent in C. H. S. and when the students perhaps meet some old class mate on the street they will hold up a hand and proudly display the ring, saying, "Well, I still have mine. Where's yours?"

Junior High Basketball
The C. J. H. S. basketball team meets Boyne's junior high team in the opening of Friday's game vs. Boyne City. The visitors were victorious at their home gym so it is hoped that the Charlevoix team will cop this game.

AUTO NEWS

For almost sixty days there has been a steady increase in employment at the Dodge Brothers' plants. As each week comes and goes, an additional force of men are steadily increasing production.

This increase was particularly noticeable in December when total shipments of Dodge passenger cars exceeded November shipments by 129.2 per cent.

Commenting on the fact that, with the exception of a brief period for inventory in the fall, Dodge Brothers has not been shut down or the production of cars suspended at any time, K. T. Keller, president of the Dodge company said, "The fact that we have maintained a production program without interruption throughout 1930 makes the addition of 1,600 men since Christmas all the more significant. This sizeable addition brings our total forces to 10,231.

"Figures obtained from our sales department show that deliveries of Dodge cars are increasing in step with the increase in employment. For instance the week ending January 3, during which there was a holiday, showed an increase of 16.1 per cent over the previous week, and the week ending January 10 in turn produced an increase in deliveries of 21.9 per cent over its previous week. The week of January 17th again showed an increase over that of the previous week of 7.6 per cent.

"We were reticent at first in making public any of these facts although I was bombarded almost daily with requests from the press to verify the rumors current throughout the industry that Dodge Brothers were carrying on a sizeable manufacturing schedule and finding a market for its product.

"However, with the completion of a nation-wide trip by a large group of our executives before the holidays, during which the new Dodge cars were introduced to our entire dealer organization who received them with spontaneous enthusiasm, and with greatly increased sales of Dodge cars in New York during the auto show as compared with the sales a year ago, I have greater confidence in a continuation of this increase in employment than I have had for many months.

"Although our factories are not working at full-time capacity, and I do not wish to convey that impression, the very fact that each week for almost two months we have been able to add to our payroll makes me feel that now at last we are 'facing east' as the saying goes, and may be on our way to that long heralded return of prosperity.

"Right here I want to take off my hat to the American working man. The patience and uncomplaining courage with which he has weathered this storm ought to quiet once and forever the mutterings of the so-called sociologists both here and abroad who would have the world believe that we in America are simply a lot of fair-weather sailors.

"In striking a responsive chord with the motoring public our new Dodge Sixes and Eights seem to bear out the contention that when such outstanding values from the standpoint of beauty and performance are offered at such remarkably low prices the public will buy. The facts that our dealers' stocks are unusually low, that December total factory shipments of Dodge passenger cars exceeded November shipments by 129.2 per cent and that probably the greatest potential buying market in the history of the country has accumulated through increasing obsolescence and a suspension of buying, gives us renewed confidence and energy with which to face 1931."

LIFE INSURANCE AS PERSONAL PROPERTY

There is good authority for the statement that fully 87 per cent of all personal property that the people of the United States leave to others when they pass on is in the form of life insurance protection.

An outstanding fact of this sort is very illuminating and shows conclusively that a recent statement made by a state insurance commissioner to the effect that insurance protection may be said to "be the life-giving substance to our successful existence and growth" has much to support it. Insurance protection is indeed so interwoven into the fabric of our national life that it has been compared to the circulatory system of the human body. Life insurance protection is vital to the well-being of our people and is often the only means of creating an estate. Without such protection many widows who are past 60 years of age would be entirely dependent upon others. Life insurance protection is so stabilizing in its effects that it may truthfully be said that a community without it could not possibly be as prosperous and secure as a community in which the average person is protected by life insurance.

The experience of Modern Woodmen of America, the world's largest fraternal insurance Society, with more than a billion dollars of life insurance protection in force, in distributing the sum of $455,000,000 in death benefits to beneficiaries during a period of 48 years, shows the great protective principle in operation of that vast sum, 90 per cent went to widows and children and the remaining 10 per cent to blood relatives and dependents of certificate holders. Of the 90 per cent, the proportion that went to widows was 70 per cent and children received 20 per cent. These figures compiled by that Society go far to establish the inestimable value of life insurance protection for dependents.

WINTER CARNIVAL WAS SUCCESSFUL

LARGE CROWD TURNED OUT FOR PROGRAM TUESDAY

Competitive Events Drew Large Entry and Held Interest of Visitors—Carnival Ball Closed Festivities

Charlevoix saw its sixth annual mid-winter sports carnival come to a successful conclusion Tuesday evening. This annual affair, formerly sponsored by the Lake Charlevoix Winter club, was staged by the winter sports committee of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce.

The weather man smiled upon Charlevoix's efforts Tuesday. Monday night thermometers dropped to 12 below in the first real touch of winter in this region has had, but Tuesday the sun burst forth brilliant and warm, making ideal conditions for out-door activities.

City and nearby rural schools closed and business was halted so everyone could enjoy the fun. A large crowd, with visitors hailing from many nearby cities and villages, were on hand for the program.

Clarence Arnold won the opening event on the day's program, a 4-mile cross-country skiing race. Harold Newman placed second; John Wheeler, Muskegon, third; George Bergman, Charlevoix, fourth.

A dog derby, raced on Mason street between Sherman and State streets, opened the afternoon events. James Brady, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Brady, won the contest, and thus emerged as hero of the day insofar as the younger element was concerned. The usual free-for-all fight marked start of the race. James and his brindle bull dog "Trix" emerged from the melee ahead of some others, and "Trix" out-ran the field ahead of him to place first. Robert Pearl, driving a Great Dane, was second.

In the junior skiing race, one-fourth mile, Robert Ashdon carried off first honor. Marshall O'Neil was second. In the race for seniors, same distance, Archie Swartout won, and Clarence Arnold was second.

Traverse City Legionnaires defeated Charlevoix Polar Bears in the hockey game, feature, event of the afternoon program, winning by a 5 to 3 score in a closely-fought contest. Traverse led 3 to 2 at the end of the second period. The third stanza hardly got under way when Foster evened the count with a goal for Charlevoix, but Traverse found the wicket for two more goals to sew the game up. A large, enthusiastic crowd surrounded the hockey pen to watch the contest.

Entries in skating races on the evening program were heavy, making it necessary to run the races off in heats in several instances. Petoskey's speedsters took home the lion's share of honors, placing first in six out of ten events.

Results of the races were as follows:

Boys under 10 years: 1st, Robert Bergman; 2nd, Archie Livingston, Jr.

Girls under 10 years: 1st, Billie Meyers; 2nd, Rosana Partridge.

Boys under 12 years: 1st, Homer Golden, Petoskey; 2nd, Bruce Withers.

Girls under 12 years: 1st, Gertrude Braun, Petoskey; 2nd, Virginia Crawford, Petoskey.

Boys under 14 years: 1st, Jim Leahr, Petoskey; 2nd, Robert Livingston.

Girls under 14 years: 1st, Gertrude Crawford, Petoskey; 2nd, Jean Zeidler.

Boys under 17 years: 1st, David Livingston; 2nd, Don Frederickson, Petoskey.

Girls under 17 years: 1st, Byrnee Lamphear; 2nd, Janet Livingston.

Men's free-for-all: 1st, Charles Kienhenz, Petoskey; 2nd, David Livingston.

Women's free-for-all: 1st, Jean Webb, Petoskey; 2nd, Esther Chichester, Petoskey.

The day's festivities closed with a carnival ball at the school gymnasium, where a capacity crowd enjoyed a program of modern and old-fashioned dances.

Opening the program, Miss Lola Fessenden, chosen Charlevoix high school's most popular girl by her class-mates, was crowned queen of the winter carnival. Dr. C. I. Winder, president of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, presented the scepter with well chosen and appropriate remarks.

Miss Fessenden was charming in a white wool sports costume. Her attendants, becoming in winter sports costumes, were the Misses Mary Simmons, Angie Scott, Dorothy Struthers, Ada Yettaw, Madelon Yettaw, Grace Kongdon and Florence Gibson. Miss Jean Campbell, portraying a Charles Dickens character, presented Miss Fessenden with a bouquet of red roses from the Charles Dickens club, and then joined the queen and her court in the grand march.

Following the crowning ceremony, dancing was enjoyed until a late hour, thus bringing to a close another successful winter carnival.

SEE CHICK RAISING REGION INDUSTRY

HATCHERY MEN MET AT TRAVERSE CITY SATURDAY

Increased Demand for Northern Michigan Chicks Is Cited—Will Form Association

A new industry of increasing importance to Northern Michigan was seen as nearly a dozen of the leading chick-hatchery men of the Grand Traverse region met Saturday at the Chamber of Commerce in Traverse City and laid the foundation for an association of hatchery and poultry men.

With more than a quarter million chicks about to break their way through the shell in dozens of incubators in Grand Traverse, Benzie, Antrim and Charlevoix counties, the owners of these hatcheries set about methodically to inform the public concerning the conditions affecting the poultry business today and to show reasons why hundreds of farmers and other poultry growers are showing preference for chicks hatched in Northern Michigan, whereas there was a time when nearly all the day-old chicks were shipped to Northern Michigan from long distances.

Here are some of the reasons why locally hatched chicks are preferred: They are sturdier, being hatched from northern produced eggs. The purchaser has a chance to see his chicks before he buys and to see the flocks from which they came. He can see and know personally, the hatchery man from whom he buys. He has the benefit of service which the local hatchery owner gives. He avoids losses due to exposure in shipping long distances. He helps to promote local industry, and he helps his own business by improving the egg market of Northern Michigan, for the hatcheries are now taking off the market annually about 12,000 dozen eggs.

This is a good year to grow poultry, the hatchery men agree. Low egg prices which have prevailed recently have caused some growers to quit the business. This will result in shorter supplies by next fall and enhance prices for eggs and poultry. At this time the price of broilers is five cents higher than it was one year ago and there are now in storage 26 million pounds less of poultry than there were last February.

Despite low egg prices at present the price of day old chicks will not be reduced materially, because such low prices of eggs can only affect the price of producing chicks about one or two cents.

KIPKE'S TOSSERS TAME BOYNE CITY

WON LONG END OF 16 TO 12
VERDICT FRIDAY NIGHT

Close Guarding of McCall Nipped Ambitions of "Mike" Rouse, Boyne's Leading Sharp-Shooter

Coach Ray Kipke's Charlevoix high school basketball team strengthened their lead in the Tip of Michigan class C conference by handing Boyne City a 16 to 12 defeat on the local court Friday night. It was Charlevoix's second victory over Boyne.

Charlevoix came from behind after trailing early in the third period to accomplish the trick, but the most outstanding feature of the game was "Cornie" McCall's performance in holding "Mike" Rouse, spearhead of Boyne's shifty attack, scoreless throughout the contest. It was a feat no other Northern Michigan school has been able to accomplish this season. McCall had Rouse completely stopped. He was on his trail consistently, and when "Mike" did get a shot it was hurried and wild.

Sandel opened the scoring for Boyne with a pair of free throws. He followed soon with a goal and White added another for 6 points. Goals by Novak and McCall gave Charlevoix 4 points and the visitors were leading 6 to 4 when the period closed. During the second period scoring honors were even. Novak and Ance contributed a goal apiece for Charlevoix and White and Fox one each for Boyne. Score at the half stood 10 to 8 with Boyne leading.

Charlevoix evened the count early in the third period on McSaub's pair of free tosses. Later Novak and Ance each broke through for ducies and when the whistle sounded to end the third stanza, Charlevoix was out in front 14 to 10. In the final period McCall added a goal for Charlevoix and White one for Boyne, leaving Charlevoix's advantage the same. Rouse was fouled shortly after the whistle sounded to end the melee. Because of noise, Referee Loyelade did not hear the signal and allowed Rouse to shoot. He made them both, but neither counted.

Novak led Charlevoix's scoring with 6 points. Ance and McCall each accounted for 4 and McSaub 2. White scored 6 points for Boyne, Sandel 4 and Fox 2. Boyne made good on two tries for free throws (Continued on page 6.)

In a previous encounter, Charlevoix's affirmative team won a close 2 to 1 decision from Onaway, rated as one of the strongest teams in this region.

FISHERMAN LOST ON FLOATING ICE

GEORGE KRUSKIE, 22, MISSING
SINCE LAST FRIDAY

Search by Planes, Coast Guards and Others, Are Fruitless—All Hope Has Been Abandoned

Perils of winter fishing on Lake Michigan's treacherous ice floes were brought forcibly to mind last Friday when George Kruskie, 22-year-old Cross Village fisherman, was apparently carried to his doom.

Five days of continuous and painstaking search by airplanes, coast guards and others, have failed to locate the unfortunate man, and today all hope of finding him has been practically abandoned.

Kruskie was a member of a large party fishing off Cross Village. When a northwest wind drove the ice out into Lake Michigan without warning at 10:30, he was unable to gain safety along with others. When he reached the ice crack, the aperture was too wide to jump. His companions threw a rope and would have dragged him to safety. However, he apparently became crazed with fear, refused the proffered assistance, and instead, ran wildly along the crack looking for a place to cross. He was soon out of sight and has not been seen since.

Charlevoix coast guards were called shortly after noon. Capt. Oscar Smith, accompanied by Mark McGarry, Fred Looze and William Barnhart, left for Cross Village in the power launch at 1 o'clock. A thorough search was made of all ice floes they could reach, also Skilakalee and Waughoshance lighthouses. Friday night was spent in the open boat off Cross Village. They returned here late Saturday, after giving every possible assistance.

"Bud" and "Butch" Hammond, pilots of the Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail plane, joined the search Friday afternoon, leaving here at around 4 o'clock, and continuing until darkness forced them to return. They searched all floating ice between Cross Village and Beaver Island, circled lighthouses in that vicinity several times, but found no trace of the missing man. The search that afternoon was prolonged until it was necessary to make a landing here after dark. They continued the search again Saturday morning, and did not give up until certain Kruskie (Continued on page 6.)

MRS. HARRY McHUGH DIED OF PNEUMONIA

Death Came Monday Following Illness of But Five Days

Charlevoix residents were grieved Monday to learn of the death of Mrs. Harry McHugh, who died at 10:30 that morning at Highland Park hospital, Detroit, where she had been ill five days with pneumonia.

Mrs. McHugh, whose maiden name was Helen Cogley, was born at Emmett, Michigan. The family resided in Charlevoix 19 years before moving to Detroit about three months ago.

Surviving her husband and five children, Mary, Ellen Jane, Patricia Ann, Robert and Richard; also two sisters, Mrs. Emily McCarthy, Calif.; Mrs. Mary Chapman, Oak Park, Ill.; and a brother, James Cogley of Yale, Michigan.

Funeral services were to be held Thursday morning at Emmett and the remains will be buried there.

OPEN ROAD THRU WILDERNESS PARK

Conservation Body Has Finally
Granted Wish of Emmet County

The Michigan Conservation commission have voted to grant the long standing Emmet county request for permission to extend the Lake Shore drive from Sturgeon Bay through Wilderness state park to Mackinaw City.

The vote divided the commission evenly and required the vote of Executive Chairman Wm. H. Loutit for decision. The road is a scenic highway through Wilderness Wild Life sanctuary. The matter was carried before the commission some time ago and was defeated.

Last week Petoskey citizens renewed the demand and the vote gives them a victory. Commissioner Harold H. Titus of Traverse City, who opposed the proposal, warned that he will carry his fight against it "farther." Commissioner Whiteley presented the affirmative motion.

"You are giving away something that you never can replace," Titus told the commission.

STATE APPROVES M-131 CONCRETE

PROJECT VOTED AT LANSING
LAST WEDNESDAY

Charlevoix Group Attended Hearing Along With Other Northern Michigan Delegations

Recommendation for a concrete surface on M-131 between Kalkaska and Antrim was approved by state officials in Lansing last Wednesday as a result of the conference between Governor Wilbur M. Brucker and his administrative board and the delegation from northern counties Tuesday morning.

More than 100 persons representing cities along M-131 from Grand Rapids to Mackinaw City were present at the conference with the governor. The delegation was a part of the 131 Paved Highway association, which was recently formed at Cadillac with John L. A. Galster as president.

Gravel Ordered First
The state highway board originally ordered a gravel surface for the 13-mile stretch on M-131, a re-located section of the highway. Protests came immediately from leaders throughout the northern part of the state, who believe it is to the best interest of this section for the highway to be constructed with a concrete surface.

Grading and drainage structures will be completed this year under the terms of Wednesday's resolution and the pavement will be laid in 1932.

Members of the local highway association will continue the organization indefinitely, to safeguard the interests of cities and communities along M-131. The association is opposed to state constructing cut-off roads from the highway until it is paved all the way to Mackinaw City.

Local Delegates
Local delegates at the governor's conference included: L. C. Rouse and J. M. Harris of Boyne City; W. J. Pearson, Boyne Falls; Frank Wangman, East Jordan; R. T. Davis, Charlevoix.

Roy B. Brown, W. J. Masters, A. E. Haas and L. A. Spaulding of Walloon Lake, and David Inglis of Van, also were present.

ANNUAL ICE HARVEST STARTED THIS WEEK

Charlevoix Coal & Ice Company Began Operations Monday

The annual ice harvest at Charlevoix was started Monday morning of this week when the Charlevoix Coal & Ice began operation on Lake Charlevoix off their new storage place in the old beet sugar factory.

Because of depleted supplies following warm weather of unusual duration last summer, the harvest this year will probably be the largest on record.

The Charlevoix Coal & Ice company plans to store around 20,000 tons, and this, added to that requirements of other dealers and private consumers, the total harvest will run around 75,000 tons.

When operations started Monday, a force of 25 men and 12 teams was being employed. The cut will last several weeks.

COMMERCE BANQUET DREW LARGE CROWD

EAST JORDAN AND BOYNE CITY
BOOSTERS CAME

Report on Conservation Projects Shows Gratifying Progress—Other Committees Make Report

A regular meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce was held Thursday evening, February 5, at St. Mary school hall, the ladies of the Altar Society serving a chicken supper that will be fondly remembered by those who partook of it for many moons. It left nothing to be desired. Eighty persons were present, including five members of the Boyne City chamber of commerce and five from the East Jordan chamber of commerce, who came as guests of the local organization.

Following the supper, President Winder called the meeting to order and, after the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, Charles Gale, chairman of the winter sports committee, outlined the program for the Carnival day, Tuesday, February 10. The proposal to close all stores Tuesday afternoon met with unanimous approval.

The matter of tennis courts, discussed at a previous meeting, was again brought up and Mayor Bergeon assured the members that the council would doubtless advance at least one thousand dollars towards the cost and that the school board would very likely be willing to share a portion of the expense of constructing new courts. Archie Livingston reported in brief the proceedings at the Western Michigan Tennis Association meeting, which he recently attended as a delegate from Charlevoix and stated that the Michigan Riviera tournament would be held again this year, either during the last week of July or the first week in August.

Fred E. Cartier, chairman of the committee on conventions, reported that the members of the Cleveland, Ohio, Builders Exchange would meet in convention at the Inn next summer, from June 27th to July 5th, with a promised attendance of some one hundred and twenty-five members.

Other committees reported and a proposal was made for a county co-operative action looking to the establishment of rearing ponds for brook trout. Dr. R. B. Armstrong spoke feelingly in favor of investigating the causes for the deterioration in fishing evident for the past two or three years in Lake Charlevoix and urged that measures should be taken not once to remedy this state of affairs.

H. A. Craig, representing the board of supervisors, reported that the matter of the county fair would be decided at the meeting to be held Monday, February 9th, at East Jordan. F. O. Barden, as spokesman for Boyne City, pledged the support of his community to the project for the establishment of rearing ponds and Mr. Balch did likewise for East Jordan.

Supt. G. W. Hoofnagle of the local government hatchery, gave a gratifying report, relating cooperation of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries along conservation lines. He reported 150,000 eastern brook trout eggs had been sent from Cranbrook, Me., for propagation in the local hatchery and later planting in local waters. A request is to be made for 150,000 western steelhead spawn. If procured, they will be reared to fingerling stage here and then planted in local streams. A similar project was carried out successfully a year ago.

Mr. Hoofnagle told of an experiment being carried on at the hatchery with lake trout. Two hundred thousand of this species will be reared to fingerling stage before planting. The usual procedure is to plant them as fry. Raising brook trout to fingerling stage before planting has met with splendid results and similar success is anticipated with lake trout.

It was moved and unanimously carried that the next meeting and supper of the Association should be held at the Congregational church dining room.

FAIR MATTER AIRED AT SESSION MONDAY

Officers and Directors Met at East Jordan—Result Encouraging

Plans for future action on the county fair proposition were discussed at a meeting of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society at East Jordan Monday evening.

In addition to officers and directors of the Society, a group representative of the entire county was present to air their views, bringing the total attendance to about 60.

On a whole, results of the meeting were gratifying. Opinions expressed were generally in favor of continuance of the fair—and these opinions came from Grange representatives, rural residents and business interests from widely scattered points throughout the county. Retraction of false statements made against officers and directors of the Society came from several sources.

Public sentiment will be felt out further at subsequent meetings. Officers and directors of the Society, together with others interested, will meet with various Grange organizations throughout the county, also with East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix chambers of commerce. If it is found that the public is in favor of continuing the fair, the matter will be brought to a head and definite action taken.

NEXT LYCEUM NUMBER COMES FEBRUARY 19TH

Elliott James Will Give Liquid Air Demonstration

Elliott James, featuring liquid air demonstrations, will appear on the lecture course program at the gymnasium on Thursday, February 19th. At first thought, it might seem that the use of this one unusual liquid could not produce a full evening's program. However, it does this very thing in an entertaining and even sensational manner, and far from being just a plaything, it has developed that there are many practical uses made of this liquid.

Of course, it is well known that ordinary air is a mixture of gases, of which, two, nitrogen and oxygen, make up its greatest bulk, but the rarer ones such as argon, neon and helium, are present in sufficient quantities to be of practical value. The entire liquid mixture is maintained at a temperature of 312 degrees below zero, so low that ice is hot in comparison, and a vessel of liquid air placed on a block of ice boils violently.

A great part of the program is spent in lowering well known substances to a temperature several hundred degrees below zero, by the contact with this liquid, and demonstrating the unusual qualities that they have at this temperature. Liquid oxygen is also used to introduce a flash into the program.

All told, the audience is assured of a sufficient number of thrilling surprises to keep it on edge the entire evening.

NORTH HOSPITAL BILL IS OFFERED

STATE SUPERVISORS ENDORSE
NEW INSTITUTION

Representative Ward Offers Bill in Legislature—Would Get Funds
From New Malt Tax

Adoption of a resolution by the Michigan State Association of Supervisors endorsing establishment of a state sanatorium in Northern Michigan, together with further championing of the movement for the institution by Speaker of the House Fred Ming were outstanding developments in Lansing the past week in the campaign for a tuberculosis hospital to serve the northern part of the lower peninsula.

The Supervisors Association's resolution followed upon talks given at the group's Wednesday morning session by Dr. G. L. Leslie, medical director of Howell State Sanatorium, and T. J. Werle, executive secretary of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

Need Pointed Out

Dr. Leslie stated that facilities at the state sanatorium, although vastly improved over three years ago, are still entirely inadequate for the number of patients seeking care. Pointing out that 250 deaths from tuberculosis occur annually in the northern half of the lower peninsula, he said that a sanatorium of between 250 and 500 beds is needed to properly serve this area.

Emphasis was placed by Mr. Werle upon the fact that Michigan, with an estimated 40,000 active cases in tuberculosis, is greatly in need of more sanatorium beds. Construction of a state sanatorium to take care of the tuberculosis of northern Michigan was seen as the state's most pressing need at the present time.

Malt Tax Suggested

In his address before the annual banquet of the Supervisors Association, Mr. Ming again indicated that he is in hearty accord with the measure for a northern state sanatorium. He suggested a malt tax or tobacco tax as a way of paying for the institution. Previously, in his opening address before the House, Mr. Ming had referred to the need for additional state-built sanatorium beds.

Members of the legislative committee of the Northern Sanatorium Association, including W. J. Fish, Thompsonville, H. S. Karcher, Rose City; A. R. Flynn, Curran; and Bruce Rutledge, Roscommon, interviewed Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker and legislative leaders during the week. They reported favorable sentiment for the sanatorium measure both in the executive office and among members of the House and Senate committees to which the measure will be referred when introduced.

Debate

For the first time in the history of the State Debating League Charlevoix is entering the elimination series. Excitement is high because the debate will be held on the home floor Wednesday, Feb. 18, 7:00 p. m., with Onaway as the opponent, arguing the off side of the question, "Resolved that the Chain Stores operating in the state of Michigan are detrimental to the people of the State."

During the preliminary series consisting of four debates the Charlevoix high school affirmative team, Dorothy Staley, Charles Cellner and Daisy Dutcher, won a unanimous decision from Boyne City, and a 2 to 1 decision in a close contest with Onaway. The fact makes the coming debate doubly exciting. An instructor who has served as a judge in a number of Northern Michigan debates considers Onaway to be one of the strongest teams represented.

In the preliminary series the negative team composed of Virginia Nickerson, Albert McMillan and Marjorie Manley, had the first debate forfeited from Petoskey and in the last contest won a unanimous decision from East Jordan.

Those from the squad who will represent the school on the regular side of this issue in this first elimination debate will be Virginia Nickerson, Marjorie Manley and Dorothy Staley.

At the preliminary games Charlevoix gymnasium was packed. We expect fully twice as many to the debate February 20th, because such an event should be as well attended as athletic games as it goes to make up the school's character and standing.

Valentine Program

The third grade will give a St. Valentine's day program in the school auditorium this week Friday, at 9:00 a. m. There will be recitations and songs followed by a little Valentine play, "Saint Valentine's Eve," the scene of which takes place in an old attic. The characters are: Lippy and Floppy, two rag dolls; Robert Gill and Betty Willis; Spirit of Valentine, Thomas Carey; Lacy Paper Lady and Gentleman; Roberta Seymour and Charles Supernaw; Piekano and Piekanniny, Buddy Ghan and Edna Mae Hull; Cupid and Cupidess, Melvin Plum and Louise Young.

After the play there will be a song by the grade. The entire third grade are at work preparing the costumes and the stage for their program and invite anyone interested to attend.

Fried Mush

(A Review of our B. R. Games.) The four basketball games which were played in the C. H. S. gymnasium February 6 will undoubtedly go down in history as the greatest games of all time. The first game was the C. J. H. S. vs. B. C. G. The G standing for giants. The G's came out a point or two ahead, through no fault of C. J. H. S. The game might have been called: the Lilliputians vs. the Gullivers.

The second game startled the fans by the fierceness of the primary attack. (If the words are unintelligible, please remember I'm writing from a sport editors viewpoint.) As I remember it was the C. R. vs. B. R. The R meaning reserves. The C. R. played against heavy odds: five men and a ball.

By this time the fans also were fighting. I have on records accounts of 18 1-2 broken backs. Queer how much damage mere knees can do. The third game, however, was a knockout. The backfield joined the quarterback in making a goal. The first quarter ended Love all; the half, Hate all, and there were at least a couple of touchdowns with the Mohammedans, thank goodness! Let's all go!

The four games (let's straighten up for a while) sufficed us. The great was tongue-tied and made no baskets. Gee, we've got a handsome bunch of players. Oh yes; and we won.

The fifth game—pardon me, that was all! I dare you to stand on both feet and straighten your back!

Drama Club News

After studying the stage, the proper lighting for different effects, actors and the technique of acting in the first semester, the Drama club will present for the public approval famous scenes from some of the plays by William Shakespeare. Scenes from the following plays have been chosen, "Romeo and Juliet," "Twelfth Night," "Merchant of Venice," "Macbeth," "Taming of the Shrew," "Julius Caesar," and "As You Like It."

Hi-Y News

On Wednesday, February 5, the Hi-Y gave its second breakfast. The two cooks prepared the following menu: Molecules of Toast with Electrons of Butter, Grams of Cereal with Ions of Milk, and Cubic Centimeter of Cocoa. Copies of the menu for each member were made in the office.

Plans were made to have Dean W. Whitehouse of Albion college, address the high school assembly, Tuesday, February 10th.

Walter Gospel of Petoskey was the guest at the breakfast.

Girl Scouts

About two weeks ago a Girl Scout group was organized under the leadership of Mr. Gospel, the Y. M. C. A. leader for this district. Officers were chosen as follows: President, Ernestine Nickerson; secretary-treasurer, Helena Bogart; patrol leader, Mary Lemieux. Other members of the group are Hilda Roen, Esther Jones, Dorothy Smith, Ernestine Chew, and Marguerite Hull.

Last Saturday they were taken to Petoskey for an afternoon of skating and tobogganing by Mr. Bogart.

Winter Sport's day they sold hot dogs at the rink during the races. Many patronized this affair.

They are now awaiting instruction books from Mr. Gospel. When they arrive they expect to go forward with many projects.

Pop Meeting

Last Friday morning the students were well entertained at the "pop" meeting. Bob Foster was the announcer, broadcasting over radio station, C. H. S., with a frequency of 101 1-2 spark plugs. Some of the students entertained us with pinnoand mouth organ selections. One of the outstanding numbers on the program was the rendering of the school song by Harry Goldstick. All in all the students enjoyed a real "pop" meeting.

Before a packed house C. H. S. won from the Boyne City quintet, the score being 16 to 12. The victory now places Charlevoix at the head of the conference tilts. The second team and Junior High team lost to the visitors in very close and exciting games. During the half of the main game the crowd was humorously entertained by some of the high school boys who played basketball with a football.

The next game is with the East Jordan five at East Jordan on Friday night of this week.

was not on the ice nor in any of the lighthouses. Efforts of these two pilots were not made without risk of their own lives, and they are deserving of much credit.

Reluctant to give Kruskie up as lost, relatives and friends at Cross Village induced Petoskey parties to have planes from Selfridge field join the search. Two army planes piloted by Lieuts. Harry Johnson and Edward Underhill, were sent to Petoskey Monday. They searched ice floes that day, and upon returning reported a window broken at White Shoals lighthouse. This discovery renewed hopes that Kruskie might have found safety there, but Tuesday, using dog sleds and boats, four men succeeded in reaching the lighthouse. Their efforts were without avail, however, for the missing man was not found.

It is believed Kruskie was drowned Friday within a short time after he was last seen by his companions. Kruskie's parents reside at Cross Village. He was well known locally, having engaged in pond net fishing here last summer with John Cross.

As we go to press today, word comes that Cross Village parties failed in their attempt to reach White Shoals lighthouse Tuesday because of rough ice and open water. Capt. Oscar Smith of Charlevoix coast guard station, complied this morning with a request that a boat be sent from the local station to the lighthouse, and left with three members of the local crew to renew the search.

MASONS BEATEN AGAIN IN CRIBBAGE CONTEST

Odd Fellows Added 255 More Points
Monday Night for 1,355 Total

Charlevoix Odd Fellows banded the Masons another set-back in the fourth session of their series of cribbage contests at the Masonic temple Monday evening.

Led by John Curtis, who was high point winner of the evening with 966, the Odd Fellows increased their lead by 255 points for a total of 1,355. George Thompson led the Masons with 964 points, just two behind Curtis.

The series has now reached the half-way mark with the Odd Fellows in front by a comfortable margin. Four more sessions will be held, and unless the Masons perk up a bit, it looks like they will be providing a "feed" several weeks hence.

OIL COMPANY TAKES OVER LARGE ACREAGE

Will Drill 22 Test Wells in This and Other Counties

The Danciger Oil & Refining company of Tulsa, Oklahoma, have completed negotiations for an oil and gas lease from the W. H. White company covering some 40,000 acres in Charlevoix, Antrim, Montmorency and Alpena counties, upon which the lease contract requires the drilling of 22 test wells to the Dundee formation.

Fred H. Merritt, petroleum geologist of Tulsa negotiated the contract and will have charge of the development program.

Mr. Merritt has authorized the following statement: "The Danciger company is one of the larger independent operators of the mid-continent field, and have plenty of money to carry out any contract they undertake. The test drilling will be done systematically and, with production, the plans contemplate producing, refining and market of products, as well as natural gas distribution to domestic and industrial consumers. No stock will be sold, nor is it necessary to sell acreage. Am sure that these plans will give a permanent impetus to the development of the natural resources of the State." —Boyer-Citizen.

LOCAL TOSSERS WIN TWO GAMES

THREE TEAMS WON AT EAST JORDAN LAST FRIDAY

Traverse City Central Fell on Local Court Tuesday Evening—Juniors Drop Prelim to Bellaire.

Charlevoix high school basketballers successfully hurdled another obstacle in their path towards the Tip of Michigan class C conference title by defeating East Jordan high 20 to 16 on East Jordan's court last Friday night. The victory gave Charlevoix five wins in conference competition.

In the preliminary contests, Charlevoix also carried off both events. In a close struggle, the junior high tossers were victorious by a 17 to 16 margin, while in the semi-final, Charlevoix's reserves trimmed East Jordan 16 to 10. It certainly was a Charlevoix night!

Although victorious, Coach Kipke's tossers were close-pressed in the main contest of the evening. Starting with a determined attack, East Jordan piled up four points before the local cagers found the meshes. They continued to lead the pace throughout the first two periods, and at the half had the advantage of a 10 to 9 count.

The final half was a battle. During the thirty minutes of play, the score changed hands at least four times, and it was not until late in the fourth period that Charlevoix pulled away to an advantage that carried them through in win. According to an East Jordan press report on the game, Charlevoix's tossers sank them from all angles in the final moments of the contest.

McCall and Capt. Novak were the mainstays in the Charlevoix attack, while Hegersberg and Dennis starred for East Jordan. In spite of a stormy night, quite a large group of local fans saw the game.

In a spirited contest on the local court Tuesday evening, Charlevoix handed the class B Traverse City Central live a 22 to 11 defeat to run their string of season's victories to nine.

With the exception of the first period, when Charlevoix experienced difficulty solving Traverse City's passing attack, Coach Kipke's tossers were superior in every department. The contest was fast, but lacked firestorm in other games here. Fouling was frequent on both sides, slowing up play.

Traverse opened scoring with Hodges' goal. McCall evened the count with a decent, but Traverse went in the lead again when Sebright connected. Novak added a free throw and the period ended with the visitors leading 4 to 3.

Kipke's tossers held Traverse without a count in the second quarter. Once added two goals, McSauba one and Novak a pair of free throws to put Charlevoix in the lead 11 to 4 at the half.

The only scores made by either team in the third stanza were from the foul line. Charlevoix made good on 6 chances, McCall accounting for 3, Anee 2 and Novak one. Traverse added one. The period ended with Charlevoix leading 17 to 4.

Coach Kipke substituted Smith for McSauba and Davenport for McCall in the final period. Traverse took advantage to score a pair of goals. McCall re-entered the line-up and stopped the rally. In the final stanza McCall scored a goal and Novak added a decent and a free throw.

McCall and Novak led Charlevoix's scoring with 7 points each. Anee scored 6 and McSauba 2. Hodges, Traverse center, was high with 4. Shutter scored 3, Sebright 2 and Ross a pair of free throws. Charlevoix made good on 10 out of 14 chances from the foul line. Traverse connected with 3 out of 15. Coach Cohen of East Jordan, refereed and called them close.

Charlevoix's junior high hit a snag in the prelim with Bellaire junior high. The visitors won the contest 12 to 7.

PIONEER RESIDENT PASSES 91ST YEAR

Seventy Persons Present at Party Honoring Her Saturday Night

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Struthers on U. S. 31 north of Charlevoix, was the scene of a happy gathering Saturday evening.

About 70 relatives and friends gathered there to help celebrate the 91st birthday anniversary of Mrs. A. R. Struthers, mother of John Struthers, and one of Northern Michigan's first pioneer residents. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served, after which Rev. George Weaver of Petoskey, gave a very enjoyable talk on his boyhood days. Visiting, games and music were also enjoyed.

In spite of her advanced years, Mrs. Struthers has remarkably good health. She is active and alert and no one enjoyed the party more than she did. Her friends left many gifts in remembrance of the occasion.

CROSS VILLAGE MAN NOT FOUND

SEARCHERS REACH WHITE SHOALS AFTER TWO EFFORTS

Unable to Determine Whether or Not Entrance to Place Was Made —by Kruskie

Returning at 9 o'clock Thursday night from their three-day visit to Crane Island and to White Shoals Light, the party of four searchers brought word they did not find George Kruskie, lost Cross Village fisherman, but that they did find evidence that someone had been in the place. Whether or not that "someone" was Kruskie, the searchers were unable to determine.

The party, headed by Wilbur Belonges, spent about two hours at the light. One of the men crawled through the window and explored the place, failing to locate Kruskie. He said someone had been in the place, however, since it was closed last December. One bed had been used, food eaten and the place left rather "mussed up." There was no way of knowing whether this was the work of Kruskie or someone else.

Charlevoix coast guards made an unsuccessful attempt to reach White Shoals by boat Wednesday. Heavy ice blocked their efforts.

Many Cross Village folk hold to the belief that Kruskie was drowned within a few hours after his ice field broke off the main field at Cross Village and disappeared into Lake Michigan last Friday. Others claim to have seen a signal light in the lighthouse Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday nights. Several men in Cross Village maintain that they watched Kruskie when his ice field broke off the main field Friday, and that after less than an hour's time he disappeared. They feel that his ice field broke up under his feet or that he stepped into a crack and, in either case, disappeared to his death in Lake Michigan.

Since return of the searchers, there is a new possibility entered into the conversation. Some wonder if Kruskie may have found solid ice during Tuesday forenoon, and attempted to cross to the north shore of the lake.

In the rescue party which arrived home last night were Belonges, Mose Parker, Pat Samuels, Elmer Marshall and James Marshall.

CLASS C CROWN BAT- TLE ON HERE FRIDAY

Charlevoix and Harbor to Battle It Out for Conference Title

Charlevoix's hopes of a championship in the Tip of Michigan class C basketball conference will receive their most severe test Friday night, when Coach Ray Kipke's tossers clash with Harbor Springs on the local court in a return game.

In their previous meeting, Charlevoix and Harbor fought through three overtime periods to an 8 to 8 tie. Harbor has met with one defeat at the hands of Boyne City, and is now in second place. A win over Charlevoix will give them a tie for first position. Boyne City, whose championship hopes were blasted through their second straight defeat by Charlevoix, are in third place.

Harbor will be fighting to hold a crown they have won for two consecutive years, and the contest Friday night has promise of being the most exciting witnessed here in many years.

BOYNE MAKING READY FOR MEET

DISTRICT TOURNAMENT WILL BE CONDUCTED THERE

Five Teams Expected to Enter in Class C With Eight in D—Buchen in Charge

With Michigan high schools in the last stages of their schedules, attention is now turning to the approaching court roundup, the annual tournaments. It is expected that more than 500 schools will take part in the district tournaments which are to be held in all corners of the state. Figuring nine players to the squad, this means that on March 5, the opening day of the district events, that approximately 4,500 high school boys will be in action.

Boyne City has been awarded one of the 53 district tournaments. It will be held at Boyne City high school under the management of Bayard K. Buchen, principal.

Teams that emerge from the tournament here will have the opportunity of moving into the regional tournaments to be held three days, starting March 12. A. W. Thompson, director of the association, estimates that approximately 175 teams will go from the districts into the regional events.

As usual there will be four classes competing in the state this year. The same prizes and honors will be accorded the class D champions as those emerging victorious in class A. Trophies will be awarded to the winners and runners-up in the tournament here just as they will at the regional and state championships. Due to the comparatively small number of class A schools, there will be no district elimination in this division. Only class B, C and D schools will jump into the preliminary round of play.

Schools that will enter teams in the tourney have already been selected and will be announced by the Boyne City manager soon.

Probable teams are: Class C—Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor Springs and Mancelona. Class D—Albion, Bellaire, Boyne Falls, Central Lake, Ellsworth, Wolverine, Pellston and Mackinaw City.

STATE HAS A LARGE SUPPLY OF WEAPONS

More than 500 guns were confiscated from conservation law violators during the year 1930.

According to the law enforcement division of the conservation department, 228 rifles and 353 shotguns were taken because they were being used in violation of conservation laws. All of these guns are sold at public sale at the department's Lansing office.

During the year the department confiscated 887 traps, 813 muskrat pelts and 10,454 pounds of fish in addition to other pelts, several automobiles, motor and row boats, and implements and materials used in violation of conservation laws.

The division reported 4,260 convictions for violations of conservation laws for the year; 2,130 of which were fish law cases; 1,506 game law cases; 646 fur law cases and 45 miscellaneous conservation law cases. Violators paid $59,400.27 in fines, $39,041.80 in court costs and served an aggregate of 9,360 days in jail.

TEMPERANCE UNION PROGRAM INTERESTING

Leader and Others Gave Talks at Meeting Friday Afternoon

"How It Happened," a history of the temperance movement in the United States, was the topic presented by Mrs. R. B. Armstrong at the W. C. T. U. meeting last Friday afternoon. Some of the leader's own experiences and observations, given in connection with the study book material, added greatly to the interest of the program hour.

Mrs. Barker Kirby memorialized Frances Willard, the great temperance leader, in the devotional service.

Another interesting feature was a demonstration by eight members of the Loyal Temperance Legion, each presenting a short temperance address, quoting President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, Evangeline Booth and others. This was under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Rauch, Loyal Temperance League director.

BELOVED RESIDENT DIED LAST FRIDAY

MRS. ALBERT HOLMES SUC-
CUMBED FRIDAY IN FLORIDA

Sudden Death Followed Short Illness and Operation in Hospital at Daytona Beach

Charlevoix residents were grieved last Friday to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Albert Holmes, local resident, who passed away that day in a hospital at Daytona Beach, Florida. Mrs. Holmes had been taken to the hospital from her winter home at Port Orange. She submitted to a major operation, thought at first to have been successful, but from which she later failed to rally.

Mrs. Holmes was born November 30, 1872, in Hayes township, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Pierce. She spent her early days there with her parents, and on April 12, 1900, was united in marriage to Albert Holmes at the U. S. See home in this city. She had resided here her entire life with the exception of winters spent in Florida.

Surviving besides her husband, are a son, Ivan Holmes, and a brother, Harris Pierce of Norwood.

Mrs. Holmes was a member of the Eastern Star and Maccabee lodges and of the Congregational church. She will be missed by a host of close friends.

The remains were shipped from Florida, arriving here Tuesday afternoon. The body has been interred in a vault at Brookside until spring. It is understood other members of the immediate family are ill at Port Orange.

Charlevoix skaters walked off with four titles and placed second in several events, while twelve championships were retained by Petoskey speedsters.

In the intermediate division, Robt. Livingston placed first in the 440-yard dash for boys. Dave Livingston, Charlevoix's most promising young skater, won both the half mile and mile events in this division. In the junior division for boys, Robert Livingston tied for second and third position in the three-fourths mile race. Charlevoix captured two places in the 440-yard dash for men, with Dave Livingston placing second and George Smith Jr., third.

Louis Kleinhenz, Petoskey, won the title.

In the junior competition Saturday afternoon, John Zeidler, with a total of 126 points, placed second in the intermediate division for boys from 12 to 16 years. John won the half-mile cross country race. Leo Yettaw, another local lad, was among the contestants.

DICKENS CLUB HELD PLEASANT MEETING

Affair Observing Charles Dickens' Birth Event Last Monday

At the regular Monday meeting of the Dickens Club on February 9th, a delightful one o'clock luncheon was served at the home of the president, Mrs. Julia Campbell, in honor of Charles Dickens' birthday anniversary.

Mesdames Fessenden, Campbell, Slonn, Payton, members of the executive committee, had charge of the luncheon. Mrs. Minnie Wood also kindly assisted.

The tables were beautifully decorated with sprays of hyacinth and fern. Place cards very appropriately held a silhouette of Dickens.

Following the luncheon the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Edith Wilkinson, chairman of the program committee. A beautiful rendition of the following vocal numbers was given by Mrs. Marjorie Livingston. The musical setting of Charles Dickens' poem, "The Ivy Green," "When Love is Kind," by Thomas Moore; "All Through the Night," "Old Welch Air; Peripatetic," by Garton. Mrs. Ruth Soule, violinist, played a group of solos consisting of "Legend," by Wieniawski; "Serenade," by Drla; "La Capriceuse," by Elgar. Mrs. Manie Fessenden played the accompaniments in an able and artistic manner.

Current events of interest were read by various members of the club, also an Art bulletin furnished by Mrs. Hoffmaster of Traverse City. The remainder of the afternoon was devoted to the reading of a portion of "Dombey and Son," by Dickens.

Each week the Str. Thorold, which is 258 feet long, leaves a Canadian port loaded with 2,500 tons of print paper for the Chicago Tribune. When printed this went out as 2nd class mail. The government lost ninety-eight million dollars on 2nd class mail last year. Now they want to raise letter postage to two and one-half cents to make up for this loss.

Write your senator and congressman asking them to prevent this as you know they were elected to carry out the wishes of the majority of the people.

(Since the type was set for the above, we understand first class letter postage will remain at two cents per ounce. Guess someone has been writing our Representative at Washington.)

John and George, small sons of a Baptist minister, after listening to one of their father's sermons, decided that they must baptize their family of cats. The kittens made no objections. But when it came to the mother cat, she rebelled—and fought—and scratched—until at last John remarked: "Just" sprinkle her, George, and let her go to hell."

STATE HAS COURSES IN NATURAL WEALTH

Students Will Receive Training in Conservation of Minerals

Courses of study which are concerned with the conservation of forests, minerals, wild animals and other natural wealth have been grouped at Michigan State college to make it possible for students interested in this work to specialize in any of these three lines of work.

The course in forestry has been given for many years but the other two are to be started in response to a demand for training in subjects which deal with the preservation of natural resources. Michigan's natural wealth in minerals and wild life will enable the class room work to be supplemented with such practical training as is needed for the courses. The breeding of game and fur bearing animals has become an industry which rivals in size and value many of the phases of livestock raising. Trained men are scarce in the new industry and there appear to be places for many more than are now prepared for the work.

Students will make the election of one of the courses during their sophomore year and devote their junior and senior years to a study of the subjects in the special courses.

ODD FELLOWS RETAIN LEAD IN CRIBBAGE

Won Fifth Contest of Series Monday Night by 397 Points

Charlevoix Masons took another drubbing at the hands of the Odd Fellows in the fifth of their series of cribbage contests at the Odd Fellow hall Monday evening.

The Odd Fellows increased their series lead by 397 points for a total of 1,752. Individual team scores were, Odd Fellows 26,164, Masons 25,767. High point winners of the evening were Fred Christensen with 968 for the Odd Fellows, and Robert Rife with 951 for the Masons.

Three more contests remain out of the series of eight. To date, the Odd Fellows have been victorious in every contest and it looks as though they were almost sure of winning the handsome silver trophy.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY MEETING NEXT FRIDAY

URGENT RETURN OR PAYMENT FOR XMAS SEALS

Campaign Short of Other Years—Quick Response Asked

Of the 880 Charlevoix county residents to whom Christmas seals were sent through the mails last December, 323 have not yet acknowledged their receipt, a check-up on local returns by the Michigan Tuberculosis association shows. To date 557 envelopes have been received from the county, their total contents amounting to $353.91.

Persons who made use of the seals during the holidays, intending to pay for them later, are urged by the Tuberculosis association through its executive secretary, T. J. Werle, to remit for them as soon as possible. Others who did not use the stamps and are unable to contribute to tuberculosis work at the present time are requested to return their allotment to help clear the association's files.

"We hope that all who can will make a contribution this year so that the state program of anti-tuberculosis work will not have to be curtailed," Mr. Werle said. "Our present shortage in the seal sale is extensive and will necessitate a drastic cut in activities unless the seal fund is considerably increased by late returns."

M. Partridge: "I don't believe it."

A. Usher: "He is an undertaker."

D. McKenzie: "You think you're smart, don't you?"

B. Goldstick: "Sure I'm so smart my mother has to keep me under the tub to give me a chance."

NEED MORE ALFALFA ON MICHIGAN SOILS

This Legume Comprises Only One-Fifth Total Acreage of Hay

Michigan's alfalfa acreage has increased from 74,000 acres in 1919 to 598,000 in 1930, according to the reports of V. H. Church, agricultural statistician, but this amount is only about one-fifth of the state's total hay acreage and there are still many acres which should be planted to the premier legume, in the opinion of the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

The crops and soils departments at the college are cooperating in holding meetings in many Michigan counties to explain their reasons for urging more farmers to grow alfalfa. County agricultural agents are making the local arrangements for the meetings.

The value of alfalfa as a soil improver is one of the reasons why the crop finds favor with the soils department. The plant has the ability to take nitrogen from the air and hold it in nodules on its roots so the nitrogen becomes available for plant food for succeeding crops.

Alfalfa furnishes one of the best roughages obtainable for feeding dairy cattle and the hay can be used for every other class of livestock. Feeding trials at the college have shown that the hay is readily eaten by hogs and that leafy, cut alfalfa can be used as a green feed for poultry.

The use of alfalfa as a seed crop brought a welcome profit to many Michigan farmers in 1930 and, apparently, when the season is favorable the production of alfalfa seed will materially increase, the state's agricultural income.

VALUE OF HERDS HINGES ON SIRE

Proved Bull Is Surest Means of Improving Herd—Feeds Important

The importance of keeping a proved bull can not be stressed too emphatically. Altogether too often good sires are sent to the butcher long before their value is known, principally because their owners did not keep records on their daughters, and therefore, did not have any way of determining their value.

If production records are kept on a bull's first five daughters he is a proved bull. If these first five daughters produce more than their dams the bull should be kept in the herd indefinitely, while if they produce less than their dams he should be disposed of as soon as this fact is determined.

Many bulls do not receive the proper attention while they are in the herd, even to negligence of feeding. When the bull is in full service he should receive about the same ration as is given the dairy cows. A good ration, to be fed with plenty of clover hay and a limited amount of corn silage, is made up of 300 pounds ground corn, 300 pounds ground oats, 200 pounds wheat bran, and 200 pounds linseed meal. Barley or wheat may be substituted for the corn.

Exercise is important, and no bull can be expected to give the best of service over a long period of time unless he receives plenty of exercise. He also should be well housed and not allowed to stand out during bad weather.

ROAD BODY PROMISES HELP TO PHYSICIANS

Would Plow By-Roads for Autos in Emergency Cases

At a recent meeting of the county road commissioners it was arranged to aid physicians, who are called to attend patients who live off the plowed roads, by sending a snow plow ahead and open up the road anywhere in the county and in case the home is beyond the county line the plow will go ahead and clear the road anyway.

It was further agreed to aid the cities of the county in opening the streets of the cities whenever the city plows need help. Notice of these arrangements will be published at once.—Bozney Citizen.

STRAY DOGS RUIN MICHIGAN FLOCKS

Report from County Officials Shows $200,725 Paid Owners

Outlaw dogs which have acquired a taste for mutton cost Michigan farmers a huge sum of money in 1930 as is shown by the $200,725 which was paid as indemnities but which did not repay the owners for animals which were injured and for which no settlement was made.

Some Michigan counties had to dip deeply into the general fund to pay losses when the sum collected as dog taxes proved to be much too small to pay for all the damage suffered by the flocks of sheep in the county. The figures on losses were secured by members of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State college in a search for reasons why the sheep industry is unpopular in some sections.

The Michigan dog law is quoted nationally as a model for other states to follow but this law is less valuable when it is not rigidly enforced. The board of supervisors in one Michigan county authorized the sheriff to deputize men for the sole purpose of reducing the losses of sheep in the county. Seventeen stray dogs were shot and the loss dropped from $3,020 in 1928 to $258.50 in 1929.

Some owners of sheep in certain counties formed committees which took over the work of eradicating outlaw dogs. This means appears to be effective, but is not as satisfactory as to have the work done by officials who are charged with the enforcement of the laws.

FARM ACCOUNT PROJECT COMMENCES NEW YEAR

New Beginners Are Urged to Enroll At Once

One of the most important and in fact, fundamental projects to be carried on by Charlevoix county farmers is that of keeping farm records to enable them to find out the result of the year's work, as well as to discover the relative efficiency of each part of the farm business.

On March 1st two years' records will have been finished and the third year started. One of the greatest surprises that the co-operators have noted thus far is the large amount of money being handled during the year, from the sale of eggs, dairy products and crop sales and the cost of the feed and supply bills necessary to make the income possible.

Farmers who keep farm records have found it to be of great value to take inventory of the land, farm buildings, equipment, machinery, supplies and feed on hand at the beginning. When this is done the farmers begin to realize what a large business he is managing and the importance of having accurate knowledge of how efficient each farm department is toward the entire total.

Different from the previous two years there will be no school of instruction for new beginners, as this project has grown so rapidly in the state that not enough extension help is possible to hold these local meetings. Instead, County Agent Mellencamp will be very glad to outline the project to all farmers desiring to enroll for the new year, beginning March 1st. In this method every beginner can have a complete outline of the project and the manner and method of keeping records will be carefully explained.

At their next meeting, after incensing Elmer such a sense of power as he had never known before, Nellie adroitly shifted the conversation to a subject which is never very far from pleasing to a man out of town, to wit, himself.

"Doris," she charged suddenly, "do you know that suit you're wearing is beginning to look just a little bit shabby? I don't like to see my Elmer letting himself go like this. You should be the best dressed man in town—and usually you are. I'm afraid you've been trying too hard to save money to equip Elmer's place."

He squeezed her hand gratefully. "The idea of that business of my own, Elmer, he admitted. 'I have been scripping more than usual lately. I wanted to get going—to be independent and make enough money to enable me to marry you and give you everything you desired.'"

"That darling—I would have married you on far less. I would have been a help to you, not a source of expense."

"I know it, old lovable. But you were doing as well in your job as I was doing in mine, and it isn't a particularly striking evidence of unselfishness when a man asks a woman to give up financial independence to acrimony and have and sacrifice with him. I didn't want you to do that. My mother had to do that all her life and it hurt me. I swore that when I married, my wife should never have to say to me, 'Elmer, dear, may I have a dollar and a half to pay the gas bill?' or 'Elmer, I'd like eight dollars to buy a new hat.'"

"Nellie, that sort of thing is disgraceful. I want you to have your own private checking account and I never want to know what you do with the money."

"Nellie now squeezed his hand. 'Never fear, Elmer, I'll have my own checking account and nobody shall ever know what I do with the money. I agree with you thoroughly there. But, Elmer, were of our subject. I want you to go up to San Francisco and get yourself a complete wardrobe. You must take a vacation, Elmer.'"

"I will—if you'll take it with me." "I shall not. On a vacation I'll be a nuisance. You'd be working hard just trying to assure yourself that your wife was having a wonderful time—and I'm not ready to marry you yet, dear. Really, you must not bother yourself with a wife and her trunk and bags, not to mention your own."

"Sure you can't be persuaded to change your mind and marry me before I go, Nellie?" "Elmer, I'm not even engaged to you—yet. Remember that, I have already explained to you why."

He surrendered. "You're a mean woman, but I love you, so I suppose all of my life I'll be giving you your own way about everything. The only comfort I'll draw out of that will be the knowledge that you're wiser than a tree full of owls and probably know more about everything than I do."

"Omit the compliments, Mr. Clarke, please. Are you going on that vacation?"

"Yes—after I've cleaned up Henry Tichener in this school election. By the way, Nellie, I've made one new resolution since that lawyer, McPeake, wired me I was a millionaire. I've decided not to cook my own breakfast hereafter and to refrain from eating my luncheons and dinners in restaurants. I've engaged a smart gentleman of color to look after me and the dogs. His name is Jasper and he swears a mean skillet; he can bottle, drive a car and play the banjo."

"Good! Elmer, I think you ought to buy yourself another nice present. You've been good for ever so long and you deserve it. You'll want a new main in Pileclothes long enough to complete your term of office as chairman and member of the board of trustees of the Union high school. What do you want for your bungalow and lot?"

"Ten thousand dollars. Got a customer for me, Nellie?"

"Yes, but I'm afraid my customer cannot meet your terms. I know a party who might be induced to buy your house if you will accept two thousand dollars down, with a first mortgage for two years on the remainder at seven per cent."

"Sold!" The word popped out of Elmer's mouth in much the same manner he formerly employed when giving orders to his patron. "I suppose you'll want a commission, Nellie, he suggested with what Anne Moody would have termed ill-concealed humorosity."

"Not from you," she replied breathlessly. "They were lunching at the time in a booth at the Palace grill. Nellie glanced around, saw that for the moment they were unnoticed and 'Kiss me!' she commanded. 'Kiss me!'"

Elmer dutifully obeyed. "Go forth and make your fight for good trustee," Nellie ordered. "See to it that you win. If you're defeated, I'll cry."

CHAPTER VII

Having nothing else to do that afternoon, Elmer concluded to kill two birds with one stone. He resolved to go fishing. En route to the stream and back he planned to visit half a dozen farmers and solicit their support at the coming school election.

He received assurances of support from every voter upon whom he called, and four out of the six expressed profound satisfaction at this signal evidence of Elmer's intention, to remain in Pileclothes, take an active interest in civic affairs and grow up with the county. In fact, one of them went so far as to tilt him a hearty sweat on the back and say: "Elmer, you're all right. No swelled head about you, I'm for you all the way! You're just plain folks like the rest of us and your money hasn't spoiled you a mite."

The neophyte brought on a coughing fit, but Elmer did not mind. He was beginning to discover, in these plying times of peace, the true inwardness of something he had gone to war to fight for, and that was the gentle art of making the world safe for democracy. At that moment he caught a glimpse of the class consciousness and class resentment, sleeping perhaps but never dead, even in a free republic. He knew he must be careful not to appear any different hereafter from what he had always been; that jealous minds in back of keen eyes would be quick to attribute to him now the ideals and impulses which would he their own did they but stand in his shoes.

"He was thoughtful and subdued as he drove into his garage late that evening."

His newly acquired person of color, Jasper, came out of the kitchen and met Elmer as the latter was locking the garage door.

"Dey's a young lady walkin' fol you, suh, in de parlor," he confided. "She done call about foh o'clock an' when I told her you-all had gone fishin' she said she'd set aroun' an' wait twell you got back."

"Who is she, Jasper?" "Jasper handed him a card, which read: Miss Doris Gatewood, Special Correspondent, The American Weekly, New York City, 245 Rampart Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif., Telephone 687-978."

"Oh, Lord!" Elmer groaned. "So I'm still new! What sort of person is she, Jasper?"

Jasper grinned. "Shuah nint hnd to look at, Mistah Clarke."

"Well, you tell the lady I have just returned and will see her as soon as I have had an opportunity to clean up."

Some ten minutes later, when Elmer entered his little parlor, in which a woman had sat since his mother's funeral, he found Miss Doris Gatewood seated at the ancient square piano softly playing a Strauss waltz. At his approach she turned gracefully on the revolving stool and advanced to greet him with outstretched hand and a shy, embarrassed smile. There was about her a charming combination of frankness and shyness which quite robbed the friendliness of her glance, her smile and her hand shake of a faint note of boldness.

Elmer, who was hypersensitive to direct impressions, noted all this and told himself it was, perhaps, characteristic of lady correspondents. He had gathered an impression from his reading that all writers were a bit jolly, unconventional and homespun.

"So glad to meet you, Mr. Clarke," the girl announced. Her deep, melodious tones seemed to reverberate in the room and challenge the dying voice of the last note she had struck on Elmer's old piano. "I am Doris Gatewood."

Elmer bowed over the outstretched hand. "Jasper gave me your card, Miss Gatewood; consequently I can guess the reason for your call. Please be seated." He indicated a horsehair sofa and sat down opposite. "I'm sorry you've had to wait so long for me."

"Oh, I haven't been a bit lonely, Mr. Clarke. I've been playing with your fox terrier, and when he ran away I played the piano. I found some books and I've been reading also."

"You did quite right to make yourself at home, Miss Gatewood."

"You're very kind. By the way, Mr. Clarke, if you'll forgive me for mentioning it, your piano has a wonderful tone, but it needs tuning."

"I wasn't aware of that. Nobody has opened the old ruin since my mother passed away over five years ago."

"And you live quite alone?"

He nodded, the while he appraised her with the impersonal air of good breeding which was his natural heritage. He decided she was the most shining young woman he had ever seen. In fact, she was more beautiful than Nellie Critchlow—and Elmer had thought that an impossibility for any woman.

Perhaps, he told himself, that was due to the undeniable "air" of her more than to superiority of sheer physical beauty. Nellie, too, had an air, but it was natural, while Miss Gatewood appeared to have acquired hers. She was dressed in a manner which Elmer could not have described; like all of his sex all he knew about women's clothes was that they looked stunning or indifferent. Miss Gatewood's wardrobe then and there in evidence was neither stunning nor indifferent, and Elmer found it appeared to describe her and her clothes. She was well groomed.

Her chic little hat—it was a Paris model—gave her a saucy air and flitted her face. Her hair was bobbed and as black and glossy as a raven's wing. Her skin was the kind one loves to touch, but whether her glow was due to health or to the sun, he challenged.

"Oh, all about the fortune that's been left you by the uncle you've never seen? I'm ordered to interview you and get a snappy story on how it feels to be a poor man today and a millionaire tomorrow. I'd like to have some expression from you as to your ideas on the obligations of wealth. Does money make for great happiness, or vice versa? What do you expect to do with your money and when? Are you going to marry the one girl who has been waiting for you—or is there one girl?"

"That's out," he reminded her. "It's nobody's business whether there's one girl or two or a dozen—and if there were I should not discuss them."

"Tipped a foul that time," Miss Gatewood went on, flushing prettily. "Still, one never can tell whether the patient will talk on that subject or not, so usually we ask to find out. Pardon. I'll try to stick to my knitting hereafter. Now, then—Mr. Clarke, what is your main Friday cooking for dinner?"

"It smells like corned beef and cabbage to me. This is Thursday, isn't it?"

Miss Gatewood nodded brightly. "And potatoes boiled with their jackets on?" she queried with eager curiosity. He nodded. "Then you're as plain as I am," she challenged. "I adore plain food and I'm famished."

To himself Elmer said: "I suppose I'll be a dog if I don't invite her to eat some of it. Confound it, I think she expects to be invited, or wants to be. That's just like these hohemian newspaper women." He turned to his visitor. "I should like very much to invite you to dinner, Miss Gatewood, but—"

"I'd adore to come," she interrupted before he could cloak his invitation with more buts. "During dinner we can have a nice, long, comfortable interview."

"Well, Miss Gatewood, if you can manage without a chaperon, I can. I'm sure you're not at all a dangerous person, Mr. Clarke."

"I am sure you are," Elmer came back to her, just like that. She blushed at the compliment and proved herself equally fast by retorting: "I see you are not a stranger to risks, Mr. Clarke. I had two brothers (TO BE CONTINUED.)"

AT THE MOVIES

The boys who went over to France during the late war, not only got a fairly comprehensive knowledge of European geography, manners and customs, but incidentally learned a few brand new things about their own country. East met West in the trenches and learned to know each other's habits and country. Then too, boys from the same section of the States who had never met before were thrown into close contact and because of their common interest, developed into staunch "buddies."

An interesting example of such a friendship is depicted in "Men Without Law," a "western" starring the popular Buck Jones, scheduled to come to the Palace theatre for a two days' run beginning Saturday. The chance meeting of Buck Healy and Manuel Del Rey who hail from the same section of the country gives them a common basis for a friendship. They become loyal "buddies." The outcome of this friendship is a series of thrilling adventures, all depicted in the film.

The war background makes this Buck Jones feature unusual. However, Buck still performs the riding stunts that have made him famous and his daredevil jumps and falls in this film are particularly thrilling.

PLANT PERENNIALS FOR PERMANENT BEAUTY WITH LITTLE WORK

By GODFREY McDONALD,
Manager Charlevoix County Nursery

Happily for most of us, perennials add a permanent note of gayety and color to the outdoor living room, and yet require little effort and attention to insure their successful growth. Perennials might well be called the "Busy Man's Flower," for a colorful border once worked out and planted becomes a permanent feature, returning year after year, and it saves the effort involved in arranging temporary plantings each year.

Spring is the ideal time to plant most perennials, with the possible exception of those which come into bloom in the very earliest weeks of spring.

Perennials will grow in almost any location, but thought should be given to the proper position of varieties. For instance, one cannot expect to grow water-side plants in a dry spot upon a hill, nor sun-loving perennials to thrive in the shade. Nature is perhaps the best guide in this, so around a creek or a pond, for instance, we may plant Hemerocallis, Irises, Liatris, Funkia or Anemone.

In a sunny border where the soil is rich and no extremes of moisture conditions are encountered, one may plant to good advantage the odd favorites, such as Phlox, Larkspur, Coropsis, Shasta Daisy, Columbine, Canterbury Bells and Foxglove.

There are so many attractive flowers to choose from that one is very apt to forget the appearance of unity in the garden and select too many varieties to be used.

The distance between the plants is a very important consideration as on this often depends the size of the order. A perennial is a comparatively slow-growing subject which develops its greatest beauty frequently after a period of years. Those varieties such as Phlox, Bleeding Heart, German Iris, Delphinium and Peony, which have great permanence and need quite a little room, should be planted with sufficient space between to allow for their later development. During the first year the bare places that would thus occur may be devoted to annuals or bulbs. The proper distance apart then really depends upon the permanency of the plant and the size which it will attain when fully developed. Thus some very upright and narrow perennials will require little ground space and may be planted close together, while the bushy spreading kind may sometimes need three feet of space between them for proper development.

If you start your perennial plantings with young, vigorous plants—and after all, they are the very best ones for a new border—and then give them the proper soil in which to grow, encouraging them with the proper treatment, you may expect successful results right from the first year.

Why deny yourself another year of garden color and glorious bloom? Complete your plans now for perennial borders to be planted this spring, for once they are established they will delight you anew each year with their lovely array of beautiful blooms.

United States Civics Class Has Interesting Project

The Civics class is planning for the rest of this week a little variation from the regular form of study. The class will consist of the House of Representatives. A bill is to be introduced and discussed in the same manner as it is done in the regular House of Representatives at Washington. The class has divided into Democrats and Republicans. Those on the Republican side are: Mary Simmons, Lola Fessenden, Edith Hamlin, Edith Hewitt, Agnes Brown, Doris Gleason, Esther Case, Joseph Stutzman, Olie Neilson, Hilda Ogden, Wallace Saunders, Clifford Struthers, Robert McCall, Eloise Tillotson, Victor Smith, Glenn Heise, Richard McCann, Annabelle Cunningham and Lillian Manley. A few of these desired to be of the Progressive Party, but they were persuaded to join the Republican group.

On the Democrat party are: Gwendolyn Miller, Marjorie Manley, Bob Foster, Pat Moran, Marion McKee, Lee Shanton and Franklin Ross. Besides the Republican and Democrats there is a Socialistic party, consisting of Bill Brown, Charles Cellner, Dixon Warner, Carol Arvilla, Bill Clark, Angie Scott and Dorothy Struthers.

Charles Zeitler sent in his slip for the Labor party.

The Bill is as follows:
"An Act to authorize the Appropriations for building new or improving Old Roads in Michigan." This is being prepared by Lola Fessenden and Charles Cellner, who will present copies to each member of the class.

Bill Novak, who is Speaker of the House, has appointed the following committees:

Organization Committee—This is composed of three members, Robert McNell, Richard McCann and Victor Smith. The duty of this committee is to arrange for the seating of the members with reference to the clerk, speaker and other officials.

The Procedure Committee.—The members of this committee are Eloise Tillotson, Gwendolyn Miller and Marjorie Manley. Their duty is to give the opening information and to outline the manner in which the bill is to be introduced.

The work, we are sure, will prove very interesting and will give a much clearer conception of the work of the House of Representatives at Washington, D.C.

C. J. H. S. Goes Sleigh Riding

Members of the seventh and eighth grades held their annual sleigh rides Friday and Saturday evenings of last week. School yells and songs entertained the folks, while enjoying an hour and a half of sleighing along snow covered streets.

Chilliness of hands and feet made the return trip to the school a welcome one. While the classes were absent mothers had prepared lunch consisting of cocoa, sandwiches, cake, and fruit salad.

Valentine boxes were opened after refreshments had been served. Class officers distributed the tokens of friendship.

Campfire Girls
Wednesday evening the campfire girls held a Valentine party in the junior high building. The guests were Miss French and Miss Bodfish. They had a valentine box and appropriate games were played and delicious refreshments were served.

General Science
The general science classes have been laying particular stress upon the subjects of "Corrosion and Sedimentation," which pertains to the causes of the floods of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. They will probably be able to secure interesting material on these subjects from the newspapers as it is about this time of the year when these rivers overflow.

Junior High Defeats East Jordan
The C. J. H. S. basketball team broke into the winning column by a 17-16 victory over the East Jordan Junior outfit. There were times during the game when Charlevoix led by five points, but the lead was usually lessened by a Jordan spurt. Foster with seven points led the scoring chiefly by means of the free throw line.

Latin II
As a special assignment, the Latin II classes are now making maps of ancient Gaul which will show the location of all the tribes, towns, rivers, etc., which we will meet in reading Cæsar.

Last week Charlevoix high school was very fortunate in hearing two very good speakers. Tuesday morning Professor Whitehead, Dean of Albion college, spoke on the major and minor thing in life, showing us that failure in school life was due to spending too much time on the minor things. On Thursday morning the junior high joined up and we listened to Rev. Parker, who gave a very interesting talk on Abraham Lincoln, and the power of taking the handles of the plow and going through the furrows of life.

POLAR BEARS TRIM TRAVERSE IN FINAL GAME

Sloan & Co. Won Prelim — Allie Moore Put on Great Skating Act

Charlevoix Polar Bears closed their home schedule last Thursday evening on the local court with a 19 to 17 victory over Traverse City Eagles.

While the Polar Bears led from the start, Traverse City's attack gained sufficient strength in the final period to come within a narrow margin of tying the count.

Two teams of local business men put on a spirited preliminary game. Sloan & Company, composed of R. F. Sloan, Capt. F. J. Fessenden, "Bill" Parmelee, and Don Campbell, won by a 7 to 3 score from Wallace & Company, composed of Capt. "Bill" Wallace, Rollic Williams, Joe Foster and Engle VanAllsburg. The winning side were the best sprinters. Two sets of referees were necessary. Clair Webster and Charles Marshall, who first took over the task, became winded about midway in the contest. They turned the job over to Drs. Armstrong and Winder, who survived to the finish.

In a feature attraction between games, Allie Moore, one-time world champion roller skater, gave an exhibition. Allie put on an interpretation of a Dutchman learning to skate. His antics were too comical for words. When the act progressed beyond the amateur stage, Allie waltzed, two-stepped to band accompaniment and skated with the grace of former days. He received a big hand.

POLAR BEARS EXONERATE SCHOOL BOARD

Hasten to Correct Rumors in Circulation Regarding Relations

To correct erroneous reports regarding relations between the Charlevoix Polar Bear basketball team and the board of education, the following statement has been issued by G. B. Todd, manager of the Polar Bears:

"On behalf of the Polar Bear basketball team, I wish to announce that the Charlevoix board of education have helped us in every way possible and have not, as has been rumored, raised the rental of the gymnasium or in any other way curtailed our activities.

"As announced on our bills for the Traverse City game last Thursday, the Polar Bears are not playing any more games at home the balance of this year, unless some especially attractive game of more than usual interest to the fans should be secured.

"This year our receipts have only permitted our paying the guarantees of visiting teams, buying new equipment needed, paying miscellaneous expenses and paying $30.00 to the board of education for gymnasium rental. The latter being a small amount as compared with 1927, 1928, and 1929 when we were able to turn over to the board of education $100.00, 152.94 and $137.58 respectively.

G. B. Todd."

METHODIST NOTES

The Lenten season is now with us and is rich with possibilities for personal culture. About all the great souls you know have had their periods of "darkness" to think through their moral and spiritual problems and needs. Jesus did this in the wilderness experience. It was for him more than a series of temptations, it was the formulation of a life program. This will be our subject on Sunday morning at 10:30. "Jesus Thinks His Way Through."

Church school meets at 12 noon. Epworth League is at 6 p. m. and the members are to present a "World's Hall of Fame." Who are the great men and women of the world?

At 5 p. m. the Queen Esther and Home Guards will present a pageant, "The Way of the Cross." It will be a fit theme for this first Sunday in Lent, and these presentations of youth are always interesting. In addition there will be a series of picture slides on "The Footsteps of Columbus."

This Thursday the Literary club will be entertained by Mrs. G. Gindos on Bridge street. Time, 2:30.

Mid-week service is at 7 p. m. prompt, on Thursday. We shall be through for the Lyceum lecture at 8 p. m.

FAIR PROPOSITION GIVEN AT AIRING

DISCUSSION HELD THURSDAY EVENING AT BOYNE CITY

Trend of Opinion Against Fair, Itself Rather Than Directors—Premiums Due Will Be Paid

Every city, and many Charlevoix county townships were represented at a meeting of the Boyne City Progressive Club at the Wolverine Hotel, Boyne City, Tuesday evening.

Aside from business matters pertaining to the Club, the county fair proposition was the main topic of discussion.

Henry Korthase, president of the Fair Association, opened the discussion. He related in detail conduct of the annual exhibit from his own relations as patron, director and officer. In a mild, straight-forward manner, Mr. Korthase refuted unjust charges which had been brought against members of the Fair Association. He punctuated his remarks with examples from personal experiences to show how treacherous, unfair and embarrassing untrue criticism can be made.

Frank F. Bird, secretary of the association, read the auditors' report and added brief remarks. Dr. C. J. Winder, Fenton R. Bulow and Mr. Kenney of East Jordan, spoke in favor of continuance of the Fair.

Harry A. Craig of Charlevoix, chairman of the county board of supervisors, talked at length on the topic, stressing the fact that refusal of supervisors to make the annual appropriation to the Fair was not because of conduct of its directors, but rather for the reason that the exhibition had taken on more of an entertainment aspect instead of an agricultural display as it was originally intended.

Supervisor Charles Murphy of South Arm township, openly attacked gambling concessions, side shows and other features of the mid-way, stressing the fact that from an educational standpoint for children, they were completely out of order.

Supervisor William J. Pearson of Boyne Falls, opened the fireworks. He substantiated Messrs. Craig and Murphy on their stand in regards Fair attractions. Mr. Pearson elited the state's attitude against continued appropriations to county fairs, also the general trend throughout the state toward their abolishment. He branded them as a waste of public funds, a thing of the past and no good. Mr. Pearson made it plain to the audience that his attitude on the matter was not brought about because of the conduct of fair officials and directors—that his attack was against the fair itself.

Mr. Pearson substantiated The Courier's stand that county supervisors should make an appropriation of $2,000 to cover unpaid premiums now due, and promised his support in bringing about the appropriation. He is not, however, in favor of further use of county money to carry on a fair.

Mr. Pearson's verbal promise that outstanding premiums will be paid, and an appropriation made for that purpose, satisfies The Courier's stand on the proposition. Whether the fair is to be continued is a matter of public choice which may be worked out later. We might add, however, that inasmuch as our supervisors are bent upon paying taxes, there are other places where the knife may be used to good advantage.

GREENTOWN SCHOOL SELLS MOST SEALS

Beaver Islanders Win Honor—Loeb School Was Second

The Greentown school, taught by Vaun Ogden, sold more Christmas seals on the basis of enrollment than any other school in Charlevoix county, the Michigan Tuberculosis Association announces, and will receive in reward an attractive set of six colored Indian health posters. The prize for the second best county sale, consisting of the health game "Dod-jum," was won by the Loeb school, taught by Beatrice Straw.

According to the report of the tuberculosis association a total of 10 one-room and two-room schools in the county won prizes for seals sold in the December, 1930, sale. The prizes included two first aid kits, two "balls of fun," two "Healthyland" books, and four sets of health posters.

$6,476.71 worth of Christmas seals were sold by pupils of one and two-room schools in the 60 Michigan counties to which seals are sent directly from the office of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. This sum represents a substantial part of the state Christmas seal fund, which gains its principal volume from seals sold through the mail and through local chairmen.

SPRING PRIMARY ELECTION MONDAY

JUSTICE AND 2ND WARD ALDER-MAN ONLY CITY CONTESTS

Race Between Palmer and Belding for School Commissioner Holds Limelight in County

Next Monday, March 2nd, comes the annual spring primary election. In direct contrast with a year ago, when there was a two-way scrap for mayor, three candidates for treasurer, two each for justice of the peace and park commission, besides contests for alderman and supervisor in every ward, this year's menu has a rather flat appearance.

In the third ward, Jess Smith, incumbent, opposes David J. Eckinger for alderman. On the city ticket, Horace R. Fowler and J. R. Cooper seek the office of justice of the peace. Otherwise the battle front is serene. In a county-wide contest, William C. Palmer, incumbent, is opposed by Archie C. Belding for the office of school commissioner.

Following is the line-up:

City Ticket
For Mayor—Arthur Bergeon.
City Clerk—Ray S. Hamilton.
City Treasurer—Robert E. Rife.

EAST JORDAN TOSS- ERS HERE FRIDAY

GAME WILL CLOSE SCHEDULE FOR LOCAL QUINTET

Three Games Listed With First Pre-lim at 6 o'Clock—Proceeds to Charlevoix Hospital

Charlevoix high school will close one of its most successful basketball seasons in recent years on the local court Friday night.

Up to the present time, Coach Kipke's tossers have won nine, tied one and lost one game. Opposition has probably been the closest this region has ever witnessed between class C teams. At no time has there been but little to choose from between Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, Boyne City and East Jordan quintets. Games have been won by small margins, and all of the first three schools mentioned have made easy work of taking the region's class B schools into camp. Boyne trimmed Harbor, Charlevoix trimmed Boyne and then Harbor turned around and handed Charlevoix a drubbing.

East Jordan's scrappy teams will furnish Charlevoix opposition Friday night. Three games are scheduled, with junior high, reserves and regulars getting into action. The first game starts at 6 o'clock.

When these three teams tangled recently on East Jordan's court, Charlevoix won a triple victory. It was by close margins, however, and Charlevoix's regulars were hard pressed to eke out a 20 to 16 decision after trailing nearly the entire game. Scores of the other two games were also close. Last Friday night East Jordan showed strength by holding Boyne City to a 16 to 15 count on Boyne's court. Charlevoix will have to play ball to finish their conference schedule without another defeat, and fans can be sure of a trio of close contests.

Charity will come in for a part of the proceeds from Friday night's games. Stewart Coleman, athletic director, has announced that proceeds above expenses will be given to the Charlevoix hospital. This is just another reason why a packed house should see the games.

His shanty was suspiciously inshore from the other fishermen's and the wardens who happened by investigated. It is said that he put up a fight to prevent the wardens from obtaining the evidence at the time. He was fined $21.65 for his sport.

STUDY CLUBS MET AT JOINT SESSION

PLEASANT AFFAIR MONDAY AT FAULKNER RESIDENCE

Address by Raymond Faulkner on Landscape Architecture Greatly Enjoyed—Followed by Tea

The Shakespeare and Dickens clubs held a joint meeting at the Faulkner home on Petoskey avenue Monday afternoon, the event being planned by the program committees of the clubs to enable the members to listen to an address by Raymond Faulkner on landscape architecture.

Mr. Faulkner, having chosen this as his profession, has spent the greater part of the year elapsing since he graduated from Harvard University, traveling in foreign countries making an intensive study of landscape gardening, and therefore was able to talk intelligently and authoritatively on this subject.

Opening his talk with a quotation from Huxley, Mr. Faulkner touched briefly on the principles, plan, and history of landscapes and gardens before describing at length the gardens of Italy, France, England, Spain and America. He gave a very vivid impression of the colorful foreign gardens, illustrating certain points with pictures and photos. By an excellent choice of words and a thorough knowledge of his subject, his listeners gained a graphic idea of the principles set forth, and withal the comparisons used were so commonplace, as to keep the subject well within reach of the layman.

Following the address of the afternoon, tea was served by the committee, with Mrs. Mary Shanahan, president of the Shakespeare club, and Mrs. Julia Campbell, president of the Dickens club, presiding. The table was covered with a cloth made of raw silk, dull yellow in color, brought from France by Mr. Faulkner. A small embroidered centerpiece of blue Morocco from Algiers, held a howl of forsythia in bloom. Spanish tile and Roman brass candlesticks completed the table decorations. The sideboard was graced with pewter and rare china, also brought from Europe by Mr. Faulkner.

Both clubs unanimously expressed their appreciation to Mr. Faulkner for affording them a very pleasant and profitable afternoon.

CHARLEVOIX DEBAT- ERS LOST TO ONAWAY

Visiting Affirmative Team Given Unanimous Decision

Debating the negative side of the chain store question, Charlevoix high school's negative team dropped a unanimous decision to Onaway at the gymnasium last Wednesday evening.

The contest was the initial debate of the elimination series sponsored by the Michigan High School Debating League. Charlevoix was represented by Dorothy Staley, Virginia Nickerson and Marjorie Manley. On the Onaway team were Miss Fisk, Miss McMillan and Carlton Lydare. The judges were Messrs. Rodgers and Spittler of Petoskey, and Musser of Mancelona.

There was a wide variance of opinion in regard to the winning side, regardless of a unanimous decision by the three judges.

FORMER STUDENT TAKEN BY DEATH

ROY KELDERHOUSE SUCCEMBED
THURSDAY AT TRAVERSE CITY

Was Graduate of Charlevoix High School, Class of 1930—Active in All Athletics

Relatives and many friends of Roy Kelderhouse, former Charlevoix high school student, were shocked by his sudden death in Munson-Decker hospital, Traverse City, at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, February 19th.

Roy was attending county normal at Northport when taken suddenly ill. He was transferred to the Traverse City hospital and died four days later. Cause of death was acute obstructive jaundice.

Roy was born at Port Oneida, September 9, 1910. Most of his life was spent there with his parents. He attended Glen Harbor high school during his freshman year, and the remaining three at Charlevoix, where he graduated with the class of 1930. He was a member of the local high school football team and was captain his senior year. He was also active in other branches of athletics. During his stay in Charlevoix, he resided with Mr. and Mrs. George Kelderhouse.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kelderhouse, Port Oneida; a brother, Roland, of Sleeping Bear Point; three sisters, Mrs. Florence Egeler, Glenn Harbor; Mrs. Roy Myers and Myrtle Kelderhouse of Charlevoix.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at Port Oneida, with Rev. Vadder of Northport Congregational church, officiating. Interment was at Port Oneida, where three brothers and a sister are buried.

Attending the funeral from Charlevoix were Mr. and Mrs. George Kelderhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Myers, and a group of former classmates from Charlevoix high school.

ATTENTION IS CALLED TO RED CROSS DRIVE

Charlevoix Short of Quota As Campaign Nears Conclusion

Attention of Charlevoix citizens is again called to the Red Cross drive for funds to aid drouth sufferers in stricken districts throughout the country.

Charlevoix's share of the $10,000,000 drive is $100 of a total of $300 for the county. Although the campaign has been under way for several weeks, this city is far behind its quota. According to Mrs. Adah Beeman, roll call chairman for this city, the drive will close this week. East Jordan and Boyne City have practically met their quotas, and Charlevoix citizens are urged to lend their support toward putting this city "over the top" as in former campaigns.

Contributions may be left with A. F. Bridge, treasurer, at the Charlevoix County Bank.

LOCAL CAGERS DE- FEATED BY HARBOR

VISITOR GRABBED 18 TO 8 VER-DICT FRIDAY NIGHT

Out-Played Charlevoix in Every Department—Reserve Teams Fought to Tie in Overtime Session

Charlevoix high school suffered its first defeat of the 1930-31 basketball season on the local court last Friday night. Before the largest crowd ever assembled here outside of a tournament, Harbor Springs out-played the local cagers to win a 16 to 8 verdict.

In a previous meeting at Harbor Springs, the two teams fought through three overtime periods to an 8 to 8 tie, and to win Friday night's contest was of paramount importance to both squads. By its victory, Harbor gained a tie for first place in the Tip of Michigan class C conference. A victory for Charlevoix would have given them undisputed possession of the conference crown.

The main contest following a thrilling preliminary, in which Charlevoix and Harbor Springs reserves battled through four periods and an extra session to a 9 to 9 tie, Charlevoix reserves put up the best brand of basketball they had shown this year in holding the heavier visiting aggregation. During the last two periods the score alternated several times before becoming tied.

In the main contest, Harbor's free toss was the only score in the first period. This session was a great defensive battle, with both teams playing cautiously and missing frequent chances.

Harbor's speedy attack began functioning in the second quarter. Hill, their lanky forward, broke through for two goals and dropped through a pair of free tosses for 6 points, putting his team in the lead 7 to 2 at the half. Charlevoix's score came on McSauby's goal.

Charlevoix's defense tightened in the third period, but so did Harbor's. The visitors scored a goal and the Kipke men a free toss, giving Harbor a 9 to 3 advantage as the quarter ended. Guarding was close and play fast on both sides, resulting in frequent misses.

A determined drive in the fourth period netted Charlevoix 2 goals and a free throw, but while they were speeding up, Harbor took advantage of loop holes in their defense to break through for 3 goals and a gift shot, thus increasing their lead to other two points.

Hill, Harbor forward, was the main cause of Charlevoix's downfall. This flashy player, who broke through repeatedly for close shots, made 12 of his team's 16 points. McSauby kept Bradley, Harbor center, well covered, holding him to 3 points. Lanctot scored a free toss for Harbor.

For Charlevoix, McSauby led with 2 goals. Ane had one and Novnk a pair of free throws. The game was clean and well handled by John Fernandez of Traverse City.

Friday night's game provided a vivid contrast in form. Charlevoix's scoring efforts were as erroneous against Harbor as they were accurate against Traverse City last Tuesday night. They missed 7 out of 9 chances from the foul line, and many shots for goals were hurried and wide, while others just seemed to refuse to go through.

FIREMEN'S DANCE ENJOYED BY MANY

Crowd from This and Surrounding Towns Attended Affair

The annual firemen's masquerade dance, sponsored this year jointly by the Charlevoix fire department and American Legion, was an enjoyable event at the school gymnasium Monday evening.

In the neighborhood of forty couples were in costumes. Prizes for the best costumes were awarded Miss Frances Marshall and Joe Williams. Awards for the most comic went to Swain Smith and "Dean" Davenport, the former the feminine, and the latter the masculine member of a negro couple.

The gymnasium was packed with couples from this and nearby towns, and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

AT THE MOVIES

Real Georgia Town Built in Hollywood for Billie Dove

A village typical of the average small community in Georgia was constructed at Hollywood, Calif., at the studios of First National Pictures, for "The Other Tomorrow," Billie Dove's newest picture, which opens Saturday and Sunday at the Palace theatre.

A film architect spent two weeks traveling through the Southern state and drawing plans of the houses and streets of small towns. Back at the studio, he had a village set made that was the "average" of those he had seen, from the village church to the main street.

And, as in many a town below the Mason-Dixon line, the film plot unfolds. There is the girl whose beauty wins the love and jealousy of many men, and whose pride will not permit her to "make up" after a quarrel with her sweetheart. There are the village gossips. There is the sheriff who prevents a murder. And there is the feud between two men which supplies much excitement to the plot. "The Other Tomorrow" is one of the most dramatic vehicles beautiful Billie Dove has ever had. It is her first role as a Southern girl, and her fifth talking picture.

Grant Withers appears in the featured male lead, with Kenneth Thomson, Frank Sheridan, Otto Hoffman, William Grainger and Scott Seaton in the supporting cast. Fred Myton wrote the screen version and James Starr the dialogue.

Cash in advance is a wonderful policy for the buyer, but not such a success for would-be sellers.

FORD COMFORT

Every new Ford is equipped with four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers

ONE of the fine things about driving the new Ford is the way it takes you over the miles without strain or fatigue. No matter how long the trip, you know it will bring you safely, quickly, comfortably to the journey's end.

The seats are generously wide, deeply cushioned and carefully designed to conform to the curves of the body. Every new Ford has specially designed springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. These work both ways — up and down. They absorb the force of road shocks and also provide a cushion against the rebound of the springs.

Other features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, extensive use of fine steel forgings, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, Rustless Steel and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

In addition, you save many dollars because of the low first cost of the new Ford, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

LOW PRICES OF FORD CARS $430 TO $630

P. O. B. Detroit, plus freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra at small cost. You can purchase a Ford on economical terms through the Authorized Ford Finance Plans of the Universal Credit Company.

Angeles, it was now pro-Nellie to the last man and woman. Elmer had been regarded, the moment news of his inheritance had become known, as first prize, won by Miss Nellie Cathcart. Now, to have a stranger beat Nellie out by a whisker in the last jump, as it were—to employ racing parlance—set the town agog with excitement.

Elmer arrived in Pilarcitos too late in the afternoon to take Nellie to luncheon, and as he was due that night to conduct an initiation of a class of thirty neophytes into the local lodge of the Woodmen of the World, he had no opportunity of seeing her until noon of the following day. By that time, however, he had listened to enough lucid badinage and implausible queries regarding his gallantry in Los Angeles to realize that Nellie Cathcart must have listened to twice as much.

Consequently he was somewhat troubled of soul as he drew up in front of the bank and waited for Nellie to emerge.

She came, flashing him a radiant smile of welcome from the top step, where she paused to make deliberate appraisal of the new millionaire, his chauffeur and his new car. Elmer stepped out, opened the tonneau door and waved her in.

"Oh, boy!" Nellie murmured breathlessly and popped in. "Elmer, darling, it's gorgeous—so gorgeous that I'm grateful to be the second girl to ride in it first."

Nellie couldn't help thrusting that one home—and it went home, too. Elmer flushed and looked as gully as a sheep-killing dog as he climbed in beside her. Well, there was but one thing to do and that was to tell the truth, slame the devil and let the chips fall where they might.

"Well, I'll tell you all about her—" he began, but Nellie raised a warning finger.

"Don't, Elmer! It isn't necessary. You do not have to. I know you just happened to be riding along, you met her, she was waiting, she recognized you and you just had to be decent and give her a lift."

"Well, have it your own way," he replied gloomily but bravely. "Only that wasn't the way. You see, I'd met her before. She's a newspaper correspondent and she came up here to get a story from me on how it feels to be a poor man one day and a millionaire the next. She's a very charming girl and her name is Doris Gatewood. She's a correspondent for the American Weekly of New York. I happened to tell her I was going to Los Angeles to buy this car and she suggested that if I would telephone her she'd let me read her story before she mailed it east. I suppose she didn't want to write anything to which I might object."

"Oh," said Nellie. "Did she write a nice, interesting story about you, Elmer?"

"I'll be hanged if I know," he confessed. "We forgot to look at it."

"Just as well you forgot, Elmer. She couldn't write a snappy, interesting story anyhow. She's as spurious as a lead dollar."

"Now, how can you say such a thing about a girl you have never met?" Elmer challenged.

"Saw you walking down to the depot with her the night she was in Pilarcitos. Heard a fragment of her conversation. Heard her laugh. Noted her general make-up. That's all, but that's enough for little Nellie Cathcart."

"Well, I'll admit she isn't in your class, Nellie, but nevertheless I think she's charming. She's a bully company—so much so that I double-crossed you and gave her the first ride—after I'd promised you."

Nellie's gay, gurgling little laugh set him at his ease. "Now that I've made you suffer, dear, you may pick yourself up and dust yourself off. I'm not miffed at you, but I could kill a number of people in this town today."

"So could I. I wish I hadn't jumped into that campaign for high school trustee. You're all that keeps me from leaving this town and never coming back. I hope I get whipped to a frazzle in that trustee fight—honestly, I do."

Nellie's hand came over and rested on his. "You go in and win," she commanded. "The day I catch you dragging your tail in this community is the day you and I are going to have our first real disagreement. Leave Pilarcitos as often as you like and have a good time while you are away, but come back to Los Angeles! When I begin to demand a detailed report on your doings it will be time for you to commence worrying."

"I don't think I could stand that," he confessed soberly.

Nellie laughed. "No man of a lit mind. Where are you taking for luncheon?"

"Out to Joe Angelotti's."

"Well, Elmer," Nellie announced

when they found themselves heated, "I've sold your house and lot on the terms you named. If you'll drop in at the bank after luncheon and sign the deed, I'll attest it and the deal will be closed in twenty-four hours."

"Three cheers!" said Elmer. "Nellie, you're a smart girl. When does the new owner desire to take possession of my house?"

"Immediately."

"O. K. I'll take a suite at the hotel."

"Atta boy!" said Nellie. "Now let's talk about your campaign for high school trustee and organize that. I've been checking off votes, trying to estimate your probable strength, and it seems to me you have a fight on your hands."

"Watch my smoke," said Elmer

Clark.

Because he was no easy to handle Nellie favored him with a loving look and with difficulty repressed an impulse to lean across the table and kiss him. Dear, blind, straightforward, straight-thinking Elmer! All she had to do to hold him in line, was to show him a fight and then send him into it. He had been fighting and winning since his twelfth birthday—and it had never been an easy fight. His path had always been beset with obstacles, which he had successfully hurdled, but far down that path Nellie could discern one obstacle that must send him crashing to the ground.

Yes, nothing but death before he should reach that obstacle could save Elmer Clark from having his nose rubbed in the dirt and Nellie had a vast curiosity to see how this man, who had tasted victory, would assimilate defeat, chagrin, sneers, gibes and the varied cruelties of a world which tramples joyously over the fellow who goes down in the fight. Standing alone, in a stricken field, would Elmer, defeated, acknowledge defeat?

"Why, Nellie, what are you crying about?" he demanded suddenly.

Nellie's sweet mouth trembled pitifully. "I—I can't tell you, Elmer. I'm just—a-silly, that's all. I—I haven't any spunk. Please forgive me—darling."

Elmer was delighted. Most men are when they think they have observed unfathomable evidence that the girl they love, but aren't quite certain of, evinces signs of jealousy. Poor Elmer thought she was jealous of Doris.

CHAPTER IX

That night Nellie sent a telegram to the editor of the American Weekly in New York, asking if their Los Angeles staff correspondent was Miss Doris Gatewood, and giving her address, which in the form of an anonymous letter had reached her that morning. She requested an answer collect.

She had it early next morning. "I thought so," Nellie soliloquized. "Only another buzzard gathering for the feast. Well, Elmer might as well learn about women from her. I wonder if she's on an alimony bond or just a plain swindler. Well, a letter to the chief of police of Los Angeles, on the bank stationery, will receive prompt attention."

Nellie wrote the letter. Three days later she had her answer. It ran as follows:

"Dear Miss Cathcart:

"In response to your interesting letter of recent date:

"The circumstances under which the lady in question made the sequentance of your friend appeared to me to present ample ground for suspicion—particularly in view of the fact that the gentleman has a considerable fortune."

"I therefore sent one of my most reliable men to investigate. He reports that the house at the address you name is inhabited by a notorious hunk stealer, known to the police all over the country as Colorado Charlie. There is a young woman living there with him who passes as his sister, but who is an accomplice of his. She has a police record as the most accomplished come-on in the business, and is undoubtedly the person in whom you refer."

"We will keep them under surveillance. Meanwhile, if you should have any further information of importance to communicate to us, we shall be glad to co-operate with you."

"In closing, may I suggest that you do nothing to implicate the young man that he is playing with fire! If we give this half more rope we may be enabled to get him into the corral and earmark him."

"Very truly yours,

"J. Fitzgerald.

"Acting Captain of Detectives."

When Elmer called at the bank to sign the deed to his house and lot, he noted that the deed ran to Nellie Cathcart, an unmarried woman. "Hello," he murmured. "I see the buyer in hiding his identity by using you as a dummy. Why all the secrecy, Nellie?"

"No secrecy at all," Nellie replied demurely. "I am the buyer."

FAVORABLE COMMENT

Editor Al Weber of the Cheboygan Observer, expresses the following opinions regarding Petoskey's winter sports carnival and the future prospects for winter sports in Northern Michigan:

"The many Cheboygan people attending the different winter sports events at Petoskey last week, all came home elated over what they saw over in our neighboring city. They were not only elated over the splendid reception they received at the hands of the Petoskey people but they were elated to see and understand just to what extent winter sports have taken hold of Petoskey, how well they are prepared to carry on the different kinds of winter sports, their remarkably splendid setting for such things, their hills, (big ones too,) their woody ravines, their many skating ponds, for all classes, their great toboggan slide and ski slide. Its proximity to the heart of the city, and the enthusiastic spirit of all of the people living in and around Petoskey. Over there the people dress the part of winter sports. Even the Catholic priest of the big church in that city does an attractive and colorful modern skating costume throughout and spends all of his spare time skating and participating in the other sports going on there in those hills and ravines. Girls, old and young, mothers, yes, and grandmothers are dressed in streaming, bright, colored skating, skiing and tobogganing costumes, and they are out in the open filling their lungs with the God given air so pure and sweet and healthful pouring in across Grand Traverse Bay, laying at the foot of all that winter sports playground and affording such a delightful view from those hills. Age shows no distinction on these fields, it only speeds or retards the exercises of those indulging in those sports. Petoskey and the surrounding community has gone winter sports wild, and it is all so well they have, because it will bring to upper Michigan a new avenue of attraction and interest. It will make northern Michigan as much sought after for its winter charm as it now holds its summer charm. It will cause upper Michigan people to find more pleasure in their own fields in winter time than in fields afar. The contagion will spread, and it will extend all over our part of the state and into the upper peninsula, Petoskey is pioneering in a most praiseworthy venture."

A subscriber of the Courier says that several years ago he hung his vest on the barnyard fence. Along came a calf and chewed up the vest. In the pocket of which was a gold watch. Last week the animal, now an old milch cow, was butchered for beef and the watch was found to be lodged in such a position between the cow's lungs that the cow's breathing kept the watch wound up and it had only lost for minutes in seven years.

If the Ford Motor company (who always poses as the friend of the poor man) would manufacture its tractors in America with American labor instead of making them in Europe with cheap European labor and then shipping them back here and have them enter the United States duty free, the soup lines in some cities would be shortened.

Six more railways, namely, the Missouri Pacific, M-K-T, Rock Island, Santa Fe, Cotton Belt and Kansas City Southern will put a two-cent fare in effect in the very near future. When all railroads get back on that basis we anticipate there will be less buses running and wearing out the highways the taxpayers have built.

If it takes eleven law-enforcement commissioners 19 months to disagree about Prohibition, how long will it take 130,000,000 citizens to reach a unanimous verdict?

The approach of spring moves us to remark, as we have remarked for the past eleven years, that it is a good time for Charlevoix freeholders to beautify their premises.

ROD LICENSE LAW IS BEFORE HOUSE

ANOTHER MEASURE ASKED TO PROVIDE MORE CASH

Changes Present Regulations Considerably—Two Other Important Bills In

The administration rod license bill, designed to finance fish propagation work of the department of conservation, was before the legislature Friday. Introduction of the measure was forecast some time ago when Governor Brucker eliminated the fish division appropriation from the general budget bill, explaining that the money for the work must come from sportsmen.

The measure was presented in the house by Rep. Robert T. Teagan of Detroit. Conservation officials estimate that it will yield approximately $400,000 annually and, with the appropriation for the fish division deducted, it will mean an annual increase in the department revenue of about $100,000.

Introduced, the bill provides that every resident of Michigan who fishes must obtain a license at a cost of $1. Provision is made for families who seek to cut expenses by catching fish for their own personal consumption. In that a family license also can be obtained for $1. This license will cover the head of the family, the wife and all children under 17. The non-resident license was set at $3. The provision for the rod fee was contained in the conservation department-backed bill which made minor changes in the fishing regulations of practically every lake and stream in the state. For the most part there are few changes made in the regulations, covering game fish and the regulations covering the catching and transportation of perch are lessened somewhat. Carp and other "pest" fish suffer under the provisions of the bill in that it provides for greater opportunity for spearing and fishing through the ice.

Two bills of interest to labor in the state were sponsored by Reps. Charles E. Bartlett of Detroit and Frank Wade of Flint. Bartlett's bill would remove the fee of $1 now charged for registration at state employment agencies while Wade's measure would give the department of labor the right to re-open compensation claims if the department does not believe proper settlement has been made.

CALLS TELEPHONE BOON FOR AMERICAN PEOPLE

Review of Reviews Editor Says Private Enterprise Has Made Service Efficient, Cheap

No other service of any kind in the world gives so much human satisfaction and so much sheer monetary value for the amount paid by the user as the telephone, declares Albert Shaw, Editor of the Review of Reviews Magazine.

In a recent issue of the magazine, under a caption, "Most Service for Least Money," Mr. Shaw declares that, while no other country is so well served by local and Long Distance exchanges as is the United States, the whole world is now rapidly learning to use the telephone. He adds:

"To make the telephone a government enterprise would be a calamity. The Government could not possibly render anything like the service we now have for the price we now pay to the great telephone organization. The important thing for the public is to encourage the dynamic quality of the telephone system, in order that there may be no check upon its further expansion. There is no single public convenience in America that affords so much help in emergencies, and saves so much time and trouble in the ordinary course of life, as the 'nickel-in-the-slot' telephone booth that one finds by the million throughout America."

"To maintain this service at the present rate of charges is to give the public something that rich and poor enjoy in common. Nothing else is purchasable for five cents that can for a moment be compared, in value of the intrinsic sort, with this five-cent telephone service."

FARM NOTES

Lambs Can Not Pick Up Enough to Become Fat

It's an old saying that sheep can live on what is wasted by other livestock on the farm. There may be some truth in this statement, but many farmers take it too literally, and depend on the sheep picking up enough to fatten themselves for the market. The profits will come slowly when sheep are fattened this way.

The half-fat lamb is not wanted by packers or consumers any more. They want lambs that weigh around 80 pounds, but they want them fat. Any farmer who follows the markets closely knows that lambs from 90 pounds down have been bringing the highest prices for some time.

Lambs grow and fatten at the same time, making more economical use of feed than older sheep by about 25 to 30 per cent, if the ration is right. Their growth is remarkably rapid; they require one-fourth more feed per 100 pounds live weight than steers, but pay higher returns for the feed. This growth factor makes protein the backbone of lamb feeding, since wool is practically pure protein.

Lambs receiving an average hay for roughage, should be given all the grain they will eat, corn, barley, and wheat having much the same value. Each, however, should be supplemented with linseed meal, the pea size being preferred by many sheep men. One pound of linseed meal a day should be fed for each three to five lambs unless clover or alfalfa hay is fed, then one pound will do for each five to six lambs.

The protein supplement is very important for sheep, as it produces a finish that catches the eye of the buyer. Experiments have shown an average difference of $1.25 per hundred in selling price, in favor of lambs fed a protein supplement.

Protein Needed by Brood Mares

Not more than 60 per cent of the mares that are bred each year produce living foals, according to a reliable estimate. The greater part of this enormous loss could be prevented by feeding balanced rations and by proper care and management of the mares.

The chief essentials of a ration for brood mares are plenty of protein and ample mineral matter, for they need more of these nutrients than do work horses. Furthermore, brood mares must receive a laxative ration.

Whenever brood mares are not fed legume hay as the main roughage it is important that a suitable protein-rich supplement be added to the ration. Linseed meal admirably meets these needs. If 1 to 1.5 pounds a head daily is supplied, says Prof. F. B. Morrison, of Cornell University.

The brood mare should be given plenty of exercise, and it is better if she is worked steadily but not too strenuously up until a week before foaling time.

METHODIST NOTES

The second Lenten Sunday, morning sermon will be at 10:30 on the topic of "Long Views of Life." Jesus used to climb mountains to rest and pray and get clearer visions of life. After looking over a large part of Colorado from the top of Pike's Peak I can better understand the thing we call perspective. Come and sit with us on Sunday while we project some things to the far horizons.

Church school is at 12:00 noon, with graded and international lessons.

The Epworth League will visit Boyne City league service and leave church not later than 5:15.

On Tuesday the Ladies' Aid will have pot-luck lunch with Mrs. R. O. Cram on Hurhut avenue at 1:30 p. m.

On Wednesday the Missionary Society will have Mrs. Martin Block as hostess. Time, 2:30.

On Thursday Mrs. W. F. Meyers on Antrim street will be hostess to the Literary club.

At 7:00 p. m. the pastor will conduct a devotional and discussion hour on "Changes in Religious Thought." The Men's Community club holds its regular session next Monday at 6:15 p. m. Several male quartet numbers and O. P. North will speak on "The Humor and Pathos of Teaching."

A brief official board meeting follows the meeting of the Men's club on Monday at 8:00 p. m.

NEED UNITED EFFORT TO AID AGRICULTURE

Dean Cox Points Out Responsibilities of Rural Groups

East Lansing, Feb. 11.—Organized groups of Michigan farmers are responsible for adding millions of dollars to the annual farm income of the state, according to J. F. Cox, dean of agricultural at Michigan State college, who says that the presence of such organizations will be one of the major factors in assisting agriculture to a better economic condition in the future.

Dean Cox points to the various crops and livestock associations as examples of organizations which have been successful in bringing about the adoption of better methods of production, and he cited the Grange, the Farm Bureau, and the Farmers Clubs as agencies which have aided in improving economical and social conditions.

The need for organized effort during the present difficult period was emphasized by Dean Cox and he pointed out that the 35 different associations meeting at the college during Farmers' week would have a leading part in securing such united effort. The local organizations now have the benefits of a national policy for the betterment of farm conditions under the direction of the federal farm board, the Dean said.

Dean Cox said that livestock organization members now can finance their feeding operations if they are affiliated with the livestock exchange, and the federal farm board has given financial assistance to fruit, potato, and grain organizations in Michigan.

SCHOOL NEWS

"The foolish man sees happiness in the distance, the wise man grows it under his feet."

History Department

The class in Modern History has been studying in an original manner. In taking up the outlying possessions of England they have been drawing maps in class. This not only makes a more definite picture in their minds, but, a more lasting one, we hope.

The Pep Club

The Pep club has been meeting more frequently of late, than usual. Their big object is to make our last pep meetings a big success, which they certainly have done, and to offer some real entertainment for the basketball fans during the halves of the big battles.

At present the Club is divided, the boys taking charge of the gym entertainment while the girls sponsor the pep meetings. Rivalry between the two sides has been riding high, but after our splendid pep meeting Friday morning and the clever act of the boys Friday night we'll have to call it a draw.

Debate

Wednesday evening Charlevoix's negative team, composed of Virginia Nickerson, Dorothy Staley and Marjorie Manley, met Onaway's affirmative team, composed of Miss Fisk, Miss McMillan and Carlton Lydare, at the Charlevoix gymnasium. The judges of the debate were Mr. Rodgers and Mr. Spittler of Petoskey, and Mr. Musser of Mancelona. The decision was a unanimous one for Onaway. Charlevoix, however, did excellently and the decision was a close one.

Junior High Civics

Students in the eighth grade have had one month during which they have studied Civics. This course is to be made more real by the preparation of vocational booklets. These booklets permit each student to do some mental roaming for himself since the ideas within it are to be secured from books, magazines, and conversations and then summarized in a theme of the student's own writing.

Oral Reports

Articles relating to current literature receive quite a review by eighth graders since each Monday finds one-half of each section prepared to report on some subject referring to present day affairs. As these reports are given before the classes, the students concerned get worthwhile practice in speaking orally before a group.

Junior High Basketball

C. J. H. S. basketball team will meet the East Jordan juniors Friday evening at 6 o'clock. One point proved to be the advantage in a previous game so a real battle is expected on the local floor.

Social Science

Miss Milner's seventh grade class has begun a class in Social Science. This is to be carried on in connection with the geography classes and is also related to the courses in history. At this age pupils have reached the stage when they are intensely interested in human beings not only as human beings, but also as authors and interpreters of social processes. Thus, historical studies centering upon notable men and women can have a strong influence.

U. S. House of Representatives
Further news as to the success of the plan for studying the House of Representatives in Civics class is now available.

On Monday, February 23, the meeting was called to order by speaker Novak. Roll was taken by the clerk, David Coulter, and a quorum was announced present. Mr.

Brown of Florida made a resolution that the Rules of the first congress be adopted for this congress.

Miss Lillian Manly introduced the Bill, "An Act to Authorize the Appropriation for the Building New or Improving the Old Roads in Michigan." It was numbered "H.R.-1" and referred to the appropriations committee. Glenn Heise made a motion that the House adjourn. It was seconded by Lee Shapton of Kansas and voted upon by the House. Ayes were 35 and nays were 0.

The bill was discussed by the appropriation committee and passed by that committee.

The following day the House was called to order by speaker Novak and roll taken as before. A quorum was not present because a number of Republicans were missing and the Democrats did not answer roll call. Speaker Novak to recruit the missing members. At the next roll call, in spite of the continued silence from Democrat quarters, a quorum was announced present. Miss Lola Fessenden made a motion that those in their chairs be counted present, which was seconded by Mr. McCall and passed by the House.

The House then became a committee of the whole with David Coulter presiding. The battle waged hot and fierce. The bill was dissected and put together again. Amendments were introduced by filibustering Democrats, such as the appropriating a sum of money to build dikes so that the water would not waste the shores of Florida, and passing a law that all links to be used for school purposes conform to the Pure Food Law. The last amendment was the bill concerning appropriations for air ports in Charlevoix, Burgess, Phelps, and Bay Shore was struck out after much argument.

Whether the bill is passed or not depends on Wednesday's session. There are twenty Republicans in the House who are for the bill, and if the Democrats and Socialists hang together there will be only eighteen against it. Regardless of the fate of Miss Manly's bill there has been a great deal of knowledge gleaned from this novel procedure, and some friendly rivalry and fun as well.

Resolutions for the Semester

Resolved: That Mr. North give no more problems to his Chemistry class.

INSIDE INFORMATION

Try vanilla ice cream with hot baked Indian pudding.

Serve children small portions of food so they can clear their plates without urging and without the feeling of being stuffed. Let them ask for second helpings if they are hungry.

Tin darkness with use, and this tarnish protects the tin; therefore tin utensils should not be secured simply for the sake of making them bright. When food dries or burns on tin utensils it may be removed by heating a weak soda solution in the pan and then washing it thoroughly.

Change the kind of bread you use from time to time. Instead of always serving white bread, have whole wheat, rye, raisin, or date bread, once in a while; make rolls of different kinds, corn bread, baking powder biscuits, muffins, hominy or graham gems, corn sticks, corn pones, or even toasted bread.

ous coloring was natural or artificial was beyond Elmer's ability to decide. She wore a smart tailored suit of brownish tweed and somewhat mannish cut, brown silk stockings and cunning little brown brogues with tasseled laces. Her shirtwaist, with a tailored collar, was immaculately white and very plain. She wore Colorado Charley's handsome brown silk tie; her gloves were brown and her eyes were brown, radiant, challenging, alight with interest.

"She's a daisy," thought Elmer Butterworth Clarke. "Bratins to spare. Must have, to be a special correspondent of the American Weekly. I've heard writers like her make a hundred or two a week, sometimes more. That's why she can afford such nice clothes. But she isn't overdressed, either. What Nellie would call good taste is the keynote of her get-up."

Miss Doris Gatewood on her part was, without appearing to do so, making a swift appraisal of Elmer Clarke. "Isn't he nice looking?" she asked herself. "And he has nice manners, too, for a hick. He must have had a nice mother. He's small town but not a Reuben, and he's shy and sensitive. Hello, he wears a silver service button in his lapel. He's been to the war and been wounded. Right leg, doubtless. I notice he favors it just a little. He buys his suits ready-made. Much too much of the collegiate atmosphere to the one he's wearing. His tie is a trifle flamboyant, but that's what they're wearing lately.

"Isn't He Nice Looking?" She Asked Herself.

"He seems reserved and dignified. But he's an old-fashioned boy, takes off his hat in elevators and gives up his seat in street cars to old ladies. Good western type and not fresh. He's looking me in from head to hair, but his eyes are as innocent and free from desire as a baby's. Elmer, you're a nice boy and I like you. Now to make you like me."

She fished in notebook and a short pencil from her pocket and smiled across at him apologetically. "Of course, Mr. Clarke, I know I'm boring you to the point of warring tears," she began. "But really, you look so kind I can't feel as contrite about it as I ought. Besides, I make my living by boring people—making them talk when they do not want to and putting words into their mouths when they refuse to talk."

"What do you want to know?" he challenged.

"Oh, all about the fortune that's been left you by the uncle you've never seen! I'm ordered to interview you and get a snappy story on how it feels to be a poor man today and a millionaire tomorrow. I'd like to have some expression from you as to your ideas on the obligations of wealth. Does money make for great happiness, or vice versa? What do you expect to do with your money and when? Are you going to marry the one girl who has been waiting for you—or is there one girl?"

"That's out," he reminded her. "It's nobody's business whether there's one girl or two or a dozen—and if there were I should not discuss them."

"Tipped a foul that time," Miss Gatewood went on, flushing prettily. "Still, one never can tell whether the patient will talk on that subject or not, so usually we ask to find out. Pardon, I'll try to stick to my knitting hereafter. Now, then—Mr. Clarke, what is your man Friday cooking for dinner?"

"It smells like corned beef and cabbage to me. This is Thursday, isn't it?"

Miss Gatewood nodded brightly. "And potatoes boiled with their jackets on?" she queried with eager curiosity. He nodded. "Then you're as plebeian as I am," she challenged. "I adore plain food and I'm famished."

To himself Elmer said: "I suppose I'll be a dog if I don't invite her to eat some of it. Confound it, I think she expects to be invited, or wants to be. That's just like these bohemian newspaper women." He turned to his visitor. "I should like very much to invite you to dinner, Miss Gatewood, but—"

"I'd adore to come," she interrupted before he could elude his invitation with more hints. "During dinner we can have a nice, long, comfortable interview."

"Well, Miss Gatewood, if you can manage without a chaperon, I can."

"I'm sure you're not at all a dangerous person, Mr. Clarke."

"I am sure you are!" Elmer came back at her, just like that.

She blushed at the compliment and proved herself equally fast by retort: "I see you are not a stranger to risks, Mr. Clarke. I had two brothers in the service. One was killed at Soloson and the other was gassed. He hasn't been very well since. He lives with me in Los Angeles."

"Indeed! Well, I had my taste of phosgen gas, too. My lungs are still a little ticklish, but I'm slowly outgrowing the effect. Pardon me, please, while I tell Jasper to set a place for you and add a few fancy touches in your honor."

That was a very delightful if unconventional dinner. Miss Gatewood was charming. It was her business to be charming and she knew her business. Her charm received a considerable impetus, however, from the charm which she extracted from Elmer. Under the ameliorating influence of her delightful personality, Elmer was in perfect form. He was interviewed without being aware of it, nor did Doris Gatewood have to interview him. Everything she wanted to know came out naturally in their conversation. In fact, the lady almost forgot she was playing a part.

"She was returning to Los Angeles on the train which came through Placerville at ten-thirty that night. After dinner she suggested that, unless Elmer had something better to do, they might kill time by going to a movie. Since Nellie was dining out that night and Elmer had nothing better to do than escort his new-found acquaintance to the movie, he declared he could think of nothing more delightful. So they went to see a thriller, and once during an exciting moment of the photoplay Miss Gatewood seized Elmer's hand impulsively and clung to it, apparently quite oblivious of what she was doing.

After dinner Elmer walked with her to the train and got her little traveling case out of the checking station in the depot. Before she boarded the train she had exacted a promise from him to call upon her and her brother at their Los Angeles home and have dinner with them. Elmer said he expected to be in Los Angeles in a few days to buy an automobile, and would take that opportunity to renew an acquaintance so happily begun.

Upon arrival in Los Angeles, Mae, alias Doris Gatewood, reported to Colorado Charley that the fish was on the line; that nothing now remained to do save get out the net and land him.

CHAPTER VIII

When Elmer Clarke returned to his humble home after seeing Doris Gatewood off at the railroad station, he was sensible of having passed one of the most delightful evenings in years. Of course he had spent many delightful hours in Nellie Catheart's company—Nellie was always delightful; but about this other girl there had been a charm so utterly different from Nellie's that Elmer, after the fashion of his sex, yielded to the delight of it without bothering to analyze it.

She dazzled him. She had, to effect, dared him to like her—and he had. He wished he might see her again.

Elmer inched with Nellie the following day and discussed with her his campaign for election to the board of trustees of the Union high school—a subject in which Nellie displayed the most avid interest. For a reason so vague he did not pause to define it, he refrained from telling Nellie of the visit of the young lady reporter the evening previous. Nellie wondered why he did not. She had seen him walking down to the station with this stranger and had marked her thoroughly, from the toes of her smart boots to the tip of her saucy hat. In particular, Nellie had been struck by a note of spurious merriment in her gurgling laugh as the pair passed, too interested in themselves to see her. That laugh had been just a trifle too loud.

On Tuesday Elmer received a long letter from Absalom McPeake, conveying very definite information regarding the estate. It consisted largely of very valuable business real estate in the city of Muscatine, a plethora of trome shanties in the poorer section of the city, from which Uncle Hiram had drawn rentals entirely disproportionate to the value of the property, stocks, ponds, term mortgages and a huge private banking business—a usurer's shop, in reality.

Mr. McPeake felt confident that the little banking business could readily be disposed of to form a branch bank of a large local institution. Of course, in view of Uncle Hiram's death, this bank, so dependent upon his presence, would not now be sold at much of a profit, but it could be disposed of without loss, and McPeake advised this course.

After reading that letter, Elmer felt more than ever inclined to follow the dictates of his humble ambition and purchase a fine car. He carried the letter over to the Placerville Commercial Trust & Savings bank and showed it to the charming trust officer of that institution. Nellie was much interested and proffered some advice when Elmer declared he was going down to Los Angeles the following day to place an order for the new car. He promised Nellie the first ride in it.

Before he could drive away from the agency with his new possession the next day, a smart uniformed chauffeur appeared and reminded him that a gentleman able to afford a first-class car could not possibly descend to driving it himself. Elmer was struck by the force of this argument and engaged the man at a salary of fifty dollars a week.

While waiting for the license plates to arrive, he telephoned Doris Gatewood and was rewarded with shrill feminine cries of delight from the lady in question. Could he not come out to the house for luncheon? She had just finished her story and was about to mail it east—perhaps he would care to read it first?

Elmer would. He said he would be delighted to; and at one o'clock he slid noiselessly up to Colorado Charley's dainty bungalow and discovered the girl and her alleged brother waiting for him on the lawn.

The famed prodigal, returning from his unwholesome adventure with the hicks and the swine, could not have been received with more enthusiasm. The luncheon was exquisite and served by Doris Gatewood herself. She flushed prettily when Colorado Charley reminded Elmer that she had cooked it herself. Charley ate little, however, and appeared languid and disinterested, as became a semi-invalid. Having been informed that he was a veteran of the World war, Elmer at once had for Colorado Charley a distinct feeling of fraternity, and the conversation was almost entirely of soldiering. In preparation for this, the bunco man had "bowed up" on the A. E. P. from an invalid ex-soldier at Arrowhead hospital and another at the Veterans' home at Sawtelle. When it seemed that he might be getting into deep water, Doris saved him by suggesting that it was time for him to take his after-luncheon nap.

"Poor Charley gets so excited and nervous when he talks of those terrible scenes," she explained to Elmer. "It wears him out even to think about them."

Elmer suggested that Doris and he go for a ride. Doris replied that she would adore it—so they went, in calm defiance of Elmer's voluntary promise to Nellie Catheart that she should be the very first person to ride in his new car. In justice to Elmer it must be added, however, that he had completely forgotten that promise. Having been lightly mated, it had been as lightly forgotten.

While in France Elmer, in common with thousands of other young Americans, had visited Paris after the Armistice and had there listened to the old saw that if one should sit long enough on the sidewalk in front of the Cafe de la Paix, everybody he had ever known would eventually pass by. Elmer had sat there half a day and been accosted by nobody more important than a military policeman who had made him exhibit, in writing, his right to sit there.

It occurred to Elmer upon his return to Placerville three days later that this is indeed a very small world. An exile from Placerville had seen him driving along Santa Monica boulevard with Doris Gatewood, and a former Placerville belle, who had emigrated to Los Angeles and was eluding not a precarious existence as an extra in the movies, wrote home to Allice Goodfellow that she had seen Elmer Clarke fox-trotting in a Hollywood cafe with a girl who had everything on her except the kitchen stove.

This gossip so interested Allice that she felt it her Christian duty to mention it to Nellie Catheart, who said nothing but wondered a little.

Elmer arrived home in a singularly happy frame of mind. He had had a perfectly delightful time in Los Angeles. At parting Doris had, in her brother's presence and with that candor and charm which so fascinated Elmer, insisted upon kissing him goodbye. Then she had walked out to the car with him and shaken his hand in farewell. She said she wouldn't sleep a wink until she knew he had arrived home safely—and wouldn't he telegraph her the instant that happy end had been accomplished? Elmer would. He promised her solemnly to that effect—and he kept his promise.

He should have known better. Old Lady Bray handled that telegram, made a note of the lady's name and address and promptly circulated a report that Nellie Catheart had better look out—that a girl in Los Angeles was after Elmer Clarke and was in a fair way of landing him.

The theft of the queen bee from a hive could not possibly have upset a community of bees one-half as much as the three reports on Elmer's Los Angeles activities upset Placerville. The town buzzed with gossip and idle speculation.

If it had been pro-Elmer and anti-Elmer prior to that fatal trip to Los

What Makes It Easy To Sell Merchandise?

Perhaps the average merchant of the smaller town will be of the opinion that it isn't "easy to sell merchandise" today. Maybe he is taking it for granted that the so-called "business depression" has caught up with him, and there just isn't any use. Or perhaps he is waiting for things to readjust themselves.

There is one thing he MUST KNOW, however, and that thing is that someone is managing to sell merchandise, even though it "isn't easy to sell." He sees the young woman go past his place of business wearing clothes of the very latest mode. He MUST KNOW this merchandise WASN'T purchased last summer—someone sold this merchandise to her quite recently.

"Business depression" or readjustment had little to do with the person or persons who are able to buy and do buy merchandise every day or every week in the year. "What Made It Easy To Sell This Merchandise?"

ADVERTISING!

"This year advertising is more needed, not because people have less to spend but because they hesitate to spend it. It will be a fine test of advertising. It is far more logical to advertise when sales are hard than when sales are easy. Yet many otherwise logical merchants curtail advertising at the first sign of a business cloud."

"The daily purchases of millions of people are conditioned by advertising. The breakfast foods, catsups, tooth pastes and safety razors that they could do without and which their grandparents did without were introduced by advertising manufacturers in the magazines, retailers in the newspapers or by posters and window displays, etc. Cut this advertising sharply off and we would have a slump beside which the stock exchange debacle would be a mere incident."

"During the newspaper strike in New York departments stores were deprived of their daily advertising announcements and sales fell off immediately and alarmingly. Reminders to buy are essential. Our prosperity depends on the state of mind of the ultimate consumer, and the ultimate consumer is at the other end of the advertisement."

SPRING PLANTING IS BEST— PLAN FOR IT NOW

By GODFREY McDONALD,
Manager Charlevoix County Nursery

Practically everything in the way of herbaceous perennials, trees, shrubs and evergreens can be planted in the spring. In fact, early spring planting is considered the best all-around season for planting. At that time the soil is warm, it can be easily worked, and if the plants are set out early they will receive the benefits of all the spring rains and become quite well established before the hot days of summer.

There are only certain hardy herbaceous perennials which are considered to do best if planted in the fall, and most of these can be planted early in spring if they are handled carefully. Those few which are said to take more kindly to fall planting are the early spring flowering varieties such as Bleeding Heart, Columbine, Hepatica, Iris and Peonies. Practically all the hardy lilies with the exception of the Madonna Lily can best be planted in the early spring.

The important thing to remember in the spring planting of hardy herbaceous perennials is to select varieties suited to the soil and conditions under which they are to grow, and then prepare the soil to a depth of 18 inches if possible. All hardy flowers respond beautifully to good soil where they can send their roots down to a considerable depth without interference.

Trees and shrubs are planted more often in the spring than at any other season. In fact, a few shrubs such as Butterfly Bush, Sweet Shrub, Sumac, Stephanandra, Tamarix and Japanese Snowball should not be planted at any other time than in spring.

Such trees as Sugar and Red Maple, Beech, Flowering Dogwood, White Birch, Sweet Gum and Tulip Tree, as well as all the Magnollas and Poplars are considered unsafe for planting at any time of the year except in spring, especially in the northern climates where the winters are very severe.

Coniferous evergreens do best in most every section when transplanted during the spring. Some growers say it is best to handle them just as the new growth is starting in late spring, but spring is such a busy time that it isn't possible for everyone to get their plants just at that time. However, if the plants are properly protected so that the ball of earth around the roots does not dry out before the plants are planted, and the soil is then kept fairly moist around the plants after they are set, successful results may be expected.

There seems to be no argument about spring planting of fruits. Apples, Pears, Plums, Peaches and Cherries are almost certain to be successful if the plants are properly handled when placed in the ground. Grape vines, too, do well when planted in the spring.

From this it may be seen that spring is really the golden opportunity to do most of the planting, and there is no better time than late winter days to figure out just what new plants will be purchased and where they will be located about the grounds. Another great incentive for spring planting is that unless one plants this spring another whole year will be lost, so why not plan to enjoy your garden this summer by doing all the spring planting it is possible to do?

When Farms and Forest Join

"There are farmers located on marginal lands in forest regions whose continued residence on these lands might be insured by the reforestation of nearby lands," Secretary of Agriculture Hyde says in a recent article in American Forests and Forest Life. "The work of rehabilitating the forest would offer employment in the immediate future. The growth of the trees to a size which would allow the harvesting of products would furnish a continuous demand for labor, and through support of industry, a continuous source of public income. Thus the combination of forestry and agriculture would provide both a good living to the farmers and adequate support for the schools, roads, and other undertakings essential to satisfactory social life. Another class of farmers who may be helped by forestry are those who in addition to their farm lands own woodlots, which contain trees of merchantable size, or trees that will, if protected, and cared for, be of merchantable size within a reasonable period of years. Where it is possible through better marketing of products and better forestry practices to create or increase income from these lands, the farmer will have an additional source of income and a market for some of his labor that he can not devote to farming during the slack season of the year."

The Child's Allowance

Child specialists believe that a pocket allowance works best when it is in no way dependent on work done to help in the house, but is given in order to train the child in the use of money. Help in simple tasks should be expected as a matter of course, and an allowance of some sort given also as a matter of course. Do not use the allowance as a means of discipline. Find other ways of teaching obedience or other necessary lessons. Very unusual tasks may be paid for, if the child would otherwise have a continual sense of drudgery connected with everything around the home. For example, dishwashing is something everyone should help with. Everyone makes dishes dirty. Window washing, painting, mowing the lawn, cleaning the cellar, and similar occasional tasks, often a little heavy for a child, may be rewarded by definite pay, just as one might pay an outsider to do them. Where the ready cash in a family is too small to permit any, the spirit of teamwork can be so strongly developed that no work need seem like drudgery, unfairly imposed on unwilling shoulders.

When a Queen Dies

If the queen in a colony of bees dies in the winter or early spring, as sometimes happens, a frame or two of brood may be added to the queenless colony, not only to increase its strength but to provide young brood from which the bees can rear a queen. Unless the colony is quite strong, any queen it may rear probably will not be of much value in building up the colony for the honeyflow. It is better to unite a weak, queenless colony with another that is queen-right, caging the queen in the hive a day or two to prevent her being killed. Both colonies should be smoked vigorously while being united; or the weak, queenless colony may be set on top of the queen-right one with a sheet of newspaper between, which the bees will soon eat away, uniting themselves gradually. Beekeepers in the North often buy queens from southern breeders early in the spring. This plan is better than having the queenless colony rear one, as it is important that much brood be reared at this season.

Repair Injured Orchards

Fruit trees slightly injured by mice or rabbits will usually recover if the injured parts are completely covered by mounding up soil around the bases, or if paint or other material is used to prevent the wounds from drying out. Severe losses are often avoided by prompt treatment of injured trees. If the injury is severe, however, or if the trees are completely girdled, bridge grafting must be resorted to. It can be done successfully on almost any kind of fruit tree that is readily propagated by grafting. Farmers' bulletin 1369-F, which may be obtained from the U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., tells how to make a bridge graft.

One of the chief sources of milk contamination on the farm is milk utensils which have not been properly washed and treated to kill bacteria. Rinse them on the outside as soon as possible after use. Scrub them with a brush, using warm water containing a soda ash or alkaline washing powder. After washing, steam them as thoroughly as possible. A galvanized-iron box with a small quantity of water in the bottom, heated over a fire, will serve for steaming. If steam is not available, use a chlorine solution. The utensils must be cleaned thoroughly so that no particles of organic matter stick to them. A chlorine solution should be used only once and must be made up twice daily.

Improvement of the staple is the key to general improvement of the cotton industry, says the U. S. department of agriculture. Statistics collected by the bureau of agricultural economics show that 79 per cent of the crop of American upland cotton in 1928 was less than one inch in length, less than five per cent was 1 1/8, and less than one per cent 1 1/4 inches. Nearly 18 per cent of the crop, or 2,500,000 bales, was not tenderable in the futures market because the fiber was less than 7/8 of an inch in length. The fiber in many cotton-growing districts is so poor that it is on a footing with the shortest and cheapest cottons from India and China. Markets for good cotton are not supplied, and a large surplus of inferior cotton must be carried over each year, says the bureau.

or sublimated blue lead ground in oil—with linseed oil and drier, say chemists of the U. S. department of agriculture. Follow directions on the containers in which the pigments are sold. Mix paint from dry red lead in the following proportions just before it is used: Red lead, dry, 50 pounds; raw linseed oil, 1 3/4 gallons; oil drier, 1 pint. This makes 2 1/2 gallons of paint. To make a cheaper paint, mix red or brown metallic pigment, linseed oil, and drier. Finishing coats for oil tanks and other structures that need protection from the sun should be white or light colored. Mix them like outside house paints. Prepare aluminum paint by mixing aluminum bronzing powder, preferably polished, with good outside spar varnish in the proportion of 2 pounds to a gallon. Add the varnish to the dry pigment a little at a time, stirring well.

Prevention of tuberculosis in swine lies chiefly in pasteurizing milk fed to hogs (especially that from creameries), in allowing hogs to feed only behind adult cattle that have passed the tuberculin test, and in thoroughly cooking all offal or carcasses before they are fed to hogs. Disposal of tuberculosis poultry flocks is also an important preventive measure. Tuberculous cattle and fowls are considered the principal sources of tuberculosis in hogs. When tuberculosis already exists in a drove of hogs, all affected animals on the farm should be removed. Send all hogs to market for slaughter at an abattoir under Federal inspection. Apply the tuberculin test to cattle and dispose of the reactors. Clean and disinfect pens and stables before restocking.

It is a good plan to reserve a small corner of the truck garden for a seed bed. Plants of such crops as lettuce, cabbage, cauliflower, and tomato will be more stocky if they are started in specially prepared soil and later transplanted. Good soil for a seed-bed consists of one part of well-rotted manure, two parts of good garden loam or rotted sods, and one part of sharp, fine sand. Let the manure rot thoroughly, but do not expose it to the weather. The addition of leaf mold or peat makes a heavy soil better adapted for the seed-bed.

Farrowing pens should be supplied with outside feeding pens or floors away from the pigs where the sows are fed. Make the outside pen as wide as the farrowing pen, extending six or eight feet beyond the building. If the sow is fed in the farrowing pen, she may cripple or kill some of the pigs. A guard rail around the inside of the farrowing pen about ten inches from the floor and four to six inches from the sides will tend to prevent the sow from crushing the pigs when she lies down.

Except in the better farming areas, more than half the land of the South is unimproved farm land and is best suited to forest production, according to forest service authorities. In the coastal plain of the southeastern and Gulf states more than 80 per cent of the land is available for timber growing.

The best lettuce seed is that grown the season previous to planting. Strictly fresh seed—that is, seed planted the same season it is grown—may germinate poorly, and lettuce plants grown from seed more than two years old may lack vigor.

Soybeans planted in combination with other crops such as corn, cowpeas, Sudan grass, and sorghums furnish a well-balanced ration, a large yield, and a great variety of forage.

Hunting migratory game birds from an automobile or an airplane is forbidden by federal law.

"Mind" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, February 22. Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Yet I am the Lord thy God from the land of Egypt, and thou shalt know no god but me: for there is no saviour beside me." (Hosea 13:4).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The perfect Mind sends forth perfection, for God is Mind. Imperfect mortal mind sends forth its own resemblances, of which the wise man said, 'All is vanity.'" (p. 239).

The subject for the Charlevoix and Ironton churches for next Sunday will be, "I Believe in the Holy Spirit." This is the third of the series of addresses on the general subject, "I Believe."

Thursday evening of this week this church will revive the Church Night service that has been so popular in the past. The service was not held regularly after Dr. Mattson resigned and until the coming of another pastor. The service this week will be similar to those of former times. A pot-luck supper will be served at 6:30 in the dining room of the church. After the supper any business that is necessary will be attended to and a devotional service will follow. This service will be short but helpful. At present we are studying the First Epistle of John for the mid-week service. Thursday evening we will touch upon a few of the remarks of a Christian mentioned by John. Each family is asked to bring sandwiches, plates, cups and silver for itself and one prepared dish to be shared.

Mrs. Stetter began practicing this week for an Easter musical program, to be rendered by the united junior and adult choirs. The number chosen for this program is Dudley Buck's "Christ, The Victor." No doubt this musical service will be given the afternoon of Easter Sunday. It will be worth your while to plan to attend this program.

The Ironton church voted $50 last Sunday to be used for the 1931 benevolent apportionment, $10 of the amount to be raised by the Sunday school.

A young peoples' organization will be attempted at the Ironton church next Sunday afternoon. All young people in and around Ironton are asked to attend. The service is called for 5:00 o'clock, fast time.

TOWNSHIPS POLL A HEAVY BALLOT

NEARLY EVERY PRECINCT HAS TWO TICKETS IN FIELD

Caucus Results in Elimination of Several Veteran Campaigners —
More Than Usual Interest

While city elections throughout the county were fairly quiet affairs at the primary Monday, the same cannot be said about townships adjacent to Charlevoix or elsewhere. In practically every precinct two tickets were nominated and balloting was close and competition keen.

Over in South Arm township, Charles Murphy, a veteran of several years on the board of supervisors, polled the low vote in a field of three. George Nelson was accredited with 113 votes, Elmer Hott, 101, and Murphy, 90. The poll of 314 votes was a record. Nelson and Hott will fight it out at the April election.

Wilson township ran out of ballots when a record vote of over 200 was cast. Charles Reidet, incumbent, and Charles Shepherd will head the tickets for supervisor at the April election.

Things were not so peaceful nearer home, either. Charlevoix, Marion, Norwood and Hynes townships nominated two tickets. In Charlevoix township, Alvin Durance nosed out William H. Cook by one vote to head the first ticket for supervisor. The vote was Durance 19, Cook 18. However, it is just a family affair, so to speak, so will not cause any friction. Following is the line-up for townships adjacent to Charlevoix.

BEAVER ISLAND MAIL CONTRACT IS AWARDED

Capt. James Gallagher, Boyne City,
Reported Successful Bidder

According to unofficial reports in circulation the past week, the Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail contract has been awarded by the U. S. Postal Department to Capt. James Gallagher of Boyne City. No official notification has been received by Postmaster Geo. W. Weaver, but the report is accepted as being authentic.

It has also been reported that Capt. Gallagher will place a new boat on the run, and that he is contemplating including Petoskey and possibly Manistique on the route. The present contract, held by Capt. John Chambers, expires July 1. Until navigation opens, the mail will be delivered by airplane, and from then on until July 1, by the present contract holder.

It is probable that Mr. Gallagher will announce his plans within a short time.

ALL INLAND LAKES CLOSED APRIL 1ST

STATE-WIDE RULE BARS FISH-ING IN ALL LAKES

"Pike" Lakes, Including Lake Charlevoix, Open May 1—Others
Closed Until June 25

Fishing will cease in Michigan's inland lakes April 1, when non-trout rivers and streams will be open for spearing for certain species.

All fishing will close April 1 in all inland lakes of the state until June 25, except on designated "pike" and "trout" lakes in which fishing will be permitted after May 1 for perch, wall-eyed pike, grass pike, muskellunge, nood non-game fish, and all species of trout.

April 1, ice fishermen will turn from the lakes to the streams. For the second year spearing with or without the use of artificial or jack light in all non-trout rivers and streams will be permitted for a limited period. From April 1 to May 31, non-game fish including bull-heads, carp, catfish, cisco, dogfish, garfish, mullet, pilotfish, redhorse, and whitefish may be taken in this manner.

Spearing for great northern pike, grass pike or pickerel will be permitted in non-trout rivers and streams from May 1 to May 31, inclusive.

Despite the fact that there was considerable misinformation concerning the spearing laws last spring, there were no more than the normal number of violations, according to the law enforcement division of the conservation department. With a year's experience with the spearing laws, even fewer violations are expected during the coming season.

This winter has seen the largest number of fishermen in years, according to conservation officers. In a great many instances the fish caught through the ice was one of a few sources of food for many families.

Lake Charlevoix is still listed as a "pike" lake and, unless action is taken by the legislature complying with petitions asking that it be taken from the inland lake listing, will be closed to fishing April 1.

CITY VISITED BY TWO FIRES SUNDAY

Robert Howe Residence Damaged to Extent of $1,000; Other Fire Small

Charlevoix fire department was called out twice Sunday to extinguish small fires.

The first, at the Robert Howe residence on Petoskey avenue, at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, resulted in damage estimated at around $1,000. Origin of the blaze is undetermined. A second alarm shortly before noon, called the department to the Will Graves residence on Nichols street. A chimney backfire, started a small blaze in the kitchen. Damage was slight.

CHARLEVOIX WON ITS FINAL GAME

DEFEATED EAST JORDAN TOS-
ERS 23 TO 12 LAST FRIDAY

Season's Record Boasts Ten Victories, One Defeat and One Tie—Novak High Scorer

Charlevoix high school closed its pre-tournament basketball schedule last Friday night on the home court with a 23 to 12 victory over East Jordan.

The contest was close for three periods, with Charlevoix leading all the way. It appeared as though local tossers could not get going in their early season form until the fourth quarter, when they opened up with a determined attack which netted 9 points and insured victory.

Charlevoix opened scoring on McCall's goal. Novak added another deuce and a free toss for three points, netting a total of 5 for the first stanza. Hegersberg scored a goal and free toss for East Jordan.

Scoring was even in the second period, each team netting two goals and a free one. Novak scored 2 and Anee three for Charlevoix, giving the home team a 10 to 8 lead at the half. As the third period opened, Hegersberg dropped through a goal to tie the count at 10-all. Two free throws and a goal by Anee kept Charlevoix leading 14 to 10 as the period closed.

In the fourth period Joe Smith went in for McSnuby. This combination seemed to be the best of the evening. Joe scored a goal and free toss during the session, while McCall, Anee and Vic Smith each added goals to bring total points scored to 9. East Jordan was limited to one goal.

Anee scored 9 points for Charlevoix, McCall 4, Novak 5, Joe Smith 3, and Vic Smith 2. Hegersberg scored all of East Jordan's 12 points. East Jordan reserves defeated Charlevoix reserves 9 to 4 in the second prelim, and the visiting junior high was victorious over Charlevoix juniors by a close score.

Charlevoix's season record is one of the best claimed by the school to recent years. The Kipmen won 10 out of 12 games, lost one and tied one. They scored a total of 213 points against their opponents' 141, indicating exceptional defensive strength. Following are games played and scores:

Charlevoix 13, Traverse City 8.
Charlevoix 12, Petoskey 10.
Charlevoix 18, Petoskey 16.
Charlevoix 41, Gaylord 13.
Charlevoix 14, Boyne City 11.
Charlevoix 8, Harbor Springs 5.
Charlevoix 24, Manistowish 8.
Charlevoix 16, Boyne City 12.
Charlevoix 20, East Jordan 16.
Charlevoix 22, Traverse City 11.
Charlevoix 8, Harbor Springs 16.
Charlevoix 23, East Jordan 12.

With the above record, Charlevoix finished in a tie with Harbor Springs for first place in the Tip of Michigan class C conference. Each team had one defeat.

"Bill" Novak, Charlevoix captain, led his team-mates in scoring for the season, making a total of 72 points. Anee, center, was second with 62; McCall, forward, third with 47; Vic Smith, guard 14; McSnuby, forward, 11; Joe Smith, sub, 3.

EARLY SMELT RUN IS ANTICIPATED

MILD WINTER EXPECTED TO AD-VANCE BIG EVENT

Several Charlevoix County Streams
Will Be Open—Boyne and East
Jordan Make Preparations

An early and an unprecedented large run of smelt in Charlevoix and Benzie counties where several streams and parts of streams will be open to taking the diminutive fish with hand nets is expected this spring.

Last year, despite a severe winter, the smelt run began early, the fish starting up the streams March 16. Since this winter has been unusually mild, resulting in relatively high water temperatures, the smelt run may begin before last year's date.

An unusually large run is expected. Men fishing through the ice for smelt have been taking large catches.

The department of conservation has issued the following list of waters that will be open this spring to taking smelt with hand nets:

Benzie county: Crystal lake outlet above Hammond bridge. Cold creek down from north line of Clark street in Benzie. Round lake outlet and all other streams entering Crystal lake down from road around the lake.

Charlevoix county: Deer creek down from dam on section 25, South Arm township. Horton creek down from dam on section 6, Bay township. Monroe creek down from Highway bridge. Boyne river down from Pearl street in Boyne City. Porter creek down from dam situate 450 feet from mouth.

Under the state regulations the smelt during the spring run in these streams may be taken with hand nets of not more than five feet in circumference or with a handle not more than five feet long.

Boyne City and East Jordan are making elaborate preparations for the smelt run. At the former place, the Progressive club is handling the affair. Several hundred membership buttons have been sold to finance the work, and a state-wide "membership one" is the motto at Boyne, and besides, the comfort of "dippers" will be looked after during their stay there. Judging from the number of smelt being caught through the ice this winter, the run should break all previous records.

Former Manager Now Owner of Local Chevrolet Sales and Service

In a recently completed deal, W. L. Zerbis, for the past year or more manager of the Charlevoix Auto Sales, has purchased the garage and equipment.

The transaction severs connection of the Charlevoix Auto Sales with the Petoskey Auto Sales, under which it formerly operated as a branch. Parts stock, building and equipment were included in the deal, also territorial sales rights.

Under the new ownership, the Charlevoix Auto Sales will continue its former high standard in business policies, and endeavor to make its service to Chevrolet car owners of greater efficiency.

DEATH TAKES BELOVED LOCAL WOMAN TUESDAY

Mrs. Joe Moore Died at Charlevoix
Hospital—Funeral Friday

Charlevoix was saddened Tuesday by the death of Mrs. Joe Moore, who passed away at 5 o'clock that afternoon at the Charlevoix hospital.

Mrs. Moore had been ill for two years with stomach trouble. Her condition had gradually become more serious and for some time it had been known there was no help for her. Regardless, her passing was a shock to her family and a host of friends.

Anna Couzens was born June 9, 1883, at Detroit. She came with her parents to Ironton at the age of two years, and had resided there and at Charlevoix since that time. Her father was bookkeeper at the old Ironton Iron Works.

She was married about 26 years ago to Herbert Ager, who died two years later. A daughter, now Mrs. Gordon Todd, was born to this union. On October 10, 1922, she was married to Joe Moore of this city, who survives, together with a son Herbert, age five years.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Methodist church, Rev. John E. Lockyer officiating. Interment will be at Brookside.

Mrs. Moore was a member of the Rebekah lodge.

For willfully making a false or fraudulent return the penalty may not exceed more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than a year, or both, and in addition, 50 per cent of the amount of the tax.

PALMER WINS PRI- MARY NOMINATION

Smith Defeats Eckinger in Third Ward—Fowler Victorious Over
Cooper—Light Vote Cast

Despite a county-wide contest for school commissioner and two races for city offices, Charlevoix voters failed to rouse up much enthusiasm over the annual spring primary election held Tuesday.

The total vote cast in the three wards was 481, as compared with 769 in 1929, and 985 in 1930 when a record vote was cast.

In the third ward scrap for alderman, Jess Smith, incumbent, defeated David J. Eckinger, former alderman, by 31 votes. Horace R. Fowler, present justice of the peace, won the re-nomination over Joseph R. Cooper by a majority of 162 votes.

In the county-wide contest for school commissioner, William C. Palmer, incumbent, was apparently victorious over Archie C. Belding, ex-commissioner. At a late hour Tuesday night, 24 out of 25 precincts gave Palmer a lead of approximately 125 votes. These returns, however, are not official, although it was felt that complete and correct returns would not alter the standing very much.

MASONS WIN FIRST CRIBBAGE CONTEST

Defeated Odd Fellows Monday Night
by Margin of 36 Points

For the first time since the Odd Fellow-Masonic cribbage contests were started several weeks ago, the Masons have been returned victorious. In the sixth contest of the series at the I. O. O. F. hall Monday evening, the Masons won out by a margin of 31 points, not so large, but nevertheless a victory.

An Odd Fellow, Gordon Kirby, was high point man of the evening with 962. H. R. Fowler led the Masons with 944. As the contest now stands, deducting 36 points from their previous total, the Odd Fellows are still out in front by a margin of 1716 points.

Two more contests will be played, the next at the Masonic hall Monday evening, March 9.

HOUGHTON LAKE IS LARGEST IN STATE

Lake Charlevoix Ranks Fourth According to Survey

Despite arguments to the contrary, Houghton lake is recognized officially as the largest inland lake in Michigan. Its area of 30.0 square miles is not closely approached by any of the larger lakes of the state.

A report on the inland lakes of Michigan prepared by I. D. Scott for the geological survey division of the department of conservation, shows relative areas of the larger upper and lower peninsula lakes. Torch lake ranks second in size in the state with an area of 28.5 square miles. Mullet lake is third with 26.8 square miles and Charlevoix (Pine) lake, fourth with 26.7 square miles. Burt lake is fifth in size with an area of 26.5 square miles.

The annual St. Patrick's Supper will be given Sunday, March 15, at St. Mary school hall. Serving will begin at 3:30 p. m. Prices: adults, 75c; children, 50c—Adv. 911.

WILL RE-ORGANIZE LOCAL SCOUT WORK

Rev. G. R. Parker Will Head Troop
—Open to All Boys

A group of boys, numbering between 15 and 20 and of Scout age, met in the lecture room of the Congregational church Monday night to talk over the future of Scout activities in Charlevoix. The discussion resulted in a unanimous decision favoring re-organization.

John Nordrum, who organized the first Boy Scout troop here and gave the work much valuable service, expressed a reluctance to assume the responsibilities as Scoutmaster for another troop. For this reason, William C. Bellinger, another active worker in the movement, has sought the services of Rev. G. R. Parker of the Congregational church.

Rev. Parker has been active in Scout work since 1916 and holds a Scoutmaster's Key. This recognition is given to those who have been registered Scoutmasters for five years and have passed satisfactorily the five-year course of Scoutmastership. Rev. Parker received his training in the Berrien-Cass Area Council, whose headquarters are located at Benton Harbor. Charlevoix is very fortunate in having a man of such valuable experience to head the local movement. Material has been sent for to make the local re-organization possible, and it is hoped it will reach here in time for a meeting next Monday night, when plans will be completed. The troop will be non-sectarian and open to all boys 12 years of age and older.

AT THE MOVIES

Favorites Seen in Brent-Brook Thrill Romance

Supported by a remarkably strong cast, Evelyn Brent and Clive Brook come to the Palace theatre Saturday and Sunday in their first co-starring picture, "Slightly Scarlet." These stars made an outstanding hit in Paramount's first all-talking picture, "Interference." They are tremendously effective in this New Show World talking picture filled with fast action, romantic thrills, dangerous adventure and wholesome laughs.

"Slightly Scarlet" keeps audiences on the qui vive every second. Each new situation is a surprise situation, an unexpected plot twist that's hard to guess. There's not a dull moment in the whole show from the time that beautiful Miss Brent sees handsome Clive Brook in Paris and wishes she could know him. They finally meet, and then the real excitement begins. Each has a secret he dreads revealing to the other.

Author and director have built up a clever suspense angle throughout the story. And yet "Slightly Scarlet" is not a mystery story. It is romance, adventurous romance, in every sense. The tenderness of its situations makes for unusual suspense, however.

Paul Lukas, the graceful sophisticate, is seen in "Slightly Scarlet" in another of those delightful menace roles which have made him so popular with film audiences everywhere. And laughter-provoking Eugene Pallette struts and booms in dress clothes. The cast includes Henry Wadsworth, the sailor in "Applause," Morgan Farley, seen with George Bancroft in "The Mighty," Virginia

LOCAL WOMAN HONORED AT COUNTY CONVENTION

Mrs. R. B. Armstrong Chosen State Republican Delegate

Republican Charlevoix county convention was held last Friday at Boyne City with eighty-six delegates present. The convention was a harmonious affair.

The formal session opened with the singing of America. A patriotic address, by a Boyne City pastor, given while the committees were formulating their reports, was an innovation.

An unusually large delegation of women were present and at their request a woman delegate was chosen, the honor falling to Mrs. R. B. Armstrong of Charlevoix.

Other delegates and alternates were as follows:

Dr. F. F. McMillan, Charlevoix; H. P. Porter, East Jordan; William P. Vought and Roy Scott, Boyne City. Alternates: Frank F. Bird, Charlevoix; Kit Carson and Mrs. Gladys Bechold, East Jordan; Mrs. Edith Conkle, Boyne City; Herman C. Meyers, Boyne Falls.

The convention adopted resolutions in which it declared faith in allegiance to and support of the Republican party. President Hoover, Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Cong. Frank Bohn and Charlevoix county officials.

MICHIGAN SUGAR PLANT HARD HIT

Directors of the Columbia Sugar company, one of the refining concerns hard hit by the current crisis in the beet sugar industry, met Friday to discuss a stock assessment of $1.40 a share levied recently in an effort to secure funds to continue operation.

The Columbia company has plants in Bay county, Mt. Pleasant, Mich., and Paulding, Ohio.

Columbia is the only one of the several large refineries in southern Michigan, northern Indiana and northern Ohio which has not yet definitely decided to suspend operations this year.

Only the West Bay City company, a smaller concern operating one plant has announced definite plans to continue operations.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS By B. C. Melencamp

Farm Account Records Being Closed This Week

H. A. Berg, in charge of farm management extension work of the Michigan State college, is in the county this week inspecting the farm records of some 38 different farmers who have kept accurate farm records during the past year. This work is gaining in popularity each year and for the new year starting March 1st over fifty farmers in the county will know more about their farm situation. Two years ago 25 records were completed for the year, last year 38, and for the new year it is expected there will be at least 45.

This project is carried on in real business like manner. The work is first carefully outlined, secondly each co-operator is visited on his own farm once during the year by Mr. Berg, and thirdly each book is carefully checked when closed. This means that our farmers are placed on the same uniform base and therefore the comparison between farms are on the same scale.

It is not too late for farmers who would like to know what they are doing, to enroll for the year. While March 1st is the opening date, during anytime within two or three weeks of that date the records can be accurately placed in the book. Phone or write your county agent if interested.

"Soils Management" Special to Visit Charlevoix County

As a conclusion to a six weeks campaign emphasizing the value of lime and fertilizer in any program of soils rehabilitation for western Michigan, the soils department of the Michigan State college cooperating with the county agricultural agent in each county is fostering the operation of a "Soils Management" special over the Grand Rapids division of the Pennsylvania railroad, April 17th to May 2nd.

All matters of detail have not been entirely worked out, but plans call for all day stops at nearly every place. The forenoon will be spent in analyzing soil samples for calcium content, soils for acidity and phosphate availability, and the asking of definite recommendations for the profitable management of that particular type of soil and the farm from which it came.

The afternoon program will take the form of a conference attended by specially appointed delegates meeting in an attempt to determine the greatest factor affecting soil fertility in the community they represent and what should be done in an attempt to improve the condition.

Following is the schedule for the immediate vicinity, and all meetings will start at 9:00 a. m. and close at 4:00 p. m., central standard time:

Mancelona, Thursday, April 30th; Boyne-Falls, Friday, May 1st; Levering, Saturday, May 2nd.

Orchard Bay Farm Enters State-Wide Sheep Contest

Charlevoix county's leading sheep ranch will compete for state honors this year in competition with some 150 sheep owners from all sections of the state.

The object of the contest is to locate the most efficient sheep raiser and to demonstrate the most effective methods of breeding, feeding and management. Any sheep raiser having at least twenty or more ewes lambing within the period from February 1st to May 31st, is eligible to compete. All ewes must be sired by a purebred ram or one that can be proven to be purebred. The exact birth of lambs must be recorded. They must be docked and castrated. The feeding program must be outlined and weights fed recorded. The awards are based on the average number of pounds of lamb produced per ewe. They are weighed in when they average 135 days in age.

This contest was won last year by a sheep-breeder in Alcona county by the name of Port Caville. Of 53 lambs dropped 51 were raised. He had a 156 per cent lamb crop and each lamb weighed 94.5 pounds at 135 days of age. Including the number of twins each ewe in his flock produced 145.91 pounds of lamb.

There is no cost in entering this contest and it is hoped that several more Charlevoix county sheep raisers will compete for state recognition. Over $300 in prize money will be awarded, the ten highest records. Just send in your name and address and your agent will be only too glad to furnish further information and details of the contest. Come on, try your luck.

Mares in foal should be used at slow, light work—every day if possible. In summer, if they are not worked, turn into open pasture where they can get exercise, fresh air, and good feed. Protein and ash are needed for the development of the fetus, and the proportion of these in the feed should be gradually increased during the gestation period.

MONEY TO BURN

BY
PETER B. KYNE
W.N.U. SERVICE

Elmer scratched his ear in perplexity. "What do you want of the property?" he demanded presently.

"It's a good buy, Elmer. I think I can sell it for about two thousand dollars profit in a year's time."

"Are you going to move into the house yourself?"

"No, Elmer. I'm going to rent it."

"Well, suppose you rent it to me for the present. It's all furnished with my furniture, and I'll be far more comfortable there than in that rat trap of a Palace hotel."

"The rental will be seventy-five dollars a month, Elmer."

"You're a highway robber!"

There fell a silence while they looked at each other. Then: "How goes your fight for school trustee, dear?" Nellie asked.

"It's a fight—and I'm fighting. That's all I can say. I'm making a house-to-house canvass."

"In the new car?" He nodded.

"Better use the old tin Lizzie," she suggested. "That shiny new monster will cost you votes. I heard a well-known merchant of Philreos remark to Mr. Moody, apropos of your new imported car, that a fool and his money are soon parted."

"Well, I must be off, Nellie. I'm afraid I shall not be able to see very entire accord. He told Nellie about it before he left and she agreed that he ought to go. When he told her he would probably see Doris Gatewood and her brother while there, she told him she hoped he would see the charming Miss Gatewood and that he might enjoy her society immensely. As a result of this conversation, Elmer departed not a little irritated. He would have preferred to have Nellie display opposition to his plan.

To say that Elmer enjoyed his vacation would, in these days of superlative slang, scarcely express the extent of his enjoyment. Perhaps it would be better to state that he ate it up. He lunched and dined and fox-trotted in every worthwhile hotel, restaurant and road house in Los Angeles county, and then departed, accompanied by Colorado Charley and Doris Gatewood, for points farther south. They swam and played golf at Coronado, they lunched at delightfully wicked Tia Juana, and, at a late suggestion from his guests, he ruined the paint on his new automobile in a wild dash across the Colorado desert to spend a week in the Grand canyon.

Quite early in the history of the junkie Doris commenced calling him Elmer and insisted that if they were to be good pals he must call her Doris. He did—gratefully.

Presently she took to calling him dear and darling and old thing and old dear and silly boy and sundry other verbal evidences of insincerity. Elmer liked it. He "ate it up." In the gentle art of coquetry Doris Gatewood was a past master, and it is not to be marveled at that he became hopelessly infatuated with her.

She thrilled him, she dazzled him, she brought on a delicious pain in his heart, she filled him with the wonder of her. When he thought of Nellie Cathart it was with a pang of shame and trepidation, but even this unpleasantness gradually disappeared, exorcised by Elmer himself. Finding he could not think of Nellie without having his indescribable happiness clouded, he ceased to think of her at all, although he did send her a few picture postcards. She was but a memory of another life.

Nevertheless old habits, particularly of loyalty, are hard to break. Elmer was more than the devoted friend and host, but not quite the lover. He wanted to be but lacked the courage. Doris realized this and created opportunity after opportunity for him to declare himself. She even went so far, on their way back to Los Angeles, when they traveled by night to avoid the heat of the day, as to pretend to sleep with her lovely head on his shoulder.

Elmer trembled a little but that was all, so the lady took advantage of Colorado Charley's presence in the front seat with the driver to commence weeping softly; when Elmer asked her tenderly why she wept she told him it was because they had to part so soon. Thereupon she got her first real rise out of Elmer. He said: "Well, I don't know about that!"

There is something connected with driving a fast and powerful car through the night which promotes straight thinking, and so Elmer came to the conclusion that he was violently in love with two women at the same time; he had to choose one, he knew which one he wanted and he lacked the courage to choose her and flit the other.

He reflected bitterly that in the days of his poverty no such unhappy ultimatum could possibly have been his portion. Also, he had a curious presentiment that Colorado Charley was going to borrow some money from him before long, and that he, Elmer, was going to grant the loan and, figuratively speaking, kiss the money goodbye.

What with the happiness that was in the company of Doris, Elmer had not hitherto given more than a cursory thought to his other companion. Now his thoughts centered suddenly on Colorado Charley, who, by the way, was known as Harvey Gatewood.

It occurred to him now that Harvey was a bit narrow between the eyes, a little furtive, a shade overdressed, his affability and graciousness a fraction overdone. He talked too much and too big.

Elmer felt his suspicious mounting, even as the luckless of a dog rise as he lies asleep and dreams of rats. "If I should marry Doris," he decided, "I'll give Harvey the air about ten minutes after leaving the altar. He has Doris fooled, but fooling me isn't so easy."

CHAPTER X

Arrived at Doris' home, Elmer solemnly announced his intention of departing for Philreos next day, and promised to look in again on his way north and say goodbye. The result was that when he did "look in" he found Doris alone. She was curled up on a divan, sobbing noisily, when Elmer walked up on the porch of the bungalow, glanced in through the screen door and saw her.

With the license of an old friend he entered unannounced, sat down beside her, and tenderly inquired what the matter might be.

"Oh, Elmer darling, I can't bear it!—I can't—I can't!" the girl sobbed. "I'll be so lonely!"

She seized his hand, covered her tear-stained face with it—and kissed it very lamely and hesitantly. An

An Instant Later She Was in Elmer's Arms.

Instant later she was in Elmer's arms and he was kissing her tears away and murmuring words of endearment. Presently her soft cheek was against his and she was, according to her own statement, the happiest girl in the world!

Many a man has been captured less adroitly but nevertheless as securely. Elmer had three hundred miles of motoring before him that day, so he did not linger long over his leave-taking—just long enough to swear undying love and promise fervently to write the light of his life daily until they should meet again—soon!

As a curious commentary on the unfaithfulness of man and the general inconsistency of the creature, it is worthy of remark that thirty miles up the road Elmer Clarke quivered, sighed dismally and murmured very distinctly: "Oh, Lord, what a ass I am! What a jinx I'm in! What am I going to do?"

About the same time Doris, perched on Colorado Charley's thin knees, was telling him the inside story of her conquest.

Colorado Charley stroked her fair cheek. "You're papa's little sweetheart," he declared happily. "We're almost broke, Ma. When you've had half a dozen letters from him he should be touched for a thousand."

Elmer Clarke suffered every foot of the journey back to Philreos. Not that he reproached himself with having made a mistake; but he faced an unpleasant issue and there was no possible chance of avoiding it if he purposed living with himself the remainder of his life. Rather than face Nellie and tell her that the love he had formerly vowed to her had all been a mistake, he would cheerfully have submitted to the bastinado.

Nevertheless it had to be done, even though his sense of chivalry and decency revolted at the prospect. He took Nellie out to Joe Angelotti's road house for dinner and tried desperately to be his old cheerful self. However, no man has ever succeeded in deceiving a highly intelligent woman who loves him, and from the moment she had got into the car Nellie was aware that whatever it was that troubled him he was not going to keep it to himself forever. All he required was a decent opportunity to discharge his cargo of grief, so on the way home Nellie decided to be kind to him.

"Elmer," she said suddenly, "you're unhappy. And I the cause of your unhappiness?"

He nodded, afraid to trust himself to speak.

"Well, we're not engaged, Elmer, so speak freely. Is there another girl?"

"Unhappily there is, Nellie."

"Unhappily for whom?"

"For both of us," he finally ground out.

"Speak for yourself, Elmer," she countered. "Are you very unhappy about it?"

"Quite."

"Why?"

"You ought to know," he could explain.

He Had a Fight on His Hands and He Fought.

much of you until after the school election."

"Atta boy, Elmer!"

As he strode out of the bank Nellie observed that, for the first time, he no longer walked with the slight limp that had been the result of an unexpected meeting with a soldier of the Prussian Guard. Once it had been a real limp; then it had become a habit; but now—

"Nothing like a little judicial prodding—nothing like a hint of opposition—nothing like an objective to be captured, to keep that boy busy," the girl soliloquized. "Well, anyhow, he didn't fib to me about Doris Gatewood. He didn't apologize or explain or try to excuse himself—and that's a comfort."

Meanwhile the Philreos Clarion had increased its circulation by one. Colorado Charley had subscribed for three months, on the off chance that thus he might be kept in touch with the activities of his intended victim. As a result of his foresight, Elmer received a telegram from Doris Gatewood on the morning of election day, wishing him a tremendous victory and making the prophecy that any other issue would be improbable.

Elmer thought it was both kind and considerate of her to do this; consequently an hour after the votes were counted he sent her a telegram thanking her and announcing his victory. Immediately she replied with a night letter suggesting that he owed himself a present and that it ought to take the form of another visit to Los Angeles.

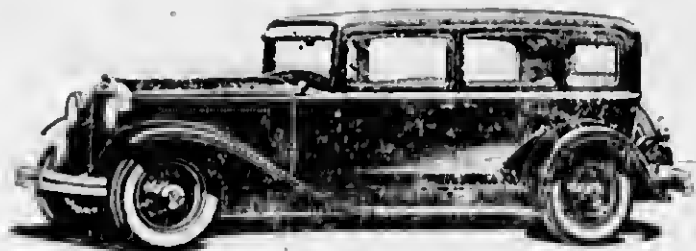

With that suggestion Elmer was in

PALACE THEATRE TO HAVE NEW "TALKIE"

RCA Reproduction Equipment to Be Installed—Other Improvements

Manager Mrs. Moon of the Palace theatre announced today that she had concluded negotiations with RCA Photophone, Inc., New York City, for the installation of its sound reproducing equipment in her theatre. In making the announcement, Manager Mrs. Moon said that installation engineers would arrive within a short time.

"It is with a great deal of satisfaction that I make this announcement," said Manager Mrs. Moon. "Having had many opportunities to see various types of sound reproducing equipment in operation in various theatres, it did not take me long to come to a decision when I saw and heard the RCA Photophone projection apparatus in operation. In my opinion, having made comparisons with other sound reproducing equipment, it is the best."

"Dependent solely upon those who have so liberally patronized my theatre in the past, I felt obligated to give them the best sound reproducing equipment available. Therefore, I investigated a number of theatres where various types of sound projection apparatus had been installed and not only heard the sound delivered by them but carefully inspected the machines in the projection rooms."

Manager Mrs. Moon said she hoped she would be able to make the announcement of her opening date and the first sound picture within the next week or ten days.

Mrs. Moon also announces that she has had the walls of the Palace theatre treated for acoustics and an Overall Walker fire-proof sound screen has been installed. These improvements give the theatre the best sound in Northern Michigan, and patrons who attended the movie Saturday evening are loud in their praise of the excellent improvement made.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

"Christ Jesus" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, March 1.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things we have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached." (Luke 7:22).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Truth, Life, and Love gave Jesus authority over sin, sickness, and death. His mission was to reveal the Science of celestial being, to prove what God is and what He does for man." (p. 26).

DISTRICT TOURNEY
TO OPEN THURSDAYBASKETBALL TEAM TO BOYNE CITY FOR ANNUAL EVENT

Charlevoix drew East Jordan in Draw Saturday—Harbor Springs
Will Meet Mancelona

Charlevoix and Harbor Springs basketball quintets, leaders in the Tip of Michigan class C conference, will both appear in the opening round of the district basketball tournament to be held at Boyne City on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 5, 6 and 7.

At the draw for positions Saturday at Boyne, Charlevoix drew East Jordan. Harbor Springs meets Mancelona and Boyne City drew a bye. In the draw for second round play, Boyne City drew the winner of the Harbor Springs-Mancelona tilt, while Charlevoix drew a bye, insuring them a place in the finals providing they are victorious over East Jordan.

Charlevoix and East Jordan play Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, fast.

Following will be found information regarding the tournament:
New Rules Govern Games.
According to the new ruling found in the Michigan High School Athletic Association bulletin there are to be no overtime games in district, regional or state tournaments this year. If at the expiration of the regulation game time, the score of the teams is tied, the winning team is to be declared the one which has the greater total of the following points:

Five points are to be awarded to the team which made the greater number of field goals.

Four points are to be awarded to the team which made the greater percentage of its attempted free throws.

Three points are to be awarded to the team which made the lesser number of personal fouls.

In the event that both teams made the same number of percentage of any of the above items, the points for that item are to be divided equally between them. The team having the greater total of the above points is to be declared the winner. If the total of the above points for each team is still a tie, each member of the teams on the court at the conclusion of the game is to throw one

Speedy Relief for Sore ThroatThis Doctor's Prescription
Requires No Gargling

No longer is it necessary to gargle and choke with nasty tasting medicines to relieve sore throat. Now you can get almost instant relief with one swallow of a doctor's famous prescription. This prescription was refilled so often that the druggist who originally filled it decided to put it up under the name "Thoxline" and make it available to everyone.

The remarkable thing about Thoxline is that it relieves almost instantly, yet contains nothing harmful. It is pleasant tasting, and safe for the whole family, and is guaranteed to relieve sore throat or coughs in 15 minutes or money back. Put up ready for use in 30c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Central Drug Store and by all other good drug stores.

free throw and that team which makes the greater number is to be declared the winner. If after the first round of free throws the score is still tied, a second round is to be thrown and as many additional rounds as are necessary to decide the game. The free throws shall be thrown alternately by members of the two teams and players may attempt their throws at either basket they desire.

The team which is awarded the game on the basis of the total of points or by the throwing of free throws is to have one point added to its game score and that will stand as the official score of the game.

Towns Will Sit in Sections

Two large balconies are under construction along the sides of the gymnasium, enlarging the seating capacity to 2,000. At each game sections will be designated for the fans from the towns whose teams will be in action. The management asks that these people sit in these sections. Other spectators will have to sit in the front balcony or on the stage. When leaving the gymnasium the people at the back are asked to leave through the back exits in order to avoid confusion.

Seats Will Also Be Reserved

There are to be reserved seats in both the evening and afternoon, which will cost an additional quarter. The afternoon games will begin at 3:00 o'clock fast time. There are to be two games on both Thursday and Friday afternoons. The evening games will start at 8:00 o'clock fast time and there will be two games all three nights.

Admission to the conference games will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students.
Officials Picked
Official referees for the tournament will be John Ferenz of Traverse City and L. J. Reinke of Rogers City. The men are recognized as among the best officials in this section.

Regional Contest

Teams from the entire region will meet in Petoskey the following week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 12, 13 and 14 for the regional tournament. Two teams in each class, the winner and runner-up, will represent the region in the state tournament in Lansing March 19, 20 and 21. The final games for state championship will be played in the Michigan State College Demonstration Hall, East Lansing.

SMELT RUN IS ON IN JORDAN RIVER

FIRST CATCHES MADE THERE
LAST THURSDAY NIGHT

Run Should Be in Full Swing During Preseason Week — Close Watch
Maintained in Other Creeks

Northern Michigan's first smelt run of the 1931 season got under way last Thursday night. Like a year ago, to East Jordan, where the Jordan river flows into Lake Charlevoix, goes the distinction of having the first run.

The exodus of these tasty fish to their spawning ground this year is the earliest on record. While a close watch was being maintained at Boyne City and at other streams of the county where runs take place, the warmer waters of the Jordan evidently has caused an early run there.

Between the hours of 1:00 and 2:00 o'clock Friday morning, East Jordan sportsmen dipped several bushel of smelt. Fishing operations took place largely near the river mouth, although it is reported large quantities were also taken at the junction of Deer creek and Jordan river about one and one-half miles above the town.

It was reported that male fish outnumbered female about 20 to 1, indicating that the run was in its early stages and would increase in volume.

Friday morning East Jordan sportsmen placed a screen across Jordan river at the junction of Deer creek, thereby turning the run into the smaller and more shallow stream. Dipping conditions at Deer creek are said to be ideal.

The well equipped angler figuring to dip from the river, should either take along a boat or else have a net with at least a 10-foot handle. In most places the water is too deep for the ordinary landing net used on other streams in the county. Dipping from boats is being allowed, and as far as we can learn there are no restrictions other than a regulation of hours which allows dipping to start at 9 o'clock fast time.

Because of extreme cold and a bright moon, catches Friday night were lighter than Thursday. Catches made early in the evening were light, but reports say that Saturday morning enormous lifts were made all along the river. That the run does not get under full swing until late is evident. While conditions over the week end have not been so good for dipping, it is expected the run will continue for another week, giving everyone a chance to get their share.

So far, there have been no signs of a run in Boyne river, Advance creek, Horton creek or Stover creek at Charlevoix. It will probably be another week before the run starts in these streams, depending, of course, largely upon the weather.

Preparations are being made to be ready in event of a run in Stover creek. Lights strung along the creek last year have been put in shape, a gate put in readiness, and the channel dug from the dam to the creek mouth. It is confidently felt that with proper conditions, Stover creek will have a run the same as two years ago.

SMELT ARE FOUND IN DUNCAN BAY

Joe Lahae, Cheboygan, Makes Catch —Watch to Be Kept

Smelt have been found in Duncan Bay near Cheboygan. Joe Lahae caught four through the ice last week, and had them identified by Conservation Officer C. S. Weber. When he caught them he was puzzled as to what kind of fish they were, so he got in touch with the conservation officer, who informed him they were smelt.

With the possibility in sight of a smelt run at Cheboygan like the runs at Boyne and Boyne City, Conservation Officer Weber said a close watch would be kept on Elliott creek, which flows into Duncan bay. Smelt were reported seen there a couple of years ago. Dipping out smelt by the bushel is a common experience in several Northern Michigan streams.

MISSING FISH TUG IS SAFE AT HIGH ISLAND

Beaver Island Coast Guards Report
Sighting Craft There Today

Apprehension over safety of the gasoline fish tug Ethel S. and its crew of five Charlevoix men was removed Wednesday noon by a telephone message from St. James, stating Beaver Island coast guards had sighted the boat at High Island harbor.

The craft left here last Wednesday in charge of Ernest Smith. With him were his brother-in-law, Robt. Anderson, Bert Weaver, William Gibson and Charles Mitchell. The boat was seen off High Island Thursday by Capt. Roland McCann of the Venus, but because of the heavy storm Saturday, Sunday and Monday, considerable anxiety was felt over safety of the men.

It is probable they rode out the storm in the lee of High Island and returned to the harbor Monday. Provisions and fuel are available there.

CIVIL WAR VETER- AN ANSWERS CALL

WILLIAM WALLACE, AGE 87,
DIED FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Served Throughout Civil War Under General George B. McClellan — Legion Funeral Held Monday

William Wallace Sr., Charlevoix pioneer and one of this city's two remaining Civil War veterans, has answered his last call. Death came to him at 5 o'clock last Friday afternoon at Charlevoix hospital, where he had been taken the previous day following an extended illness.

Mr. Wallace was born June 3, 1844, at Plattsburg, N. Y., and was 87 years old at his death. He grew to young manhood there, and, at the outbreak of the Civil War, joined Company F, 96th New York Infantry on December 21, 1861, at Williamsburg, N. Y. He served under Gen. George B. McClellan throughout the war, taking part in the battles of Williamsburg, Yorktown, McLeod's Mill, Pollard, the Seven Day Battle and many others. He lost both two months of service, while sick with typhoid fever, and was mustered at Chesapeake hospital, Va., in 1865.

Mr. Wallace was married at Plattsburg, his wife dying at an early age. In 1876, he came to Charlevoix and settled on a farm in Norwood township. In 1899 he moved to Detroit, residing there six years before returning to Charlevoix, where he had since made his home with the exception of a three-year period of residence at Pellston.

Mr. Wallace was married about 50 years ago at Charlevoix to Miss Lena Miller, who survives together with three sons, William H., of Charlevoix; Forrest of Albion, N. Y., and Harrison of Floodwood, Minn.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the Methodist church under auspices of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 225, American Legion. Rev. John E. Lockyer officiated. Interment will be at Brookside cemetery.

BOYNE CITY ASSURED POSTOFFICE BUILDING

Second Deficiency Measure Passes
With $65,000 Appropriation

Boyne City residents are jubilant over a telegram received last Wednesday morning from Cong. Frank P. Bohn in Washington, D. C., stating that the second deficiency appropriation had been passed, carrying a $65,000 appropriation for a postoffice at Boyne City.

Site of the new building is now occupied by the municipal tennis courts, just north of the Wolverine hotel. It is believed work of preparing the ground will be started within a few weeks. Passage of the measure by Congress will give Boyne City the first federal building in Charlevoix county.

Election of Charlevoix County Because of the encouragement of friends from many parts of the county, the light vote cast in most precincts, and only 126 votes difference at the primary election, I have decided to try again for the position of Commissioner of Schools at the regular election, next April 6th. Slips for use at the polls will be distributed to those wishing the same, and any help given me will be greatly appreciated. Archie C. Helling.—Adv. 1011.

CHARLEVOIX WINS AT BOYNE TOURNAMENT

DEFEAT BOYNE CITY TOSSERS 13 TO 11 TO ADD DIS-TRICT TITLE TO THEIR TIP OF MICHIGAN CROWN

BASKET WORK OF MC'CALL OUTSTANDING

Central Lake Staged Come-Back to Defeat Ellsworth in Class
D Finals—Charlevoix and Boyne, Central Lake and Ellsworth, Go to Petoskey Regional Tourney

Displaying a cool and well-planned attack, Charlevoix's Red and White basketball quintet defeated Boyne City high school 13 to 11 to win the class C district title—their second championship of the season—at the Boyne City tournament last Saturday night.

It was Charlevoix's third victory of the season over Coach Brotherton's tossers, and, like in previous games, the Kipmen came from behind to win. The outcome was a great source of satisfaction to local fans, for after two weeks of rather erratic play, Kipmen returned to early-season form, displaying a cool, calculating attack which ultimately carried them to victory.

Central Lake Class D Champ

In an equally interesting contest, Central Lake high school overcame an early lead to win the class D crown from Ellsworth's lanky quintet. The final score was Central Lake 16, Ellsworth 14. Both final games were as close and hard-fought as a person would want to see any tournament.

In the class C finals, McSauby opened scoring for Charlevoix with a goal from the side lines. White evened the count with a goal and the period, marked by close defensive tactics of both teams, ended with the score 2-all.

With the second quarter barely under way, Rouse broke away for a deuce to put Boyne in the lead. Sander found the meshes for another marker. Charlevoix's lone counter came on a free toss by Ance, and when the period ended Boyne was leading 6 to 3.

Third Period Deciding Session

The third period turned out to be the deciding session. Like in the now historic Charlevoix-Harbor Springs tie game, "Cornie" McCall emerged the hero. Four times he broke away to loop through pretty deuces and give his team a deciding lead. Boyne's efforts netted them one goal by Sander, and when the third session ended, Charlevoix was out in front 11 to 8.

The final quarter was a terrific struggle, with Boyne trying hard for sufficient points to win and Charlevoix striving equally as hard to retain their advantage. Rouse scored twice for Boyne, once with a goal and once from the foul line. Ance broke through with a marker for Charlevoix, and when the final gong sounded amid wild cheers and confusion, Charlevoix led 13 to 11.

McCall Heads on Points

McCall was high point man for Charlevoix with 8. Ance made 3 points and McSauby 2. Novak and Smith, both of whom played great games, were scoreless. For Boyne, Rouse was high with 5. White, Sander and Fox each made 2.

Charlevoix won its way to the finals by a 14 to 7 victory over East Jordan. Harbor Springs trimmed Mancelona in the opening round, but Friday night dropped a close game to Boyne City by a 16 to 12 count, thus putting Boyne in the finals.

Central Lake, the class D champions, won their way to the finals by defeating Boyne Falls and Bellaire. In the other half of the bracket, Ellsworth defeated Pellston and Mackinaw City.

Charlevoix Goes to Regional

Charlevoix and Boyne, representing class C, and Central Lake and Ellsworth, representing class D, will go to the regional tournament which opens Thursday at Petoskey.

Draw Made Monday

At the draw for the regional at Petoskey Monday, Charlevoix drew Scottville, class C champions of the Mason county district. The game is scheduled at 8:35 Thursday evening, opening night of the tournament. Boyne City drew the bye and plays its first game Friday night. Rogers City and Benzonia play Thursday afternoon at 4:40. Lake City and Gaylord meet at 7:30 Thursday evening. The winner plays Boyne City in the second round. Winner of the Charlevoix-Scottville contest, plays winner of the Rogers City-Benzonia game at 8:35 Friday night.

POLAR BEARS GO TO GRAND RAPIDS MEET

Defeated Grand Rapids Industrials,
21 to 17 in Opening Game

According to a telephone message received Tuesday evening, Charlevoix Polar Bears, Northern Michigan's lone representative in the Michigan A. A. U. basketball tournament now under way at Grand Rapids, were victorious in their opening game.

The Polar Bears defeated Grand Rapids Industrials by a 21 to 17 score Tuesday night, and Wednesday night were to play VanZylen Lumber Jacks in the second round.

The team left here Monday by motor, but because of storm conditions were forced to take the train on from Traverse City. They arrived in Grand Rapids at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, missing their opening game scheduled for Monday night.

In addition to Manager Todd, team members making the trip were Davenport, Cooper, Ikens, Beaudoine, Brown, Wagner, Higman and Supernaw.

FORMER LOCAL MAN IS MAKING SUCCESS

J. L. Craoe, Jr., Goes to China on City Planning Mission

A recent issue of The Christian Science Monitor carries a story from Chicago, telling of the success of Jacob L. Craoe, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Craoe, former local residents.

The article, in part, follows:

"While the political atmosphere in China is gradually settling down, evidence of economic reconstruction progress there is indicated by the commission given Jacob L. Craoe, Jr., town planner and engineer of Chicago, to help replan the ancient city of Canton and to aid in developing a harbor and town site at Whampoa, which will be Canton's official seaport.

"Mr. Craoe's four-months trip also includes consultation with the official state planning commission of Soviet Russia on policies connected with state, city and rural planning."

REGION HAS WORST STORM OF WINTER

WEEK END BLIZZARD PILED SNOW INTO HUGE DRIFTS

Trains and Auto Traffic Except on Trunk Lines Tied Up—Region
Busy Digging Out

Charlevoix is today digging out from the most severe storm this region has experienced during the present winter season.

Starting Saturday afternoon with a strong northeast wind, the storm gathered strength until Monday it assumed hurricane proportions. Whipped by the gale, snow, which started falling late Sunday, soon piled into drifts, making automobile traffic almost impossible on country and county highways.

By working crews day and night, snow removal units were able to maintain traffic on state trunk lines. Throughout Monday and the following night, the task was an endless one. Roads filled up almost as fast as they were plowed out, and many an unlucky motorist had to be towed into the city. R. T. Davis, county road superintendent, reported the rescue of around 25 motorists who had become marooned on trunk lines both north and south of Charlevoix. Only rural carriers following routes on the trunk lines, were able to make their trips Monday. Others returned after unsuccessful attempts to battle the high drifts. Milk deliveries were far behind schedule.

Pere Marquette Railway company train No. 1 became snow-bound at Bates, north of Traverse City, and no train service has been over this line up until late this afternoon (Wednesday). Reports from Petoskey state that the Pennsylvania line was operated nearly on schedule. Charlevoix received mail deliveries Monday by bus from Petoskey, but none other.

Schools were affected by the storm. There was but one pupil in the kindergarten Monday, and only three Tuesday morning. Others of the lower grades were similarly affected. City streets and sidewalks were plugged with snow, but are now being cleaned out again.

Round lake harbor and the channel has become filled with floating ice and for the time being all boats are tied up. Fishermen with nets set in Lake Michigan are facing a possible loss from damaged equipment.

Ray Faulkner Jr., related some of his recent European experiences to an appreciative audience last Sunday evening at the Congregational church.

Noted cathedrals visited in Sicily, Italy, France, Belgium and Spain were described as well as the religious emotions naturally created by such architectural beauty quite aside from the ritualistic services themselves which are so impressive.

The magnificence of the priestly robes, the quality of the music, the dignified processions, all so remote from our own religious customs, were vividly pictured.

LEGION MINSTREL EVENT NEXT WEEK

PRODUCTION AT GYM THURS-DAY AND FRIDAY

Rehearsals Now Under Way—Large Cast of Local Characters to Appear in Production

"Minstrel Chuckles," the show to be presented by Charlevoix American Legion at the school gymnasium, Thursday and Friday, March 19 and 20, is being rehearsed every afternoon and evening. Under the direction of Karl Johnson of the John B. Rogers Producing Co., the production is progressing with much enthusiasm. Mr. Johnson is greatly pleased with talent selected and predicts a near-professional show.

"Minstrel Chuckles" is a show replete with music of every description suited to this type of production. The jolly mélange of song and jest is considered the most varied program yet attempted by local performers, promising something interesting each moment.

A special feature will be a child pageant in which many school children will participate. The musical number of this event will be "The Toy Town Admirer." The scene is laid in a doll shop with children assuming the part of dolls.

Costumes and scenery have not been slighted in equipping "Minstrel Chuckles." Costumes for the minstrel first part are of satin, as are those of the "Eskimo Maid" and so on throughout, until an entire cast is costumed in a manner, without exaggeration, that has never before been approached in Charlevoix amateur theatricals. Diverse scenes ranging from "Sunny Spain" to the North Pole are brought out more forcibly by scenery that is the work of artists.

Opening with a prologue, the audience is introduced to the Master of Ceremonies, taken by Mr. North, to the Soubrette, taken by Miss French, who is assisted by the Chinese maids in the persons of Guillermo Tilley, Marguerite Hull, Helen Laskot, Marjorie Webster, Adaline Bellinger and Barbara Withers. Charles Hamlin assumes the part of the ballad singer, singing the popular number, "When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver."

The minstrel first part brings four hull throwers in the persons of Leo Carey, George Whitley, George Cook and David Howard, and twelve torch-dancers in the persons of Charles Blech, Stanley Hammond, Lloyd Swartout, Fay Bradley, Bill Brown, Barker Kirby, Charles Hamlin, Jeff Novatny, Clarence Arnold, Dr. Winder, Bert Carey and Charles Martini.

The second part has many interesting specialties, including "Saw Mill River Road" with Marjorie Partridge and Dorothy Partridge taking the leads, assisted by "Barefoot Days Chorus" including Mandy Scott, Lucille Bogart, Marjorie Carey, Kathryn Westfall, Hilda Ogden, Helen Halversen, Marion Tuhy and Luella Hendrickson.

Another feature of the production is the "Sweetheart Chorus" consisting of chorus girls and chorus boys. This group includes Bill Brown, Bob Foster, Ralph Lemieux, Glen Heise, Angie Scott, Esther Brady, Aberdeen, LaBlanc and Agnes Brown.

The after part of the show is a skit named "Tut Tut Tuttle." Those taking part in this comedy skit are, Norrene Moran as Dot Wilson, Fay Bradley as I. M. Slick, Warren Kihne as Tuttle, Fenton R. Bulow as Little Nell, Bob Foster as Hull Sheviki and Oscar Nelson as Icyeye Ike. The choruses in this skit are the "Eskimo Maids" and "Detectives." The Eskimo Maids include Marjorie Partridge, Julia Glados, Jean Stelter, Alyce Usher, Dorothy Partridge and Byrness Lemphear. The Detectives include Esther O'Neill, Dorothy Miller, June Day, Ernestine Chew and Hilda Roen.

Buy your tickets early. They may be gotten from all members of the Legion, and members of the cast.

Special Meeting Called

A special meeting of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 225, American Legion, has been called by Commander Lee Allard for Thursday evening at 7:30, at the Legion hall. All ex-soldiers, whether members or not, are urgently requested to be present.

Don't miss the "Third Time" party sponsored by the Legion and Firemen at the school gymnasium Tuesday evening, March 17. Ten prizes for best costumes. Dress up if you want to have a good time. Old-time fiddler and five-piece dance orchestra.—Adv. 1011.

FISHERMEN SEEK BETTER MARKETS

MET AT BAY CITY FOR THEIR ANNUAL CONVENTION

Market "Corner" in New York Under Fire—Fred R. Ming Attacks Conservation Policies

Accused by what they termed as deplorable marketing conditions in New York and fearing a repetition of the same conditions in Chicago, nearly 100 fishermen from all over Michigan met at Bay City last Monday.

They discussed ways of combating a so-called combination which they say has been formed in Peck's slip, New York, principal eastern market for lake fish, and also a similar combination which rumor says is in process of formation in a vital market in Chicago.

The fishermen claim the eastern combination has dealt with them under the most unsatisfactory conditions since last spring, with a resultant loss of revenue of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and should such a combination be set up in Chicago, it will be necessary to form a new chain of outlets for their products.

They said that they have been virtually forced to make shipments to the eastern market without price quotations having been furnished them. Under a previous arrangement the marketing was done on a commission basis and the revenue was said to be more stable as price quotations were available.

Fishermen at the meeting were from all points around the Saginaw bay, in addition to Marquette, Cheboygan, Alpena, St. Ignace, Breckinridge, Manistique, Menominee, Beaver Island, Traverse City, Grand Haven, Drummond Island, Hammond's bay, and Fayette.

The following article, taken from the Michigan State Digest, gives account of a meeting in Lansing, at which Fred R. Ming, Cheboygan, flayed the conservation department for rulings now imposed upon commercial fishermen:

Nets showing the size of the mesh used by commercial fishermen in Michigan waters featured the fish dinner given Senate and House fish committee members, and other legislators, last week by commercial fishermen of Michigan. Senator Chester M. Howell, acted as toastmaster. More than half the membership of both Senate and House attended. Many of them learned for the first time, what trap nets, submarine nets, and the like, actually are. Fred R. Ming, Speaker of the House, was the principal speaker of the evening.

Without mincing words the speaker, long an ardent conservationist, bitterly assailed the department of conservation for its policy of alleged discrimination against the commercial fishing industry in Michigan. "It is foolish to believe that the commercial fishermen in Michigan would sponsor and advocate legislation which would, in the end, tend to destroy their business," declared Ming. He pictured the increasing expenditures, of the department, its increasing attitude of disregard for public opinion and declared that the department of conservation faces a real test in the present assembly as to whether it is to continue to function as it has during the past four years or come back to earth and "function as the legislature and the people as a whole intend it shall function."

Legislators exhibited keen interest in the various types and sizes of nets. Commercial fishermen are seeking legal use of mesh sizes other than those laid down by department idealists. — Michigan State Digest.

SHOULD TEST HERDS EVEN IN BAD TIMES

Lack of Production Records May Result in Serious Losses to Dairymen

The dairyman who permits his membership in the herd improvement association to lapse in the belief that his pocketbook will be benefited by the elimination of this expense is apt to forget that the feed eaten by one poor cow or the sale of a good cow whose worth is not known from testing records will cost the owner much more than the expense for testing, according to members of the dairy department at Michigan State college.

This tendency to false economy is shown by the decrease in the number of herd associations in Michigan which dropped from 90 one year ago to 88 at the present time. Dairy husbandry men point out that test records are more important in times of small profit than when there is a wider margin between feed costs and production receipts.

Production records furnish the least expensive exact means of determining the amount of milk or butterfat produced by a cow, and a record of the amount of feed eaten by the cow furnishes the rest of the data needed to show how much profit the cow makes for her owner or the amount of money lost.

The herd improvement associations are cooperative organizations in which each member pays an amount proportionate to the number of cows in his herd. The tester's wages are practically the only expense and these are divided among the twenty-five members of the association.

SPRING PLANTING IS BEST—PLAN FOR IT NOW

By GODFREY McDONALD, Manager Charlevoix County Nursery

A beautiful and well kept lawn is the basis of the garden picture for it unites the various plant groups and features in a pleasing and harmonious whole. Such an important factor in creating and inviting outdoor living room deserves special consideration at this time so that the lawn will appear well groomed throughout the coming season.

When the frost has left the ground give the lawn a dressing with bone meal (½ pound to each square yard) and dry wood ashes (¼ pound). After a shower or two has washed these into the soil apply ground sheep manure (¼ pound) and when the growth starts add soda nitrate (¼ pound).

Old lawns should be renovated in early spring by covering them with a one-inch layer of equal parts good loam and pulverized peatmoss to which is added a six-inch flowerpotful of both bones flour and ground sheep manure. Before applying this dressing roll the lawn while it is wet, using a heavy roller, and repeat after the covering has been applied. Level the ground by filling the hollows and shaving down the mounds, then roll again.

Seeding in new lawn in spring is best done as early as the ground can be worked. Prepare the soil thoroughly by digging, raking and rolling until the surface is smooth, hard and even. Grass is a gross feeder and fertilizer is most necessary in obtaining attractive results. Well rotted manure or one of the reliable prepared fertilizers should be applied and raked into the surface. Don't make the mistake of plowing the fertilizer in for it will then be buried beyond the reach of the grass roots.

To insure even distribution of the seed stretch strings as guides from end to end and side to side about 8 feet apart. Sow half the amount of seed lengthwise and the remaining Willow so appealing in springtime.

half crosswise in strips between pairs of the strings. After the seed has been sown rake the lawn lightly and then roll thoroughly.

When the growth starts apply 6 pounds of soda nitrate (or ammonium sulphate) superphosphate and sulphate (or muriate) of potash to each thousand square feet. Repeat in early June and again when fall rains start in September. If rain does not follow after you have applied these chemicals be sure to wash them into the ground with the hose or they will burn the plants.

Allow the grass to grow to a height of three inches and then give the first cutting with the mower set to cut two inches above the ground.

SHRUBS SUITABLE FOR FORCING INTO BLOOM INDOORS

Sprays of many of the interesting spring flowering shrubs may be cut and forced into bloom indoors. Such branches lend themselves to interesting Japanese-like arrangements.

Place the cut branches in water and allow them to open naturally. Another way of forcing such cut sprays into bloom, if you do not mind the extra effort, is to place the branches in a large tub in the basement and spray them with hot water several times a day.

The cherry yellow blooms of Golden Bell (Forsythia intermedia, F. suspensa and F. fortunei) can easily be forced indoors. Flowering Japanese Quince will show white blooms if brought indoors during January; later in the season they will show pink flowers, and in spring they are deep red. Spirea Thunbergi produces dainty sprays of small, star-like white flowers. Another yellow-flowering shrub whose blossoms are pleasingly clove-scented is the Golden Currant. And, of course, there are the well known Apple and Pear blossoms, and the furry catkins of Pussy

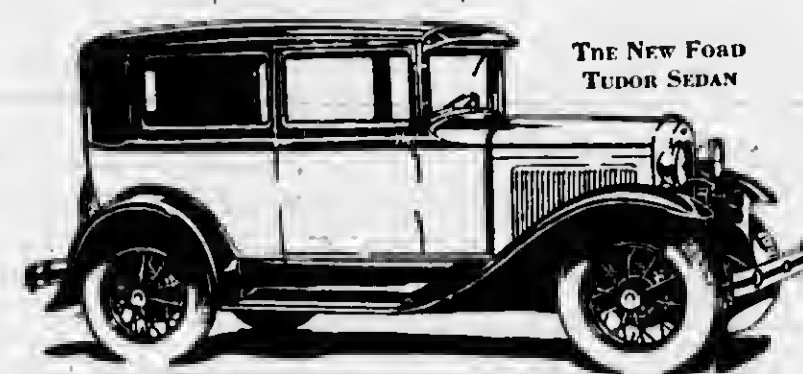

More than 73,000 miles in a New Ford

THE substantial worth of the new Ford is reflected in its good performance, economy and reliability. Its stamina and endurance are particularly apparent in sections where bad roads and severe weather put a heavy extra burden on the automobile.

In less than a year a new Ford Tudor Sedan was driven more than seventy-three thousand miles over a difficult route. The operating cost per mile was very low and practically the only expense for repairs was for new piston rings and a new bearing for the generator.

The car carried an average load of 1200 pounds of mail and was driven 250 miles daily. "The Ford has never failed to go when I was ready," writes one of the three mail carriers operating the car. "The starter did the trick last winter even at 34 degrees below zero. The gas runs about 20 miles per gallon. At times I pull a trailer whenever I have a bulky load."

Many other Ford owners report the same satisfactory performance. Every part has been made to endure—to serve you faithfully and well for many thousands of miles.

BITS OF INFORMATION

Turkeys convey papeworms to chickens, and chickens convey black-head to turkeys. Don't raise both unless you can keep them well separated.

Plan to raise young pigs free from roundworms by following the system of swine sanitation developed by the U. S. department of agriculture. Write to the department for leaflet 5-L. It gives the details. Also avoid trouble with flies in summer by plowing under straw and manure.

Modern equipment helps to lower potato production costs. The old-time method of plowing the land with a pair of horses and a man-held one-furrow walking plow is rapidly being supplanted by a tractor-drawn plow that turns 2, 3 or more, 12, 13 or 16-inch furrows and that is provided with sufficient tractive power to plow to a depth of 12 inches or more if desired. The same power can be supplied to a cutaway disk and harrow two or three times the width of the ordinary 2-horse implements. The use of 2, 3 and 4 row tractor-drawn planters, cultivators, and sprayers saves the labor and lowers costs. The tractor is also gradually replacing the horse in hauling the elevator digger, as shown by the use of 2 and 3 row diggers.

Uncle Sam Says
Hawatha, Ottawa, and Marquette are the names selected to identify three national forests created recently in Michigan.

Last year, for the first time in at least ten years, the farm population of the country increased instead of diminishing.

A federal trapper has been working at one of the western air mail landing fields killing badgers that were digging holes and endangering landings.

Reed canary grass is a promising new forage grass for the North Central states.

To Get Rid of Garlic
The plowing of tillable land in early spring, immediately followed by the growing of a thoroughly cultivated row crop, will control wild garlic, a troublesome weed in small-grain fields and in pastures. This method usually must be followed for three years to clean up most of the garlic. Garlicy-wheat produces garlic-tainted bread, and milk from cows that graze on garlic-infested pastures is tainted.

Coal Operators Grow Timber Crop
A Pennsylvania group of coal operators controlling 43,000 acres has planted 16,000 acres to forest trees in the last few years, according to Elwood Burgess of Windber, Pa., who spoke before a recent forestation conference at Mont Alto. Mr. Burgess, who manages the lands, reported the effort to practice continuous timber production in the older stands also. Two small sawmills are operated. Marketing is given consideration, and hardwoods are being sold at a profit, the forest service is informed.

Battery Brooding
Proper feeding is important in battery brooding of poultry, since the chicks have no chance to get the green feed, minerals, and insects usually picked up on range. Feed the chicks an all-mash ration which should include minerals, milk, and some substitute for green feed—alfalfa meal, for example. The U. S. department of agriculture has obtained excellent growth in chicks confined to brooder houses on the following all-mash ration: 40 per cent yellow corn meal, 22 per cent ground wheat, 10 per cent corn gluten meal, 10 per cent dried buttermilk, 10 per cent ment scrap, 3 per cent fine oyster shell, 2.5 per cent alfalfa-leaf meal, 2 per cent yeast, and .5 per cent salt. The department recommends adding from 1 to 2 per cent cod-liver oil (mixed fresh in the ration every 10 days). Cod-liver oil prevents leg weakness caused by lack of vitamin D and sunlight.

THE COMMUNITY AND ITS BANKS

By ROME C. STEPHENSON

President American Bankers Association

While upon the individual bankers there rests without qualification the direct responsibility for the prudent, honest conduct of their institutions, nevertheless the soundness of banking as a practical matter of fact is a community problem in which the public has a part to play as well as bankers and government officials charged with the supervision of banks.

In the first place, the assets of a bank, outside its government bonds, consist mainly of loans to business men and of investments in securities created by corporate enterprises. The deposits of a bank are not kept in the vaults as idle cash but are employed in these loans and investments to earn the money to pay the expenses of the bank so that it can render services to its customers and also pay them interest on such deposits as bear interest. If there were no such thing as unsound business men or enterprises there would be no such thing as unsound assets in a bank.

It is of course the unquestioned duty of the banker to choose only sound loans and investments, but the difficulty of such judgment, and human judgment is never infallible, is plainly increased in such times and under such conditions as we have been passing through, with many businesses not making expected earnings and therefore hampered in meeting their obligations. Unfortunately some investments and loans created by persons outside the banks which found their way into the banks in a relatively few instances have reflected the unwise business policies and conditions that became more than usually prevalent in our business activities and contributed to the difficulty of banking. The vast bulk of bank assets, however, are 100 per cent sound above all question.

"Hard Roiled" vs. "Easy" Banker
In another aspect the people of the community have a part to play in maintaining the soundness of their banks, and that is, through the medium of patronage. The existence of a bank is dependent on public patronage. If only those banks were patronized in which the most careful policies were practiced and the most conscientious and able men in charge, it would go far toward maintaining the standards of banking. If business men in a community when refused loans by their banks for good and sufficient reasons because conditions are not favorable, thereupon withdraw their business to banks where less careful methods prevail, they clearly contribute to the creation of a less sound banking situation.

Also it is the heart of competition, a banker offers higher interest rates or more free service to attract customers than the earnings of conservative banking justify, and is encouraged by the patronage of the public as against a more conservative bank, obviously the public is again playing a part in bringing about a less sound banking situation. It is an unfortunate fact that the banker who is strict, "hard boiled" if you please, is liable to be less popular than the "easy" banker, and by that same token the public itself has a voice in influencing the character of banking. Also it is the public in the end which pays the main part of the penalty if unfortunate results follow.

Still again the public can exert an influence in shaping the character of banking by supporting the purposes of bankers to maintain intelligent, independent, honest banking supervision by the public banking departments through insisting that this function of government shall be kept as free from political influence as the judiciary itself and shall be manned only by men of the highest ability and character.

In still another way can the people themselves contribute to maintaining the ability of their banks to meet their obligations, and this is by granting them the fullest possible confidence. As I said, the deposits are not kept as cash but are invested in loans and securities. Even the soundest assets of this type require some time to reconvert at full value into cash deposits. In many cases of bank troubles the only thing wrong with a bank was an unduly suspicious and apprehensive state of mind in its customers created by no act or condition of its own but by baseless rumors which sometimes led them to destroy the value of their own deposits by demanding them immediately, forcing a bank to sacrifice its assets and otherwise disrupt its financial operations.

PLAN STUDY COURSE FOR FLOWER GROWER

Methods of Beautifying Rural and City Homes to Be Discussed

Knowledge of how to grow flowers so that the farm or city home becomes a pleasing attraction for the eyes of its owners and of those who pass by is the purpose of the five day course of training in ornamental horticulture given at Michigan State college, March 23 to 27.

Accustoming the students to a love for hard work is apparently one of the designs of the course, as classes have been arranged to start at eight o'clock in the morning and to continue throughout the day and evening. Lectures on the various subjects will be illustrated to give those enrolled in the course an exact picture of the way flower gardens should be planned and planted.

A study of ways to grow fruit in the garden, instruction on the planting of nuts, and talks on the care of bees will be given during the five days for the benefit of those who like to combine practical production with the care of flowers.

Methods of building rock gardens, which are enjoying marked popularity at the present time, will be discussed. Those who like to be the first in their neighborhood to have plants in bloom will be told how to build forcing beds to secure early plants for transplanting.

Twenty instructors will teach classes in this course. Complete information can be obtained from R. W. Tenny, director of short courses, M. S. C., East Lansing.

MONEY TO BURN

BY PETER B. KYNE

Nellie nodded and Elmer strode out of the bank, nor did he utter another syllable. Nellie did not blame him in the least, for there are moments when silence is golden.

It was not an easy task to frighten Elmer Clarke. Elmer had tried that and failed. Nellie Catheart, however, had not. Not only in frightening Elmer, but in securing the money—a fine of which she was fully aware when, upon returning from her lunch, she was informed by Mr. Critchfield, the cashier, that Elmer must be planning to take a journey, she had just purchased two thousand dollars' worth of travelers' checks.

Nellie left the bank and walked swiftly to Main street to the public telephone office and sought a booth.

"Nellie Catheart, Elmer. Are you going away?"

"Yes, I am," Elmer's voice was lugubrious.

"When?"

"The minutes from now. I'm motoring to San Francisco and will take the Overland Limited from there."

"Whether away, Elmer?"

"To Muscatine, Iowa, to look after my interests."

"And you were going away without a word of farewell to me?"

"Yes, I was," sagaciously.

"I had no idea I didn't deserve such treatment, Elmer."

"You don't. You're an angel," Elmer's voice had a slight catch in it now.

"Well, you could drop over to the bank for a minute to say goodbye—couldn't you? I'll not pick on you."

"I know it, Nellie. That's just the trouble. I require a lot of picking up. I'm the wild ass of the universe."

"Well, Elmer darling, I'm afraid I'm not well up on natural history, but isn't it a characteristic of the wild ass to run away when frightened?"

Elmer instantly lied to her for the first time. "Oh, I'm not frightened, Nellie. What have I got to be frightened about?"

"You act as if you are afraid of me."

"Not afraid of you, Nellie—just a little ashamed to face you, that's all. I'm going away to—well, I think I ought to go away for a while, for the good of my soul."

"Why don't you go to Los Angeles again?"

"Nellie! Please, please!"

"Silly old dear, I am picking on you after all. I'm sorry. I'll not do it again. Tell me, Elmer, have I ruined your romance?"

"Nellie, why did you hold up that check the first time?"

"A woman's instinct. I thought if I gave you time to reconsider, you might change your mind. And wasn't I right, Elmer dear? You did change your mind, didn't you? As soon as you had time to think things over you stopped payment on the check."

"That's right," he agreed listlessly.

"Are you sorry now that you stopped payment?"

"No, I'm not," Elmer said again.

"I thought you might be. One cannot treat one's fiancée so casually and hope to escape unscathed. Elmer, I feel badly at such treatment myself."

"She's not my fiancée."

"But you told me she was. You jilted me for her. Surely you must have been quite certain of your ground before you disclosed your altered feelings toward me."

"Well, she's no fiancée of mine," he protested doggedly.

"Then, pray, what is she? A friend?"

"An enemy?"

"Perhaps."

"Elmer, did you promise to lend her the money or give it to her?"

"She asked for a loan."

"For how long. Did she offer any security?"

"No security. It was a Kathleen Mavourneen loan."

"I don't understand, Elmer."

"It may be for years and it may be forever," he quoted from the Celtic ballad.

"But you agreed to make the loan, didn't you?"

"Certainly. Didn't I send my check?"

"You did. It's too bad you didn't send her the cash—by express. Then your ex-sweetheart wouldn't have learned your silly secret, and you wouldn't now face the necessity for running away because you're afraid to face me again. Elmer darling, I very greatly fear you're just a little bit cowardly."

He was stung to the core of his being. "I'm not a coward," he replied coldly. "I have a Distinguished Service cross to prove that."

"That's the animal courage. I was referring to moral courage."

Elmer saw he was outnumbered and outmaneuvered and if he would escape annihilation, he must withdraw from the fight forthwith. "That sort of talk will never get you anywhere with me," he warned her. "I'm quite capable of attending to my own business."

Elmer certainly had been mismanaging lately. Without any volunteer help you would be absorbing a thousand dollar loss right now, and with that little gold digger on your hands you'd be operating in red ink before the first of the year."

"Who told you she was a gold digger?"

"You did."

"I didn't."

"Not in so many words. But you stopped payment on your check, which is an admission that you suspect she is a gold digger."

"Well, that's my business, and I don't see any necessity for arguing the matter with you. It's a closed chapter."

"My word, you're an optimist. What caused you to stop payment of your check?"

"That's some more of my business."

"You're so immersed in your business you haven't had the decency to thank me for saving you a thousand dollars and possible entanglement with an adventuress. Elmer, in addition to being a little bit cowardly I'm afraid you're a little bit ungrateful and a little bit untruthful."

"Nellie," he said lastly, "I'm guilty on all three counts. I'm terribly sorry. Ordinarily I wouldn't—that is, I wouldn't—I mean to you—you're so fine—I—Nellie, I'm not very happy and I want to go away and forget it. I'm ashamed to look you in the eye."

"I understand thoroughly, Elmer. Well, you're forgiven everything—all except running away like a frightened dog. Really, you act as if you are terribly afraid of something."

"I am, but I can't discuss it over the telephone. Tell you what I'll do, Nellie. I'll delay my departure and you come to dinner with me tonight."

"I'd love to, Elmer, but not tonight. But I can go with you tomorrow night. I'm too busy to see you before then."

Reluctantly Elmer agreed to her counter proposal and Nellie, hugely satisfied with herself, hung up and returned to the bank, where she wrote the following letter to J. Fitzgerald, acting captain of detectives, Los Angeles police department:

"Dear Captain Fitzgerald:

"With reference to the matter we discussed over the long-distance telephone, when I told you that a check in favor of Doris Gatewood had been received at this bank and was being returned with the notation 'Signature of Indorser irregular':

"You will be glad to know that your action in conforming to my request and mailing anonymously to Mr. Clarke the police records and rogues' gallery photographs of Colorado Charley has borne rich fruit. Within a few minutes after its receipt Mr. Clarke called at the bank and ordered payment stopped on the check. He was much disturbed. Shortly thereafter he purchased two thousand dollars' worth of travelers' checks here, so I realized he was about to leave the state."

"Immediately I made it my business to call him up and ascertained, without letting him know I was pumping him, that he is frightened and panicky. Evidently he has compromised himself, probably in writing, and now fears reprisals from the outraged and disappointed lady in the shape of a suit for breach of promise. My personal opinion is, however, that now they realize his suspicions are aroused, they will endeavor to extract as large a cash settlement as possible, guaranteeing no publicity in return. Of course we must protect him by catching them in the act of levying blackmail, and if Mr. Clarke fled the state we couldn't do that, could we? So I have managed to delay his departure forty-eight hours."

"This letter will reach you via the same train that carries Mr. Clarke's rejected check back to the Los Angeles bank. In fact, it will reach you earlier than that, because I am sending it special delivery. Immediately upon receipt of it, please arrange to have the movements of this unsavory couple watched and report to me by telephone."

"Yours truly,

"Nellie Catheart."

CHAPTER XI

The following afternoon Nellie received a long distance call from Los Angeles. Acting Captain of Detectives J. Fitzgerald was reporting:

"Sent a man out to watch the house as soon as I got your letter," he announced. "The bank must have telephoned them about the check, for at half past ten they called a taxi and went down to the office of a shyster attorney. They were there two hours and then returned to the bungalow. As soon as my man reported they were in conference with that particular lawyer the whole thing was as clear as mud."

"They're going up to Pilarcitos to shake the boy down as sure as death and taxes, so I have started two good men for Pilarcitos in a fast automobile. They will install a dictograph in the young fellow's house and listen in on the unholy proposition. I want you to provide a fast and accurate stenographer to take down every word. Can you do that?"

"The fastest and most accurate stenographer in this county," Nellie replied quietly.

"Good girl! Now, then, I'm going to leave it to you to arrange for a clear field for my men. They've got to be alone in that house for an hour."

"I have already arranged that. I will explain the details to your representative when he calls tomorrow morning."

"Thanks. We'll land 'em out in the tall grass, never fear. I'll phone you if anything new develops."

He did—at eight-thirty a. m. next day, to report that Colorado Charley and his holy friend had purchased tickets from Los Angeles to Pilarcitos and return; that they were due in Pilarcitos at nine-two that night.

At ten o'clock a sleepy-looking man walked into the bank and immediately sought Nellie Catheart's window, a small gold sign bearing Nellie's name serving as a clue.

"I'm Detective Sergeant Fahy, from Los Angeles," he announced. "The chief sent me and my partner up with orders to report to you."

"I'm pleased to meet you, Mr. Fahy. Here are your instructions," and she handed him a sealed envelope. "Good morning."

"Just met the smartest June in the world," Mr. Fahy confided to his partner, Detective Sergeant Abraham Lipowsky, when he rejoined the latter on the sidewalk. "She takes no chances on him! Seen in long, earnest conversation with a strange man, so she had the dope all typed out and waiting for us. 'Pleased to meet you, Goodby,' says she."

He tore open the envelope and read to Lipowsky:

"Colorado Charley and Mae are due in Pilarcitos at 9:30 tonight. They will probably go direct to Mr. Clarke's house, a shingled bungalow, at No. 302 C street, corner of Hazel drive."

"At seven o'clock tonight Mr. Clarke will leave his home to take me to dinner. He will not return until shortly after ten o'clock. As soon as he has left the house his colored servant will go uptown to spend the evening. You can gain entrance to the house by using a skeleton key on the kitchen door, the lock of which is simple and old-fashioned, since burglars seldom operate in Pilarcitos."

"You can set up your dictograph behind the old hair sofa in the parlor and run your wires along the edge of the wall, draw them up back of the piano and out the window, around the back of the house to the garage. Nobody will disturb you there as Mr. Clarke keeps his car in an uptown garage."

"When Mr. Clarke drops me at my house and proceeds to the uptown garage, I will come over to his garage with a large flashlight torch, a stenographer's notebook and several sharp pencils. The fender of the flivver will serve as a desk. I will knock twice on the door—a pause between each rap. The rest I leave to you."

"Well, what do you know about that, dandy?" said Detective Sergeant Lipowsky.

"I'd ask her to marry me if I stood a Chinaman's chance—which I don't," Detective Sergeant Fahy replied sadly.

Promptly at seven o'clock Elmer called for Nellie and carried her off to Joe Angellotti's road house for dinner. Not once during the ride out did Nellie refer to Elmer's unfortunate predicament; seemingly she was not interested in it and not until they were halfway through dinner did Elmer broach the subject himself.

"Can't linger to do any dancing here tonight, Nellie. I must get home early."

Nellie seemed disappointed, so he hastened to excuse his action.

"I'm afraid I'm in for a bad hour between nine and ten tonight, Nellie. I had a wire from Doris Gatewood this morning. She's coming up to see me and she asked me to be at home tonight."

"Now, what do you suppose she wants?" Nellie's tones were freighted with a languid interest. She helped herself to an olive and ate it with relish. Elmer, watching her sharply, was reassured.

"Well, of course, in so far as that young lady is concerned I've done an about-face, so I suppose she wants an explanation."

"She doesn't want any explanation. She doesn't even want your affection. All she's after is your cash."

SEEK AIRPLANE TAX TO BUILD AIRPORTS

FUNDS WILL BE SPENT LARGE-LY IN NORTHERN COUNTIES

Bill Introduced This Week Supports Amendment Sought, Allow State Aid in Project

A bill is being introduced in the Michigan state legislature this week requiring that all aircraft in the State of Michigan be registered and be required to pay a state registration fee along the lines of the state automobile weight tax. The money received from this source to be covered into the state highway fund and to be used for the development of the state landing fields. This bill is in keeping with the constitutional amendment adopted by the legislature last week, wherein they approved an amendment permitting the state to develop landing fields. This amendment to go before the people for their approval at the April election.

The funds received from this registration tax, together with the aviation gasoline tax money, the latter of which, has been accumulated the past two years will be expended upon the development of landing fields, particularly in the northern part of the state where the rugged terrain and the enormous wooded areas require that clearings be made in order that aircraft can safely land in case of a severe storm or motor trouble.

The establishment of frequent landing fields along the regular airways of Michigan is surely to add materially to the development of aerial transportation and will greatly increase the number of people who will visit the northern summer resorts and winter play-grounds.

The Michigan Board of Aeronautics contemplates establishing 40 landing fields within the next two years. These fields to be located generally on state-owned lands and close to municipalities. The state contemplates only developing landing fields and do not contemplate going into the development of any airports where repair service, etc., is maintained. After clearing the areas and making them safe for the landing of aircraft the areas will be sold or leased to the nearby municipality for further development and for operation.

At a joint meeting of the House and Senate this week, Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, emphasized Michigan's present supremacy in the aviation world and asked the legislators to continue with their progressive aviation legislation, especially in the way of establishing landing fields. Capt. Rickenbacker predicts that just as the paved highways developed the automobile industry, so will be the establishment of landing fields develop the aviation industry.

STATE MOVES TO AID AVIATION IN NORTH

Constitutional Amendment Will Allow Funds for Purpose

The Michigan state legislature this week took one of the most progressive forward steps in assisting in the development of the aviation industry in the State of Michigan that has yet been taken. The legislature approved a constitutional amendment authorizing the state to participate in the development of landing fields.

This amendment now goes before the people for their approval at the polls at the April election.

Two years ago certain laws were passed authorizing the state to develop landing fields and an aviation gasoline tax levying three cents per gallon tax was passed.

Since approximately $63,000.00 has been collected through this source, all of which has been covered into the state highway fund. The ruling of the state attorney general's office indicated that the laws allowing the state to develop landing fields would very probably be ruled unconstitutional. As a result the state administrative board have declined to spend any of the gasoline tax money until such a time as the constitution was changed.

If Michigan is now to take its place on a national aviation map, it must start its airport development program.

With nearly 2,000,000 acres of state-owned lands well distributed throughout the northern counties; the Michigan Board of Aeronautics contemplates establishing 40 landing fields within the next two years, locating these fields almost entirely on a portion of the state-owned lands. In this manner, the expenditure for landing field development will be very nominal.

CONFERENCE TITLE TO LOCAL QUINTET

CHARLEVOIX LEADS CLASS C
LEAGUE ON PERCENTAGE

Record of 8 Victories in 8 Conference Games Gives .750 Standing—Harbor Springs Second Win, lose or draw, Charlevoix high school basketball team will receive a trophy following the final game at the Petoskey regional tournament Saturday night.

Figuring standings of various teams in the Tip of Michigan class C conference following their pre-tournament schedules, Charlevoix leads on a percentage basis by 36 points, thus giving them the conference title. Communication with other conference schools by local officials has verified the standing.

Charlevoix played 8 conference games. They won 6, tied one and lost one, giving them a percentage of .750 for the season. Harbor Springs, second place winner, played 7 games, winning 5, tying one and losing one for a percentage of .714. Boyne City, who lost two games to Charlevoix and one to Harbor Springs, is in third position.

Charlevoix played all six teams in the Tip of Michigan conference with but a single defeat. In addition, they won twice from Traverse City and an equal number of games from Petoskey, both class B schools. Harbor Springs played all conference teams with the exception of Gaylord.

A trophy, signifying championship of the Tip of Michigan class C conference for 1930-31, will be awarded to Charlevoix at the close of the regional tournament at Petoskey Saturday night. Supt. A. J. Duncanson of East Jordan, president of the conference, will present the trophy.

Despite Charlevoix's advantage, it must be said that there was little to choose from between the three league leaders. Competition was very close and games were decided by small margins. The past season will go down on record as one of the outstanding years in basketball annals Northern Michigan has ever known.

SPEARING RAINBOW EXPENSIVE SPORT

Violators Taken by Wardens Fike and Muckle Pay $33.25 Each

Adam Kroeski and Emanuel Grathvil, farmers residing south of East Jordan, have found that spearing rainbow trout is an expensive sport.

They were arrested at 2 o'clock Friday morning by Wardens Henry Fike of Charlevoix, and Jack Muckle of Central Lake, who caught them red-handed in the act. The same afternoon Justice George Hanna of Central Lake, fined them $33.25 each, making the 40 pounds or so of fish they speared worth around $1.50 a pound. Mighty expensive! Grathvil's young son, Emanuel, who was also implicated, was placed on probation for six months.

Wardens Fike and Muckle, who had been watching the Jordan closely for violators, saw tracks made by a car hauling a sleigh into Graves Crossing. Sensing something was up, they waited at Jordan river bridge. Sure enough, along came the culprits, boat, jack-light, spears and all. The car and sleigh was waiting for them there. They hadn't speared a fish yet, however, so told the driver to "meet them at Webster bridge farther down the river."

Fike and Muckle, who had been in hiding and heard the conversation, moved down to Webster bridge also. Later, when the violators appeared, the wardens were waiting. Sensing they were caught, the men threw their fish into the river. About 40 pounds were recovered, however, providing plenty of evidence. The arrest and fine followed.

SOLON SEEKS SHORT- TROUT NETTING BAN

Lake Michigan would be closed for trout between Oct. 10 and Nov. 12 of each year and Lake Superior closed to yellow pickerel fishing from March 1 to April 30, according to a bill introduced by Rep. Louis Anderson of Northport.

Another measure calls for referendums in counties of over 200,000 in the question of whether county officials shall be paid a salary to be fixed by the supervisors or shall be paid under the fee system.

STATE OWNED SKIING ARENA BEING URGED

Grayling Man Proposes Public Winter Sport Facilities

Request for a state-owned tobogganing and skiing arena to afford Michigan residents winter sport activities without cost will be made by T. W. Hanson, Grayling lumberman.

Northern Michigan, Hanson predicted, will compete with Lake Placid, Quebec, and even the Swiss Alps as a public winter sporting ground within a few years. He said that interest in the up-state was gradually increasing and demands for such an arena would have to be met.

Hanson said he based his assertion upon a previous incident which occurred at Lake Margrethe when the Grayling board of trade built a toboggan slide there. It was constructed with the intention that it be used by residents of the city.

However, within a short time the lumberman asserted, winter sport enthusiasts were convening here from cities as far away as Saginaw, Bay City and Detroit. If the state owned arena would stimulate similar interest, such a project is warranted, Hanson declared.

He said that on behalf of the winter public he would ask the state military board to set aside a small area in the 15,000 Hanson Military reserve, presented by his father as a public arena to be operated under the state park system.

RAILROAD OPENS OWN TRUNK LINE

Express Trucks to Carry Package
Freight to Elk Rapids for P. M.

A motor freight service between Traverse City and Elk Rapids is being inaugurated by the Pere Marquette railroad—the first step by a railroad in Northern Michigan to meet motor truck competition in the truck lines' own field.

A Railway Express truck will carry freight of less than carload lots to and from Elk Rapids daily, the express company, which is a division of the railroads, furnishing its equipment for the new service.

Previously the Pere Marquette had two freight trains a week into Elk Rapids. Now regular train service is abandoned and freight of carload lots will be taken into or out of Elk Rapids whenever there are cars to be hauled, Trainmaster Pierce said.

AT THE MOVIES Machinery and Animals Intrigue Star Buck Jones

Animals and machinery seem as far apart as the two poles—yet it requires much the same turn of mind to train one successfully as it does to manipulate the other. Patience, perseverance and a judicious regard for individual peculiarities are the main points to be considered and the man who possesses these traits is very likely to be as successful in bucking bronchos as he is in doing stunts with an aeroplane.

Buck Jones, famous cowboy star, whose latest vehicle for Columbia is "The Dawn Trail," which comes to the Palace theatre Saturday and Sunday, understands animals and mechanics equally well. Buck began his career as a machinist in the little town of Vincennes, Indiana. Later he took a job as a cow puncher in Montana and mastered the art of breaking in wild cow ponies with such conspicuous success that he soon entered the exhibition field. He returned to mechanics during the World War, serving in the 1st Air Squadron in France.

Now that Buck is back in pictures, he still divides his time between his two fads. When he is not tinkering with some engine or other in the little tool shop in the rear of his home, he amuses himself by teaching his horse, Silver, some new stunts.

Last Saturday seems to have been a banner day for the ice fishermen. E. W. Publow and Max Renigar of Lansing, who were spending the week end at the Publow cottage in Norwood, accompanied by Jake Ypma, motored to Ironton and in a short time landed six mackinaw trout averaging five pounds each. Plenny Genett had the good luck to land two trout, one weighing seven and a half pounds, and the other weighing three and a half pounds.

Mrs. R. E. Stafford entertained several members of the L. A. S. and a few additional ladies at her home last Wednesday, with a pot-luck dinner. The occasion was a courtesy to Mrs. Harris Pierce, Miss Marjorie Richardson and the hostess, who have birthdays on the same date. THREE ISSUES AT SPRING ELECTION

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT TO COME BEFORE MICHIGAN VOTERS

State-Owned Chelsea Cement Plant Being Argued—Amendment Asked to Aid Airport Financing

Three referendums on proposals to amend the state constitution will be up for the decision of the voters at the April 6th election. The capital punishment bill, signed by Governor Brucker after it had weathered the storm of amendments proposed by the House in an indirect attempt to kill it, will command the most attention from the people. They have heard it discussed, pro and con, but this year will be the first time they have been asked to dispose of the troublesome question for themselves.

The two other referendums are those providing a way of refunding the $40,000,000 of road bonds outstanding, and the other allows the state to construct and operate landing fields in various parts of the state.

A saving of $200,000 a year is sought by the refunding of the road bonds, now drawing six per cent interest. The lower rate of interest which they could be refunded for, would make this possible, according to the claims of administration leaders who have backed the request of the Governor, made in a special message to the legislature early in the session. Eastern bond houses through which the bonds were sold or originally have protested the move, declaring that the refunding would constitute a breach of faith and adversely affect the state's standing.

All doubts as to what the Governor would do with the Foster capital punishment bill was soon removed when the measure was presented to him March 4. He signed it without loss of time and also recommended a favorable vote of the people as a weapon to combat killing and lawlessness. In a lengthy statement in which he pointed out that the federal government and all but eight states have capital punishment at the present time, Gov. Brucker also stated:

Brucker's Contentions
"This bill punishes murder in the first degree, that is, the killing of a human being, which is neither excusable nor justifiable, and which follows deliberation and premeditation on the part of the killer. The utmost precautions have been taken to guarantee justice to the accused throughout, including the incidents of a fair trial and an appeal to our state Supreme Court, without cost to the accused."

After a concurrence between the House and Senate, the House amendment substituting lethal gas for electrocution was removed, the measure resuming the original provision for electrocution.

Cement Plant Discussed
The closing the state owned cement plant at Chelsea is provided in a bill introduced by Rep. Look of Lowell. It would authorize the Governor and the administrative board to sell the plant as soon as a fair price is offered.

This promises to stir up a legislative fight before the matter is disposed of. It has been a political issue in the last four state campaigns over since it was secured during the Greenback administration as a means of fighting the large operators of the privately owned cement plants. The present deficit against the plant is placed at varying amounts, all the way from $66,000 to $700,000. When Gov. Green was first elected he promised to close down the plant, but no action was ever taken. Prison labor is used to operate the plant, about 200 inmates of Jackson prison being given employment during the season, with about 75 hired workers also being employed.

ODD FELLOWS WIN CRIBBAGE SERIES

Masons Put on "Feed" Monday Night —Re-organize for Next Winter

Insofar as the local Odd Fellow and Masonic fraternal orders are concerned, the Odd Fellows are the champion cribbage players.

In the final contest of their eight-game winter series, held Monday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall, the Masons were victorious by a margin of 446 points, but this advantage was not sufficient to overcome a lead the Odd Fellows had piled up in previous contests.

During the eight-game series, the Odd Fellows scored a total of 177,246 points, against 176,505 for the Masons, giving them a season lead of 741. Consequently, the Masons will put on the "feed" next Monday night.

Perry Smith, with a perfect score of 968 points, led the Masonic attack Monday night. Axel Tillotson, with 950, was high for the Odd Fellows.

At the close of Monday night's contest, an organization was formed to conduct a similar series next winter. S. O. Sorenson was chosen secretary. Fred Bergman was elected captain of the Odd Fellows and Pete Withers captain of the Masons.

BOYNE SMELT RUN GETS UNDER WAY

WONDERFUL CATCHES MADE THERE SATURDAY NIGHT

Subsequent Nights Have Been Disappointing, But Run Expected to Resume Late This Week

The Boyne river smelt run got under way unexpectedly last Saturday night. Almost simultaneously, runs also started at Horton and Advance creeks.

Word was flashed to outside communities immediately after conservation officers and committees discovered the silver horde making its way up the river, and those fortunate enough to get in on the initial run were rewarded with excellent catches. Dippers filled all available containers and then piled the fish up along the bank. Many bushel of smelt were taken. Outsiders were few the opening night.

Since Saturday night, however, the run has been much of a disappointment. Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights, thousands were on hand to dip, but few smelt have been taken. Horton creek gave up the best catches Sunday night, while the early run in Boyne river was almost negligible. Monday night, good catches were made both in Horton and Advance creeks, but at Boyne, the fish failed to put in an appearance. Tuesday night, light hauls were reported from all streams.

According to reports from Boyne City, the early morning dipping between 2 and 4 o'clock, has so far been the best. In catches made male fish have predominated, indicating that the run is in its early stages. Up to the present time, neither upper or lower gate has been installed, those in charge electing to wait until the run gets in full swing. It is planned to close the lower gate two nights after the 10 to 12 run, in order to hold fish in the river for daylight dipping. A sound motion picture outfit will be on hand to "shoot" the fun.

It is probable the run will get going again this week. Temperature of the river water dropped 2 degrees between Saturday and Sunday nights causing the run to diminish. Boyne is taking good care of the crowds coming there to dip. Rest rooms and accommodations for outsiders have been provided and no stone left unturned in their effort to provide for visitors.

WM. SUPERNOW HOME RAZED BY BAD FIRE

Blaze Caused by Defective Wiring, Destroyed Upper Structure

Fire thought to have been caused by defective wiring in the attic razed the upper story of the William Supernow residence on East Huribut avenue last Friday morning.

The blaze had evidently gained considerable headway before discovered, for when the fire department arrived on the scene, the entire upper part of the structure was afire.

Unable to check the blaze with chemical, fire-fighters were forced to use water, causing considerable damage. The loss will probably run into several thousand dollars.

CHARLEVOIX HIGH IS AGAIN VICTOR

WON REGIONAL CLASS C TITLE AT PETOSKEY BY DEFEATING BOYNE CITY IN THRILLING FINAL

THIRD CHAMPIONSHIP OF 1930-31 SEASON

Traverse City Central Upset Dope to Win Class B Regional Title from Cadillac—St. Francis of Traverse Showed Class in Winning Class D Finals from Dickson

Charlevoix high school completed their conquest in Northern Michigan basketball circles Saturday night by defeating Boyne City 21 to 13 in the finals of the regional tournament at Petoskey.

The victory added a third championship of the season for the local tossers. Following pre-tournament play, Kipke's basketballers led the Tip of Michigan class C conference by 36 points. In a Charlevoix-Boyne final at the district tournament they came through with flying colors, and with the regional now safely tucked away, the team goes to the state finals in search of further laurels.

Charlevoix ran true to predictions in coping the regional meet. They drew the heavy end of the schedule, playing Thursday and then again Friday night to enter the finals. In their opening contest, Charlevoix defeated Scottville, class C champions of the Mason county district, by a 21 to 8 score. Starting a string of subs, Coach Kipke let Scottville gain a 5 to 1 lead before sending in his regulars. They brought the count to 7-all at the half and then made a run-away race of it for the balance of the game.

Friday night Kipke's tossers downed Rogers City in a peculiar contest. The Presque Isle county lads outscored Charlevoix 3 to 2 in the first period and neither team counted in the second. In the third quarter the locals shifted to their regular offensive tactics and soon had the game sewed up. The final count was Charlevoix 20, Rogers City 8.

A mighty crowd, packing the big Petoskey gymnasium to the rafters, was on hand for the final game between Charlevoix and Boyne Saturday night. Everyone sensed it would be a struggle, and no one went home disappointed. Charlevoix and Boyne City school bands, also the Traverse City organization, were on hand to cheer their players. Cheer leaders for the two schools led their fans in running yells. The setting was perfect.

Unlike any of three previous encounters, Charlevoix assumed an early lead. Ance sank a goal and free throw and Novak a basket in the first period, while Boyne was scoreless. The Kipmen led 5 to 0 as the session closed.

Led by McCall, Charlevoix continued its advantage in the second stanza. "Cornie," who had featured on the scoring end of all tournament games, dropped through two nice goals and McSauby added another to bring Charlevoix's total to 11. Fox scored a goal and free throw for Boyne, putting the count 11 to 3 at the half.

The third and early part of the fourth periods witnessed a great Boyne rally, and for a time things did not look so good for Charlevoix. Opening the session, White sank three goals and Rouse, who previously had been covered like a blanket, added another to run Boyne's total to 11. Novak ran the tip-off to length of the floor for Charlevoix's lone score, and at the close of the third period the count stood Charlevoix 14, Boyne City 11.

As the fourth quarter opened, White dropped a free toss, making the count 14 to 12. Play was extremely fast and the crowd in a frenzy. At this point, however, Boyne made the mistake of trying to rush the play. Charlevoix out-passed and out-played them from then on. Ance, McSauby and McCall dribbled in for close shots and McCall sank a free one. Rouse added a gift shot for Boyne and the final whistle ended the struggle with Charlevoix out in front 21 to 13. It was a great game and a well-earned victory for Charlevoix.

St. Francis Wins Class D
In the opening game, St. Francis of Traverse City, led by the brilliant playing of Pat Burden, topped the class D title from Dickson. It was a close struggle in the early periods, but in the second half, the Traverse outfit had things pretty much their own way.

Traverse Central Beat Cadillac
In the final game of the evening, Traverse City Central and Cadillac, co-champions of the "Big Six," fought it out for the class B crown. Traverse upset the dope by winning 14 to 12 in a close contest. Cadillac showed good team work, but her basket shooting was off.

Loomis Present Trophies
At the close of play, Glenn Loomis of Big Rapids, head tournament official, awarded trophies. Handsome bronze figures of basketball players were given each of the three winning teams. Baskethalls were awarded the three second place teams. Superintendent A. J. Dunnison of East Jordan, president of the Tip of Michigan class C conference, presented trophies for the football and basketball winners of the season. The football trophy went to Harbor Springs and the basketball trophy to Charlevoix. Capt. Bill Novak, who this year closes his athletic career with Charlevoix high school, along with "Cornie" McCall and Vic Smith, received the presentations as loyal fans cheered.

LOCAL LEGION POST TO HAVE NEW HOME

Use of South Side Ward School Granted by Board of Education

Through the courtesy of the Charlevoix Board of Education, Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, has a new and permanent home.

The former Lincoln ward school on Garfield avenue has been turned over to the Legion members. Work of redecorating and making necessary improvements in the new billet are now under way in preparation for permanent occupancy.

The old school bell which used to adorn the central building, and for years called boys and girls of the city to their studies, will again be put in use. The Legion plans to have the bell mounted at their new quarters, and on meeting nights its familiar knell will again be heard.

Under the guidance of newly-elected officers, the local Legion is putting on many activities in order to re-finance the organization and get things going stronger, following several years of inactivity. They have sponsored several entertainments, their last being "Minstrel Chuckles," scheduled for Thursday and Friday of this week. They also have plans for future projects and everyone is working with enthusiasm.

WANT STATE LAND FOR AIRPORT USE

BILL WOULD ALLOW LEASE OR SALE TO MUNICIPALITIES

Measure Follows Amendment to Use Aviation Gas Tax Money to Aid in Building Airports

The state's aviation development program took still another step forward last week by the introduction of a bill authorizing the state to lease or sell to municipalities any land owned by the state, for the specific use as a landing field, airport or seaplane harbor. This bill is in keeping with the constitutional amendment adopted by the legislature and which will be voted on at the polls on April 7th, which if carried will allow the state to expend the aviation gasoline tax money and the state aircraft registration fees for the development of landing fields in the State of Michigan. The passage of this bill, together with the adoption of the constitutional amendment will make Michigan one of the foremost aviation states in the Union.

Michigan now holds an enviable position in the aviation world in its manufacture of aircraft and aircraft parts. By the proper location of frequent landing fields, particularly in our northern counties, there is every probability that the value of our northern lands will be greatly enhanced. Thousands of acres revert back to the state every year due to the failure of the owners to pay their land taxes. It is believed that aerial transportation will bring into our northern counties the people from the southern metropolitan areas, who will establish cottages and summer homes, thereby bringing considerable wealth into the communities which are now undeveloped.

The winter sports in the northern counties will attract many thousands of people from Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Dayton and other southern cities, if there is a possibility of them flying up and landing safely within a reasonable distance of the winter festival. Thousands of others go to our northern counties every fall during the deer-hunting season and other thousands go up during the fishing season during the summer. The airplane is the logical mode of transportation for many of these hunters and fishers. Statistics show that in the vicinity of 400,000 people went across the Straits to the upper peninsula during the past year. Many thousands more would have visited our upper peninsula and will be doing so in the future if there is provided landing fields where aircraft can safely land and take off.

Another Silver Medal Contest

There will be another silver medal contest sponsored by the local Woman's Christian Temperance Union, at the Church of God next Sunday, March 22, at 7:00 p. m. Medal will be awarded to local judges. The contestants will be seven seventh and eighth grade pupils representing our several Sunday schools. Rev. I. T. Mark, the pastor, will deliver a temperance message after the contest. All are cordially invited to attend this service.

PROPERTY TAX CUT IS WIDELY SOUGHT

MANY STATES CONSIDERING MEASURES FOR RELIEF

National Real Estate Board Com- pletes Survey to Relieve Land Owners of Burden

A survey of the activities in many states in behalf of land owners to relieve them of part of their tax burdens has just been completed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. It shows legislation to this effect is now before the legislatures of 34 states and that the governors of 29 states have publicly declared themselves in favor of such legislation. Among these state executives is Governor Brucker of Michigan.

Sixteen states have bills before their legislatures providing for an income from citizens who now are practically free from taxation. These are states that have never had income taxes. The bills, although they will tax income property owners, as well as people who do not own real property, will, in the opinion of their sponsors, raise new funds to defray government costs and thus make it possible to decrease taxes on real property.

Other states seeking to aid the property owner are considering bills that provide for the payment of property taxes in installments. This plan, which has been eyed with favor by the national association, is now in successful operation in Toronto, Canada, where people find it easier to pay such taxes through the year than annually.

Practically every state has some pending bill that seeks to help the owner of real property. The appointment of commissions to investigate the state tax commissions, the creation of state tax commissions, the investigation of present expenditures, a proposal that intangibles be taxed directly, the reduction of assessed values and other measures are being pushed throughout the country by legislators.

Governors in 29 states have recently publicly declared that tax adjustment was of major importance in the work to be done during this year. Fourteen of these governors in their annual messages have specifically mentioned the fact that real estate is bearing an unfair tax proportion and should be relieved through new tax systems and procedure.

The realty association two weeks ago appealed to other national trade organizations to contribute funds for research into this subject, feeling also that some relief lay in decreasing the number of local governmental units that dot practically every county.

The association has been for nearly a year engaged on a research program from which it expects to secure material for practical suggestions in the various law making bodies. It also has pushed the organization of property owner divisions in 85 cities where realty owners themselves are banding together in the local real estate boards, and are drawing workable plans for their own protection.

The states where income tax bills are now before the legislatures include Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Vermont and West Virginia. Three states are considering amendments to existing income tax laws that, if passed, will benefit property owners. These states are: Massachusetts, Oregon and Georgia.

The states in which the legislatures are considering bills that will permit real property owners to pay their taxes in installments include Connecticut, Massachusetts, Nebraska, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas and Washington. Indiana and Arizona are considering bills to tax intangibles.

WOULD LURE SMELT TO STOVER CREEK

City Workmen Dredge Creek Mouth to Enlarge Water Flow

A crew of city workmen under the direction of D. J. Eckinger, started work Wednesday morning dredging the mouth of Stover creek where it empties into Lake Charlevoix.

A sand bar and low water has practically closed the creek outlet. It is believed a thaw or rain, furnishing sufficient flow of water, would start a run of smelt up the stream. Whether this is the case or not, the smelt are being invited anyway.

LOCAL FISH TUGS MAKE OPEN WATER

Attempts to Break Through Ice Field Off Harbor Successful Tuesday

Aided by an easterly wind Tuesday, local fishing craft were able to break through ice in the bay off Charlevoix harbor into Lake Michigan after several unsuccessful attempts made previously.

For over a week, commercial fishermen had been unable to reach nets set in Lake Michigan when fishing operations were first opened. Ice had piled up to a great depth off the channel entrance, and for a time frustrated all attempts of the boats to break through.

The tug Charles Frank, Venus and Lucille H., were first to make open water Tuesday, and others followed soon afterwards.

TWO CENT DROP IN ALL GASOLINE PRICES

The price of gasoline technically, is back at pre-war level following a recent two-cent cut inaugurated by Standard Oil and subsequently adopted by the other companies.

Regular gasoline fell from 18 cents to 16 cents the gallon and the Ethyl brands from 21 cents to 19.

The Standard Oil announced the two-cent reduction effective on all gasoline, naphthas and refined oils.

The price of course includes the state tax of three cents a gallon, without which gasoline would be selling for as low as 13 cents, a normal price before the war.

The story ends in a spectacular football game which contains a great element of surprise. First National decided that many football games on the screen lacked the spirit and uncertainty that mark a real contest.

Company officials fish a power plant on the stream he said that they had no desire to establish there was no easily accessible market.

COUNTY-WIDE ATHLE- TIC MEETING PLANNED

"Jim" Crowley Speaker at Banquet in East Jordan Monday Night

A great county-wide athletic meeting will be held Monday evening, March 23, in the high school auditorium at East Jordan. Time of the gathering is 6:30 o'clock.

The fact that "Jim" Crowley, football coach at Michigan State college and member of the famed Notre Dame "Four Horsemen," will be the principal speaker, is reason enough why every man and boy in the county should be present. Only by having a county-wide meeting were those sponsoring the affair able to obtain Crowley as a speaker.

Purpose of the meeting in addition to having a general get-together athletic gathering, is to present letters to football and basketball teams of the 1930-31 season. County Agent B. C. Mellenkamp will act as toastmaster; Supt. A. J. Duncanson of East Jordan, will give the address of welcome, and Crowley will present school letters.

Representatives from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls and East Jordan will be present. Every county lad who has taken part in athletics is urged to attend with his father. A local committee is selling banquet tickets, and everyone is urged to buy at once, so those sponsoring the banquet may know how many to provide for.

Indiana to bring two truck load of cows. Mr. Sheets, his son-in-law, went with him. They are expected to return next Wednesday. Mr. Sheets will buy a farm here this spring if he can find one suitable.

(Political Advertising)

In 1925 Chndler township drew primary money on 140 children amounting to $1,918. Four schools were maintained, the largest of which was at Springvale. Most of the children came from logging and woods camps where they lived in railroad box cars, tar paper shacks, tents and even sod houses built in the hill sides. These people were poor and in many cases destitute. Clothing and food had to be supplied some children being sited upon. Many of the parents cared nothing for education saying, "To educate the children weans them away from their nams and their paps." A very bad truancy condition resulted. Much of the expense of winter driving was due to conditions in the eastern part of the county caused by the thriving settlement of those woods people. To make a trip into that territory with horses necessitated our leaving here after supper, staying over night at Boyne City, driving out of there early the next morning for our day's work, and back to Boyne City that night. It was the business of the commissioner of schools and his truancy department to take care of those cases, which was done to the best of their ability.

Springvale with its trains, store, hotel, school and villagers is no more. It was once a thriving settlement doing as much business in its one store as that done in any two stores in Charlevoix. To reach it one would travel by logging train, or with horses, except in summer when a jumping good ride was in store for those using cars. Tourists made special trips to ride through the virgin forests to this center of activity. Each day the little engines pulled their loads of forest products over the steel rails, thru the valley to Boyne Falls and on to Cadillac. When the land had been stripped of its wealth, the engines tooted a farewell, people, buildings, rails, ties, and all left. Nothing remains of the village of Springvale.

The report of 1930 shows that Chandler received primary money on 31 children amounting to $555.52. These are the children of those people permanently located and, not like the roving population of former years, they are interested in education as you or I. The comparison shows conclusively that the commissioner's expense for this part of the county should be far below that of former years. A. C. Belding.—1111.

NEWSPAPERS are the greatest of all modern educators. They teach history in its making. The exploits of exceptional people, the press of unusual events, the ebb and flow of political expedience—all are made public knowledge within a few hours after their happening. This information is instant and complete.

That is why men and women who are eager to be fully informed read the newspapers—not only the news of the world, but also news of what to buy, where to buy and how to buy.

You cannot be abreast of the times if you overlook the advertisements. For advertisements give you the real news of business. They are the messages of business to you. They tell of the new and wonderful thing created for your convenience and leisure—of merchandise gathered from the myriad markets of the world for you and your family.

Advertising teaches how to get the most in value and enjoyment for the least money. It gives knowledge that pays.

"Well, of course, I did promise her the thousand dollars; I dare say she predicated certain payments on that promise and my reversal of form has probably embarrassed her greatly. I'm a little sorry the lady lost, but— a little glad I won! Of course," he added parenthetically, "I never was the least bit in love with her. She went to my head, like champagne, when I was with her, but when I wasn't I found it hard to keep up steam. Nellie, I must have been crazy to tell you to play second fiddle."

"If we are to be judged by the worst we do in this world, Elmer, we'd all be out of luck. Now, when I look over my mental ledger account with you, I see a long string of golden credits—page after page of them—and on the debit side I find one little human entry under the expiatory head of Doris Gatewood. This lone debit item is composed of equal parts of blindness, repression, curiosity, stupidity, flattered ego, childishness, masculine idleness and original sin. You didn't fall without a battle and when you fell you hurt everything that was fine and decent in you—and knew it. You weren't really happy in your new conquest. You only told yourself you were. And as for little Nellie Gatewood, thinking for an infinitesimal fraction of a second that she could nobly descend to playing second fiddle to that holy-faced doll—well, Elmer, you are a sweet fool! Why, I'm the whole orchestra. I suppose, Elmer, it never occurs to you that I am a designing, scheming, farseeing, selfish girl where you are concerned."

He laughed derisively. "Tell me another joke," he pleaded.

"You're a hopeless idiot, Elmer. You will persist in making an angel out of a human being. Well, have one little dance with me and then we'll go home and commence your education."

When Elmer dropped Nellie off at her home he had the audacity, the monumental masculine assurance, to attempt to claim a good night kiss. Nellie laughed at him. "I'll not kiss you good night," she declared, "because I'm not particularly desirous of kissing you and you've forfeited the right to ask it." He drove away chop-fallen to a degree.

The instant his car had turned the corner Nellie came out of the house and ran all the way to within a block of Elmer's bungalow. As she passed down C street and turned into Hazel drive she observed a man and woman seated on Elmer's front steps, with a suitcase and a bag reposing beside them. Elmer's garage stood at the rear of the lot and opened on Hazel drive, so Nellie walked boldly up to the door, gave the prearranged signal and was accorded instant admittance.

"They're waiting for him," said Detective Sergeant Fahy out of the corner of his mouth.

"I saw them. Elmer will be along in five minutes," Nellie gasped. "Is everything all right?"

"Right as a fox," said Detective Sergeant Lipowsky.

"Elmer will come down C street in the direction of Hazel drive. He's expecting them, so there will not be any talk on the porch. He'll take them inside immediately. However, one or both of you, might go out to the corner of the house and listen."

The two detectives waited five minutes and followed her suggestion. Presently they returned on velvet feet. "All he said was 'Good evening. Please come inside and we'll talk.' All the woman said was: 'You know it!'"

Nellie wrote that brief record in shorthand. Detective Sergeant Fahy clamped the receivers over her ears and held the flashlight for her as she spread her note book out on the front fender of the diver, leaned over it and prepared to take dictation. The two detectives were also listening in.

Elmer unlocked his front door, switched on the light and walked on into his bedroom to put away his overcoat and hat before returning to the stuffy little parlor where his Nemesis awaited him. Nellie thrilled with a vast pride as his first words came clearly to them via the concealed microphone. The eyebrows of the two detectives went up and Detective Sergeant Fahy dropped his prognathous jaw in a coughed grimace, for without an instant's hesitation Elmer had seized the initiative by going directly to the attack.

"Well, Colorado, Charley, old settler," he began blithely, "how about a little drink to wash the dust of travel out of your lying throat? I mean a drink of water. I wouldn't waste liquor on a slunk like you."

"Say, Colorado," Charley came back at him, "where do you get that stuff?"

"Draw it out of a faucet," chirped Elmer cheerfully. "Doris, or whatever your real name is, you asked me for a conference, but you didn't tell me this confidence man was coming with you. Let's understand each other, Doris. Your boy friend here is out of the COMPARE a package of Camels with any other cigarette and note the difference in the technique of packing.

Note that Camels are completely enclosed in an outer transparent cover of moisture-proof cellophane and sealed air-tight at every point.

We call this outer shell the Humidor Pack. It differs from the ordinary cellophane pack and while it is egg-shell thin, it means a lot in terms of cigarette enjoyment.

It means, for instance, that evaporation is checkmated and that Salt Lake City can now have as good Camels as Winston-Salem.

While Camels are made of a blend of the choicest Turkish and mellowest domestic tobaccos, it is highly important, if you are to get full benefit of this quality, that these cigarettes come to you with their natural moisture content still intact.

The Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

The Humidor Pack insures that. It prevents the fine tobaccos of Camels from drying out and losing any of their delightful flavor.

Aside from cheap tobacco, two factors in a cigarette can mar the smoker's pleasure:

Fine particles of peppery dust if left in the tobacco by inefficient cleaning methods sting and irritate delicate throat membrane.

Dry tobacco, robbed of its natural moisture by scorching or by evaporation gives off a hot smoke that burns the throat with every inhalation.

We take every precaution against these factors here at Winston-Salem.

A special vacuum cleaning apparatus removes dust and now the new Humidor Pack prevents dryness.

Check the difference yourself. It is a very simple matter to check the difference between Humidor Packed Camels and other ordinary dry cigarettes.

First of all you can feel the difference as you roll the cigarettes between your fingers. Camels are full-bodied and pliable. A dry cigarette crumbles under pressure and sheds tobacco.

If you will hold a cigarette to each ear and roll them with your fingers you can actually hear the difference.

The real test of course is to smoke them. And here's where the new Humidor Pack proves a real blessing to the smoker.

As you inhale the cool, fragrant smoke from a Camel you get all the mildness and magic of the fine tobaccos of which it is blended.

But when you draw in the hot spoke from a dried cigarette see how flat and brackish it is by comparison and how harsh it is to your throat.

If you are a regular Camel smoker you have already noticed what proper condition of the cigarette means.

But if you haven't tried Camels in the new Humidor Pack you have a new adventure with Lady Nicotine in store.

Switch your affections for just one day, then go back to your old love tomorrow if you can.

picture. Charley, if I hear one peep out of you I'll knock you for a double loop. That being clearly understood, say your say, Doris, and then get on blazes out of here before I throw you out."

Followed about five seconds of profound silence, then:

"Hunda up, Charley, my boy! Don't pull the gun—please. There, that's over so much more sensible. You don't suppose I'll be boob enough to go into conference with Doris, in your presence, without heeling myself, do you? Stand up now and back slowly toward me while I help myself to that little pistol of yours. Here's the gun, Charley. Eh, keep the cartridges. Well, Doris, dear, lost light of my life, you were about to say something!"

"I came to ask you why you went back on me the way you did. The girl's voice came to the listeners. It was hard and high-pitched. She was coolly furious.

"You know now why I went back on you. I don't like the company you keep."

"What's wrong with the company?" "His police record is over there on the whatnot. Want a look at it? Perhaps you'd like to verify his photograph with the original and check up on his Bertillon measurements."

"Quit stalling, Mac, and get down to business," Colorado Charley growled testily.

"I told you, Charley, that if I heard one little peep out of you I'd knock you for a double loop," Elmer reminded his unwelcome guest. "I admit I went back on my promise to lend Doris or Mac or whatever her name is a thousand dollars, but I'm not going back on my promise to you."

There was a suppressed scream the sound of shuffling feet, the crash of furniture—silence! Nellie trembled violently and turned a white piteous face to Detective Sergeant Fahy, who laid his great paw on her little brown hand.

"Can the kid go some?" he demanded fiercely. "Maybe I'd better pop out an' see if Colorado Charley has done for him with a knife. He always carries one."

"Elmer can whip his weight in wildcats," Nellie faltered bravely. "He's spilling everything for us."

Detective Sergeant Lipowsky complained bitterly. "He don't run true to form. We figured he'd wilt; figured they'd scare him to death and get all the cash he has on hand now and a promissory note for the balance, when we could nab 'em for blackmail. As it is he ain't give them a chance to junk their proposition, so what've we got to hang a case on?"

"He's a bonehead," Detective Sergeant Fahy blessed. "He's a hick! But, Lord, how I love him!" he added.

Nellie looked up at him gratefully. "You're a dear," she said simply. "A voice came over the microphone again. Elmer was speaking. "While dear Charley is wandering in dreamland, Doris, suppose you spill your bad news."

"My dear Elmer," the girl replied in direct tones, "we didn't come here to spill any bad news. All we wanted was an explanation of your curious and embarrassing action in ordering payment stopped on your check."

"I've explained," said Elmer grimly. "So you have, Elmer. But that old criminal record you allude to, doesn't prove my brother is a criminal. I know he isn't. And I haven't heard you say you have a criminal record."

of me. If you had, I imagine you'd confront me with it."

"I haven't—but I have hopes. The unknown friend who sent me the information on Charley may develop additional interest and send me news of you."

"You seem to forget that I am your fiancée."

"You're right—I do. I never was your fiancée. I never asked you to marry me."

"Well, you certainly gave me the impression that we were engaged. The letters you wrote me will be rather hard to explain, and I'm here to tell you that no small-town sheik can treat me the way you've treated me and get away with it."

"Oh, I expected to be blackmailed under threat of a suit for breach of promise."

"Blackmailed? I have said nothing about blackmail. I am not here to threaten you, Elmer. I came up to talk the situation over sensibly."

"That isn't possible. I'm one of those fellows who will not be blackmailed, cajoled, threatened or persuaded. I know what you have in mind and a rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

Hello, Charley, did the little birdies sing sweetly to you while you were out? Pick yourself up off the floor, you swine, and betake yourself and your partner out of here. On your way, both of you!"

can be laid shingle by shingle; and a ready cash reserve—a "roof" against mishap—can be built deposit by deposit in a Savings Account. And like all other roofs, it will never be missed while the sun is shining—but it's strongly needed in a "storm."

These days—right now, while you can—are the logical building days. Why not come in, open your Savings Account now—and start laying your "roof?"

JUST KIDS—Guilty or Not Guilty?

By Ed Cramer

SCHOOL NEWS

"Wise men make the lessons of the past their servants."

Supt. Speaks to High School Students
Monday morning Mr. Otterbein gave us a very inspirational talk on "Ethics Or Ideals of Character." He expressed the idea that the American people are too much inclined to be self-kidders. He also told us that fundamental education is a very important subject, and that the high school students should not be satisfied with doing a thing half-way.

Senior Play
Last Thursday and Friday Mrs. Dowd had the seniors try out for their annual play which will be given some time in May. The play will be decided upon in a few days and books sent for so that parts can be given out before spring vacation.

Girl Scouts
The nine members of the Girl Scouts were entertained by a progressive party Monday evening at the homes of six of the girls, under the leadership of Miss Mary Lemieux. Miss Madeline Lemieux, who has recently been elected Lieutenant was also present.

Seniors Plan for Commencement
The senior class has started making preparations for commencement. A committee consisting of Angie Scott, Bill Novak, Mary Simmons and Lola Fessenden, met last Tuesday evening and selected invitations for graduation which were presented to the class Wednesday night. A plain folder parchment invitation was chosen. The class has also ordered caps and gowns.

J-Hop
Special committees have been appointed to begin work on the J-Hop which will be given May 15.

On the invitation committee are Mary Margaret Orlovski, Vic Smith, Esther Brady, and Joe Arvilla.

Members of the decoration committee are George La Blance, David Dick, Norman Ane, Eberden La Blance, Lila McMillan, and Lilace Johnston.

The orchestra has not been selected yet, several orchestras have sent in their bids but the committee have not made their final decision. Kathleen McCall, Marion Smith, Ralph Lemieux, and Stanley Cartier are on the entertainment committee.

Air Club
The Air club boys were invited to attend a speech at the Mens' club last Monday night. The feature was a two-reel motion picture talk on "Safety First." It was very interesting.

Guaranteed to give better and quicker relief for coughs or sore throats than anything you have ever tried or you can have your money back, 35c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Central Drug Store and by all other good drug stores.

ing as well as educational to the group.

Hi-Y
The Hi-Y held a delightful breakfast gathering last Thursday morning and indulged in devouring the eatables which were prepared by Hugh Parker and Glen Heise. Mr. Otterbein gave a very interesting after-breakfast speech on character.

Fifth Grade
The 5th graders have been composing original poems. This is Boh Dean's contribution:
When the sap begins to run
And the robins start to chirp;
And the boys are flying kites,
Then I know it must be March.
When the birds begin to sing,
And the marbles roll in rings;
And winds are sharp with blizzards,
Then I know it must be March.
When the Pussy Willows open up,
And the boys are playing ball;
And the girls are jumping rope,
Then I know it must be March.

Sixth Grade
Monday afternoon the 6th grade presented an original play in seven scenes. Our characters were three girls applying for the position of wrapping candy bars, and four boys seeking an office position. These persons we took as representatives of the types who might apply, among them a gum-chewing, loud-voiced boy, the impolite applicant, the Irish girl who would be tying bundles at the laundry yet "but some dude brought back a shirt with a smudge on the bosom." One boy emptied the contents of his pockets on Mr. Allen's desk, while Lottie powdered her nose and admired her polished nails. Sue and Jack, the well-spoken and well-behaved, were given positions.

Pep Meeting
A grand old pep meeting was held in the assembly last Friday morning to bid the basketball boys God-speed in their attempt at the class C championship which they diligently won at Petoskey last Saturday night.

Drama Club
The Drama club has continued practice on the Shakespearean plays which its members will soon present. Mrs. Dowd has also given the club a few exercises to help develop the voice and she has also contributed material on the principles of acting and of stage lighting.

The Drama club, we have no doubt, will become a permanent school organization as many students are very interested in this work.

HOLIDAY LAUDS KIPKE—COACHED COURT SQUAD

He Calls Charlevoix's a Great Ball Club—Team Has Poise

In Saturday's issue of the Traverse City Record-Eagle, Lew Holiday, well known Northern Michigan sports writer, gave Coach Ray Kipke and his champion class C basketball quintet a glowing and deserving tribute.

We don't always agree with Lew on some of his "dope," but on this particular instance, he has our hearty accord. Following is Lew's article in his sports column, "Second Guesses": "Anyone who sees Charlevoix high school's basketball team of 1931 perform feels moved to express admiration for a signal athletic accomplishment. Whatever may happen to Coach Ray (Stub) Kipke's tossing forces from here out, a development has been brought about which makes history for a class C school.

Charlevoix's is a superior ball club—an outfit which has best claim to the Little Six championship and is hammering its way to further heights—because it has self-possession, a cockiness borne of confidence in its ability to handle opposition. Almost leisurely the Crimson-clads pass to and fro, calmly keeping possession, until they maneuver a defense out of position. Then there's a fast break—and it may be Captain Novak, Ane, McCall or even McSauby underneath the ring like a flash for a shot. And they shoot accurately. It is a poise primarily that makes Charlevoix great."

WESTERN UNION AIDS AIR TRANSPORTATION

Time-Tables, Rates, and Fares Now Available at W. U. Offices

An important adjunct of air travel service, effective immediately, represented by Western Union offices in all places of any importance receiving fares and making reservations for seats on the passenger planes of a number of air lines without charge to the traveller, was announced last week by Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph company.

The cooperative air-transport companies have, in effect, by the arrangement, created a single national means of making their service readily available to the public in Western Union's numerous centrally located offices in every town and city. Inconvenience in booking passage have proved a serious obstacle to the development of air travel. Not only has it been inconvenient for prospective passengers in cities directly served by the air lines to reserve seats, but it has been doubly so for residents in outlying and more distant places. To obtain information as to time tables and rates and to pay fares and finally to make reservations from such points has been quite impossible. Air-transport officials predict that an increase in air travel will result from the establishment of this universal medium for obtaining the information, and arranging reservations without extra charge.

MARIE IKENS IS WINNER MEDAL CONTEST

Another Contest Planned at Church of God Sunday Evening

The declamatory medal contests sponsored by the W. C. T. U. are creating a great deal of interest, and there was a large and appreciative audience at the Baptist church Sunday evening to hear a group of six young people declaim.

Marie Ikens was awarded the medal, and June Davey, who received the next most points, was privileged to make the presentation. The other speakers, including Charles Scott, William Hanson, Keith Nickerson and Mildred Mitchell, did exceptionally well.

Mr. North, Miss Dittmer and Miss Phillips acted as judges. The pastor of the church made a short address and the choir gave several musical selections.

Another contest has been planned for next Sunday evening at the Church of God.

LOCAL SCHOOL BAND MAKES FINE SHOWING

Performance and Appearance Outstanding at Petoskey Tourney

Without boasting in the least, we would like to say that if prizes had been awarded for the best band at the Petoskey regional basketball tournament, Charlevoix's school organization would have carried off the honors.

Of the three bands present, Charlevoix's was outstanding. From our viewpoint, they were not only superior in number and general appearance, but their music was the peepiest and best played. They certainly were an inspiration to the team and a source of pride to Charlevoix parents and school patrons.

Our contention is substantiated by the generous applause the band was given after each selection. More power to them!

LOCAL BASKETEERS TO STATE TOURNEY

Squad of Nine Men and Coaches Left Here Wednesday Afternoon

Seeking further laurels to add to their Tip of Michigan, district and regional class C basketball titles, Coach Ray Kipke's Charlevoix tossers left Wednesday afternoon for the state finals at Lansing.

The team went through an early practice session before leaving. Nine men make up the squad, including Ane, McCall, McSauby, Novak and Vic Smith, regulars, and Joe Smith, Arvilla, Davenport and Chew, substitutes. Accompanying the team were Coach Kipke and Stewart Coleman, assistant coach and director of the C. H. S. athletic association.

The team was given a rousing send-off at a public "pep" meeting earlier in the afternoon. Cheers, speeches by the coach, team members and others were in order.

Charlevoix will open play at Lansing against Detroit St. Leo. Other schools in the bracket are University High of Ann Arbor, Gladstone, Reed City, Saginaw St. Mary's, Holland Christian and St. Augustine of Kalamazoo. If the team successfully survives preliminary play, they will enter the semi-finals Friday night and finals Saturday night.

This is the first championship team Charlevoix has sent to the state finals in several years, and townspeople are wishing them success. Quite a large group of local fans will follow the team to Lansing.

SCHOOL JANITOR, 58, FACES SERIOUS COUNT

Taken on Statutory Charge—Blamed Liquor, Implicates Another

Albert Cone, age 58, janitor of Clarion school, is in jail here on a statutory charge alleging he took indecent liberties with a 12-year-old girl pupil of the school. Cone, according to officers, has signed a confession of guilt.

Blaming his downfall to liquor, Cone told officers William Lake, a farmer residing between Clarion and Boyne Falls, furnished his supply. Armed with search warrant, Sheriff Dave Vaughn, and Deputies Charles Marshall and Henry Steimel raided Lake's place last Friday. They found six gallons of moonshine, a barrel of mash and a still. Lake was arrested and placed in jail.

Both men waived examination in justice court and have been bound over to circuit court under $2,000 bond. Lake, it is said, has also signed a confession.

COUNTY NORMAL NEWS

The normal class was very glad to see all their class mates back this week after being out because of illness.

The class has started a Civics bulletin board. Many articles of interest have been appearing on it lately.

The official public health workers have promised to include the normal in their program of inspection. After the general inspection of the children in the training room, there will be a special meeting for the normal class and faculty which Miss Elmer Road will address on public health.

Training Room

There are only five present out of a group of ten first graders due to illness.

The fourth graders are studying, "Around the World with Children." One of the stories is taking them to visit Holland.

The training room extends cordial thanks to Mr. Blanchard for the beautiful decorations of pussy willows and blue birds of the past week. The training room misses one of its pupils, namely, Marvin Cross, who left town with his parents to live in another vicinity.

METHODIST NOTES

"God is Love," so says the Bible, and ever since we were little folks we have been familiar with the statement. Upon many occasions we have heard it uttered when we could see no evidence of it. At the 10:30 Sunday service we shall ask the question, "Is This a Friendly World?" It is one we have often asked and keep asking in face of calamity and the continuance of evil. This discussion may help you to stronger faith and greater courage.

Church school is at 12 noon.

Epworth League meets at 6:00 p. m. and the topic is, "Hymns and the Meaning of Jesus."

Another silver medal contest at the Church of God at 7:00 p. m. under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Next meeting of the Mens' club will be March 30, with pot-luck dinner and the ladies are invited. Program is a debate on "Capital Punishment."

This Thursday the literary club meets with Mrs. Benj. Brown at 10:00 a. m. for work, Pot-luck lunch. Mid-week service at 7:00 p. m.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Last Friday was dues-paying-day for the members of the W. C. T. U. and there was an unusually large attendance at the meeting held in the afternoon at the community room.

Mrs. A. Edwards conducted the devotionals and Mrs. E. L. Dawson presented the study topic, "A Long, Hard Fight."

National prohibition was enacted only after bitter opposition at every step of the way, but in the end the amendment was ratified by 45 states when only 36 were required. It is significant that while a limitation of seven years was placed on the time for ratification, the required number of states had ratified within one year and 28 days.

So irresistible was the wave of prohibition sentiment which swept the land during this period, that state after state went dry by the old method of state enactment, even while the Federal amendment was in process of adoption. The people were determined to make protection sure in case the federal plan failed of adoption.

In the eleven years since the adoption of the amendment the U. S. Supreme Court has upheld its validity in more than forty decisions.

Mrs. R. B. Armstrong gave an interesting account of the recent Republican state convention held in Kalamazoo. While there were many women representing counties in the southern part of the state, Mrs. Armstrong was the only one from the 11th congressional district.

The delegates began to arrive early the day before to renew acquaintances, make plans and attend the banquet at which the governor and other state officials and lenders spoke on the issues of the day.

It was very evident from the rapidity with which the business was transacted, both in the convention and the congressional caucuses which preceded it that matters had been pretty well ironed out and arranged the day before and most everything went through as planned.

John E. Gillispie and his Wayne-Kent-Genesee combination succeeded in nominating their whole slate with one exception, while many would have preferred the policies of Gov. Brucker to have dominated the convention.

KAMP KAIRPHREE ISSUES NEW BOOK

Forty-eight Page Edition Replete With Attractive Views

An attractive 48-page booklet, sent to this office by Mr. and Mrs. George Swain of Ann Arbor, owners and directors of Kamp Kairphree, summer camp for girls on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix, should demand more than usual attention favoring this popular camp.

Starting with an attractive cover page, the booklet is filled with unusual views portrayed by half-tones. Landscape scenes, depicting the beauties of Lake Charlevoix's shore line, predominate. The photography and selection of views is deserving of comment. Other views show advantages of the camp, its activities and accommodation features.

The type matter is descriptive of the camp, its activities, etc. On a whole, the booklet is indeed a credit to its sponsors.

COUNTY ATHLETIC MEET DREW CROWD

OVER 300 PRESENT AT EAST JORDAN MONDAY NIGHT

Jim Crowley, M. S. C. Football Coach Main Speaker—Basketball Letters Awarded County Teams

A great crowd assembled at East Jordan high school auditorium Monday evening for a county-wide athletic banquet sponsored by B. C. Mellenkamp, county agricultural agent, and East Jordan school officials.

It is conservatively estimated that 300 men and boys were present. Representatives were there from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, and East Jordan, filling the banquet tables completely.

Prior to, and during the banquet dinner, the assemblage were entertained with musical selections by the East Jordan high school orchestra. This organization, under the direction of John Ter Wee, also local band leader, is certainly a credit to the school. Then followed the dinner—one that will linger pleasantly in the memory of those participating for some time to come.

Supt. A. J. Duceanson of East Jordan school, gave the address of welcome, and turned the meeting over to B. C. Mellenkamp, toastmaster of the evening. Mr. Mellenkamp, in turn, called on coaches of the various schools represented. Supt. M. Otterbein of Charlevoix, responded in the absence of Coach Ray Kipke and short talks were also given by Coaches Brotherton of Boyne City; Middleton of Boyne Falls, and Cohen of East Jordan. John Winder and George Smith, Charlevoix cheer leaders, led the crowd in several rousing yells.

Jim Crowley, coach at M. S. C., and formerly a member of the famed "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame, was the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Crowley talked of athletics generally, dwelling upon the benefits young men receive from them. His talk was punctuated with experiences while he was a football player for Notre Dame and was interesting and held the attention of the audience throughout.

Concluding the evening's program, Mr. Crowley presented the Tip of Michigan class C basketball trophy to Charlevoix's regional champions, also basketball letters to members of the four county schools represented. Members of the team were given a big hand.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the meeting was the spirit of friendliness and sportsmanship which prevailed. Such a banquet certainly is a commendable affair, and the hope was expressed that it might be made an annual county event.

STATE REGISTERS OF DEEDS TO MEET HERE

Annual Convention of Association
Set for July 2 and 3

Efforts of Frank F. Bird and other interested parties has resulted in landing the 1931 annual convention of the Michigan Association of Registers of Deeds for Charlevoix, Charlevoix's bid for the 1930 meeting lost by only two votes, and since that time no effort had been spared to bring the convention here in 1931.

At an informal meeting Saturday afternoon in the offices of Dr. C. J. Winder, president of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, date for the convention was set for July 2 and 3. The meeting place has not been selected as yet.

Plans for entertainment of the visiting county officials and their wives were also discussed Saturday afternoon and definite arrangements will be made later. It is expected the convention will bring between 100 and 150 persons here.

LEGION PLAY SHOWN TO LARGE AUDIENCES

Home Talent Cast Portrayed Parts in Faultless Manner

"Minstrel Chuckles," presented last Thursday and Friday evenings at the school gymnasium under auspices of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, was an outstanding success.

Attendance at the two performances exceeded expectations and from an entertainment standpoint the production was very praiseworthy. Excellent taste was shown in selections of the cast, and from every standpoint those taking part carried on with near professional ability.

The Legion members wish to thank everyone for their support as well as those who took part and otherwise lent assistance in putting the production over.

Legion members are now getting nicely located in their new quarters at the Lincoln ward school. They are short of furnishing for their headquarters and will be very grateful for gifts of used furniture. Anyone having such articles they care to give, may communicate with Lee Allard, commander, who will call for them.

LAKE CHARLEVOIX SITE DRAMA CAMP

NATIONAL SHAKESPEARE MEM-ORIAL CAMP IS PLANNED

Will Locate at Camp Manitou Near Ironton—Prof. Earl Fleischman,
U. of M., Director

Arrangements have recently been completed for the establishment of a new type of summer camp in Michigan—an adult vacation camp featuring the arts of the spoken drama.

The camp is to be located at Camp Manitou on the south shore of Lake Charlevoix, near Ironton, and is to be known as the Lake Charlevoix Dramatic Camp. Professor Earl E. Fleischman of the University of Michigan, well known throughout the state as a leader in the field of the spoken drama, has undertaken the direction of the camp as a preliminary step to the establishment of the National Shakespeare Memorial Camp, which is to be a central unit for the National Shakespeare Memorial Competition for amateurs, a new project soon to be launched.

The new enterprise will be a fitting memorial to the Charlevoix Shakespeare Study Club for its 25th year of organization. Professor Fleischman acted as chairman of the committee of judges for the Amateur Play Writing contest sponsored in 1929 by the Michigan State Federation of Women's clubs at Lansing, and in 1930, at the close of the play at Jackson, announced plans for a Michigan dramatic camp.

Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, member of the Federation Board and president of the northwest district, extended an invitation in behalf of the local club for the camp to be located on Lake Charlevoix, citing there was no more beautiful spot in Michigan for such a camp. Mrs. Armstrong referred Professor Fleischman to Professor J. Raleigh Nelson, director of dramatics at Camp Charlevoix and Ironton summer resort for many years. The ultimate result has been location of the dramatic camp at Camp Manitou, near Ironton.

Elaborate plans are now under way on the project, which promises to be one of the outstanding camps in Northern Michigan and a national institution.

It has been announced that the 1931 summer season at the camp will be brought to a fitting climax with production of the Shakespeare play, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," for benefit of the Shakespeare Memorial Camp fund.

CHARLEVOIX NOSED OUT IN STATE MEET

LOST TO ANN ARBOR UNIVERSITY HIGH IN SEMI-FINALS
AFTER DEFEATING DETROIT FIVE IN FIRST ROUND

Local Tossers Closed Most Successful Basketball Season C. H. S.
Has Witnessed Since 1928 — Capt. Novak, McCall, Vic
Smith and Joe Arvilla Play Last Games for Charlevoix

Members of Charlevoix high school's 1930-31 basketball team reported to Coach Kipke at the gymnasium Tuesday afternoon, turned in their suits, and thus officially closed one of the most successful seasons C. H. S. has enjoyed since 1928.

After winning the Tip of Michigan class C conference title, the district crown at Boyne City, and the regional meet at Petoskey, Charlevoix went to Lansing to represent Northern Michigan in the state finals along with Traverse City St. Francis in class B and Traverse City St. Francis in class D.

Of the three entries, Charlevoix was the only one to survive first round play. They were also the first Charlevoix basketball team successful in winning a game in the state finals. They went to Lansing as one of the eight best class C teams in Michigan, and returned as one of the four best.

In first round play at Lansing last Thursday evening, the Kipmen staged a dazzling come-back to eliminate St. Leo of Detroit, class C champion of the metropolitan district. Out-scored 5 to 2 at the end of the first period, Charlevoix pulled the count to 8-all at the half. The third session was a desperate battle with the Detroit five leading 13-12 as the period closed. In the final period, the Kipmen out-scored their opponents 8 to 3, winning by a 21 to 15 margin.

Capt. Bill Novak led the local attack with 9 points. McCall and Anee each scored 5 and Vic Smith 2. Thomas and Brazil were high for St. Leo with 6 and 7 points, respectively. Charlevoix met their Waterloo in the semi-finals Friday night, University High of Ann Arbor, the team that eliminated Charlevoix in the first round-four years ago, was the victor.

Unable to get their attack functioning, the Kipmen were trailing 12 to 2 at the half. A goal by Anee, which started the scoring, was their lone counter. They were badly out-played in the third session and it was not until the fourth quarter that the local tossers hit their regular stride. From then on they out-scored the University team 11 to 2, but the rally came too late to overcome the heavy odds against them.

Capt. Novak again led his team's attack with 6 points. McCall accounted for 3, Anee and Vic Smith 2 each and McCall 1. For the winners, Howell, guard, with 9, and Sealey, center, with 6, were high.

Regardless of their success at the state finals, Charlevoixans are indeed proud of the team. Their season's record included 16 victories out of 19 games. They lost but two games, one to Harbor Springs and the other to University High at the state finals. The only other blemish on their record was that historic 8 to 8 tie with Harbor Springs. It is a record any school may be proud of.

We cannot help but mention the wonderful backing Coach Kipke and his tossers had from local and regional fans during the state finals at Lansing. Every school in this region was pulling hard for Charlevoix to win. On Friday, before the semi-final game, a flood of telegrams, wishing the team success in their game that evening, were sent from fans and school officials in Charlevoix and every surrounding town. It was a splendid example of regional loyalty.

This year will witness a break-up in Coach Kipke's championship combination. Capt. Novak and Vic Smith, who have completed four years of play, "Cornie" McCall, a veteran of three years, and Joe Arvilla, sub-graduate in the spring. Novak and Smith played in their second state finals at Lansing last week. However, with McCall, forward; Anee, center; Joe Smith, Chew and Daveport, subs, returning for next year, Charlevoix should develop a formidable aggregation.

Promising to be as popular as similar projects in Northern Michigan is a new summer camp for boys under the direction of Mrs. Ward Bennett at Beaver Island.

This new camp, which will have July 1 as its opening date, is located on what is known as Lighthouse Point on St. James harbor. Known as Kemah Camp, it will offer a routine of outdoor activities, as well as tutoring in mathematics, science and physical education. The camp is ideally situated and will offer many advantages exclusively its own.

Mrs. Bennett, the director, is a former local resident. She is well and favorably known here, and her many friends believe she has the qualities which will put her project over to a successful conclusion.

Mrs. Walter Bergeon was the charming hostess at a miscellaneous shower given at her home on Clinton street Monday evening in honor of Miss Larue Higman, whose wedding is an event of the near future.

Twenty guests were present at the delightful affair. Following a delicious pot-luck supper, bridge was the amusement feature of the evening, with honors going to Miss Genevieve Supernaw, Mrs. Henry Buddy and Virginia Solomon.

ROOF FIRE DAMAGES WASHBURN RESIDENCE

City fire department was called out at 9:30 Monday forenoon by a roof fire at the N. R. Washburn residence on Park avenue. Chemicals were used to extinguish the blaze and only slight damage resulted. The dry weather of late has been the cause of many roof fires, some of which have resulted in heavy loss. The fires have been caused largely by fires from sparks igniting shingles.

DECLAMATORY MEDAL WINNERS ANNOUNCED

Contests at Church of God Last Sunday Were Very Close

The following silver medal declamatory contest program was presented at the Church of God last Sunday evening under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.:

"Recruits," Marie Hanson; "The Two Glasses," Inga Isakson; "Dr. Charles Mayo's Warning to Youth," Lewis Greenman; "Henry Ward Beecher on Total Abstinence," Marjorie Webster; "Elasted," Herman Myers; "What Am I," Robert Pearl; "One Standard for Both Sexes," Charles Struthers; "The Mouse Trap," Wilma Kirby.

The medal was awarded to Charles Struthers and Lewis Greenman, who was a close second, made the presentation. The entire program was enthusiastically received by the audience and the difficulty which confronted the judges in reaching a decision was evident to all.

The church choir, directed by Mrs. E. L. Snyder, led the singing and the pastor, Rev. Marks, gave an evangelistic temperance message using "Wrecks" as his subject.

LIQUOR LANDS QUAR- TETTE IN TROUBLE

TWO GO ON-SPREE AT BOYNE CITY, IMPLICATE OTHERS

River Side Hotel Raided and Quantity Liquor Found — Operators Bound Over to Circuit Court

Smelt fishing and liquor turned out to be a bad combination for a quartette of men at Boyne City early last Wednesday morning, and the result was that they all landed in jail charged with violation of some phase of the prohibition laws.

It was two o'clock Wednesday morning when Buck Martin and Bud Pickel, both of Traverse City, met with an automobile accident when making an improper turn at a street intersection in Boyne City. They crashed into a young lady's car, and, according to state police, who were eye-witnesses, failed to stop. They were pursued and overtaken, however.

Officers reported the two men were intoxicated to such an extent that they readily admitted where they obtained their liquor, and said confession implicated Martin's brother, Cal Martin, also James Tryon, operators of the River Side hotel.

Officers waited until Thursday morning to raid the hotel. At one o'clock, Sergeant Aldrich and Troopers McGuire and Kozowicz of the State Police post at Cheboygan, also Sheriff Dave Vaughan and Deputies Cook and Marshall, swooped down upon the place. They reported finding a quantity of mixed liquor, a six-gallon crock of beer in the making, and an assortment of mild beverages thought to have been used for mixing drinks.

Charges were preferred against all four men and they were lodged in jail here.

At a hearing Saturday before Justice Robert Withers, Buck Martin and Pickel were assessed fines of $75 and $25 each, on charges of driving while intoxicated and disorderly conduct.

Cal Martin and James Tryon waived examination and were bound over to circuit court. Martin has furnished $750 cash bond for his release, while Tryon has yet to obtain his.

MRS. F. M. GLASSFORD DEAD AT MIAMI, FLA.

Succumbed to Blood Poisoning Late Tuesday Evening

Charlevoix was saddened Wednesday morning by word of the death Tuesday evening of Mrs. Frank M. Glassford at a hospital in Miami, Florida.

While only meager details are available, it is understood Mrs. Glassford was taken to the hospital early this week in a serious condition from infection in a cut on her hand. It was known that her daughter, Mrs. Franklin Weaver of Farmington, had been called to Miami, but few were aware that her condition was so serious.

When the remains will be brought to Charlevoix and other information is not available at this time.

Used tires in all sizes and makes and priced right. Benj. Brown—Adv. 1112.

Their Praise of Machine

Some have even gone so far as to acclaim this new RCA sound reproducing machine as the best they have ever heard in any theatre, large or small. The sound delivery is very plain and without unattractive noises.

Prior to installation of the new machine, walls of the theatre were treated for acoustics and an Overall Walker fireproof sound screen was installed. CHAPTER XI—Continued.

"Come, Elmer," Doris urged complacently. "I will ask Mr. Clarke to explain to me at a more appropriate time—say in the midst of his campaign for mayor. You dirty skunk!" she added, her fury gaining control at last. "I'll make you feel as righteous as you've made me feel. That much at least I can do and you wait! I'll do it. I didn't come here to black-mail you but—"

"Yes, yes, I know my letters to you will look silly in the public prints, but I'll be shot if I buy them back," said Elmer Clarke.

"No!" The girl's voice rose snarling. "Evidently you've forgotten all the drippy things you wrote me. I'll send you copies to refresh your memory and induce a change of mind on your part, little boy friend."

"How much do you want for them?" Elmer demanded.

"Ah-hah! So you are interested, aren't you? Well, Elmer, those letters will cost you tonight exactly five thousand dollars in cash, and a promise, sorry note for one hundred thousand secured by an assignment of an interest for that amount in your Uncle William's estate. You come to Los Angeles and my lawyer will arrange the details."

"But this is blackmail!" Elmer protested.

CHAPTER XII

Out in the garage Detective Sergeant Foley and Lipowsky exchanged glances. "I thought the boy was going to spill the beans on us, Lip," Foley declared, "but at the finish he sure came through noble."

"No thanks to him," growled Lipowsky. "He was just kiddin' them. Well, we've got enough on them to make the pinch as soon as they get back to Los Angeles. No use botherin' ourselves with them now. They got return tickets."

"Women ain't got no sense," Foley decided. "Get 'em med an' they'll tell everything they know—present company excepted," he added glantly. "I don't suppose you're going to tell Elmer all you know, are you?"

"Indeed not! That would only embarrass him."

Lipowsky winked at Foley. "Don't you think Elmer's awfully comin'?" Nellie pleaded.

"I dunno whether he's courageous or crazy or a plain boob, but whatever makes him go the way he does, I'm for him. Well, guess our job's done—all except gettin' that dictograph out of the house."

"It's Jasper's day off tomorrow," Nellie informed him. "I'll make Elmer take me to luncheon and then you can run over and get the dictograph. If I were you I'd wind up the wire as far as the back of the house tonight; otherwise, you will find it in the morning. You can cut it and connect it to the grass."

Foley winked at Lipowsky. "Meanwhile," Nellie continued, "I'm going home. I'll send Captain Fitzgerald a copy of the transcript of my notes tomorrow. Why do you not assist those wretches tonight?"

"We're out of our own jurisdiction. Of course we can make the pinch if you want us to, but we'll have to pull in the local dicks, and then the news would be all over town in the morning. Better let us handle these birds in Los Angeles. We might get their skinner lawyer, too."

"On to the heart of the chase, Mr. Foley. Thank you very much. Good night."

She slipped noiselessly out the door into Hazel drive. On that street, midway between C and B streets, she could see a man and a woman, the man straggling along under the burden of a suit case and a bag. So Nellie crossed to the other side of Hazel drive, in order to place distance between herself and Elmer should he chance to be standing on his front porch, and hurried away in pursuit of the couple. She watched them turn in at the principal garage.

"Going to live a car and go on to San Jose for the night," she thought. "I'll find out."

She followed boldly into the garage, not thirty feet behind them, and stood listening to the night manager for a closed car to take himself and wife to San Jose. When they started a few minutes later Nellie Cathcart bird another closed car and followed. At a third-rate San Jose hotel—which was, however, a first-class hotel in comparison with the Palace hotel in Pilarcitos—Colorado Charley and his companion registered as Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Skidmore, of Los Angeles, and retired for the night.

Nellie immediately returned to Pilarcitos and crept silently into the Tully home at one o'clock a. m. She did not go to bed immediately, however, but took down the telephone receiver and called for Mr. Foley at the Palace hotel.

The detective got out of bed and came downstairs to the telephone booth.

"Foley talking?"

"This is your female accomplice, Mr. Foley. Please forgive me for getting you out of bed, but I have news of importance to communicate. I followed those wretches. They hired a car and took them to the night manager, and told Mr. Bass, the night manager, that he wanted to hire it for himself and his wife. Mark that. Himself and his wife. Go right down to see Mr. Bass and remind him that he rented a car tonight to a man and his wife and see that he remembers it so well he will not be liable to forget it."

"That wife stuff is good!"

"Well, that couple are now asleep at the Garden City hotel, in San Jose, and registered as Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Skidmore, of Los Angeles."

"Naughty, naughty!"

"This is a decent, respectable country, Mr. Foley. We believe in conserving morals and protecting the home and we have no sympathy for strangers who play fast and loose with the reputations of our hotels. I'm scandalized."

"I'm blushing like a rose myself," said Detective Sergeant Foley. "Now, I'm going to take the straight of this. About nine o'clock tomorrow morning, then, see to it that you'll be heard of the Shore Line Limited to return to Los Angeles. Well, here's where I miss a whole lot more sleep. I suppose you want me to drive up to San Jose, have a confidential talk with the chief of police and ask him, as a courtesy to a brother chief, to pinch Charley and Mae on a charge of social vagrancy, chuck 'em into stir and make the ball the limit."

"That'll mean they'll have to stay to stir until they can raise bail. Maybe they can't. Maybe they ain't got friends that can be reached in a hurry. Still, that lawyer of theirs might bail them out, but on the other hand he might not. He'd probably get suspicious and figure your little boy friend had been too smart for him."

"Why, of course he'll be suspicious and drop that case like it was a hot stove. I'll see to that myself. I'll phone Fitzgerald and he'll phone that lawyer and tell him, anonymously, that his clients have got all tangled up in a dictograph, complicated with the purity squad."

"You're such a comfort, Mr. Foley," Nellie cooed. "Of course they won't have any defense, unless they can produce a marriage certificate."

"I know they can't do that, and if they do, their case against Elmer is a wash-out. It's a wash-out anyway. Well, little partner, we can't very well land 'em for attempted blackmail without draggin' your man into the case, so I guess we'll have to wait till next time, but in the meantime—" He paused significantly.

"Yes, yes, go on! You're doing fine, Mr. Foley. You were about to say?"

"We'll get them a quick trial in the San Jose police court before they can get bail, and 'em golly an' send 'em to the county jail for three months."

"Oh, make it six!" Nellie pleaded.

"With credit for good behavior they'll be out altogether too soon. It only costs a few dollars to file a suit, and nothing at all for publicity. That woman will do that for revenge as soon as she gets out, no matter what happens to her. Elmer can't afford it."

"Well, seeing as how you ask it, I'll make it six months. That's the limit. Consider it done! Me, I've been tryin' cases in the judge's chambers for ten years. That's the only way as dicks can get any justice or recognition. Good night! Sleep tight!"

A week later Nellie Cathcart received by registered mail a small cardboard box. Upon opening it she discovered it contained a small gold shield bearing the legend: "Honorary Detective Sergeant, Los Angeles Police Department." The shield bore a number also—No. 1.

In fact, that week everybody received something. Colorado Charley and Mae, to their great bewilderment, were given six months in the county jail and blamed Elmer Clarke for it. Mae even wrote to him accusing him of it but bidding him refrain from thinking he was little Jack Horner, since every dog must have his day.

Alas! Mae was counting her chickens before they were hatched, for immediately upon his return to Los Angeles, Detective Sergeant Lipowsky decided to strike a blow for true love. He knew a burglar who was also an expert at opening ordinary safes. So he burglarized the office of Colorado Charley's attorney, and presently Elmer Butterworth Clarke received by ordinary mail a large fat envelope. It contained his love letters to Mae, alias Doris.

Simultaneously, from another anonymous source, he received a clipping from a San Jose paper. It contained the story of the arrest and conviction of Joseph Skidmore and his companion, and since the story had been illustrated with pictures, Elmer was no longer in doubt of a very significant fact, to wit: that God had been very good to him, indeed.

Prior to the arrival of Colorado Charley and Mae at his house that night, nobody, not even astute Nellie Cathcart, could have imagined the extent of Elmer Clarke's terror and suffering. He felt exactly as he had always felt in France when his unit was in reserve but waiting to be ordered up to the front. Once under fire, however, he would say to himself: "Well, here's where I die. I can't escape this, so I might as well quit worrying and make the best of it for the few minutes I may have to live. I'm not brave but I'll act as if I am."

This old comforting philosophy had animated him the moment he had come face to face with Colorado Charley and Mae. The sight of them, as a matter of fact, had infuriated him and, furiously, he had grown suddenly light-headed. His attack had completely upset the calculations of the blackmailers; on the instant their plans crumbled. As they disappeared through his door a feeling of peace, after victory, settled over Elmer Clarke's sturdy soul.

Elmer Clarke retired to his virtuous couch and slept the sleep of the conscience-free and the healthy. At breakfast, next morning he had a telephone call from Nellie, who declared she was simply bursting with curiosity. He must take her to luncheon that day and tell her all about his interview with those terrible people.

Elmer accepted with alacrity and when he and Nellie found themselves in a booth at the Palace grill he gave her a detailed account of his adventure. Nellie noticed that Elmer did not pat himself on the back.

"I was scared to death, Nellie," he confessed. "but it would never have come to let them know I was, so I bluffed my way through."

"Do you think the incident is closed?" Nellie queried innocently.

"I do not. I'm going to be the laughing stock of this town sooner or later—unless I buy those letters from them. I'm not. I'll stand for their fire. It will be horrible, but I'll stand for it."

"You appear to have eliminated my point of view from your considerations, Elmer. How do you know I can manage to stand up under that ridicule of you? Don't you think it will hurt me terribly?"

"Would it?" he queried eagerly. "I'd like to think so. I'd like to think you love me still, with all my faults. Do you, darling?"

"You'll have to go on guessing. I have some womanly pride, you know, and you have jarred it frightfully."

"I've been a dog," he murmured sadly. "It serves me right. Of course I have the nerve of a lion tamer to ask this, but—will you give me another chance, Nellie? Will you take me back—on probation?"

"I accept. I'll take you back—not as a sweetheart but as the dear old friend you were before you told me you loved me and asked me to marry you. Meanwhile, you are not to run away from Pilarcitos. You must stay here and make your campaign for mayor."

"I can never be elected mayor now," he assured her. "That suit and the publication of my letters to Doris—"

"Were they love letters, Elmer?"

He hung his head. "I tried to make them sound that way, but I don't think they were as enthusiastic as ones I could have written you under the same circumstances. Still, I suppose they're silly enough to tickle Pilarcitos to death. They'll be hard for me to laugh off."

"Take the chance," she urged.

Elmer shook his head dolefully. "I dare not—now."

"But you announced your candidacy with a blare of trumpets, as it were. You'll have to enter the fight now."

Elmer shuddered. "But I never intended to run for mayor this year," he protested lamely. "I was merely announcing myself as a candidate to run against the incumbent when he came up for re-election, as I figured he would. Now the infernal kid-joy has disappointed everybody by resigning and moving out of the county, the city council is deadlocked over the appointment of his successor and in order to save their faces they have ordered a special election to decide who shall be mayor to fill the unexpired term. So you see, Nellie, I've got an excellent excuse for withdrawing now. I can say I do not care to make a campaign for the unexpired term, because it will not afford me an opportunity to initiate reforms. All my friends will understand—"

"You remind me of a small boy who whistles up his courage as he passes the cemetery after dark. Elmer, you know very well that if you are elected to fill the unexpired term and make good you can be elected for the next two-year term without half trying."

"No, I cannot. I'll make no announcement in the Charlon that, upon further consideration, I find that my business affairs will not permit of my making the race and accordingly I am withdrawing my candidacy."

"If you do that," Nellie assured him, "you might as well abandon all hope of marrying me eventually. I could never stand a quitter. I want you to enter that fight even if you do lose it."

He sat there in his chair. "The very thought of it makes me shudder. Nellie, have a heart! Permit me to withdraw now, marry me and go away with me—to France or Italy—anywhere in escape. Then when I should fall I'll not be here to be laughed at. Nothing in this world can be of surpassing interest for more than nine days, and in a year or two from now when we return the whole miserable affair will have been forgotten."

"I dare say, Elmer. In that length of time you will have been forgotten, too. You will have lost your leadership, an essential to your future here. You must remain here and build up your leadership."

"Then marry me and help me stand it."

"No, I had nothing to do with getting you into this jam and you'll have to fight your own way out. If you do that, however, the day I find it out I'll marry you. But if you quit, if you run—count me out of your calculations."

He groaned inwardly.

"You haven't the slightest conception of a woman's pride, Elmer," Nellie went on with motherly tenderness. "That adventure is trying to break you, to run you out of your own country. I'm trying to make you, to keep you from being run out. The question therefore resolves itself into this: who is going to win? You are the only human being who can decide that question, and I call upon you to decide it here and now or forfeit, not only the fragments of my former love for you, but my future friendship and respect for you. I speak up, Elmer, or remain forever silent."

"You win," he declared without an instant's hesitation. "I don't care what happens to me provided I do not humiliate you again. I can take a licking, you know."

"Smiling, I hope."

"Well, at any rate, in silence."

"That remains to be seen," said Nellie daintily. "Your courage and sportsmanship are going to be tested in a manner of which you little dream. Our future happiness depends upon how well or how poorly you emerge from that test."

Elmer thought of his love letters to Doris and shuddered again.

"You're not eating anything," Nellie challenged him suddenly. "Why, you haven't taken a single bite!"

"If I did I'd feel as vulgar and insensible as a pig," he replied.

"Cheer up, Elmer. There is no hell."

"Well, then, I'm up to my ears in something just as hot." He eyed her half angrily. "And you're the little devil that's stoking the fire."

Nellie half rose from her chair and leaned across the table toward him.

"Kiss Me, Booby!" She Commanded Fiercely.

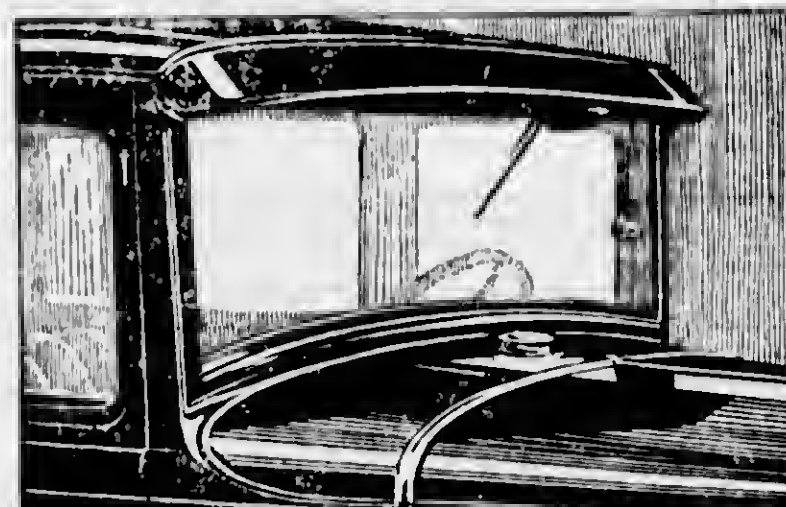

"Kiss me, booby!" she commanded fiercely. And Elmer obeyed.

Up to the day he received, from that anonymous Los Angeles source, the letters he had written his innamorata, Elmer made no progress in the matter of mapping out his campaign for mayor. He was much too nervous, too overwhelmed with grave apprehensions, to focus his mind on his adventure which could only end in disaster. He spent his days fishing and his nights in gloomy meditation.

GARDENS FOR RELIEF

Red Cross relief is not merely a matter of feeding and clothing destitute persons. It includes a construction program which looks to the future. One feature of such a program is the distribution of garden seeds. The Red Cross distributed seeds in its Mississippi flood rehabilitation work and after the hurricanes in Porto Rico and Florida. It is now distributing garden seeds in its drought relief work in a number of states. In Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama some of the Red Cross seeds are already in the ground.

A packet of seeds contains enough to plant about a quarter of an acre of land and includes 18 varieties of seeds—beans, peas, corn, tomatoes, squash and all sorts of leafy and root vegetables. As the gardens mature they will supply food to the families planting them, relieve the drain of grocery orders on the Red Cross, and give families a self-respecting and active part in their own relief.

The seed program may have another important result in the cotton-growing communities. It may encourage many a farmer who has always followed the custom of planting nothing but cotton to go in for generous vegetable gardens. Vegetables require water, of course, and a prolonged drought will ruin them as it does grain or cotton. But extensive vegetable growing, when the season is right, would provide fresh vegetables for immediate use and also would make possible the storing of dried and canned produce for future consumption.

BUILDING REVIVES

Residential construction so far this year, in the country as a whole, shows the first upturn since 1928. Accordingly builders, realtors and others are cheered.

Building is fundamental. No other industry touches and stimulates so many lines of manufacture and trade. Building has been looked to for months to provide the first impetus of better times for all.

Society in general is interested not merely for practical reasons, but because of the spiritual values of home-ownership. Owned homes make better citizens.

The news interests all owners of buildings and land, all taxpayers who have had difficulty lately in keeping out of the sheriff's hands. It breathes new hope into real estate, which has been going through a crisis.

YOUNG DRIVERS

It is easy to get the wrong slant on youthful drivers. The usual view is that it is dangerous to trust a car to anyone under 18, and that even at 20 a driver is likely to be a bit irresponsible. An automobile editor who seems to have given the subject some real attention remarks there is more to be said for letting a youth drive than for putting faith in a driver too old to make up his mind without calling a meeting of the board of directors.

"As a matter of fact," he says, "the average boy of 16 would be a better driver, if put on his own, than his father at 45, and unspeakably better than his grandfather at 70. But don't tell grandpa."

Father, you see, is likely to have so many things on his mind that he doesn't concentrate on the job. The boy will probably make a real job of it. Besides, his senses are keener, and his reactions quicker.

These natural qualifications, however, don't necessarily help him when he is driving with three or four other young people, male and female, on the front seat.

RECORD ADVERTISING

One million dollars was expended by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company in the brief space of seven days to introduce through a $50,000 prize contest the new moisture-proof cellophane wrapper of the Camel package. The initial announcement of the contest consisted of full page advertisements in 1,713 daily newspapers, 412 college periodicals and many financial newspapers. In addition, large space advertisements were used in 2,189 county seat weekly newspapers. Three additional advertisements, one of them full page and the other approximately one-half page were used in practically the same list of newspapers before the close of the contest. This makes the Camel cigarette contest one of the largest short-time advertising expenditures on record in this country, advertising experts say, and newspapers are used exclusively.

REMODELED JUNK

The Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, Inc., reports that producers of steel in this country last year converted some 30,000,000 tons of scrap metal into new steel for use in all sorts of manufactured articles required in the home, in industry or in transportation. Incredible as it may seem, the handsome new kitchen stove or even the new car may be made in part of the stuff the junk man deals in.

The junk carried away from private homes is only a small part of the total. Most of the scrap metal used in manufacture comes from old battleships, locomotives, cars and rails no longer useful, old railroads discontinued for economic reasons, outworn or outgrown bridges, factory scrap piles, and so on.

Here is real economy and conservation. The 30,000,000 tons of scrap steel utilized last year saved 150,000,000 tons of iron ore and coal.

CHERRY CONTROL MEETINGS CALLED

State to Conduct Them in Nearby Cities in Next Two Weeks

The first of 26 meetings in the state's cherry growing areas to outline a spraying campaign to rid Michigan's orchards of the cherry fruit fly are being conducted this week. They will be continued until April 1st.

The meetings are under the supervision of the Michigan State college, representatives of the cherry canning and cherry growers' association, and officials of the state agricultural department.

E. C. Mandenberg, head of the orchard and nursery inspection division of the department of agriculture, is in charge of the state's participation in the fruit fly "war."

The 26 meetings, according to Mandenberg, will put cherry growers in readiness to begin spraying as soon as word is received at the college that the cherry fruit fly has appeared anywhere in the state's fruit sections.

The stringent campaign is organized on its recent comprehensive basis, according to Herbert E. Howell, commissioner of agriculture, because of the value of Michigan's cherry crop in 1930 was $2,808,000. Value of the cherry canned products totalled $3,135,225.

Michigan ranks second in the value and size of its annual cherry yield, Powell said. New York is first, California third and Wisconsin fourth. First ranking counties in Michigan are Grand Traverse, Leelanau and Oceana.

The cities and towns in which the 26 preparatory meetings will be held until April 1 are Paw Paw, Gobies, Hartford, Coloma, Bridgman, Benton Harbor, South Haven, Saugatuck, Fennville, Grand Haven, Kent City, Big Rapids, Shelby, Hart, Scottville, Bear Lake, Beulah, Sutton's Bay, Northport, Lake Leelanau, Archie, Traverse City, Kewadin, Central Lake, Boyne City and East Jordan.

SWEET CLOVER HAY MAY BE INJURIOUS

Molds Inside Plant Stems Sometimes Causes Death of Cattle

Sweet clover, which is a valuable soil builder and an excellent feed for livestock on Michigan farms, sometimes contains a mold in the hollow stems which makes the hay an unsafe feed for cattle, according to members of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State college.

So far as known, this mold is present only in sweet clover hay which was allowed to become coarse and woody before it was cut, or in hay which was stored in a damp condition. No cases of trouble from feeding the hay to any kind of livestock except cattle have been reported and sweet clover appears to be perfectly safe as a pasture crop for every kind of livestock.

Sweet clover has become very popular in this state and, as the mold which makes it dangerous for cattle can not be detected by examination, the animal husbandry men advise farmers who are feeding sweet clover to cattle to obtain some tame rabbits and use them to test the value of the hay. If the mold is present in the hay fed to the rabbits, it will affect them sooner than it will cattle, and the feeding of the sweet clover can be discontinued before any cattle are lost.

The mold has some quality which destroys the agent which causes the blood of cattle to coagulate and animals which have been fed the moldy hay bleed to death from minor wounds or they may be killed by internal hemorrhages. The use of the rabbits to test the hay gives a sure method of determining its value and makes it safe to continue the use of this crop in Michigan.

If troubled with headache, dizziness, nervousness, or any other symptom of eye-strain, consult Dr. Leahy, the Optometrist, at the Hotel Charlevoix, Tuesday, April 7th.—Adv. 1212

AT THE MOVIES

Powell Coming in Drama Role

The Bridge of Sighs, dark corridor of drama that long has been a New York landmark, is used as one of the settings for William Powell's newest starring release, "For the Defense," which comes to the Palace theatre for two days beginning Saturday next.

The Bridge of Sighs is a covered span of stone that connects Tombs prison with the New York Criminal Courts building. Across it prisoners are led from their cells to the court docks; its name originated from their thoughts and feelings as they were led to trial or brought back again following pronouncement of their sentences. Some of the most notorious criminals in the world have made the trip over the historic "bridge."

"For the Defense" presents William Powell as a brilliant criminal defense lawyer who saves many a client from jail through his resourceful application of legal technicalities. But the day comes when he must summon every trick in his power to save the girl he loves from a charge of manslaughter. In attempting to win the case for her he becomes enmeshed in the coils of the law himself, and faces a life term in jail. The climax is filled with high-tension dramatics, and leaves audiences breathless.

Kay Francis is the sweetheart who is threatened with the ominous trip across the Bridge of Sighs into a lifetime of imprisonment.

Scott Kolk is the society ne'er-do-well who starts all the villainy in the production. He was one of the featured players in "All Quiet on the Western Front."

CAMPBELL SPONSORS AVIATION MEASURES

Proposes That Obstructions Near Airports Be Plainly Marked

Aviation bills extending the powers of the state board of aeronautics were introduced Thursday by Senator Calvin A. Campbell, of Indian River. One measure provides that the board shall have as members the state highway commissioner and the commissioner of public safety, as well as the present five members appointed by the governor. It increases the terms of members to four years. The bill also extends the jurisdiction of the board to flying clubs and airport managers.

Another measure would permit the administrative board, on recommendation of the air board, to lease state lands for municipal, county or township airports "under the best terms that can be obtained."

A third bill empowers the board to order all obstructions near landing fields to be marked and provides that no telephone or power lines shall be erected near licensed fields.

Early Settlement Urged

Northern Sanatorium Sought

A group of 37 counties in Northern Michigan, at present without sanatorium protection against tuberculosis, will be provided with a 250-bed institution if a measure now before the State Legislature becomes law. Counties to be served by the proposed sanatorium are shown on the above map in black. The measure is being championed by Fred Ming, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Endorsements for Sanatorium Urged

Whether or not north central Michigan gets this year the tuberculosis sanatorium for which an aggressive campaign has been waged in the present Legislature will be determined within the few remaining weeks of the 1931 session.

Leaders in the House and Senate are optimistic about the chances for passage of the bill, introduced by Representative William Ward, Grand Traverse county. They feel that there is a nearly unanimous opinion for the institution, which, if built, will provide facilities for the tuberculosis sick of 37 counties. These counties, shown in black on the map, are literally "in the red" as far as tuberculosis is concerned since not a single sanatorium bed exists in the area.

According to backers of the bill, the greatest need now is for expressions of interest in the measure from persons and organizations in counties to be served by the institution, of which this county is one.

"If we are to get this sanatorium, the governor and the men in the Legislature must know that the people in the counties affected want it," said Mr. Ward. "Individual people and organizations such as luncheon clubs, women's clubs, parent-teacher associations and others can help by sending to their local senator and representative, and particularly to Governor Brucker, letters signifying their interest in and support of the bill."

The Michigan Tuberculosis Association states that organizations and persons writing should ask the Governor and the Legislature to adopt whatever special tax may be necessary to furnish funds for constructing the institution, since a tax other than one on property must be passed to provide the needed revenue.

STOCK TAX PROPOSED FOR TB SANATORIUM

Brucker and Ming Consider New Plan to Finance Institution

A tax on the sale of stocks and securities may be used to pay the construction costs of the Northern State Tuberculosis Sanatorium. Instead of a tax on malt, if an agreement to this effect said to have been reached last week by Governor Wilber Brucker and Speaker of the House Fred R. Ming is put in force.

Since the opening of the legislative session, Mr. Ming has argued for the malt tax as a means of financing the sanatorium and also others of the state's tuberculosis bills. In the face of the governor's continued unfriendliness toward the tax, based on the view that the state should not seek revenue from a source that indirectly contributes to law violation, he finally capitulated. The bill for a stock tax, which Mr. Ming says the governor has agreed to sign, was then adopted as a substitute measure.

This bill, introduced by Representative Wreford, Wayne county, calls for a tax of four cents a share on all stocks or securities exchanged, excluding original issues. Representative Wreford readily consented to use of funds secured through the measure for support of tuberculosis needs.

Officials of the Michigan Tuberculosis association estimate that construction of the 250 bed sanatorium sought for the North of the state would involve expenditure of $750,000. Maintenance costs probably would amount to $1,000 per bed or about $250,000 per year. This operating cost, however, would be met jointly by the state and by the various counties hospitalizing patients in the sanatorium.

STRAITS FERRIES GO ON RUN APRIL FIRST

One Boat to Be Used Until Traffic Demands Additional Service

Regular ferry service will be resumed between St. Ignace and Mackinaw City "as soon as the ice breaks in the straits," it was announced this week following conferences between Grover C. Dillman, state highway commissioner, and Capt. G. E. Stufflebeam, superintendent of the state's ferries.

Resumption of the service will probably be carried out shortly after April 1, Stufflebeam indicated. Motorists were not extended the ferry service last year until April 10. One boat service will be the rule until May 15, the superintendent said. After that date two ferries will be in use, and on June 20 the regular summer schedule of three car ferries will go into effect.

Present crossing service at the straits is afforded by railroad car ferries running on irregular schedules.

Cherry Fruit Fly Control to be Discussed

E. C. Mandenberg, chief of nursery and orchard inspections, state department of agriculture, will discuss the problem of controlling the cherry fruit fly at a series of two meetings to be held on Wednesday, April 1.

The first will be held at the Boyne City library at 10 o'clock, fast time, Wednesday forenoon, and the second at East Jordan in the K. of P. hall Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock fast time. All cherry growers are strongly urged to attend, as this problem is one of great concern to all cherry raisers in the county. Charlevoix county merits an enviable reputation as producing cherries that have been free from the fruit fly and the future will depend on maintaining this well-earned status.

Last year the state made a total of 1,746 inspections on a similar number of premises in 27 different counties. By using cages the exact time of emergence was ascertained and all cherry growers were accurately informed as when to spray. In Charlevoix county a total of 92 premises were examined and only 4 were found where cherry fruit fly and cherry anagot infestation had taken place. An intelligent knowledge of the history of this dreaded pest is the only way for us to keep up the good work, so let's be present on Wednesday, April 1st at these meetings.

From a very recent survey Charlevoix county has a total of 48,649 cherry trees located in six townships and including both sweet and sour. Of this total 36,829 were sour trees. Proving that great development is taking place the survey indicated that of the above total only 9,161 were bearing trees while 37,668 trees were non-bearing—a ratio of 4 to 1. This condition is quite common and indicates that future production will be great. High quality production will sell cherries.

Attend these meetings and assume your share of the responsibility.

Leaders in Home Management Project to Hold Spring Meetings

Leaders of the Home Economics Home Management classes will hold their third training meeting to the present extension course March 31 and April 1. The Charlevoix group will meet in the Charlevoix community rooms at 10:30 eastern standard time Tuesday forenoon, March 31, and the Boyne City group will meet in the Boyne City library at 10:30 eastern standard time Wednesday, April 1.

The subject of these lessons will be "Efficiency Problems of the Home," and will be given by Miss Oona Stautz, home management specialist, Michigan State college. Topics to be considered in this lesson are three unpopular jobs of housekeeping, namely: laundry, cleaning, and dishwashing.

This is the third lesson in a series of four lessons in home management to be given in this county. This project is reaching the largest number of both city and rural women of any thus far carried out.

From last reports a total of 228 women were enrolled in the project in 16 different community groups and with 33 ladies acting as leaders.

Many of the groups have met each month all winter and in that way have had their social and educational contacts. Many are keeping household account books. Many are keeping diaries on home happenings. All leaders are urged to be present promptly at its scheduled time.

Jordan Valley Cooperative Creamery

Creamery Making Headway
A large membership meeting of all subscribers to the Jordan Valley Cooperative Creamery was held in the East Jordan high school gymnasium last Tuesday, the 17th. At this time the board of directors and by-laws of the new organization were permanently elected and selected for the first year. Arthur Howland, specialist of M. S. C. was present and assisted in the legal requirements to be met.

The board of directors have held several meetings during the last month and suitable progress has resulted from their efforts in considering the many problems that always present themselves for decision.

In the first place the site for the creamery has been decided and a contract signed for the purchase of the Lakeside garage. Work on making the alterations necessary to remodel the building for installation of machinery and equipment is already under way. Also a sufficient quantity of ice has been harvested and placed in storage for the refrigeration needs.

Representatives of creamery equipment companies have been interviewed and equipment problem generally discussed. Applications for positions of manager and butter-maker continue to pour in.

Everyone connected in an official way with the organization is doing his utmost to have the creamery in operation as soon as possible, and to protect the interests of all stockholders in all business transactions.

PETITION STATE TO REMOVE ALL BEAVER

Charlevoix Sportsmen Seek Riddance of Animal from County

War on the beaver has been declared by a number of Charlevoix sportsmen and others, and a petition is being circulated to request the state to rid the county of the animals.

Rev. J. W. Lees is one of the leaders in the movement. He is chairman of the Boosters club committee to take the beaver situation up with the conservation commission, Rev. Fred R. Ming, and Senator C. A. Campbell.

Lees started the attempt to rid the county of beaver at the second February meeting of the Boosters club, when he spoke on the problem being created by beavers, which fell trees and make dams, flooding swamps and causing slack water which results in diseased and dying fish.

He initiated a petition, which has already received about two score names. It reads: "We, the undersigned citizens of Charlevoix county do hereby petition the state legislature of Michigan to enact such laws as are necessary to rid this section of the beaver, the greatest menace to our streams and property."

Marvin McClellint, another ardent worker in the war on beaver, says that the animals also cause a forest fire hazard by killing timber.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m.

Subject, "Reality."

Wednesday evening at 7:15, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to all services.

"Matter" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, March 22.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia; for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth." (Rev. 19:6).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "In proportion as the belief disappears that life and intelligence are in or of matter, the immortal facts of being are seen, and their only idea of intelligence is in God. Spirit is reached only through the understanding and demonstration of eternal life and Truth and Love." (p. 279).

MARKET PRICES DON'T MEAN ANYTHING TO HEN

Food Value of Eggs the Same If Price is High or Low

The old hen blinking on her nest out in the chicken house doesn't know a thing about market prices, supply and demand, the depression, or farm relief. But day after day, week after week she just keeps putting the same vitamins . . . the same proteins . . . the same healthful food value which nature ordained in those eggs . . . whether they sell for 12 cents or sixty cents a dozen. And if the world turned upside down tomorrow we'd probably find the hen sitting placidly underneath the mess turning out her daily goblet of health wrapped in the world's most sanitary package.

So if the same full ration . . . the same bundle of carbohydrates, minerals, fats, and vitamins is appearing day after day from mother hen we're certainly getting a bargain now when her product is selling at the lowest price in many years. Let's crack a few extra eggs into the frying pan for breakfast. We'll all be better for it.

Money to Burn

serves that misfortune come not singly. The next night, with equal truth, have written that blessings come in flocks. Suddenly came the letter from Paris, charging him with the perpetration of a newer and more despicable crime and vowing vengeance when her time should be up. The receipt of the newspaper clipping solved the mystery of the girl's letter and while Elmer was rejoicing at this infallible evidence of a stay of execution, and making up his mind to make the fur fly in his campaign for mayor now that fate had intervened and given him a fighting chance to win, the packet of love letters arrived.

The comfort that had been his just previous to this was the most extravagant grief in comparison with the delicious delight that descended upon him now.

It was the greatest day in history. When his paroxysm of delight had in a measure abated, he proceeded to read the letters in the order of their dates.

After reading the third letter he shook as with an ague, for he discovered that he had indeed asked Doris to marry him! He essayed to read the fourth letter and gasped aloud. It was terrible. So he burned them all.

He was waiting outside the bank when Nellie came out at five o'clock. "Hop into this car and come away with me, Nellie," he ordered. "or I'll kidnap you."

Nellie hopped in, and they whirled away into the country. Once clear of the town Elmer's hand stole over and closed over Nellie's. She jerked it away, but he seized her arm roughly and again possessed himself of her hand, which he retained by brute force. Still he said nothing, so Nellie maintained silence. Presently she spoke, to break an embarrassing silence.

"What have you been doing all day, Elmer?"

"I've been singing."

"Not you a hundred dollars I know what you've been singing."

"Taken. What have I been singing?"

"The national anthem of Sinn."

"You lose. I don't know it."

"Oh, yes, you do!"

"What's it called?"

"Whalanasslam," she informed him.

Without a moment's hesitation Elmer Butterworth Clarke took out his wallet and solemnly handed Nellie Cathcart a hundred-dollar bill, and Nellie took it!

When Elmer rose the following morning he remembered that if he intended to be mayor of Philadelpia he had no time to spare.

After breakfast he wrote a classified announcement, for the Clarion. This paper had supported him vigorously in his campaign for high school trustee, but Elmer, wise in the ways of small-town politics, realized that it was altogether improbable that it should receive editorial support in his campaign for mayor. The Clarion was supported by the advertising of local business men and the local business men, Elmer knew, would be a unit for one of his opponents. In order, therefore, to secure positive opposition or no opposition at all, he made one of those tactful moves of which he was singularly capable.

"Now, see here," he announced frankly. "I want to contract with you right now for a half page ad. to be run tri-weekly until election day. I do not expect your editorial support. All I ask is that, when you do have to mention me, you do so as kindly and fairly as you can."

Then with careless abandon he gave quite a large order for quarter cards, dogeys, banners, pennants and campaign buttons to the Clarion's job printing department. Furthermore, knowing the editor was never more than one jump ahead of the sheriff, he magnanimously paid for all this work in advance. That settled the matter of the Clarion's attitude. The editor decided immediately to play safe and support nobody.

The extent of his advertising and the elaborate preparations for his campaign alarmed and irritated his opponents, the alarm being occasioned by first-hand knowledge that they were being opposed by a young, forceful, popular man, without a taint of his character and with an excellent war record. His strength in fraternal circles was well known, and of course he would get the old soldier vote in its entirety. The irritation of the enemy was born of an apprehension that if they were to oppose him successfully they would have to adopt the spending of more money than they cared to think about. Also, they would have to make speeches they were incapable of making with a libe of the case, grace and logic of their youthful equipment.

Their best plan lay in ancient political strategy.

By mutual consent the Democratic and the Republican candidates concluded to refrain from fighting each other and concentrate their fire on Elmer.

To Elmer competition was the joy of life. He had been born with the winning spirit and he resolved to leave no stone unturned to secure his objective. However, he overlooked one stone. Nellie Cathcart called it to his attention.

"I suppose, Elmer, you're going to spend a couple of thousand dollars to win an office that pays a salary of only one hundred dollars a month."

"I suppose so. The confounded job is really a nuisance, but now that I'm in the race I'm not going to let a little money stand in the way of victory."

"Well, you had better form the Elmer B. Clarke Campaign committee and permit it to spend that money," she suggested. "Name the committee and appoint me treasurer. You have already spent as much money as you are permitted to spend under the law; if you spend more, you will violate the purity of the election law; if you win, your enemies will check up on you after the election, indict you, convict you and deprive you of your hard-earned office."

"But I can't pass the bat for my campaign expenses," he protested, bewildered.

"Organize your finance committee, head the subscription list with a fifty-dollar donation and open an account in Anse Moody's bank. Then send your bills to me and, as treasurer, I will pay them."

"But how?"

"Never mind how. As treasurer that will be my worry. You stick to your knitting."

"But where can you get the money?"

"I'll get it somewhere. Elmer, did you ever see a cat reconnoiter a hole in a fence? He sticks his head through and if his whiskers touch he knows he cannot get his body through, so he climbs over the fence. Well, I'm going to crawl through this hole without touching my financial whiskers."

She did. She gave the Pilgrimage Commercial Trust & Savings bank a second mortgage for two thousand dollars on the property she had bought from Elmer Clarke, and old Anse Moody charged her ten per cent interest on the loan and refused to make it for more than a year. This money she deposited to the credit of the Elmer B. Clarke Campaign committee, and on the day after the election she paid her last bill, closed up her account and had four hundred dollars left.

And on election day Elmer received two votes in excess of the total votes cast for his opponents. It was a slipshod, a second-class victory.

SCHOOL NEWS

Music

The fourth, fifth, and sixth grades have been making an intensive study of great musical masterpieces through the use of the new school phonograph, noting the name of the composer, composition, and interesting facts. The last composition studied was Wagner's Magic Fire Music from "Die Walkure." This study culminates in a music memory contest to be presented after spring vacation.

The second grade in music is ready for books and will begin formal sight reading as soon as all have books. Preparatory for this we have, by means of art songs and soft syllables, study of motives and figures, phrase recognition and repetition, acquired a musical vocabulary, and by means of visualization drills and staff notations, have accustomed the eyes to recognize what has already been learned by ear.

Government Class

Following the study of the different departments of our government a cabinet meeting, patterned after that held by the President of the United States and his cabinet, was held in class last Thursday and Friday, to discuss the present unemployment situation. From the plans presented at this meeting the "President" formulated and read to the class the methods to relieve this situation which he would sponsor.

The chief participants, besides the many assistants which each one might have were: President, Pat Moran; Secretary of State, Gwendolen Miller; Secretary of Treasury, Charles Cellner; Secretary of War, Eloise Tillotson; Attorney-General, Lola Fessenden; Postmaster General, Bob Foster; Secretary of Navy, Rolt McCall; Secretary of Interior, Angie Scott; Secretary of Agriculture, Marjorie Manly; Secretary of Commerce, David Coulter; Secretary of Labor, Dixon Warner.

Domestic Science

The eighth grade girls have finished studying breakfast units. They have learned to prepare and serve a breakfast, and for the past week have been serving them. Junior high teachers were guests at the breakfast. The girls have taken great interest in this work and have proved themselves to be both deft and efficient.

Sixth Grade

The plateau states have proved an interesting unit in geography, no doubt because of the attractive feature of national parks. Earl Young supplemented our picture study by films on Yellowstone and Zion national parks. These illustrations made more real the scenery of our western states.

Iowa Brothers Set New World's Record in Ford

IOWA state officials and civic leaders witnessed the establishment of a new world's non-motor, non-wheel stop automobile endurance record recently, when Ralph and Roland Davis, brothers, brought their Model A Ford to a halt at the east entrance of the state capitol in Des Moines after 2,776 hours and 46 minutes of continuous driving.

When Governor Hammill, standing with Walter Ferrell, executive secretary of the Iowa Chapter of the American Automobile Association, gave the signal to stop, the Ford had traveled a total of 47,138.3 miles over all sorts of roads in all sorts of weather and had exceeded by 23,650 miles and more than 2,335 hours the American non-stop endurance record which, theretofore officially recognized, was made by a much heavier car under almost ideal conditions on the Indianapolis speedway last year. In the course of the endurance run, the car, known as "The City of Des Moines," covered practically the entire state of Iowa.

Engineers who examined the Ford at the conclusion of the run ascertained that neither engine nor chassis showed evidence of the grueling strains to which they were subjected during the 116 days of continuous driving. Both apparently, according to the engineers, would have been good for another 50,000 miles or more.

Militiamen Guard $50,000 Contest Mail

THE thousands of letters received in the $50,000 Camel cigarette contest, advertised in newspapers from coast to coast, were guarded in the same manner as huge gold shipments. Photograph shows contest mail being loaded into an armored truck at the Winston-Salem, N. C., postoffice under guard for transportation to the offices of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. Charles Dana Gibson, noted artist and publisher of Life, Ray Long, president of International Magazine Company and Editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine, and Roy Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, were judges of the contest which called for answers to the question, "What recent change has been made in the wrapping of the Camel cigarettes and what are its advantages to the smoker?" The huge response to the contest announcements proved anew the great responsiveness of the public to newspaper advertising.

The normal class and training room appreciated Miss Rood's talk on vision and hearing last Wednesday.

Pretty decorations of Easter bunnies and lilies have appeared in the normal room.

The class had a pleasant surprise last Friday when Miss Button appeared to tell of her interesting experiences of last summer during her trip to Europe. The class wishes to express its appreciation to Miss Button for a pleasant class period.

Training Room

The February play that was to be given in assembly by the training room, but was postponed on account of illness, will be given for the county normal student teachers Friday afternoon.

The buyer of seed corn does well to consider the productiveness of a variety, its uniformity, and its adaptability to the soil and climate where it is to grow, says the U. S. department of agriculture. The varietal name may be of little importance because of the mixing of names by seed-corn dealers and the mixing of varieties through cross-pollination by the wind.

FARMERS WANTED TO CHECK SEED SOURCEM. S. C. Reports Low Quality Stocks
Shipped Into State

A warning that Michigan farmers, seeking bargains in low priced seed, are likely to secure stocks of very low quality is being sent out by the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

Tests of four lots of so-called bargain seed, purchased recently by Michigan customers from an extensive advertiser and mail order distributor of seed for which great bargain values are claimed, shows that not one of the lots is fit for planting.

"One lot of alfalfa seed described as a 'star bargain of the first magnitude' showed under the tests at M. S. C., only 51 per cent germination, and 12 per cent hard seed, leaving 37 per cent dead," says Prof. H. C. Rather, head of the college crops department. "This was about what would be expected in view of large amounts of brown seed screenings which this lot contained."

"Furthermore, the seed contained well over 5,000 weed seeds per pound, including ten different species—principally foxtail and Russian thistle. The price of $9.60 per bushel plus postage for this seed makes the actual cost of the fairly sound alfalfa seed in the lot about $20.00 per bushel, or $3.00 a bushel more than the price for which high quality, northern grown common may be purchased in this state."

"Other lots at hand are similarly of inferior quality, and the planting of any one of them at the usual rates would involve the distributing of 50,000 to more than 100,000 weed seeds per acre, including some of the most dangerous pests. One lot at hand is sweet clover which, if seeded at 15 pounds per acre, would distribute nearly 2,000 mustard seeds per acre—a source of trouble for years to come."

"It is much safer for farmers to buy high quality seed at the usual market price than to gamble on mail order bargain seeds. If economy in the purchase of seed is necessary, it may be accomplished in the lowering of the rate of seeding per acre with satisfactory results and no noxious weed dangers. Reliable seed may be purchased from Michigan dealers and seed companies operating under the Michigan seed law."

CHEST CLINIC PLAN WILL BE APPROVEDTB Association Cooperates With Medical Society and University

Instead of the system of tuberculosis chest clinics formerly used in Michigan, by which the clinics were sponsored solely by the Michigan Tuberculosis association, in the future they will be conducted jointly by the association, the University of Michigan school of post-graduate medicine, and the State Medical society. Clinics in this county hereafter will be arranged under the new plan, according to the Tuberculosis association, and will continue to be financed by Christmas seals.

The clinics will be directed by the dean of the university school of post-graduate medicine, the object being to place more of the study of tuberculosis with the physicians of the local communities than has been done under the clinic scheme in use for the past 20 years.

Officials state that the new system has been established because of the extreme difficulties under which clinics were conducted in the past. Without X-ray and laboratory facilities, medical men making the examinations, although they did the best work possible under the circumstances, were not fully satisfied with the results they secured.

With the adjusted clinic program, it is hoped to conduct examinations in such a way that the latest scientific accomplishments will be made available to every person. By working together with the school of post-graduate medicine and the medical society, authorities of the Tuberculosis association feel that they are helping to build up around each physician in the state the facilities for early recognition of tuberculosis.

LAW MAKERS FOCUS
EYE ON GAME LAWSIncrease in License Fees Asked to Build Up Game Preserves

A proposal that deer and small game license fees be increased to provide funds for the purchase of game preserves and public hunting grounds was before the senate Friday, introduced by Senator Ernest T. Conlon, of Grand Rapids.

The upper chamber also had received a bill from Senator James A. Skinner, of Kent county, proposing issuance of seals for the use of hunters of pheasant and partridge in the same manner the tags are now attached to deer carcasses.

Conlon's measure would increase the deer license from $2.50 to $3 and the small game fee from $1.25 to $2; in 1931 the bill calls for expenditure of $50,000 for the purchase of game preserves and shooting grounds; $100,000 in 1932, and $200,000 annually thereafter.

HOUSE CONSTRUCTION
LEADS IN RECOVERYSurvey Covers 37 States Showing Greater Total for New Homes

A turn for the better has been made by residential building, according to February figures released by F. W. Dodge corporation. Downhill for more than two years, this type, looked to by economists as the construction class to indicate a forward movement after depression, has shown the first turn with its February record.

This first reversal since 1928 is found in a total of $77,917,800 in residential contracts awarded during the month in the 37 states east of the Rockies.

A nearly equal division is made by the three major construction totals this month, a grand total of $235,305,100 being broken into the $77,917,800 already mentioned as residential; $78,844,500 for non-residential; and $78,642,800 for public works and utilities.

Dwellings erected individually and apartments are the larger elements in the housing groups with housing developments also occupying an important position.

New York City accounted principally for the gain in new apartment building during the month.

Non-residential construction which totalled $78,844,500 for the month was low when compared with the corresponding month last year.

Gains in total construction over both the previous months and February of last year were produced in two of the thirteen Dodge territories. These are New England and Central Northwest territory, the latter comprising Minnesota, the Dakotas, Northern peninsula of Michigan and Northwest Wisconsin.

Reflection of seasonal advances of February over January were shown by gains in six additional territories.

For the two months of the current year residential building was off only $9,000.00 as compared with the same period of 1930. This was a loss of about 6 per cent and compares with a loss of almost 50 per cent for the corresponding two months of 1930 in contrast with 1929, indicating that the deflation in this type of building has been largely completed.

FUNERAL MONDAY FOR BELOVED ONE

MRS. GLASSFORD, WHO DIED IN FLORIDA, BURIED HERE

Large Group of Local Citizens Join Relatives to Pay Last Respects to Departed Friend

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 1:30 from the residence on Dixon avenue for Mrs. Frank M. Glassford, respected and beloved local resident, who died at 7:00 o'clock last Tuesday evening, March 24, at Biltmore Hospital, Miami, Florida. Rev. Bernard G. Mattson of Manistee, former pastor of First Congregational church, officiated.

Mrs. Glassford's death resulted from blood poisoning, caused from a slight cut on her hand. She was taken to the hospital on Friday, March 20, and everything humanly possible was done to check the spreading poison. Monday it was felt she would recover, but by Tuesday noon she had lapsed into unconsciousness from which she never rallied.

Minnie Elizabeth Burns was born July 25, 1876, in Jeddo, Michigan, near Port Huron. She was married to Frank M. Glassford of Capac, Michigan, in 1898, and came to Charlevoix with her husband and infant daughter, Hilda, in 1901. The family had since resided in this city.

Besides her husband and two children, Hilda (Mrs. Franklin Weaver) and Jack, she leaves an aged mother, now in her ninetieth year; two sisters, Mrs. H. L. Decker, Jeddo, Mich., and Mrs. Sam Stewart of Pontiac; also two brothers, Simon and John Burns, the former of Port Sanilac, Michigan.

A large group of out-of-town relatives were present for the funeral Monday in addition to local friends of the family. They were: Mrs. H. L. Decker, Jeddo; Mrs. Sam Stewart and son Allen, Pontiac; Simon Burns, Port Sanilac; Mrs. O. M. Allen, Thomas Burns, Coleman; Mrs. Beulah Osborn, Port; Mrs. Herman Friedly, Saginaw; Mrs. Elizabeth Wait, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reish and family, Mrs. Nettie Trill, Mr. and Mrs. George McLaughlin, Flint; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wills, Capac; Mrs. Walter Dewey and son and Mrs. Viola Blodgett, Belhine.

The following paragraphs, written by a loving friend, exemplify the regard in which Mrs. Glassford was held by her many friends:

"She was a faithful and loving wife, a true and devoted mother, and a kind and helpful friend.

"Her unselfish interest in others and her constant desire to make everyone with whom she came in contact, more comfortable and happy, has created for her a host of friends and endeared her in many ways, never to be forgotten.

"Her gracious and kindly personality will remain a living memory to all those with whom she so generously shared her daily life.

"She created within her household the highest type and truest spirit of home, a joyous place of peace and contentment for her family and welcome and good cheer for her friends.

"Her kind heart seemed a fountain of gladness, making everything in its vicinity fresh and smile. It was her natural habit to cast the gift of a lovely thought into the hearts of others.

"The tender words and loving deeds which she scattered for those who were nearest to her, are immortal seeds that will spring up in everlasting beauty to enrich not only our own lives but those of future generations."

"Dear One, ever mild and tender,
Broken are all ties that bound thee,
Praise to thy true life we render;
Christ, thy King, Himself hath crowned thee."

CITY PLANS WATER MAIN IMPROVEMENT

Will Lay 6-Inch Pipe Across Channel to Connect Belvedere-Chicago Club

At its last regular meeting, the Charlevoix city council authorized an improvement which has been needed for some time past.

Mayor Arthur Bergeon was instructed to make application to the U. S. Engineering office at Milwaukee, Wis., for permit to lay a 6-inch water main across the upper channel between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix to connect the Belvedere and Chicago clubs. Upon receipt of necessary permit, Mayor Bergeon was authorized to proceed at once with the improvement.

Under existing conditions, the Belvedere and Chicago clubs are served with dead-end water mains, resulting in a dangerous fire hazard because of insufficient water pressure. The improvement will provide a circulating system between the two resorts.

In conjunction with the channel main, another 6-inch pipe will be put down from Chicago avenue south to the government supply depot to connect with pipes crossing the channel.

SPRING ELECTION MONDAY, APRIL 6

STATE, COUNTY AND CITY TICKETS BEFORE VOTERS

Two Amendments and One Referendum Will Be Decided—Death Penalty Holds State Limelight

The biennial spring election and annual city election will call Charlevoix voters to the polls next Monday, April 6. Polls in the library building will be open from 7:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m., standard time.

On the state ticket, electors will vote for two Justices of the Supreme Court; two Regents of the University of Michigan; Superintendent of Public Instruction; member of the State Board of Education; two members of the State Board of Agriculture. There are five parties in the field, but to voters of this county, interest centers in Republican party candidates.

On the county Republican ticket, William C. Palmer, incumbent, is opposed by Archie C. Belding for election to the office of county school commissioner. Through requests of his many supporters and because of the light vote at the March primary, Mr. Belding has elected to seek office via the slip route, and slips are being provided for voters desiring to cast their vote for him.

There is no contest within the city of Charlevoix. Officers to be elected are: mayor, clerk, treasurer, park commissioner, justice of the peace, one supervisor, alderman and constable from each of the three city wards.

Two amendments and a referendum will be decided by Michigan voters Monday.

The first, and one for which every local voter should cast an affirmative vote, is a proposed amendment to the Constitution relative to authorizing the State to improve or aid in the improvement of landing fields. If passed, this amendment will result in needed advancement of aviation in northern Michigan, a decided advantage to this and other upper Michigan counties.

The second is a proposed amendment authorizing the State to borrow money and issue bonds therefor for the purpose of paying or refunding outstanding bonded indebtedness.

The third, and probably most important issue before the voters, is a referendum on Act No. 2 (Senate enrolled Act No. 2) of the Public Acts of 1931, defining the crime of murder in the first degree, and providing that the penalty therefor shall be death by electrocution.

Michigan is widely split on the issue. Some of the most brilliant minds are both for and against the death penalty. The state legislature has "passed the buck" on to Michigan voters to decide the issue and Monday's vote will tell the story.

BURGESS EXTENSION GROUP MEET APRIL 9

Mrs. Amandus Evers and Mrs. Fred Willis, leaders of the Burgess Home Management group, announce that the third regular meeting will be held Thursday, April 9th, at the home of Mrs. Marie Jerichow. Pot-luck dinner will be served at noon.

The ladies of the Church of God will hold a baked goods sale, Saturday, April 4, at the Charlevoix Hardware Co. store.—Adv. 1311.

BASKETBALL TEAM FETED AT BANQUET

GUESTS OF ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE THURSDAY NIGHT

Meeting at Congregational Church Attended by Nearly Fifty—Much Good Work Accomplished

Nearly fifty members and guests were present at a meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, held last Thursday evening in the dining parlors of the Congregational church.

Following a delicious banquet dinner, served by ladies of the South Side Circle, President C. J. Winder called the meeting to order and minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary George Beeman.

Honored guests of the evening were members of Charlevoix Northern Michigan class C basketball champions. Prosecuting Attorney, Rollie L. Lewis welcomed the boys in behalf of the Association. In his talk, Mr. Lewis lauded them not only for the splendid record they had attained, but also for the fine sportsmanship they had shown throughout their high school career and the successful season of 1930-31. Capt. Bill Novak responded for the team, thanking the Association for the honor bestowed upon them.

Martin Block, chairman of the advertising committee, reported that, in cooperation with the advertising committee of the city council, his committee had given an order for 5,000 Charlevoix booklets. Changes in the tennis and golf plates are being made, otherwise the booklet remains as before.

Fred E. Cartier, reporting as chairman of the conventions committee, told of contemplated visit here early in the season of the Cleveland Builders' Exchange and the Michigan Association of Registers of Deeds.

Through Fr. R. E. Fitzpatrick, the desire of Charlevoix ministers that stores close between 12 and 3:00 p. m. the afternoon of Good Friday was made known, and a motion was unanimously adopted that the wish be granted. Arthur Bergeon, chairman of the merchants' committee, was designated to make the action known to local merchants.

Following considerable discussion of golf tournaments and their benefits to the city generally, it was moved that the secretary forward a letter to R. Vernon Clark, president of the Belvedere club, urging that an invitation be extended to the Michigan Amateur Golf Association to hold their annual tournament at the Belvedere Golf Club course again this year.

The contemplated visit of the Michigan Air Tour to Charlevoix was discussed, resulting in a motion being made that the Association of Commerce lend every possible assistance in placing the local airport in condition to make it suitable as a stopping place for the tour. The move was given unanimous support.

Satisfactory and encouraging reports were given by other committee chairmen, and as a whole the meeting was very beneficial in a short and snappy manner.

MONDAY, APRIL 6 NAMED ARMY DAY

SET ASIDE TO PAY TRIBUTE TO UNITED STATES ARMIES

Governor Wilber M. Brucker and Mayor Arthur Bergeon Issue Proclamations for Observance

Governor Wilber M. Brucker, on Saturday, March 28, issued a proclamation designating Monday, April 6, as Army Day, on which tribute will be paid to the services "the army of the United States has rendered to the nation during the 155 years of its existence."

Governor Brucker urges the general display of the American flag on April 6, and that appropriate exercises be held in each community. Arrangements are being made here and elsewhere throughout the state for participation in the observance by the public schools, club, fraternal and military bodies, individuals and mercantile concerns, which have been requested to display the flag on their buildings and in their windows.

Governor Brucker's Army Day proclamation follows:

Army Day Proclamation
Whereas, Monday, April 6th, has been designated as Army Day, upon which occasion Americans will pay a well-earned tribute to the past and present services which the army of the United States has rendered to the Nation during the one hundred and fifty-five years of its existence; and

Whereas, This day will be observed by the men, who, in times of peril, have responded to the call to arms and who stand ready at all times to defend, with their lives if necessary, the ideals and institutions of this great country; and Therefore, Be It Resolved, that I, Wilber M. Brucker, Governor of the State of Michigan, by virtue of the authority vested in me by law, do designate Monday, April 6, 1931, as "Army Day," and urge that our interest in and appreciation of the loyal services of the Army of the United States be demonstrated by a display of the National Colors and that appropriate exercises be held at which discussion and appreciation may be had of the need of our country for an army capable of meeting its grave responsibilities in the event of war and adequate to the important uses it serves in time of peace.

In accord with Governor Brucker's proclamation, Mayor Arthur Bergeon has likewise set Monday, April 6, aside for proper observance as designated in previous paragraphs. Mayor Bergeon's proclamation follows:

Army Day Proclamation
Whereas, The army of the United States, for more than a century and a half, has performed heroically and splendidly, in peace and war; and

Whereas, The State of Michigan and this community have contributed of the men who have served with honor to their country, their state, their neighborhood, and themselves; and

Whereas, Monday, April 6th, has been designated as Army Day, in commemoration of the services of the Army; and

Therefore, Be It Resolved, that I, Arthur Bergeon, Mayor of the city of Charlevoix, by virtue of the authority vested in me by law, do designate Monday, April 6, 1931, as "Army Day," and urge that all people participate in its observance; that the National Colors be displayed, and that appropriate exercises be held in the schools and elsewhere, at which appreciation of the services and traditions of our Army may be expressed appropriately.

ANOTHER BILL IN SENATE

Suggests Tax from Airplane Gas Co. to Build Airports—Tax on Planes Also Suggested

Regardless of the outcome of a referendum on the question April 6, an attempt will be made in the legislature to secure state aid for the financing of emergency airplane landing fields. Senator Calvin A. Campbell, of Indian River, said last Thursday.

He stated that a bill is being drawn to provide such assistance and that it will be introduced even if the amendment is turned down by the voters. Senator Campbell indicated that he doubts that a constitutional amendment is needed.

The up-state senator reported four bills which embody the state air board's 1931 legislative program out of committee and they will come before the senate for initial consideration.

The most important of these is primarily designed to permit the state to lease a tract of land owned by the state to the City of Lansing for airport purposes. The measure, however, also would permit sale or leasing of any state property to cities, villages or counties for the same purpose.

The other bills contain amendments to the 1929 act which created the air board; provide for a yearly tax on the "useful load" capacity of planes; and materially increase the board's powers of supervision over both planes and pilots.

A fifth aviation measure was introduced in the senate by Senator Campbell. It creates an aviation fund to be collected by means of a tax on gasoline used by planes. At present the airplane gas tax is placed in the highway fund.

Two other bills were introduced. One from Senator Alex Cowan, of Port Huron, contains general revisions of the laws governing insurance companies, specifically demanding that foreign companies post bond before they do business in Michigan. Now a bond is required of only domestic concerns.

The other bill from Senator Fred Harding clarifies an act under which cities and villages are authorized to collect a tax for the use of their streets by common and contract carriers.

"Reality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, March 29.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him." (Ecc. 3-14).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "There is but one primal cause. Therefore there can be no effect from any other cause, and there can be no reality in aught which does not proceed from this great and only cause." (p. 207).

Farmer's Wife (to druggist): "Now, be sure and write plain on them bottles which is for the horse and which is for my husband. I don't want nothing to happen to that horse before the spring plowin'."

LOCAL INDOOR TEAM DROPS TWO CONTESTS

Defeated in Close Games with East Jordan—Initial Showing Good

Charlevoix's indoor baseball team, playing in their first competition during the past week, dropped two close decisions to the fast and more experienced East Jordan aggregation.

A contest played in the local gymnasium last Thursday evening was a nip-and-tuck affair throughout. The local battery of Fitzpatrick and Powers held the Jordanites well, but their superior fielding and heavy-cloutting finally pulled them through to a 26 to 24 victory.

In a return game Monday evening at East Jordan, Charlevoix lost 25 to 19 after leading up until the late innings. "Bill" Zerbis pitched all but the last inning for Charlevoix and did good work.

Inasmuch as Charlevoix's team might be termed as a pick-up bunch with practically no previous practice, their performance was even more than anticipated. With a little more experience, the local boys should make it tough going for any team in this region.

RAIL ABANDONMENT ON M. C. PROPOSALINTERSTATE COMMERCE COM.
MISSION SUGGESTS MOVELocal Interests and Eastern County Farmers Join to Hold Six and One-Half Miles of Track

O. D. Weed, examiner, last week recommended that the interstate commerce commission authorize abandonment by the Michigan Central Railroad company of part of a branch line in Antrim and Charlevoix counties, Michigan. The part to be abandoned, if the commission approves the examiner's recommendation, is the East Jordan branch, extending from Marquette northwest to East Jordan, about six and one-half miles.

The examiner's recommendation is made despite opposition by Elmer Murray, Supervisor of Echo township, Antrim county; Charles Murphy, Supervisor of South Arm township, Charlevoix county, and the Charlevoix Pickle and Produce company, by A. J. Stetter, managing owner.

Was Timber Line

The East Jordan branch extends from a connection with the Mackinac branch of the Michigan Central at Frederic in a general northwesterly direction about 42 miles to East Jordan, at the south end of the south arm of Pine lake, which opens into Lake Michigan in the northern part of the southern peninsula of Michigan.

Campbell's

gan. This branch was the former Detroit & Charlevoix railroad, which in 1916 was conveyed to the Michigan Central.

The six and one-half miles originally were constructed to serve private timber interests, but from 1901 to the present time it has been used principally for transporting forest products to East Jordan, where they were shipped by water to points on the Great Lakes. So few have shipments been recently that the East Jordan wharves have fallen into decay.

4,200 Persons Affected

The Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad of the Pennsylvania system crosses the East Jordan branch from southwest to northeast at Alba, about ten miles south of Marquette, and then runs northerly 10 or 12 miles to east of the line sought to be abandoned.

About 4,200 persons would be affected by the abandonment, 1,700 of whom are in the city of East Jordan. The abandonment is opposed by commercial interests of East Jordan, by a lumber company which plans to get logs for a flooring manufacturing company at Grayling, on the line of the Michigan Central ten miles south of Frederic, and by the proprietor of the pickling plant at East Jordan and farmers who wish to raise cucumbers for that plant.

ICE HOLDS UP NAVIGATION TO BEAVERS

Plane to Carry Mail Until Conditions Change—Water Front Busy

Heavy ice fields, driven down from the Straits by northeast winds Saturday and Sunday, have blocked St. James harbor, thus delaying plans of Capt. John Chambers to make his initial trip to Beaver Island on Wednesday of this week.

"Bud" and "Butch" Hammond, Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail pilots, whose contract was to have expired April 1, will make another trip to St. James Thursday morning, and will continue to carry mail as long as ice conditions hold up the St. James B. Sanford. Because of a heavy snow storm, the plane was held up at St. James over the week end, returning here Monday morning.

All along Charlevoix's water front there is a bustle of activity in preparation for the opening of navigation. Crews are at work on the Northwestern Sand & Gravel Co. steamer Fred W. Green, boats of the Roen Steamship company, government light ships and the Petoskey Transportation Co.'s steamer J. B. John.

NEW BARGAIN STORE
OPEN HERE THURSDAYDalquist Brothers of Cadillac Enter
Local Merchandising Field

Charlevoixans are showing a keen interest in a new business enterprise—the Dalquist 5c to $1 store—which has set Thursday, April 2nd, as its opening date.

The store will be located in the Brinkman building, corner Bridge street and Park avenue. H. A. and J. Dalquist, formerly of Cadillac, are the proprietors. Both young men come here with a wide experience in chain store management and an optimistic viewpoint concerning the necessity of such a store in Charlevoix.

An advertisement announcing their opening, will be found on page six of this issue.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp
* * * * *Soils-Alfalfa Campaign Will Cover Entire County

Final plans have been completed for the series of soils-alfalfa meetings to be held in Charlevoix county on April 7 to 10, inclusive. Meetings have been scheduled by County Agent Mellencamp as follows: Meetings to be held eastern standard time.

Tuesday, April 7: Ironton Grange hall at 10:00 a. m.; Marion Center Grange hall at 2:00 p. m.; Barnard Grange hall at 8:00 p. m.

Wednesday, April 8: Boyne Valley Grange hall at 10:00 a. m.; farm of William Townsend at Chandler hill at 2:00 p. m.

Thursday, April 9: Deer Lake Grange hall at 10:00 a. m.; Hortons Bay, Odd Fellow hall at 2:00 p. m.; Murray schoolhouse at 8:00 p. m.

Friday, April 10: Rock Elm Grange hall at 10:00 a. m.; South Arm Grange hall at 2:00 p. m.

"Enough alfalfa for all the livestock on my farm" would be a good slogan for any farmer to adopt. How many farmers fail to raise sufficient high quality alfalfa to care for their own needs? A well drained, sweet, fertile soil is absolutely necessary for best results with alfalfa. We speak about a surplus of wheat and some other crops, but who ever said we had a surplus of fine, leafy legume roughage?

R. E. Decker, extension specialist in farm crops from the Michigan State college, will be in charge of these meetings. This is no longer a theory, but actual results indicate how best to prepare soil for alfalfa, how to fertilize, how to handle the crop from beginning to end.

Attend your nearest meeting and let's discuss these most important subjects. Bring your problems with you.

Farmers, Don't Buy Cheap Seed

The Michigan State college farm crops department has examined and tested quite a number of lots of "bargain" seed and forage crop seed mixtures, submitted by Michigan farmers, and purchased from out-of-state mail order seed firms. Not one lot was found fit for planting, states Prof. Howard Rather of the farm crops department. Some "bargains" contained as much as 5,000 weed seeds per pound, thereby making it possible to introduce from 50,000 to 100,000 weeds per acre. Such seeds as mustard, thistles, and catchfly were predominating. Not only that, but as high as 36 per cent was found to be dead seed.

Here's one typical example: A $9.60 alfalfa "bargain." An alfalfa offering was stated as a big value at a low price, a star bargain of the first magnitude, a substantial quality all for $9.60. Let's see what the case really was. The tag claimed 97.5 per cent alfalfa, 1.5 per cent inert matter, usually dirt, 1 per cent weeds and 90 per cent germination. Upon examination 36 per cent of the seed was shriveled and brown, worthless for planting, the germination was 61 per cent, that 12 per cent of the seed was hard, leaving 36 per cent dead seed. Not only that but over 5,000 weed seeds of ten different species was found. At $9.60 per bushel, plus postage, the cost of the sound alfalfa seed in this bargain was around $20.00 per bushel or $2.00 higher than high quality, northern grown alfalfa can be bought. Where in the devil is the bargain?

We all appreciate that money is scarce, but for land sakes don't buy seeds that are unfit to use and then kick about all the impurities that adorn your field and about the poor stand. Buy seeds that are handled by reliable dealers, that have a tag showing all the information and your money will be profitably spent.

* * * * *

On Sunday the christian world celebrates the most significant fact that this planet has ever experienced. Had Christ never risen from the dead there would have been no New Testament; no church and probably no Christianity ever coming this far down the ages. We gather in our churches at Easter time to give joyous praise for the hope and faith that give courage and comfort to life. Of all sabbaths let us not omit worship this Easter day. Service is at 10:30 a. m. Sermon topic, "Easter and Human Welfare." Baptisms and reception of members.

Church school meets at 12 noon. Epworth League is to have a sunrise service at 6:00 a. m. and the young men will serve breakfast at 7:00 a. m. The evening meeting will therefore be cancelled for leaguers.

At 7:00 p. m. the church school and junior choir will produce an Easter program of fine interest and worth. You will appreciate Easter's message from the voices of youth.

On April 9th Mrs. Crandall will entertain the Literary club.

Thursday evening the Passion days service will be in the Methodist church with Rev. W. H. Rauch preaching.

On Friday all stores will close to allow cooperation with the united churches in a mass meeting at the Congregational church beginning at 1:00 p. m. and continuing until 3:30. The public will be admitted every 20 minutes. The local ministers, with the East Jordan pastors, will all speak on "The Words from the Cross."

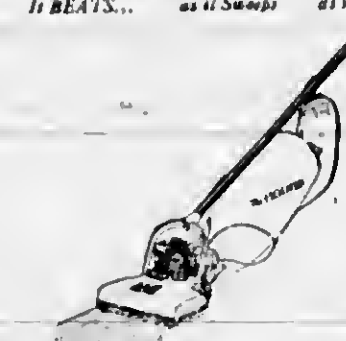

BACK TAX LAND
BILL IS PASSED

Rep. Melvin H. Lee's bill to place the sale of tax delinquent lands in the hands of cities and villages instead of reverting to the state has passed both houses and is before Governor Brucker for signature. The senate passed the measure Thursday afternoon.

One other bill received the approval of the senior chamber. It was Senator Claude H. Stevens' bill creating a commission to make a study of county, township and school district governments which will report to the governor before the 1933 session.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Anne Campbell,

well-known and beloved Michigan poetess, has caught the romance so often associated with the telephone and has expressed it charmingly in the following lines, reprinted by special permission of the author and of The Detroit News, which published the poem November 13, 1930. (Copyright, 1930):

Long Distance Telephone

Over the lonesome miles, your voice meets mine in space.

And in a few short sentences you say
Enough to pull the sun out from his hiding place
And turn my nighttime into glorious day.

In days gone by beneath the window of his love,
The troubadour sang goldenly and long.

His chosen lady listened from her room above,
And drifted off in slumber to his song.

Now in a few crisp phrases flung across the wire
You tell me all that warbler could impart.

The telephone has grown to be the modern lyre
From which the lover sends his singing heart.

ELECTION WARM IN TOWNSHIPS

RECORD VOTE CAST AND CON-TESTS CLOSE IN MANY

Several Veteran Office Holders Eliminated in Race—Various Township Officers Listed

While county and state issues may have been uppermost in the minds of many Charlevoix county voters at the spring election Monday, some townships had affairs of their own which put all other questions in the background.

With hardly an exception, a record vote was cast. Anticipating a heavy poll, many township clerks ordered additional ballots prior to election day, and their judgment was not lacking.

Veteran office-holders were voted down in many precincts and there was scarcely a township where winners for some offices were not chosen by a margin of from one to three votes. The result will be several new township clerks, treasurers and new faces on the board of supervisors after those elected qualify and start their duties.

On the board of supervisors, Richard Lewis, a veteran East Jordan campaigner, was defeated by John Porter. Elmer Hott replaces Charles Murphy, another veteran, in South Arm township. William Bashaw won victory over the slip route to become supervisor of East Jordan 1st ward, and Robert Burnett was victorious. All four Boyne City supervisors were returned to office, as was Lewis Magee of Hudson township, Mrs. Ruth Colden of Clorton, James Gallagher of St. James, and others.

Frank Richardson, clerk of Norwood township for 23 years, was defeated by Orville Hilton by a 45 to 41 vote, and William Withers, clerk of Marion township for as many or more years, lost to Jay Adams as Marion voters elected several new candidates.

Following are officers chosen in townships adjacent to Charlevoix:

Treasurer—Hazel Evers.
Highway Commissioner—George O'Brien.
Overseer of Highways—John Strigley.

Board of Review—Frank C. Burnett.

LOCAL YOUTH IS HIGHLY HONORED

HUGH M. PARKER MEMBER
NORTH CENTRAL ORCHESTRA

Goes to Des Moines, Ia., for Conference North Central Orchestra and Band Directors; Has Fine Record

Hugh M. Parker, son of Rev. and Mrs. G. R. Parker of this city, will leave the latter part of this week for Des Moines, Iowa. Young Parker has been accepted as a member of the North Central Orchestra, which will play at the meeting of the North Central Orchestra and Band Directors' conference. The orchestra will meet and organize Monday, April 13, and will play each day throughout the week. He will represent the Charlevoix high school.

Master Hugh has been chosen as a member of this organization because of his ability as a clarinet player. Since he was eight years of age he has been studying the instrument and has hopes of being a musical director. He began his studies in Grand Rapids under George Amos, who for several years was a musical director at Union high school. Mr. Amos is at present the director of hand and orchestra in the Western State Teachers college at Kalamazoo.

Parker, while in the eighth grade, became a member of the All-State High School orchestra in 1928, which met at Ann Arbor, and has been a member of that organization each year since. While in Watervliet he held first chair in the high school orchestra and band. He had helped his school to carry off district and state honors for several years. He was a member of the St. Joseph city band for three years. Two of those years he held the second chair of the solo clarinets and played next to one of southern Michigan's best professional clarinetists. At the National band and orchestra contest at Flint, in May of 1930, Hugh played in a woodwind quartet that made a splendid record 6th place and took second place in the clarinet solo contest. Young Parker is a junior in the local high school.

Hugh has received an invitation to attend the athletic banquet that will be held in Watervliet April 9th. Hugh was a member of the 1930 football squad and enjoyed the honor of being chosen as a member of the first all-county football team. As this banquet will be held almost immediately before he starts for Des Moines, Parker will no doubt accept the invitation.

CAPITAL PUNISH- MENT VOTED DOWN

MICHIGAN VOTERS DEFEAT REFERENDUM BY MAJOR-ITY OF 50,000—BOTH AMENDMENTS REFUSED

RECORD VOTE IS CAST IN THE COUNTY

William C. Palmer, Incumbent, Given Office of School Commissioner by 1457 Majority Over A. C. Belding, Slip Candidate—No Opposition for City Offices

Charlevoix city and county, as well as Michigan voters as a whole, turned thumbs down on capital punishment, major issue of the biennial spring election held Monday.

Charlevoix county voters rejected the issue by a vote of 1439 to 877, while Associated Press reports from down-state indicate the measure would lose by 50,000 votes in Michigan.

Unfortunately for northern Michigan especially, the amendment authorizing the state to improve landing fields was voted down, as was also another amendment authorizing the state to borrow money and issue bonds for the purpose of refunding outstanding bonded indebtedness. The latter issue was a proposition of "Borrowing from Peter to pay Paul," and would not have brought any additional hardship upon tax-payers. Adoption of the landing field issue would have been a boon to aviation development in northern counties and would have aided this region materially if adopted.

The first amendment lost to the county by a vote of 1665 to 1043, and the second by a vote of 1612 to 1010, according to incomplete returns.

William C. Palmer, incumbent, defeated Archie C. Belding, a slip candidate, for the office of county school commissioner. The vote from 24 out of 25 precincts was Palmer 2361, Belding 904, a Palmer majority of 1457. Mr. Belding carried the city of Charlevoix by a small majority, but other precincts went to the present office holder.

City politics were quiet, the near-record spring vote being brought out by state and county issues. There was no opposition for city offices and candidates nominated at the primary will handle city affairs for the coming year.

Mayor Arthur Bergeon was re-elected for his tenth term in office, and balance of the ticket was as follows:

LOCAL GIRL ACTIVE AT MICHIGAN STATE

Miss Dorothy Withers Identified With Spartan Women's League

Miss Dorothy Withers of Charlevoix has been identified as influential in organizing the Spartan Women's League, a new group on Michigan State campus that promises to set a precedent in co-ordinating all phases of co-ed activity, by virtue of her keen interest in promoting the projects undertaken by that body during the past month.

Miss Withers is one of the 250 co-eds to become affiliated with the League since its existence this term. Outstanding among the activities of the group has been an active participation in co-ed athletics, where many prizes were won, and a formal dance which was a decided success. Other undertakings of the League have been a membership drive and several teas.

The primary purpose of the organization as set down by the leaders of the movement is to create leadership among unorganized girls, to enter teams in competitive athletic sports, to develop a strong bond of friendship among college women, and to provide a common meeting place for sorority and non-sorority co-eds.

HEAVY PLANTING OF GAME FISH PROSPECT

Large Number Brook Trout and Rainbow Held at U. S. Hatchery

Through efforts of local government hatchery officials, working in cooperation with the fish and game committee of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, local waters will be heavily planted with game fish this year.

The Association of Commerce is now furnishing feed for a consignment of 165,000 eastern brook trout, received as spawn recently from Cranbrook, Me., and hatched in the local government hatchery.

Monday afternoon of this week, a shipment of around 40,000 Pacific rainbow trout were received from Grant Pass, Oregon. They will be raised to fingerling stage before planting.

Added to plantings by the conservation department and regular shipments of fry sent annually to the fish and game committee, a heavy planting is in prospect. Local sportsmen are very grateful for the wonderful cooperation being given them by officials of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

LOCAL CHURCHES OBSERVE EASTER

SPECIAL SERVICES HELD AT ALL PLACES OF WORSHIP

Ideal Weather Conditions and Programs Bring Out Large Crowds for Many Observances

Religious services commemorating the Easter time were observed in all Charlevoix places of worship during the past week.

Starting with a series of union services at the Congregational church last Tuesday evening, appropriate exercises of observance of this most significant period in Christian history were carried through. Throughout the week and on Sunday, most ideal weather conditions prevailed and attendances at all services were large. Charlevoixans turned out en masse for Good Friday services held at the Congregational church to hear local and visiting pastors. Business places were closed between the hours of 12 and 3:00 so that all might take part.

At the Congregational and Methodist churches, sunrise services marked the opening of Easter Sunday observances.

At the 7 o'clock evening service at the Methodist church, the church school and junior choir produced an Easter program of fine interest and worth, which was largely attended.

At the same hour in the Baptist church, a pageant, "The King Called Jesus," and other appropriate numbers were presented to a large audience. Special sermons were delivered by pastors of both churches.

Other religious organizations of the city held special services throughout the day.

At the Congregational church, the combined senior and junior choirs, under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Stelter, choir leader and organist, gave Dudley Buck's "Christ, The Victor"—a cantata which represents the fifth section of a five part musical narrative of those events in the life of the Saviour that Christians everywhere, celebrate with reverence, love and devotion.

A chorus of thirty voices was supported by organ, violin and piano. Mrs. Stelter being ably assisted by (Continued on page 8)

SOMEONE ALWAYS TAK- ING JOY OUT OF LIFE

Guy Springing Grass Hopper at This Time of Year Worst Pest

Some crazy bird is always taking the joy out of life or making it harder for the other fellow to put up with.

Just when we are sitting on needles awaiting this glorious day—May 1—Dan Soule came bounding into the office with an honest-to-goodness live grass hopper and suggested going fishing. For less than "two bits" we would have thrown him out on his ear, but realizing he might have had the same affliction as ourselves, let him live.

We were glad to see this sure sign of spring, however, and will hold out. I guess, on the consolation that "it won't be long now."

STATE PLANS EXTIN- SIVE FISH SURVEYS

FRY PLANTING, FISH DISEASES TO BE STUDIED

Survey of State Lakes, Food Conditions, Number and Variety of Fish Under Observation

A program that will lead all the way from studies of improved methods of distributing fry and fingerling fish for planting to investigations into various fish diseases, has been laid out by the Institute for Fisheries Research for the coming field season, the second since the Institute was organized.

The Institute carries on all scientific work for the fish division of the department of conservation.

In a report to the department, Dr. Carl Hubbs, director of the Institute, outlines some of the accomplishments of the past year, and proposes plans for operations during 1931.

Aided by the lake development project sponsored and supported by the Michigan division of the Izak Walton League, extensive work is reported on the inventory of Michigan lakes. More lakes have been examined than in most previous years, and they have been examined much more intensively. Features of the expanded lake survey are:

The preparation of a map of every lake examined, showing the kind of bottom in each part of the lake; the depths of the lake; the location, shape, size and composition of the weed beds, the details of the shape of the lake especially of the bays and points, and the character of the shore lines. The determination of the kinds of plants present and their abundance in each bed. The history of the lake as to general fishing conditions. The suitability of the lake front for various species. The possibilities of improving the lake for fish, by increasing weed beds, by adding shelter and by fertilizing the water or bottom soil. In the 1930 season all of the lakes of any consequence in Kalamazoo county were surveyed. The maps of these lakes have been completed. This phase of the work of the Institute was made possible through the scholarships established at the University of Michigan by the Michigan division of the Izak Walton League.

The research of the Institute which has perhaps attracted greatest interest, and which promises much in the way of successful operation, is the experimental work on the environmental control of trout streams. During the past year 200 artificial snags were built on the Little Manistee river. A start was also made along similar lines in the warmer streams about Ann Arbor.

The experimental study of trout migration, begun by the late Dr. Jan Metzelaar, has been continued and greatly extended. Emphasis during the past year was placed on the more difficult technique of wild caught adult trout, to determine their movements especially into and out of closed "feeder streams." A few hundred wild trout were traced in the spring and summer, and about 1,100 last fall.

Much attention, according to the report, has been given to investigations into the cause of the death of fishes, both in the wild and in the state fish hatcheries. The epidemics which have developed, and these have been numerous and destructive during the year, have been studied. This, of course, is an initial step toward the development of means to treat the diseases, and of more importance, of means to prevent them becoming epidemic.

Realizing that in no other aspect of conservation work is opinion so varied and so biased, the Institute is emphasizing studies of the actual harm done by predators on food and game fishes.

Among the other investigations to be carried on by the Institute are:

The edibility of fish affected with various parasites.

The establishment and spread of the smelt in Michigan and of its effect on the native species.

Depletion in the supply of the "button" mussels of Michigan rivers.

Depletion of the supply of native minnows taken for bait.

A. Larsen with his boat "Astoria," made his way through the ice Saturday to set some nets. In the afternoon he took Joseph A. Webb and Willard Pischner back to Hog Island. They rowed over in the morning to get supplies for the coming week, then they will close the camp for the season. When they were over Saturday they had 31 gallons of fine maple syrup made and hope to have at least 75 gallons before they leave there.

One of the happiest events of the season took place on March 30, when some 26 friends and relatives met to help Mrs. Charles Allers observe her 73rd birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in card playing, singing, and a couple of very appropriate recitations by Captain Charles Allers, who at the time made known to those present that 56 years ago he and the hostess pledged their vows to become life-long mates. After a nice lunch, followed by hearty good wishes and happy returns of the day, the crowd departed, expressing the wish that all would be able to meet again on a similar occasion a year from the date of this happy gathering.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF FORD VALUE.

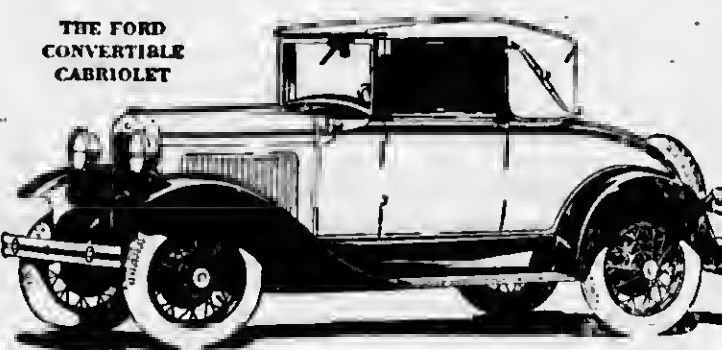

Bright, enduring RUSTLESS STEEL is used for many exposed bright metal parts of the Ford

WHEN YOU BUY a Ford you buy enduring beauty. The body finish is made to last for the life of the car and practically all exposed bright metal parts except the humpers are made of enduring Rustless Steel.

This Rustless Steel has great tensile strength. It is the same bright metal all the way through. A salt test equivalent to forty years' service under the severest weather conditions failed to have any effect on its brilliance. It never requires polishing. All you do is wipe it with a damp cloth, as you do your windshield.

This is just one of many features that show the substantial worth of the Ford. In speed, comfort, safety, economy and long life — in the richness of its finish and upholstery — it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Call or phone for demonstration.

LOW FORD PRICES $430 to $630

(F. o. b. Detroit, plus freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra at low cost. You can purchase a Ford on economical terms through the Authorized Ford Finance Plans of the Universal Credit Company.)

W. E. BYERS,

He took a cheerful departure. The instant the door closed behind him McPeake rose for his secretary. "I've always heard that out in California they 'grow things big,'" he informed her. "Fig, cantaloupes, big pumpkins, big cattle and big boys, but if Elmer B. Clarke is a sample of her husband, California grows the biggest men I ever hope to see. That boy certainly can take a licking standing up."

"Take a letter to Miss Nellie Cathcart, care of the Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, Milwaukee, Wis. Dear Miss Cathcart: Your sweetie arrived today and without any preliminary warning I showed him the fatal things, but withholding your identity, of course. He can lose a million dollars and put his bright daydreams behind him with as much grace and humor as if he reckoned his loss in depreciated German marks instead of good red 'I S. gold coin. I'm for him all the way. He's a man, and should you permit him to escape you will suffer an irreparable loss. He uses his head entirely for thinking. Philaretes is lucky to have him for his mayor-elect. Please see to it that politics don't spoil him. Yours sincerely,"

"Now make out a petition to the probate court for the sale of all the real estate of the Butterworth estate, and I'll have Mr. Clarke and Bunker sign it. Then make out an order of sale for the court to sell, and in about a month from now we'll distribute the estate and send Elmer Clarke back to win the capital prize in the best little live lottery you ever heard of. He won only to lose, and he will lose only to win. That Nellie Cathcart must be a very unusual woman. She had a curiosity in discover whether or not Elmer Clarke could fit Klipping's recipe for manhood. Remember the lines?

If you can meet with triumph and disaster, And treat those two impostors both the same,

"Well, I'm banking on Elmer."

CHAPTER XIV

The following afternoon, when Elmer again called at McPeake's office, he found Bunker there. The lawyer introduced them. Elmer greeted the old clerk pleasantly but without enthusiasm, and McPeake saw by his quick appraising glance that he was striving to find in Bunker's personality a reasonable excuse to be decent in the old fellow.

"They chatted together for an hour and then Bunker withdrew."

"Well, what do you think of Bunker, now that you've met and talked to him?"

"He's a furtive little old rat," Elmer declared promptly. "He took on the protective coloration of his surroundings. Like all weak men, he could, I think, be very cruel. I've been thinking over his case and I've decided not to make him a gift of ninety thousand dollars. I cannot afford the philanthropy, and whenever I turn philanthropist Bunker isn't the sort I'd select as the object of my solicitude. He tells me the old man paid him fifty dollars a month to start and after ten years he was earning two hundred. Not so bad. The federal government doesn't do half so well by its employees. I've slaved ten years and when I quit I wasn't earning two hundred a month. For ten years before he died Uncle Hiram was paying him four hundred dollars a month. As clerks are paid, Bunker has fared far, far better than the majority, and I fall to see where he has any kick coming."

"I had an idea he'd broach the subject to you, Mr. Clarke."

"Probably afraid to do so. Wanted to size me up first and decide whether I was hard or easy. He'll think it over tonight and call to see me at my hotel tomorrow."

"What makes you think he'll do that?"

"Oh, I noted a speculative gleam in his eyes! And it's what I'd do if I were Bunker."

Elmer was right. Shortly after he had breakfasted next morning Bunker called his room from the hotel lobby and asked permission to come up for a conference. Elmer readily granted it and a few minutes later Bunker, hat in hand and nervously shifting from one foot to the other, was standing before him. Elmer permitted him to stand for two minutes; then he decided that the habit of a lifetime is not readily broken and that Bunker was waiting for permission to sit down.

"Please be seated," he told the old clerk. "I see you have something on your mind. You appear to be somewhat embarrassed."

"I'm, Mr. Clarke. There is a little matter—perhaps Mr. McPeake spoke to you about it—"

"He did," Elmer interrupted. "You refer to my uncle's broken promise to leave you a hundred thousand dollars for the honest and faithful service you accorded him for more than a quarter of a century. I understand he let you down with a bequest for ten thousand, and that you are grievously disappointed. I would be, too, under the circumstances. I can very well understand your disappointment."

"It's been heart-breaking," Bunker quavered. "After all these years, and my wife building hopes on it, sir, the blow well-nigh killed her."

Elmer nodded. "Still, Uncle Hiram didn't pay you a negligible salary, Mr. Bunker. Many men in your position earn much less and do not consider themselves ill-treated."

"They don't do the work I had to do," Bunker protested with sudden vehemence. "It's worth four hundred dollars a month to lie and hully and evade and scheme and take advantage of people. That's what I had to do to earn my four hundred dollars a month. It was worth four thousand a month to have to spend ten hours a day in his society."

"I suppose you knew, from years of experience, exactly the sort of man my uncle was?"

"Oh, yes, indeed!"

"Then why did you believe him when he promised to leave you a hundred thousand dollars in his will?"

"I didn't think he'd cheat me. I'd done so much for him, you know; things he couldn't entrust to another human being."

"You mean dirty work—confidential dirty work, don't you?"

"Well, it wasn't pleasant, Mr. Clarke, but I had to do it."

"Were these jobs dishonest?"

"Yes."

"I think I understand your viewpoint. A man would have to pay me a fortune to get me to do things like that for him."

"Quite so, quite so. And he didn't do it," Bunker exclaimed, his voice, in his excitement and anger, growing shrill. "The dirty dog betrayed me."

"And you expect me to remedy the situation by giving you ninety thousand dollars when I collect my inheritance?"

"You could well afford to, sir. I've given my life to help build up that fortune you've inherited."

"But I cannot afford it, Bunker. I may have a quarter of a million dollars left when the estate is probated and all the debts settled. Surely you wouldn't expect me to give you ninety thousand dollars out of that sum."

"I think I've earned it," Bunker charged doggedly.

"Perhaps, perhaps. But it's contrary to my code to pay anybody ninety thousand dollars for doing dirty, dishonest jobs, Mr. Bunker."

"But those dirty, dishonest jobs have redounded to your benefit greatly, Mr. Clarke."

"Nothing doing," Elmer declared flatly. "You lose all along the line, Mr. Bunker. You played your hand very foolishly and if you erect it is not up to me to correct your error. I'm not a human Christmas tree. The interview is at an end, Mr. Bunker. You lose."

Bunker stood up, trembling pitifully. It was evident to Elmer that the man had nerved himself to a degree of courage never before experienced in all his drab life. "You give me that ninety thousand dollars or something heavy is going to drop on you. I'll bust you while open if you don't settle with me, Mr. Clarke," he declared.

"Well, don't be so mysterious. Tell me what you've got on me. Perhaps the knowledge may alter my decision. Until you tell me, however, I'll stand pat. I never dodge a ruck until it's thrown at me."

Bunker came close and lowered his voice. "For years I kept a double set of books for your uncle—one set for him and one for the collector of internal revenue. I made false entries. Whenever I made a deposit in his bank account I deposited the exact total of the receipts as shown that day on my false cashbook. The excess money was put in a safe deposit box, and whenever there was quite a bit of money on hand I bought bonds for him so they couldn't be traced. Why, the record of schemes we put through to fool the income tax collectors would make a book! We defrauded the government out of a couple of hundred thousand dollars since January first, 1913, and I can prove it, because your uncle hadn't been dead ten minutes before I had his honest set of books out of that office and the fake set in the safe. Now, what do you think about that, Mr. Bunker?"

"You're an even duffer little rat than I gave you credit for being. So unless I give you ninety thousand dollars you will put the experts from the internal revenue department on the trail of the estate, and they'll collect so much taxes literally withheld—"

"They'll fine the estate—you know they will," Bunker screamed. "They can't do anything to your uncle, but they can fine his estate up to one hundred per cent. They won't have any pity on you."

"You forget that you are an accessory before the fact. In the eyes of the law you have committed a felony by aiding and abetting my uncle to defraud the government."

"I know. But when I turn state's evidence they won't do anything to me," Bunker laughed unrepentantly. "They pay me for my information."

"Bunker, you're loathsome. Get out of my room. Quick! I don't like to rough-house a little old man like you, but if you're still standing there leaning triumphantly at me thirty seconds from now I'll manhandle you. Sent, you polecat!"

Following Bunker's unceremonious departure, Elmer Clarke sat down to do some solid thinking. He had need to, for if Bunker's threat should not prove to be a idle one, he was liable to find himself in a most unenviable position.

"Well, one thing is certain," he decided. "If the collector of internal revenue, eager as my Bunker, should levy on the total residue of the estate, I'll be back, financially, where I was before Uncle Hiram died, but with this exception—I'll be out of a job. Well, I'll soon find another. My health is A-one again, so what the devil do I care for the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, provided I do not have to wait too long to marry Nellie?"

"Why, I almost forgot that I am mayor. I have got a job, after all, and it pays me one hundred dollars a month. Well, I've existed on less. Elmer, old settler, you're not licked at all."

He decided to await developments. It occurred to him that if Bunker really had such a club to swing he would have swung it most profitably on Uncle Hiram before the latter departed for that mysterious land where income taxes are not. He certainly would not swing it until he had collected his own legacy from the estate, for Bunker was too cunning to make such a miscalculation. Perhaps his threat had been a monumental bluff.

"I think this is a matter I should take up with McPeake," he decided, and forthwith called upon the lawyer. McPeake listened to the incredible tale with a growing disgust manifesting itself on his features.

"You're a shrewd judge of human nature, Mr. Clarke," he declared when Elmer had finished his recital. "Bunker is a rat. I am positive, however, that he is bluffing you. If he had had such a weapon to use on your uncle, he would have used it. Consequently, I think that the best thing to do is to ignore him and proceed with the distribution of the estate."

"Well, I'll not accept any money that doesn't belong to me, Mr. McPeake."

"That's all very fine, but wait until you know for a certainty that it doesn't belong to you. I have no apprehensions on the matter, Mr. Clarke. Remember, Bunker is an arrant coward."

"Well, perhaps you're right, but I do not think he has the courage to bluff. I confess I'm afraid of him."

"Well, I'm not, and the first day he comes in here I'll have him on the carpet and shake him down. I'll write you the results of my inquisition."

So Elmer went on to New York. Five weeks later McPeake wrote him that the real estate had been sold, that all of the debts of the estate had been paid and that a final decree of distribution had been signed by the judge of the probate court. McPeake added that Elmer's share of the estate would amount to approximately $218,000.

Immediately upon receipt of this information Elmer came on to Muscatine and the day after his arrival he was to meet McPeake in the latter's office. "Not a peep out of our friend Bunker," he announced, coming at once to the subject closest to Elmer's heart. "I had him in my office and gave him a bad half hour, but could not get any admission from him. He talked vaguely of things he could do, but seemed disinclined to do them. I think he was bluffing."

"Has he received his legacy, Mr. McPeake?"

"I handed him his check ten minutes ago. Thought I might as well get it of him before you arrived." McPeake reached into his desk and drew out a formal typewritten receipt with a check for $218,734.22 attached to it. "Sign here," he ordered—and Elmer signed and punched his check.

Then he gathered up all of the papers and took his departure. The check he had received was on the First National bank, downstairs, in Elmer went into the bank first and approached the paying teller's window. "I wish you'd have this check certified," he said, and handed it through the grill work.

The paying teller took it and departed. Five minutes later he re-

LAKE CHARLEVOIX CLOSED TO ANGLERS

Come Under State-Wide Ban April 1
—Will Open as "Pike" Lake May 1

Ice-covered Lake Charlevoix is deserted for the first time since it became frozen over early last winter.

Complying with the Michigan law which closes all inland lakes to fishing after April 1, fishermen last week removed their shanties from the lake, thus closing winter ice fishing for local sportsmen.

Disappointment has been expressed from many directions because the present legislature has not taken action on petitions forwarded asking that the ruling be removed from Lake Charlevoix in sufficient time to permit ice fishing and trolling during the month of April. Sportsmen believe it is quite singular that fishing is allowed in Round lake, a connecting body of water, and prohibited in the other.

Practically the only species of fish caught trolling at this time of year is mackinaw trout, and the sport has been highly advertised as a tourist attraction. The law, covering all Michigan inland lakes, was made primarily to protect bass during spawning time. It is a rare instance when a bass is caught earlier than June in Lake Charlevoix.

It is to be hoped that a change in rulings covering the lake will be made before another year rolls by.

Description and license number of the car was broadcast throughout the state, resulting in the machine being found abandoned at Rogers City late Monday. The thief, whose name is not available, was arrested at East Tawas with another car stolen at Alpena.

When Baker attempted to kill it he found other mice in the machine. He drove his auto home, shut it in the garage with the motor running and waited. Sunday service, 10:45 a. m.

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to all services.

"Unreality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, April 5th.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made." (John 1:3).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Everything good or worthy, God made. Whatsoever is valueless or baneful, He did not make,—hence its unreality. In the Science of Genesis we read that He saw everything which He had made, 'and, behold, it was very good.'" (p. 525).

PETOSKEY INDIANS KILLED BY TRAIN

Two Grouse to Death by Freight Train Thursday Night

Louis Chingwa, veteran trombone player in the Petoskey City band, and Joseph Gibson, Indians, were ground to bits beneath the wheels of a Pere Marquette freight engine last Thursday night at a point near the wash-out, at the west city limits. The men apparently had fallen asleep on the tracks and the engine crew members report they did not see them. The accident happened at about 7:20 o'clock.

The freight outfit was the stone run crew, running light to the cement plant to pick up a load of cars. Arriving there the men inspected their engine to learn, if possible, the cause of a slight bump they felt at about the point named. They found bits of flesh clinging to the under part of the engine and called the Petoskey station to inform Agent W. A. Martin of the facts. Mr. Martin at once started an investigation, accompanied by Patrick Sullivan and Philo Wakeford of the night police force.

At the washout they found parts of the body of Gibson and an extra hand and arm, giving indication that a second man had been in the accident. Nearly a mile farther down the tracks the men found the torso of Chingwa.

If troubled with headache, dizziness, nervousness, or any other symptom of eye-strain, consult Dr. Leahy, the Optometrist, at the Hotel Charlevoix, Tuesday, April 7th.—Adv. 1422

DEPRESSION HITS STATE ROAD FUNDS

Collections for the First Three Months Off $2,500,000

With weight and gas tax revenue for the first three months of 1931 nearly $2,500,000 below that of the corresponding period last year, the state highway department faces a serious shortage in funds, Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, warned.

At the close of business Monday night, Fitzgerald told the road committee of the state administrative board the weight tax collections were $2,250,000 behind those of last year while gasoline tax collections were between $150,000 and $200,000 down.

The secretary of state said that he anticipates a portion of the weight tax shortage will be made up during the year with anticipated improvement in industrial conditions. Part of the reduction is blamed upon the fact that the deadline for license plates was postponed to March 1st this year.

STATE FIRE LOSS IS LOWER THAN AVERAGE

Wisconsin and Minnesota Show More Damage With Less Forests

Michigan with probably twice the forest fire hazard of Wisconsin and Minnesota, experienced the smallest fire loss in these three states during the year 1930. The figures are contained in a report received by the department of conservation from the United States forest service.

Michigan's 1930 forest fire loss amounted to $279,162 as compared with $420,966 in Minnesota and $460,627 in Wisconsin.

The high hazard in Michigan is given as the direct result of greatly increased tourist travel through this state, especially in the wooded areas of the north, and the exceptionally dry season of 1930. It has been estimated that tourist traffic through this "fire area" is double that of either Wisconsin or Minnesota.

turned and handed the check back to Elmer unceremoniously. "Sorry," he said, "but a distrainer warrant has been served on the bank by the local collector of internal revenue, and we are delinquent on honoring any further checks on this account."

"I thank you," said Elmer politely and he went. The client the latter had been expecting had not yet arrived and Elmer went at once into the lawyer's private office.

"Well, Bunker has made good!" he announced. "I told you I thought he wasn't bluffing. He planned his coup so cleverly that he got his own check rushed downstairs and cashed it just before the collector of internal revenue served warrant on the bank. The funds of the estate are all tied up until the government experts have gone over the books."

"Holy jumped-up Jehosaphat!" yelled Absolom McPeake. "No!"

"But yes!"

"I don't believe it!"

"Go downstairs and ask the prying teller of the First National bank. He'll enlighten you. I went down there and he enlightened me."

"The dirty dog!" McPeake raved. "The dirty little snake in the grass to do a thing like this!"

Elmer shrugged. "All I'm hoping is that the collector of internal revenue leaves me enough to pay my few debts. I owe the Philadelp Commercial Trust and Savings bank twenty thousand. If I get that much out of the wreck I'll be back where I started and in a month or two I'll be just as happy as I had never been a millionaire." He smiled wanly. "You see I haven't got terribly accustomed to being a millionaire," he added. "Spending money is a fine art and I have never learned it. Cheer up, Mac. If I'd collected all of this inheritance and had got accustomed to living on a million-dollar scale, Bunker's action would have broken my heart."

"You are game," McPeake declared admiringly, and called for his secretary. "Get the collector of internal revenue on the line for me," he ordered.

Thereafter for five minutes he listened on the line while the collector of internal revenue talked. Silently McPeake hung up.

"Licked!" he croaked. "Licked to a frazzle!"

"All right, I'm licked," Elmer retorted calmly. "What interests me is to know how I was licked."

"Bunker went to the collector of internal revenue directly after you gave him your ultimatum and turned the real set of books and vouchers over to them, and for five weeks a corps of expert accountants has been experting them. The statute of limitations has run against the income tax returns for 1913, 1914, 1915, 1916 and 1917, but they have you nailed on the returns from then on. They have made up the tax returns for those years as they should have been made up had your uncle made no honest return, and the collector informs me that the estate owes the government two hundred and thirty-one thousand, nine hundred and four dollars and eight cents."

"They looked at each other, and presently the slow, amused smile crept around Elmer's mouth. "Mac," he asked, "did you get your fee out of the estate before the crash?"

McPeake shook his head wearily.

"Then the joke's on you," Elmer declared, and stood up. "Tell me what you do," he continued. "You get hold of that collector, run down his accounting and, when you are convinced he is right and we haven't got a leg to stand on, you settle with him on the best basis you can."

"As for me, I'm out. I have neither the time nor the inclination to fight for anything except a living, and the longer I delay that assault the worse off I'll be. I'm about eight months behind the procession now and I'll have to hurry to catch up." He held out his hand. "Good-bye, Mac, I'm on my way."

"Elmer, I'm terribly sorry," McPeake, friendliest of men, was calling him by his first name.

"Don't waste your sympathy, Mac. I'm one bird in this world who hates sympathy. I've never been able to use any. Uncle Hiram's money would have meant a great deal to the happiness of that girl I told you about, and for her sake I wish Bunker had never been born. But why reprove? When the collector of internal revenue proves his case, hand him this with my compliments," and Elmer laid on McPeake's desk the check the latter had so recently handed him. He held out his hand. "Good-bye, Mac. Hope you get yours. You've worked for it—which is more than I did. You might write to me from time to time and tell me how you're coming along."

He shook hands and departed. Back at his hotel, he packed his trunk and suitcase, telephoned downstairs for his bill and then lay down on his bed to wait for train time. At four o'clock he was homeward bound and three days later he dropped off the Del Monte Flyer at Philadelphia and made his way on foot up to his house.

He was greeted enthusiastically by Benji, his old hunting dog, and his colored retainer, Jasper. To the latter he handed the wages due him to date.

"I'll Not Need You Any More, Jasper," he announced. "I'm Sorry."

"I'll not need you any more, Jasper," he announced. "I'm Sorry. You're a good servant and faithful, but I can't afford you. I'll dine uptown tonight."

He left the amazed and disappointed Jasper staring after him, went to the telephone and called up Nellie at the bank.

"Elmer speaking, Nellie. I'm home—back home and broke. I'd like to take you out to dinner tonight—probably for the last time—and tell you all about it. Uncle Hiram's estate has melted like a dish of ice cream on a hot stove. Funnest tale you'll ever listen to, Nellie. Brace yourself for a laugh."

So far as we have been able to observe the modern flappers are able to take care of themselves, and, at the same time, two or three times as many men.

DELINQUENT TAX
LOAN BILL ASKEDTO PERMIT CITIES TO BORROW ON EXPECTED COLLECTIONS

Oleo Measure Pushed—County Welfare Commission Plan Is Submitted in Legislature

An emergency measure which recognizes the serious financial condition of a number of Michigan cities and towns passed unanimously by the senate is in the house for final consideration. The bill would authorize local governments to borrow money in anticipation of delinquent tax collections for preceding years, not to exceed 60 per cent of such delinquencies. The measure provides that no loans be made after Oct. 1, 1933.

The bill would further provide for the floating of loans during the last half of any year, in anticipation of the collection of taxes for the following year, the loans not to exceed 25 per cent of the total taxes. A third section would make legal the borrowing of money in anticipation of current taxes, the amount not to exceed 80 per cent of the total.

Oleo Measure Pushed
Agricultural interests pushing Sen. Peter B. Lennon's bill to prohibit the sale of oleomargarine if colored to resemble butter won their first victory when the measure was passed by the senate with a vote of 17 to 12. Petitions bearing 6,000 names urged the passage of the bill on the ground that the dairy industry is practically bankrupt and could be saved by the displacement of the substitute by butter from Michigan dairies.

The oleo bill would make it illegal for cafes or hotels to serve the substitute, and would provide an annual license fee of $10 for retailers and $100 for wholesalers of the product. A similar bill, which would curtail the sale of the product by imposing a sales tax of 12 cents a pound, has been introduced in the house.

A new sales tax which would tax retail merchants on the basis of gross receipts on a schedule starting at one-half of a mill per dollar for receipts exceeding $25 up to $400,000, with a limit of 10 mills per dollar on gross receipts in excess of $1,000,000, was introduced in the house by Rep. James McBride of Burton. In addition, a $2 license fee would be collected from every store operating in the state, the money to be used to reduce excessive school taxes in sparsely populated districts.

Welfare Board Proposed
A bill providing for a county welfare commission to take over welfare work of all kinds in counties of 50,000 or more was introduced in the house by Rep. Vernon J. Brown of Mason. The boards would be created after a referendum in the county, and would consist of the circuit judge, the probate judge, the chairman of the board of supervisors, a county health officer, and a welfare officer. The measure would eliminate municipal and township welfare and health workers.

An amendment to the parole laws which would increase the "good time" allowance to prisoners having exceptional institutional records was introduced by Rep. Hazen Hatch of Marshall. The increase would not exceed 50 per cent of the present schedule.

Two bills and a joint resolution designed to transfer the election of circuit judges and county school commissioners from spring to fall were introduced in the senate early in the week by Sen. James G. Bonine of Cassopolis. The object of the change would be to eliminate the necessity of holding spring primaries in rural districts.

PROPERTY TAX
LIMIT IS ASKEDRep. Helme Proposes Real Estate
Levy Maximum Be 2 Per Cent

A new move to place a constitutional limit upon the total amount of taxes which could be levied against real estate was before the House last week. It is the form of a joint resolution proposing a vote on the question at the general election in November, 1932.

As outlined by Rep. James Helme of Adrian, its sponsor, the resolution proposes to limit all taxes to two per cent of the "true cash value" of the property taxed, the limit to be exceeded only by vote of 65 per cent of the votes cast at an election in favor of such action.

NEWSPAPERS are the greatest of all modern educators. They teach history in its making. The exploits of exceptional people, the press of unusual events, the ebb and flow of political expedience—all are made public knowledge within a few hours after their happening. This information is instant and complete.

That is why men and women who are eager to be fully informed read the newspapers—not only the news of the world, but also news of what to buy, where to buy and how to buy.

You cannot be abreast of the times if you overlook the advertisements. For advertisements give you the real news of business. They are the messages of business to you. They tell of the new and wonderful thing created for your convenience and leisure—of merchandise gathered from the myriad markets of the world for you and your family.

REYCRRAFT WILLS ARE CONTESTED

Estate Estimated at $135,000—Heirs In Dispute Over Conflicting Papers

One of the most unusual cases in court annals is before Judge Edward E. Gilbert of the Emmet county probate court in the settling of the late Dr. John J. Reyrcraft's estate.

Dr. Reyrcraft, who made his home in Petoskey prior to his death, January 29, was one of the most widely known physicians in the country. His estate is estimated at more than $135,000, of which $100,000 is in real estate and $35,000 in personal property.

Left Two Wills

Two wills were made by the physician, both of which are being contested. The first will was made on Dec. 31, 1925, and the second one April 25, 1928.

Mrs. Ella Beattie of Highgate, Ont., a sister of Dr. Reyrcraft is contesting the second will. Among the objections listed in the complaint are that the 1928 will was not signed in the presence of two witnesses nor by Dr. Reyrcraft and that the will was not published and declared as the last will. Records show that nearly three years elapsed between the time the 1928 will was signed by the first witness, Ruth L. Henry of Chicago, and the second witness, Amy C. Shepard of Petoskey.

As executor of the estate by the 1928 will, Dr. Charles J. Gray of Petoskey, objects to the admission to probate court the 1925 instrument, "because the said instrument is not the last will and testament of the deceased and because the said instrument was revoked by the last will and testament of April 15, 1928."

There is no revoking clause in the second will however, according to Judge Gilbert. The law says that a will may be revoked by burning, tearing, obliterating, cancelling or making another will.

Large Amount in Residue

The apparent cause of difficulties among the heirs of the estate is that the first will says that residue of the estate after the specified bequests are made shall go to Mrs. Beattie. The second will does not make it clear who shall receive the residue of the estate, according to Judge Gilbert.

Only approximately $25,000 of the entire estate is allotted in special bequests which leaves hardly $100,000 in residue it was learned.

Judge Gilbert stated that there is no precedent to this case in the annals of Michigan courts, nor no identical case in the courts of the country.

The next hearing of the case is scheduled for April 15th in Judge Gilbert's court.—Emmet County Graphic.

Mrs. Dan Soule and Miss Gwendolyn Miller. Solo parts were very creditably taken by Mrs. Archie Livingston, Miss Sylvia Black, John Nordrum and Fred Tyler, members of the choir, and by Dr. Frank Wilkinson and Harker Kirby, who kindly consented to participate. The body of the church was well filled and many appreciative comments evidenced that the listeners had enjoyed the beautiful and impressive composition.

A large bouquet of American Beauty roses was presented by H. R. Fowler, spokesman for the choir, to Mrs. Stelter at the close of the service in appreciation of her untiring efforts to make the cantata a success and to express the goodwill and friendliness that the members feel towards their leader. Mrs. Fred Tyler also pleasantly surprised the members of the choir by furnishing them with individual bouquets and corsages of sweet peas.

The cantata will be repeated at Ironston at 4 o'clock p. m., next Sunday.

Mulligan and Garrity a "Mike and Ike" Team

The roles of the dumb detectives in "The Corolla," which were turned over to Joe Frisco and Harry Gribbon, both popular stage and screen comedians, are portrayed by these famous funsters in the best traditions of Mulligan and Garrity, according to advance reports concerning the picture.

New mystery angles were specially prepared for the picturization of "The Corolla" by Ralph Spence, who is the original author of the play, and thus, many new thrills are in store when the picture is presented at the Palace theatre tonight and Thursday.

Lila Lee and Walter Pidgeon share the honors with Frisco and Gribbon, the former pair furnishing the romance that winds through the entire thrills and hilarious mirth of the plot.

TWENTY-TWO ATTEND MEETING OF LEGION

Sam King Chairman of Memorial Day Committee on Arrangements

Leslie Shapton Post of the American Legion held its regular weekly meeting at the new club house on East Carfield avenue, Tuesday evening, with 22 members in attendance.

Plans were laid for the Memorial day exercises and the preliminary sales of poppies that precede it. A portion of the receipts from these poppy sales goes to the ex-service men now in hospitals throughout the country who manufacture the symbolic paper flowers. A committee of six, with Sam King as chairman, was appointed to arrange the details of the exercises. Ex-service men who are not provided with the legion forage caps are requested to communicate at once with Charles Hamlin, secretary of the Post, so that they may be ordered immediately in time for Memorial day. Give your hat size.

Following the business session, cards and a series of snappy ping pong contests carried on the meeting to an adjournment in the wee small hours. A satisfying luncheon of coffee, rye bread, liverwurst and doughnuts was consumed during this period.

Next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, a stag card party will be held at the club rooms. Each member is expected to bring three friends, who with himself will each be assessed a nominal sum for the post treasury. He is also supposed to bring a table, cards and other equipment, such as score pads, etc., according to the game that he and his guests desire to play.

TWO PETOSKEY TEAMS PLAY HERE THURSDAY

Indoor Team Takes on City Wide Nine—Polar Bears Meet Bon Tons

Charlevoix basketball and indoor baseball fans will be treated to a double bill at the high school gymnasium Thursday night.

In the opening contest, scheduled at 7:30 o'clock, Charlevoix's newly-organized indoor baseball team, take on the Petoskey City Wide nine in a game which promises to be interesting, inasmuch as the sport is practically new here. The Petoskey organization have been playing throughout the winter season and will provide plenty of tough opposition for the locals.

On the other half of the bill, Charlevoix Polar Bears tangle with the Petoskey Bon Tons in a basketball game which will mark the close of this sport for the season at Charlevoix.

These two contests will be the second of a home-and-return series between the two cities. Charlevoix's indoor nine lost Tuesday evening at Petoskey by a 17 to 7 score and are out for revenge. Zerbis and Powers were the battery for Charlevoix, turning in a good performance. They had poor support, however.

The Polar Bears defeated Petoskey Bon Tons at Petoskey Tuesday evening by a 15 to 10 count and are out to make it two straight.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

56 Charlevoix County Farmers Keeping Farm Accounts

The farmers of Charlevoix county again justify our belief that they are as progressive and efficient as are found in any section of Michigan, by their desire to keep an accurate account of their farm situation. Within the last few weeks 36 farm books were closed for the year 1930, and that many farmers "don't guess" any longer, but know what they are doing.

Furthermore, 20 farmers are keeping records for the third year in succession, 16 are entering their second year and 20 are starting for the first time.

The only regret is that more farmers don't keep records. The following are taking advantage of the opportunity of "knowing" and not "guessing." The number following the name indicates the year in the project. Those from Charlevoix are: H. L. Francisco, 1; Arlo Wickersham, 1; George Block, 1; James Block, 1; Mrs. Fred Moline, 1; Charles Mascho, 1; Louis Shapton, 1; Harold Hamlin, 2; Milo L. Kane, 2; L. D. Welsheimer, 2; D. E. Ingalls, 2; Datus Dean, 2; Ecklund Brothers, 2; Oakley Saunders, 3; George Meggison, 3; H. C. Newman, 3; Lee Snead, 3; Richard Paddock, 3; Mrs. Orson Cook, 3; W. K. Straw, 3; and Charles Withers, 3. Co-operators from East Jordan are R. V. Liskum, 1; James Nee, 1; Herbert Gould, 1; Earl Bricker, 1; Harry Daugherty, 1; Ludwig Larson, 1; Mark Saunders, 2; Ole Ormland, 2; Ray Loomis, 2; Art Niely, 2; Walter Heileman, 2; Robert Sherman, 2; and George Nelson, 2; Orval Bennett, 2; Douglas

STATE WILL PLANT 15,000 ACRES PINE

Work to Begin Late in April Will Take About Three Weeks

Plans for the planting of approximately 15,000 acres in pine trees this spring are being made by the forestry division of the department of conservation.

Whether it will be possible to plant this large acreage in the state forests will depend to some extent on the weather during late April and early part of May.

Plans for spring plantings were made at a recent meeting held at the Higgins Lake nursery operated by the division and attended by Marcus Schaaf, state forester, and George McIntire, assistant state forester, and the superintendents of the 12 state forests.

At the Higgins Lake meeting reports were received from all superintendents and plans were made for the year.

Despite last summer's drought, the spring plantings of 1930 "came through" with a high percentage of success, the superintendents reported, and the acres planted in pine last fall are in excellent condition.

Spring plantings, depending to some extent on the weather, will begin the third week in April.

It is expected that five to six weeks will be necessary to complete the actual planting.

CAMPBELL'S BOOT SHOP

OLDEST FORD DRIVER

J. M. Crow, 89, of Ethel, Miss., the oldest Ford driver in Mississippi, traversed the historic old Natchez Trace in a covered wagon eighty-seven years ago.

As rugged today at 89 as the age in American history he is a picturesque type. J. M. Crow of Ethel, Miss., is the oldest Ford driver in Mississippi and one of the oldest in the United States.

When as a babe of two years he rode with his parents in one of a train of 30 covered wagons out of Cobb county, Georgia, into Mississippi, the old Natchez Trace followed by the brave little band was still infested by the awashbuckling ruffians whose bloody outrages gave that era its place in this country's history as "the outlaw years."

One of his vivid memories is hearing, as a boy of six, the news of General Scott's victorious assault on the heights of Chapultepec which ended the Mexican War in 1847, and his proudest memory is of honorable service as a Confederate soldier during the Civil War. When the southern cause collapsed, Crow was compelled to trudge 400 miles on foot to the old homestead at Ethel where he settled down to rear a family.

In the intervening years he has seen the lumbering stagecoach give way to the fleet automobile and the comfortable motorbus, the soggy gumbo and rough corduroy roads of his childhood to the wide, paved roads of today, and although he was long past middle age before the modern automobile became commonplace he is as enthusiastic a driver as youngsters who can boast less than one-quarter of his years.

Five generations of Crow's family are frequently seen together in his Model A Ford, the second of its type Crow has owned and driven.

24TH ANNUAL TOURNEY AT BELVEDERE COURSE

Howard L. McGregor, Belvedere Golf Club President, Announces Selection of Local Course

With the 1931 resort season just around the corner, announcement that the 24th annual Michigan State Amateur golf championship will be played on the Belvedere Golf Club course this season is one that will be received with more than usual enthusiasm.

Howard L. McGregor of Detroit, president of the Belvedere Golf club, sent telegrams to local enthusiasts last Friday, announcing that the event would be held on the Belvedere course July 15 to 18, inclusive. The word was indeed welcomed by local people, for it was felt for a time that officials of the club might not extend an invitation to the Michigan State Amateur Golf Association to return here for another summer.

The state tournament, which is the outstanding event of the golfing season for Michigan's simon-pures, brought one of the largest fields in its history to Charlevoix a year ago. Actual entries in the hands of James D. Standish, association secretary, before the tournament opened, numbered 146, and before play got under way reached the 160 mark. In addition to the regular field when the tournament was held in the metropolitan area, many amateurs from northern Michigan resort clubs entered, swelling the total considerably. In all, 43 clubs were represented in the field.

Last year's tournament brought out some of the classiest golf ever witnessed on the picturesque Belvedere championship course. Chris Drink, former Kentucky amateur champion and 1929 Detroit district titleist, turned in a 68, four below par, in a practice round, and tournament play which followed produced scores equalling and even better than the pros were able to turn in during the Great Lakes Open.

Charles Kocis, 17-year-old Redford high school student, won the event with one of the most marvelous displays of golf ever witnessed during history of the tournament. In the morning round of the finals, Kocis ended a 73, one above par, and in the afternoon at the 11th green, where the match ended, was 4 below perfect figures.

The amateurs are not only a fine bunch of golfers, but in addition are a "great group of fellows." Charlevoix is very fortunate that officials of the Belvedere Golf club have invited them back to Charlevoix again.

CITY WIDES TRIM CHARLEVOIX TEAM

Bon Tons Drop Another to Powerful
Polar Bear Cagers

The Petoskey City Wide Indoor team defeated Charlevoix last Thursday night by a count of 11 to 1. It was the second victory of the season over Charlevoix.

The game was more closely fought and exciting than the score indicated. Charlevoix hit hard at times and threatened to send runners across on numerous occasions. However, the Petoskey defense would tighten and hit the rallies. Paul Daybird was the umpire.

The Bon Tons basketball team did not fare so well against the Charlevoix Polar Bears. This team was too powerful on both defense and attack for the local amateurs. The game was hard fought, and very fast and played before a fair sized crowd. The Bon Tons used two full sets of players and got going in fairly good shape in the second half. The final count was Polar Bears 29, Bon Tons 13.

The lineups were: Polar Bears, Davenport, Higman, and J. Smith forwards; Brown center; Supernaw, Smith and Kipke, guards. Bon Tons, Starmer, DeArment, Rigg and Hart, forwards; Herriek and Barnes, centers; A. Dudek, Golden, Carter and Wolgast, guards. DeArment led for the Bon Tons with five points and Smith for the Polar Bears with eight.

STATE WHEAT CROP ON THE INCREASE

Will Be 14,500,000 Bushels According to Estimate

Michigan's 1931 wheat crop was estimated at 14,500,000 bushels in a report by the state department of agriculture. The figure is based upon comparative spring conditions of the crop on April 1 last year and a corresponding date this spring.

According to the report, on April 1 this year the average condition of the crop was 82 per cent which compares with 79 per cent on the same date last year. This is a gain of three per cent over the condition of the crop on December 1, 1930.

"The condition of the Michigan rye crop on the first of the month is given as 83 per cent," the report reads. "Last year at this time the figure was 81 per cent while the 10-year average is 87. Pasture prospects are very poor because of last year's drought. Michigan farmers report a condition of only 68 per cent which is 12 per cent below the corresponding figure for 1930."

Wednesday, April 15th, marked the official opening of navigation on the Great Lakes. Although many craft throughout the lake region had already embarked upon their season's operations, a majority of freighters held to port until the official opening.

At Charlevoix, Wednesday saw the final flurry of preparation as boats made ready to clear port. Work of getting the several larger craft in the harbor ready for the season had been in progress for several weeks.

The Petoskey Transportation Co. steamer J. B. John, left her winter berth in Round lake harbor Wednesday evening for Petoskey, with Capt. Frank Russell in charge. The boat will take on a load of cement and proceed to Chicago.

NEW CAMP SPONSORS VISIT HERE

G. D'AMICO AND PROF. FLEISCHMAN WEEK END GUESTS

Prof. Fleischman Spoke Before High School—Luncheon Given at Hotel Charlevoix—Plans Progress

G. D'Amico of Detroit, and Prof. Earl E. Fleischman of Ann Arbor, the former owner and the latter director of the newly-organized Lake Charlevoix Dramatic Camp to be located at the old Camp Manitou site near Ironton, were Charlevoix visitors over the week end.

Accompanied by James Dill and Lewis Stevens, U. of M., who will act in the capacity of scenic artist and art director at the camp next summer, the party made a preliminary survey in order to anticipate requirements of the camp under its new role. Blue prints were prepared by Messrs. Dill and Stevens for the new indoor theatre at the camp, which will be built as a part of the present recreation hall, and other details taken care of.

Through the sponsorship of Mrs. Dowd, English instructor in the local high school, Prof. Fleischman spoke before the assembly Monday morning. He was awarded a medal as winner of a recent contest at University of Chicago, and gave the same works before local school students. The presentations were Shakespeare's twenty-ninth sonnet, a sonnet of Keats' two Scotch ballads, "The Mending Wall" by Robert Frost and "John Brown's Body," by Stephen Benet.

At noon, Messrs. D'Amico and Fleischman were introduced to a group of local business men at a formal luncheon given by Dr. C. J. Winder at the Hotel Charlevoix. Following luncheon, Prof. Fleischman explained in detail the purpose and aims of Lake Charlevoix Dramatic Camp. He told how the project was to be handled; its future possibilities and aims.

Since its inception, inquiries from those interested in the new camp have been numerous and from a wide area, speaking well for the enthusiasm the project is being met. Charlevoix is certainly fortunate to be chosen as its location.

AUTO TITLE TRANSFER LAW IS STRICT

Ten-Day Period for Recording Transfer is Allowed

Purchasers of second hand automobiles who neglect or fail to make reasonably prompt application for transfer of title as required by the statutes are liable to find themselves in trouble. Check-up has been started in Detroit and officers have been notified to start prosecution of such cases and it is quite likely that action of a similar nature will be taken in other parts of the state.

Under the law the purchasers are allowed ten days in which to make application for transfer of title. Many fail to do this and in some cases it is difficult to ascertain the real owner of a car on a certain day, which information is essential in cases involving accidents.

The fine in case of conviction of the violation of this statute is $100 so that purchasers are flirting with trouble to vasillate in completing the deal when they buy a used car.

In a similar action, judgment in the sum of $110.65, plus costs, was given in favor of National Bank of Boyne City vs. Neils Rovick.

Ellsworth Bellant of Petoskey, alleged to have shot Ed. Latham in a dance hall fracas at Boyne City, pleaded not guilty to a charge of felonious assault and waived jury trial. William Lake, Melrose township, pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law, as did also William Allgire of Ellsworth, and John O'Neil of Charlevoix. They will be sentenced today.

MICHIGAN AIR TOUR ITINERARY READY

TOUR WILL COVER UPPER AND LOWER PENINSULAS

Tentative Plans for Event June 18-27 Call for Two Stops Daily—May Visit Charlevoix

Preliminary plans for the third annual Michigan air tour, which will start from Grand Rapids airport June 18, and end there June 27, have been announced by the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce, sponsor of the event.

As tentatively planned, the itinerary will cover both the upper and lower peninsulas of the state. There will be two stops per day, giving each city visited a greater opportunity to enjoy the tour, and allowing participating manufacturers and dealers a better opportunity to demonstrate products in the communities visited.

In the belief that airports and intermediate landing fields should be developed along the lines laid out by the state board of aeronautics and that the upper and lower peninsulas should be linked closer together, a considerable number of the stops on this year's tour will be made in the upper peninsula.

To Carry Passengers
As in the case of the past two years prominent state and government officials will be invited to accompany the tour and pay passengers will be carried, who will pay their transportation and their expenses in the various towns visited. Details concerning passenger accommodations may be obtained by addressing the tour management.

On the pathfinding trip, which will start the latter part of April, details in connection with handling the expense of the local stop will be suggested, such as a parking fee or entrance fee at the airport, local banquet, etc. Many cities in past years have paid for the cost of the tour with a fee of this type and in some cases have shown a profit for the stop.

There were 45 airplanes in the 1929 tour and 48 airplanes in the 1930 tour, and it is expected that a minimum of 55 or 60 airplanes will be assembled for the 1931 tour, due to the fact that there are a great many new airplanes under construction this year.

The tours of 1929 and 1930 were extremely successful and left the various cities that they visited in an air-minded frame of mind. Based on the experience acquired on these two tours, it is expected that the 1931 tour will be the most successful tour ever to be conducted.

GIVE GROWING CHICK RIGHT FEED MIXTURE

Well Fed Birds Resist Disease and Become Profitable Layers

Properly fed chicks have vitality to resist disease and will be able to build bodies which will make them profitable egg producers next fall and winter, and these advantages can be obtained through the use of suitable feed mixtures, according to a statement by the poultry department at Michigan State college.

The starting mash is to be fed for the first six weeks. The figures given in the formula are pounds. The mixture is made up of yellow corn meal 54, flour middlings 20, ground oatmeal 20, dried milk 10, meat scrap 5, alfalfa leaf meal 5, steamed bone meal 4, salt 1, and cod-liver oil 1.

A scratch feed made up of equal parts of cracked yellow corn and whole wheat should be given the chicks after they are six weeks old at the same time they are shifted from the starting mash to the growing mash which is fed until the pullets go into the laying house.

The growing mash is made of corn meal 20, flour middlings 20, bran 17, ground oatmeal 15, ground oats 10, meat scrap 5, dried milk 5, alfalfa meal 5, steamed bone meal 2, and salt 1. The chicks when fed this ration will be out of doors and will not need cod-liver oil.

This is probably the most thorough and comprehensive lubrication study ever made.

The Contest Board of the American Automobile Association conducted the work and is compiling the results for certification. Car manufacturers sent representatives to the track for observation.

Here are some of the technical questions included in this study:

- 1 Extent to which motor oil thins out in the crankcase?
- 2 Effect of speed on oil consumption?
- 3 Volume of carbon formed with various grades (viscosities) of oil at different speeds?
- 4 Engine wear at known speeds with various grades of motor oil?

Soon these cars will take to the road on extensive individual tours. These tours will serve a dual purpose.

First, to deliver to automobile dealers the certified results of the lubrication study and give them the privilege of inspecting their car. Second, to carry on the lubrication study under the identical conditions that your car faces every day. Watch for these cars. Inspect them if you have the opportunity.

The broad scope and thoroughness of this work explains why Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is able to provide you with motor oil that meets exactly the lubricating requirements of your car.

Bankers Association President
Asks If Unfair Aid Is Given Motorized Transport—
For Rail Mergers.

NEW YORK.—Fair treatment for the railroads in respect to highway motor competition was called for by Homer C. Stephenson, President American Bankers Association, in a recent address here. He also strongly endorsed "sound economic railway consolidation" and praised President Hoover for his initiative in this respect.

"I am very strongly of the opinion that one of the measures which would help materially to put back business where it ought to be is the Eastern four-system plan of railroad consolidation as announced recently following negotiations instituted by President Hoover," said Mr. Stephenson.

"Its adoption by the Interstate Commerce Commission would tend to stabilize the transportation industry, facilitate operation and exert a favorable influence on business in general.

"It is a fact well known to business leaders that our railroads are now facing a crisis. Not only do they need protective laws to meet competitive situations arising from increased use of our highways and waterways by other carriers, but they need unification such as the proposed four-system plan provides. Our President has acted wisely in assuming a leadership in this respect and his move deserves the support of every clear-thinking citizen."

Mr. Stephenson declared that the railroads have served this country "no superlatively well that we are prone in our public affairs to overlook our dependence upon them and our obligations to them. The past, present and future progress of the United States is inseparably bound up with their welfare. In neglecting just consideration for them we are even more neglectful of the public's best economic interests."

A Question of Public Interest

"We are confronted with the question as to how much more the public economic interest will stand an invasion of the welfare of the railroads by forces and difficulties not of their own creating and not within the scope of their own unaided powers to combat," said Mr. Stephenson. "I refer especially to new competitors that are undermining the hard-earned position of the railroads, not only with the aid of natural economic forces but also through the aid of government policies which, positively or negatively, tend to give these competitors undue advantages over the railroads."

"It goes without saying that the railroads have no right, nor claim any, so far as I have been able to discern, to complain at legitimate competition in the field of transportation, for the public is entitled to the best possible transportation at the lowest practical cost. But equally does it go without saying that this cannot be fairly brought about by using, or by failing to use, the taxing powers of government to enable competitive methods of transportation to do things they could not otherwise do as unaided private enterprises, particularly when such action impairs the invested rights held in good faith by great masses of our people in established enterprises that are serving the public well."

Mr. Stephenson said it was not his purpose to argue against such competitive transportation as the highway passenger motorbus and motor truck as such, when conducted under proper conditions and in keeping with public welfare and benefit. He declared, however, that it is need for serious consideration whether such competition is being developed under conditions that are unfair to the railroads, because either the outright or obscure aid of government policy is the deciding economic factor in that competition.

Would Investigate Bus Traffic

Railroad rights of way, he declared, represent tremendous capital investments, on which the railroads have also heavy current costs to meet. "They pay every day a million dollars in taxes and most of this is on their rights of way," he said. "Also they spend daily over two million dollars additional for the proper maintenance of way." He asserted that the motorbuses have not had to pay for their rights of way in any sense that the railroads paid for theirs.

"They have simply taken possession of public highways built by public funds, both state and national," he continued, "and they have extensively made those highways vastly less comfortable, less safe and less serviceable for private motorists and others who are contributing chiefly to their creation and maintenance."

Mr. Stephenson declared that all these matters should be thoroughly inquired into by competent public bodies, both state and national, with a view of determining the equities and basic public economic interests involved, particularly in respect to their effects upon the nation's railroads.

"I venture to say," he added, "that such inquiries would show whether it is to the public interest to let things remain as they are, whether the situation calls for a new basis of motorbus and truck taxes to satisfy the equities of the case or whether it would call for such drastic action as the exclusion of this traffic from our public general highways, and the requirement that, even as the railroads, it provide as a part of its own private capital investment its own maintenance of way and for its own maintenance of way out of operating income."

ROAD SNOW REMOVAL
TOTAL IS 199,348 MILES

Storm Belt Highway Clearing Last Year Represents Gigantic Task

State and local agencies in the 36 states which lie in the snow belt cleared snow and ice from 199,348 miles of state and local highways in the winter 1929-30, the United States Bureau of Public Roads reports.

The cost of clearing 184,748 miles for which figures were presented, amounted to $3,224,368.

"The patrol system is considered the best method of keeping the roads open," the bureau writes. "A definite section of highway is assigned to a patrol officer and crew with the necessary equipment of trucks, tractors, or graders. The crews go to work at the start of snowfall and work on the given route until the road is clear."

"Drift prevention continues to be of considerable importance, and the mileage of snow-fence is increasing yearly. About 8,200 miles of fence were used last season, an increase of about 40 per cent over the preceding winter."

"To prevent skidding, especially on curves and steep grades and at railroad crossings, several highway departments spread cinders or sand over slippery areas. Others mixed or spread calcium chloride with this material."

"There were no important changes in the type of equipment used for snow removal. State and local agencies report a total of 7,372 trucks, 2,788 tractors and 2,587 graders used in the clearing of 184,748 miles of highways."

BITS OF INFORMATION

Dust the hen thoroughly with sodium fluoride before setting her to hatch eggs. Some hens become so badly infested with lice that they leave the nests. To rid hens of lice, hold the fowls by the feet, head downward, and rub pinches of sodium fluoride well into the feathers, especially around the vent.

Lower production costs, a tendency toward improvement in market demand, and a greater degree of stability in general commodity prices are predicted for 1931 by the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics, in its agricultural outlook report. Outlook reports are prepared by the bureau to help farmers make plans for planting crops and breeding livestock in view of the market conditions that will probably exist when the crops and animals are ready for market. The Farm Outlook for 1931: Facts for Farmers, may be obtained by writing to the U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for miscellaneous publication 112-MP.

Inspectors examined more than 3,500 shipments of crude drugs last year, including more than 250 varieties.

Wheat growers are losing millions of dollars a year by failing to clean seed wheat and to treat it for smut. Connecticut has 17 state forests, containing 56,363 acres, and distributed through eight counties.

Plants Need Nitrogen

Plants need nitrogen particularly for early growth; hence it should be applied preferably as a nitrate to spring-sown crops chiefly at the time of planting. Apply it at a fairly high rate to most early crops grown for foliage, such as cabbage and lettuce.

If the growth period for such crops is short, one application may be sufficient; otherwise subsequent top dressings may be profitable. Where a continuous growth of succulent leaves is desired—as in pastures—frequent applications are advisable if not too expensive. When nitrogen is needed in moderate amounts, as for grain crops, early single applications are the rule. In early spring the supply of available nitrogen in the soil is very low, but as the soil warms up the organic matter is gradually converted into nitrates, and in the better soils this nitrate supply is usually adequate for the crop throughout the hot summer months. A complete fertilizer is usually more profitable than nitrogen alone, as most soils require potash and phosphorus also.

Sanitation for Chickens

Sanitation is essential in the successful brooding of chicks. Brood coops, brooders, and brooder houses get dirty and if they are not disinfected the chicks are more likely to become infected with such diseases as coccidiosis and bacillary white diarrhea. This disease, commonly known as h. w. d., is communicable, and is transmitted through the egg. One of the best ways to eradicate it is to remove all infected breeders.

NORTH SANATORIUM PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Senate Approves Malt Tax Which Provides Necessary Revenue

Prospects for passage of the northern state tuberculosis sanatorium measure became last week the brightest they have been at any time since the start of the legislative session when the senate approved by a vote of 28 to 4 the malt tax bill, which provides funds for constructing the institution.

As passed by the senate the bill specifies that revenue secured from the tax up to July 1, 1932, shall be used to pay to county sanatoriums amounts owed them by the state for care given indigent tuberculosis patients. Thereafter $400,000 is appropriated for construction and equipment of the northern state sanatorium.

Approval of the bill by the house with little or no change is expected. Conjecture at present centers about the reception that will be given it by Governor Brucker, who in the past has opposed the tax on ethical grounds. The senate alteration in the bill, which in effect means that more than $1,000,000 will be eliminated from the general property tax, may make it more acceptable to him.

Sentiment in both chambers of the legislature has become so nearly unanimous for the malt tax bill, due principally to the urgent need for a tuberculosis hospital in the north central part of the state, that legislative leaders predict its re-passage in both houses in the event of a veto by the governor.

STATE FERRY IS BACK IN SERVICE

One Boat Begins Service Across Straits on Three Hour Schedule

State ferry service has begun for the 1931 season between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace. The ferry, "Straits of Mackinac," is now crossing regularly on a three hour schedule.

The boat leaves Mackinaw City, northbound at 7:30 and 10:30 a. m. and 1:30, 4:30 and 7:30 p. m. every day. It leaves St. Ignace every day at 6 and 9 a. m., noon and 3 and 6 p. m.

While the ice made navigation impossible for the ferry fleet, passengers and freight were carried on ice breaker train ferries.

Higher rates were charged but the difference in price was paid by the state.

Another ferry will go into service in May, and the third boat will be put on the run in June.

The ferry, "Straits of Mackinac," spent the winter at St. Ignace. The ferries "Mackinaw City" and "St. Ignace" wintered at Mackinaw City and are still in the harbor. A new forward deck has been placed on the "St. Ignace" by J. H. Lunds Sons.

BURNING PERMITS BE- LIEVED FIRE CHECK

Number Forest Fires Has Diminished Under Present Laws

The burning permit law, adopted by the state legislature in 1927 and which required a permit before burning any but domestic fires in the fields or woods, has proved to be probably the most important fire prevention measure ever put in force in Michigan.

This is a view expressed by Howard R. Sayre, chief fire warden, in discussing the various means taken by the state to reduce its enormous annual loss from forest fires.

Strict enforcement of this burning permit law has resulted in a large reduction in the number of fires caused by brush burning, Sayre said.

Only once since the law has been in force has it been necessary to suspend the issuance of permits. During the period of extreme hazard during the 1930 season—July, August and September—no permits were granted because of the dry condition of the fields and woods.

The burning permit law provides that a permit must be obtained from a conservation officer or township supervisor before starting any woodlands, grass lands, brush or slash fire for the purpose of clearing and improving lands or for preventing other fires.

'It saith to the human sense of sin, sickness, and death, 'God never made you, and you are a false sense which hath no knowledge of God.'" (p. 540).

"Oh, Elmer don't! I'm so sorry!" Nellie's voice was pregnant with tears.

"Don't," he pleaded. "Please do not feel sorry for me, Nellie. Time enough for that when I begin feeling sorry for myself. I've assimilated the grandest thrashing any man ever assimilated, and I can still stand and see and think clearly. Yes, I've taken a thrashing, but I'm not down and out for the count. I've got all kinds of right left in me yet—see you with me?"

"Well," Nellie replied, "it's all terribly awful of course, but for all that, I'm happy. You have come back to me and nothing else matters."

"I've come back to you, but not for you," he answered bitterly. "I'm not dog enough to ask you to share my poverty with me, Nellie, you must forget that I was ever selfish enough to ask you to marry me."

"We'll talk that matter over before we decide," she retorted. "Pick me up at the house at seven o'clock."

At seven o'clock Elmer called for Nellie and drove her out to Joe Angell's roadside for dinner. And there, between the soup and the entree, he told her the tale of his vanishing million. When the story was done Nellie poked the tablecloth with the tines of her fork and was silent for about a minute. Then:

"What are you going to do, Elmer?"

"Anything at all that I can find in me, Nellie."

"But you're the mayor of Plarctos now—you're a trustee of the Union High school. Are you going to resign and leave Plarctos?"

"Not if I can make a decent living here. To resign and leave now would be equivalent to running away."

"But you'll be laughed to death, Elmer. Oh, you haven't any idea how cruelly you'll be twisted by the townspeople! It'll hurt terribly. I wouldn't blame you for leaving the town."

"I know. But I've stood some hurts in my day and I can stand more."

Nellie looked up at him with love unutterable in her brown eyes. "I adore you," she whispered.

Her simple, heartfelt declaration brought a mist to his eyes. "Please don't say it, Nellie," he pleaded. "I love you more than I'll ever love any woman again, but—understand, don't you darling?—I can't expect you to marry a pauper. I'll probably be a fat, middle-aged man before I'll have enough money to support you decently and—oh, please understand, Nellie! I want you so, but I'll not be selfish enough to ask you to wait."

"I understand thoroughly, dear. I do not expect you to ask me to wait and as a matter of fact I would not consent to wait. When I marry you I want some of the sweetness of life, not the sacrifice and the drudgery of never-ending poverty. I have my place in the bank and I take me out of here, Elmer, I'm going to cry."

Elmer hurriedly pulled his hat and they left the roadside. Five miles down the road they came to the first of the outskirts of Plarctos. Nellie laid her soft little hand on Elmer's arm.

"Pull up under that are light," she commanded, and Elmer obeyed. From her bag Nellie drew a sheet of typewritten paper and handed them to Elmer. "Read!" she commanded.

"What is it, Nellie?"

"It's the final accounting of your Uncle Hiram's estate submitted to the court by the executor, Absalom McPeake. You didn't take time to read it when he submitted a copy to you, so he sent it on to me to show you."

"How do you—why—I didn't know he knew you?"

"Read it, honey!" Nellie cried. "You're so deliberate you drive me crazy. Read it!"

So Elmer read it—and when he had done so he was aware that he was riding in an automobile with the next of kin of Benedict Catheron, who had received from the estate of Hiram Butterworth the sum of $1,078,000 in full satisfaction of that certain mortgage, et cetera. His face was very long and solemn as he folded the document and returned it to her.

"I'm happy you happened to be Benedict Catheron's granddaughter, Nellie," he said quietly. "You deserve every cent of it. God bless you! I hope you'll conserve it and enjoy it and never know the pinch of poverty again as long as you live."

"I told you I wouldn't wait to marry you until you had become fat and middle-aged and accumulated a few thousand dollars, Elmer. I meant what I said. Oh, my dear, I knew it all the time!—knew how little you were going to have left after everything should have been paid—and when I discovered, through McPeake, that you would escape with two hundred and eighteen thousand dollars I had a great curiosity to see how you would stand losing that. So I told McPeake I wanted you to think—oh, please forgive me, darling, but old Bunker was bluffing you all the time! So Mr. McPeake fixed it with the bank to tell you that story and then he pretended to have a long conversation with the collector of internal revenue—and here's your two hundred and eighteen thousand dollars and some odd, Elmer—and oh, you're so brave and simple and unspooled, and I love you so much more now that I know how truly fine you are—kiss me, honey, kiss me, I say! Take me in your arms and tell me you love me. I want to hear you say it—over and over again, darling—and say you forgive me. I've bought out old Anse Moody's controlling interest in the bank and you're president and nobody is going to laugh at you. Oh, darling, you ought to know I wouldn't let anybody do that!"

"Don't!" he pleaded. "You don't know anything about it. That Boris Gatewood will make a laughing stock of me yet. She won't prove a thing, but she'll give me a lot of publicity."

"She'll not. I have a photograph record of her conversation with you this afternoon and Colorado Charlie called to blackmail you. Why, I'm the one who put them in jail so they could think it over quietly, and when they get out they'll leave the state on their hands and feet, or go to the penitentiary for conspiracy to blackmail you. I know all about them long before you did."

"Then in heaven's name, why did you force me to ignorance and let me suffer?" he asked.

"She laughed softly. 'Oh, I had a silly idea you'd think ever so much of me if I permitted you to have some experience of her.'"

Elmer threw his arms round the car, pulled down the hallway. Presently he turned off into a lateral road and pulled up in the shadow of a line of evergreen trees. Very calmly he reached down, switched off the light, and then turned to Nellie.

"Now," he said solemnly. "I'll kiss the most wonderful girl in all the world, and after that we're going to motor over to San Jose, get the county clerk out of bed, secure a license and get married. If I'm to stay in Plarctos and pool my fortune with yours, we might as well start now because—well, because—oh, Nellie darling, how can you love me so? What an ass I've been!"

Nellie's arms went around his neck. "Stop showing the national anthem of St. Louis!" she commanded. "You dear old honey!"

(THE END)

OLD HENS LOSE JOB OF RAISING CHICKS

Better Birds Raised Economically in Modern Portable Brooder Houses

The use of hens to hatch and raise chicks is as much out of date now as the use of an ex-cart for transportation, according to members of the poultry department at Michigan State college.

The use of a good portable brooder house is recommended. Such a house can be built for approximately 90 dollars and will last indefinitely. It can be moved to a new place each year and thus eliminate much of the danger of the chicks acquiring disease which live over from year to year in infected soil.

Insulation of the brooder house helps to maintain an even temperature for the chicks and cuts down the amount of fuel needed to heat the house. Chicks raised in such a house can all be hatched at the same time and all will be the same age when they are ready to go into the laying house in the fall.

A few years ago the farm flock was not expected to produce winter eggs but the modern poultryman expects his flock to produce eggs during cold weather when the prices are the best. Chicks which have had adequate feed and care are the most apt to make profitable winter layers and the easiest method for producing this type of bird is to raise them in a brooder house.

The College poultry department, and the agricultural engineering departments have supervised the building of many model brooder houses in the state in the past few years and these models have enabled poultrymen to use the same construction plans on their houses.

CONSERVATION DEPT. POSTS ARE FILLED

Northeastern Michigan Given Representative by Brucker

Governor Brucker has announced the appointment of M. J. Fox of Iron Mountain; Philip J. Fletcher of Alpena; and Harry H. Whiteley of Dewaginc as members of the state conservation commission.

Fox succeeds E. C. Voght of Escanaba, Fletcher succeeds Lee J. Smits of Detroit and Whiteley was given a reappointment.

Smits was given an appointment to the Mackinac Island state park commission to take the place of Roger M. Andrews also of Detroit who resigned last fall.

Foreigners say Americans think of nothing but the dollar. This is all wrong, as they don't think much of anything under ten dollars.

It seems queer the Ground Hog only comes out of his hole in February. 2nd while the Road Hog is present 365 days in the year.

More Than Million in Twenty States Fed by Red Cross Volunteers

Hot School Lunches and Balanced Rations Given to Drought Victims—Seed Programs Instituted on Wide Scale

More than 1,000,000 persons in 20 drought-stricken counties of 20 States came under the care of the American Red Cross in what developed into the most extensive relief operations in half a century of ministering to stricken humanity.

Measures to lessen the severity of the blow inflicted by drought were taken as early as last September, when seed was distributed to more than 53,000 families for the planting of rye and other pastures; and to more than 27,000 families for the planting of kitchen gardens. The expenditure for this purpose amounted to $225,800. Green vegetables were made available up to the first of January.

Early in February another Red Cross garden program got under way and 507,000 packages of seed were distributed in 15 States. Quarantine plots were planted to beans, corn, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, sweet corn, kale, lettuce, mustard, okra, onions, peas, spinach, squash, tomatoes and turnips. Once again were farm families given the opportunity to participate in their own salvation.

A comparatively mild winter contributed to the success of the Spring and Fall seed campaigns. Many habitual single-croppers were introduced to the advantages of kitchen gardens, balanced cropping and balanced diet. Numerous land-owners have expressed the opinion that this constitutes the one apparent blessing to come out of the drought catastrophe. The United States Department of Agriculture and the local county agricultural agents and home demonstration agents co-operated in making this part of the relief operations outstandingly successful.

Balanced Meals Served

Red Cross feeding was aimed at adequacy and scientific correctness, as well as simple economy. In large numbers of schools, where children were found to be attending with little or nothing in their lunch boxes, hot meals were served at noon. A typical menu consisted of vegetable soup and bread one day; thick beef soup or stew with vegetables another day; cocoa or milk and cheese, peanut butter, or jam sandwiches, a third day.

In some places where lunches were not served in the schools, but were provided in the regular food orders, each family having school children received a card stating for school lunches including peanut butter, raisins, prunes and tomatoes. Red Cross nutritionists instructed mothers in the preparation of lunches.

County health officers and private physicians commended the adequacy of rations procured on orders issued by Red Cross chapters, which were filled at local stores. Besides the usual staples, such as corn meal, flour, lard, meat, beans and potatoes, such items as canned salmon, cabbage, tomatoes, vegetables and milk were provided, each order being adapted to the special needs of the family for whom it was issued. Where pellagra threatened, eggs, yeast and other preventives were given.

Thousands of Volunteer Workers

Many thousands of volunteers, through their local Red Cross chapters, gave freely of their time, experience and efforts as in other Red Cross disaster operations. They searched out needy cases in their communities, many persons being restrained from asking assistance because of pride. Chapter committees investigated circumstances, distributed food and clothing.

More than 500 carloads of foodstuffs were contributed. These were given free haulage by railroads. Farmers of more fortunate sections embraced the opportunity to help their pastoral cousins of the affected area. Shipments ranged from live poultry to fish, from grain to grapefruit. Carloads of flour, eggs, beans, vegetables, onions, rice, corn and mixed vegetables were included.

As the result of coordinated Red Cross chapter efficiency, not one unauthenticated case of starvation as a result of drought has been uncovered.

Large quantities of new and used clothing were distributed. In direct consequence many school children resumed their studies who had been kept at home for lack of sufficient protection from the elements. In some instances, rural schools that had been closed were enabled to reopen as a result of Red Cross relief work.

States involved were: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia.

Many of these States had been hard hit by a succession of floods, crop failures, low prices and economic depression, and drought constituted a climax to the cycle of distress.

"Wherever I went," wrote one observer, "I made a point of asking what would have happened if the Red Cross had not been able to respond in a wide variety of scattered points, from leading elms, came the answer that undoubtedly there would have been many deaths directly from starvation, with epidemics prevailing upon the undernourished."

Let us encourage all hard-working citizens by telling them that they deserve success; also, bread, butter, meat and a place to sleep.

SCHOOL NEWS

Quotation: "We need less weather vanes and more compasses."—Dr. Ernest Horn.

High School Operetta

"The China Shop," an original operetta in two acts, will be presented the first week in May under the direction of Mrs. McKee.

The author, Arthur A. Penn, is a writer of long experience in professional stage productions. The Penn operettas have become the most successful and most performed pieces ever staged and sung by amateurs. They come nearer the standard of such favorites as "The Mikado" and "Pinafore" than anything we know. Witty dialogue, sprightly action, whimsical characterizations, and musically scores replete with melody and entrancing rhythms, distinguish these works.

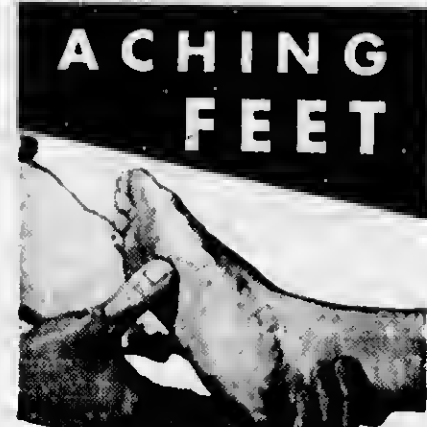

The operetta is a fantastic romance of "Old China" and with beautiful scenery and gorgeous costumes it bids fair to surpass "The Belle of Barcelona," which was presented last year with such success. The costumes will be rented from Breussers company in Detroit and no efforts will be spared to have the setting as realistic and attractive as possible.

The cast has been practicing diligently since the beginning of the second semester and are now ready to begin staging the operetta with the chorus.

Many of the members of last year's cast have leading roles in "The China Shop," and all those who saw and appreciated "The Belle of Barcelona" will not wish to miss this year's production.

Senior Class Honors

Senior class honors for 1931 were given to Eloise Tillotson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Tillotson, who received the valedictory by having a percentage of 97 with a record of all A's, and to Gwendolen Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Miller, the salutatory, who had a percentage of 96.1, which consisted of 24 A's and 5 B's.

Quickly Relieved!

Painful foot trouble is a serious thing. Don't let it make life miserable for you. It's needless.

Let our Foot Comfort Expert make Pedograph prints of your foot. This immediately reveals just what your foot trouble is. You will then be shown how the Dr. Scholl's Appliance or Remedy you need gives you absolute relief.

All of this without cost or obligation to you! If you wish to purchase the Dr. Scholl's Foot Relief we recommend, it is guaranteed to make your feet comfortable—or money refunded.

CAMPBELL'S BOOT SHOP

Both girls are well known in Charlevoix. The two are skilled in music; Miss Tillotson took a lead in the operetta her sophomore year, while Miss Miller is taking a lead in the operetta this year. They have both done exceptional work in declamations and orations. Miss Miller represented C. H. S. in the oratorical contest last year, where she won first place in the sub-district contest. At Gaylord during her freshman year Miss Tillotson won a trip around Michigan for the best essay on "Greater Michigan."

C. H. S. is proud of the 1931 representatives and also of others who deserve honorable mention, namely: Lola Fessenden, Marion McKee, and Bill Novak, who have the three next highest percentages.

Trophy Case

The senior class has presented two trophy cases to the Charlevoix high school. These built-in cases are on either side of the stair-landing and the trophies will be attractively displayed with a background of blue velvet.

Dr. Fleischman Addresses Assembly

Dr. E. E. Fleischman of the University of Michigan, presented six selections before the assembly Monday morning. Dr. Fleischman won an important reading contest and the works he presented to the school were those which he read when he was in the contest. Shakespeare's 29th sonnet, a sonnet of Keats' two Scotch ballads and "The Mending Wall" by Robert Frost, and "John Brown's Body" by Stephen Benet were beautifully rendered.

As a conclusion to his program Dr. Fleischman told about the Shakespeare Memorial Camp at Ironport for those interested in drama. High school students may enter the camp this year, if sponsored by an adult in camp, but in future years only those of exceptional dramatic ability will take part in camp activities. This camp will be a preparation for the National Shakespeare Memorial Competition.

Senior Class Play

It is believed that the senior class play which is to be presented the latter part of May will be of unusual interest to young and old alike. Romance, mystery, comedy, deep pathos; the glamor of old world kingdoms and the common sense and humor of America—all in one drama "Graustark," the much loved story by George Barr McCutcheon, which has been arranged for production by Grace Howard.

Of equal importance with the acting will be the setting and lighting. A lovely garden at sunset, the princess' rooms softly lighted with flickering candles and the stately throne room of Graustark (an imaginary Kingdom in the Balkans) will require much planning and labor on the part of the executive staff.

The cast and committees will be announced at an early date.

Sub-District Oratorical and Declamatory Contest

The sub-district contest in declamations and orations took place last Thursday at Cheboygan. Charlevoix high was proud of its representatives, Janet Livingston, who gave as her declamation, "King Philip to the White Settlers," and Marjorie Manley, who gave an oration on "Paine."

It will be remembered that these students were chosen, in a former contest at Charlevoix, to represent our school. At the sub-district contest four orations and six declama-tions were given. Cheboygan took first place in both, while Gaylord won second in orations and Harbor Springs second in declamations.

The judges were Miss Sprague of Boyne City high school, Supt. Eckey of Alba, and Supt. Schmahals, Onaway.

Kalamazoo Glee Club

The Kalamazoo college glee club entertained the high school with a lively program in the gymnasium last Wednesday afternoon. Selections by the glee club, a reading by one of the members, and two violin selections made up the program which was very entertaining and delightful.

Debaters

The debaters have been selling candy and baked goods to earn sufficient money to take the members of the team to Ann Arbor to attend the state championship debate, which will be held there May 1. Dorothy Stanley, Virginia Nickerson and Marjorie Manley, accompanied by Mrs. Dowd, will make the trip. The university is making special plans to entertain the debaters of the state. There will be a play on Thursday evening at the new University Theatre. The registrar of the university and President of Yale University will lecture Friday morning. Friday afternoon the All State High School orchestra will play and also free tickets will be given for Colgate vs. Michigan baseball game. Music Memory Contest

The music memory contest which was held among the grade children was very successful. So many perfect papers were handed in that it will be necessary to have another contest to judge the best.

First Graders Study Holland

The first grade have been making an extensive study of Holland, and as a result of this a very clever Dutch sand table is on display. The house, with its roof thatched with excelsior, is very realistic. In front of the house is a canal and the Dutch windmill, of course, could not be omitted. After this work the children have quite a definite picture of Holland and its customs.

Kite Flying

The first grade made kites last week and Monday afternoon they went to fly them. Four or five children had the good luck to actually see their kite flying.

Book Reports

Miss Milner is having the eighth grade prepare book reports as a preparation for their work in high school. We are hoping these "freshies" will profit by this experience and be sure to have their book reports in before the last week of school.

Seventh Graders Visit County Bank

The 7th grade visited the Charlevoix County bank last week as a practical illustration of the work the class is studying in arithmetic. The students returned to school with a much clearer conception of how banks are operated.

Last Tuesday the girl scouts made an eventful trip. They had their lunch and supper at Oyster Bay and remained all night in the Burns cabins. During the day they visited the nearby school.

Loretta Young Has "Grown Up To Her Eyes"

"A pair of big, wistful eyes and a fragile body that seemed inadequate to house them," is the way Colleen Moore once described Loretta Young.

Now the slim little beginner of yesterday has grown up and rounded out into the beautiful star of today. Loretta has grown until she matches her eyes!

Miss Young was Gretchen Young when she played in silent pictures for a time as a child of six. Years later a call for her sister, Polly Ann Young, brought her one day to the set as a substitute, and she "clicked" immediately at the age of seventeen. "Truth About Youth" is coming to the Palace theatre Wednesday and Thursday, April 22-23.

Novel Underworld Souvenir Program in "Little Caesar"

A bit of gangster curiosity has found its way to "Little Caesar," the W. R. Burnett novel which Merwyn LeRoy directed for First National and which opens Saturday at the Palace theatre.

This object shown in the picture, is a souvenir program modeled after one actually used in an elaborate banquet given by Chicago gangsters. The cover contains the pictures of two doves and the words Friendship and Loyalty—grim symbols of virtue among outlaws.

The banquet in "Little Caesar" is one of the highlights of the gangster epic kept intact as authored by Burnett in his novel. The players in this scene were Sidney Blackmer, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Stanley Fields, Ralph Ince, Willie Collier, Jr., Maurice Black, George Stone and others.

ELOISE TILLOTSON VALEDICTORIAN OF SENIOR CLASS

Salutatorian Honors to Gwendolyn Miller—Lola Fessenden, Marian McKee, "Bill" Novak Named

Two girls, inseparable friends throughout their high school careers, have been awarded highest scholastic honors at Charlevoix high school.

Miss Eloise Tillotson, age 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Tillotson, is valedictorian, with an average of 97. She has been an all-A student since entering the seventh grade and completed her senior year with 34 points, two above the standard.

Salutatorian honors have been awarded Miss Gwendolyn Miller, whose average was 96.1. Miss Miller, who is 16 years of age and one of the youngest graduates to leave Charlevoix high school, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Miller.

Besides being a brilliant scholar, Miss Tillotson has found time for many other attainments. As a freshman, she won an essay contest on "Greater Michigan," entitling her to a tour of the state. As a sophomore, she was class president and placed in the district declamation contest, besides taking a lead in the school operetta. She was again class president her junior year, placed in the district oratorical contest, headed the receiving line at the annual J-Hop, and won high praise for a book review on Andrew Jackson which was published in National Scholastic magazine. During her senior year, Miss Tillotson acted as student manager of the high school athletic association. She has also been prominent in school journalism and as a member of the glee club.

Outside of school, Miss Tillotson has been a Sunday school teacher at the Congregational church for three years, is president of the Christian Endeavor society and is the only youthful member of the church pulp committee. She is an accomplished musician.

Miss Miller has also been unusually active in school affairs. She has held various class offices during her school years. She was a member of the girls' basketball team, the glee club and journalistic group. She was a member of the chorus in the school operetta two years and took part in the cast her junior and senior years. Miss Miller won the district oratorical contest in 1930. She is an accomplished pianist, having won acclimation as a pianist and organist. Her ability in the art of dancing has been recognized and during the summer months she served as an assisting instructor in dancing classes conducted by Miss Cilla Travis of Grand Rapids.

Other students given honorable mention are Miss Lola Fessenden, Miss Marian McKee and William Novak, named in the order of their standings.

PIONEER WOMAN TAKEN BY DEATH

CITY MOURNS PASSING OF MRS. I. Z. MERRIAM

Succumbed Friday Afternoon at Advanced Age of 84 Years—Funeral Held Monday Afternoon

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon from the Methodist church for Mrs. Sarah Inwood Merriam, Charlevoix pioneer resident, who died suddenly at 5:30 Friday afternoon at the Antrim street residence of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Smith, with whom she was making her home. Rev. John E. Lockyer officiated at the services and interment followed at Brookside cemetery.

Sarah Inwood was born September 3, 1847, at South Bend, Ind., and was 84 years of age at her death. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Inwood. Her father, a sea captain, married Lady Jane Eames, daughter of Lord Eames of England. The couple eloped and came to America shortly afterwards.

Mrs. Merriam came to Charlevoix with her father in 1870. They settled on a farm south of this city and Mrs. Inwood will be remembered by older Charlevoix residents as a circuit preacher. Mr. Inwood purchased what is known as the Merriam property, corner Michigan and Dixon, in 1878 and moved to this city.

Deceased was married November 10, 1890, to I. Z. Merriam, who preceded her in death in 1909.

Surviving relatives are a step-son, Theodore Merriam, LeGrange, Ill.; a step-grandson, R. D. Merriam, Plymouth, Mich.; a sister, Mrs. Ellen Robinson, Pellston; two nieces, Mrs. Sarah Jane Hull, Charlevoix, and Mrs. Amelia Goffer, Bellingham, Washington.

Mrs. Merriam had a large following of staunch friends in this city, and her passing will be mourned by all who knew her.

CHARLEVOIX BAND GOES TO CONTEST

Will Compete in District Meet at Traverse City, May 1

Charlevoix school band, under the direction of John TerWee, will go to the district band contest at Traverse City on May 1. Classes A and B will compete on Saturday, May 2.

The Charlevoix band now has a membership of forty-one, and is practicing hard to carry off district honors. Judging from the quality of their music during the winter and spring months, we predict success for the organization.

The week following the contest is National Music Week, and the band will observe this occasion by giving a concert in the high school auditorium, preceded by a parade through the city. The exact date will be announced later.

ROOF FIRE DAMAGED HAMMOND HOME MONDAY

Chimney sparks caused a roof fire resulting in small damage to the O. D. Hammond residence on Dixon avenue Monday afternoon. The blaze, which was the most recent of an unusually large number of roof fires in the past several weeks, was speedily extinguished by the local fire department. Extremely dry weather is being held responsible for the large number of fires.

"The China Shop," high school opera by Arthur Penn, will be presented by the Charlevoix High School mixed chorus in the auditorium, Friday, May 8, at 8 p. m.—Adv. 1611.

CAMP MANITOU DESTROYED BY FIRE

ALL BUILDINGS LEVELED WHEN FLAMES RAN UNCHECKED AT EARLY HOUR FRIDAY MORNING

STATE FIRE MARSHAL IS INVESTIGATING

G. D'Amico, Owner, Held for Questioning Tuesday and Later Released—Camp Will Be Rebuilt at Once and All Functions Will Proceed as Originally Planned

Fire, thought to have been of incendiary origin, completely wiped out all buildings at Camp Manitou, located six miles south of this city on Lake Charlevoix at around 3 o'clock last Friday morning.

Six cottages, the large recreation and dining hall building, barn and other out-buildings were leveled despite combined efforts of Charlevoix and East Jordan fire departments, who found the flames beyond control when they arrived on the scene.

Caretaker Clyde Ogden and wife, who were occupying one of the cottages, first noticed fire in the recreation hall. Further investigation revealed several cottages in flames, then the one in which they lived, as well as the barn. They were able to remove only a few of their personal belongings.

Following the fire, only two buildings remained standing, one a cottage owned by Prof. J. Raleigh Nelson, Ann Arbor, and the other the small structure housing shower baths and toilets. The Nelson cottage was but a short distance from others burned, and how it could have escaped is still a mystery, as is also origin of the fire.

Two strange youths, walking towards Charlevoix from Ironton, at the time the fire was under way, were picked up by Fire Chief Henry Marshall and Ross Alexander as suspects. They were brought to the county jail, questioned by Sheriff Dave Vaughan and placed under guard in the fire hall for further questioning. While J. C. Marshall, the guard, was absent a moment, they left a note stating they did not set the fire and liked.

Saturday morning the youths were taken at Mackinaw City by Sheriff Vaughan as they were preparing to take a boat for the upper peninsula. Brought back to Charlevoix, the youths gave their names and ages as Louis Flood, 16, and Robert McPherson, 17, both of Mears, Mich.

Throughout a severe grilling by State Fire Marshall M. A. McKenna, Lansing, who arrived Saturday to conduct an investigation, both lads steadfastly maintained their innocence of setting the fire. They did admit to local officers, however, of breaking and entering several cottages at Juniper Beach, near Ironton in Oceana county, two cottages near Kewadin and the John Porter cottage near East Jordan. They also confessed to breaking the window of a jewelry shop at East Jordan Friday night, and admitted stealing ten watches. Flood claimed to have thrown nine of the watches into Lake Charlevoix from the railroad bridge, but McPherson said they were hid in the water tank of a toilet at a Mackinaw City hotel, where they were later found. Flood and McPherson are being held in jail here awaiting hearing.

Wesley Stickner and Lbur Hetzer, arrested the night of the fire for taking a concealed weapon, are also to be questioned.

Inasmuch as all buildings at the camp were found in flames at one time at so late an hour, it is almost positively felt that the fire was set. Every clue is being followed in an effort to apprehend the incendiaries.

G. D'Amico of Detroit, owner of the camp, together with Lewis Stevens of Ann Arbor, who is to act as art director at the camp this summer, arrived in Charlevoix Tuesday. D'Amico was held a greater part of the day for questioning by State Fire Marshall McKenna, but was released late Tuesday evening. McKenna pointed out that $23,800 insurance had been placed on the buildings in February, in addition to $12,000 carried locally. Mr. D'Amico stated he had taken out the additional insurance on the advice of his bankers, and those aware of the camp property's value, are of the opinion that it was not over-insured.

In an interview Wednesday morning, Mr. D'Amico stated the camp would be rebuilt at once. Mr. Stevens, an architect, is already on the grounds, and actual work will be started within a week, it was thought.

All the functions of the camp, which this year will be known as Lake Charlevoix Dramatic Camp, a forerunner to the establishment of a National Shakespeare Amateur Memorial competition similar to the National Band and Orchestra Competition at later dates, will proceed as originally planned. Rebuilding will be on a basis to allow expansion at any future time and also to meet the needs of the camp program as now outlined.

Charlevoix residents will be pleased to know that the camp is to be rebuilt. The proposed project has been given wonderful support and is looked upon with optimism by its sponsors and local people. Its loss would have been a severe blow.

COUNTY ROAD OPERATIONS START

THREE CONSTRUCTION JOBS ARE NOW IN PROGRESS

Shorter Hours, Giving Employment to More Laborers, Is Plan Being Followed by Commission

With the advent of seasonable weather, road construction in scattered points throughout the county has been started under the supervision of R. T. Davis, superintendent of the Charlevoix county road commission.

Three projects are now under way. Grading has been started on the Barnard road south from Barnard church, on the Metz road in South Arm township, and on the Pleasant Valley road between East Jordan and Central Lake. Operations at the present time have been confined to grading, and whether or not these roads will be graveled this summer depends largely upon the amount of funds made available by tax returns.

In addition to construction, maintenance operations on county roads and state trunk lines is being carried on. Removal of snow fence has occupied considerable time, and other crews are patching and making necessary repairs.

In all departments of county road work, the commission is conducting the work on a reduced daily hour plan. Maintenance crews are working eight hours and construction crews nine hours, thus giving employment to a larger number of men in order to relieve as far as possible the county's unemployment situation.

Over in the Springvale district northeast of Walloon Lake, beaver have dammed up streams in that vicinity, flooding highways. It has been necessary to tear out the dams repeatedly in order to make the road passable. The road commission is not the only department confronted with depredations of these troublesome pests, for the conservation department also has troubles of its own from beaver work.

CIRCUIT COURT IS STILL IN SESSION

JURY CASES DEMAND ATTENTION THIS WEEK

Ellsworth Bellant, Petoskey, Given 2 Years at Ionia—Monroe VanCamp Gets 18 Months

The postponed March term of circuit court re-convened last Wednesday with Judge Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City, presiding, and is still in session as we go to press today.

A grist of probation, divorce and non-jury cases have been heard in addition to several jury cases which have taken up considerable time.

In the trespass case of the Charlevoix Insurance Agency vs. Charlevoix State Savings Bank and Archie L. Livingston, the jury rendered a verdict of no cause for action on instruction of Judge Gilbert. Argument in the case required nearly two days.

John O'Neil, local resident, who had pleaded guilty to violation of the prohibition law, was placed on probation until the August term of court and must abide by certain restrictions. William Lake, Melrose township farmer, was placed on probation until the May term of court on a similar charge.

Monroe VanCamp of Boyne City, who in November, 1927, pleaded guilty to statutory rape and was placed on probation, was brought into court last week for breaking parole. Judge Gilbert sentenced him to serve 18 months in the Ionia state reformatory.

Ellsworth Bellant of Petoskey, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of felonious assault before Judge Frank L. Doty of Pontiac, and waived jury trial, was found guilty by Judge Gilbert Saturday. He was sentenced to serve from 2 to 3 years at Ionia and pay court costs of $200. The minimum sentence was recommended. Bellant shot and wounded Ed. Latham during a fracas aboard the floating dance pavilion Keuka, at Boyne City, earlier in the winter.

In the attachment case of Sam Straw vs. Charles Cole, et al, judgment in the sum of $1,174.30, and costs of $37.18 was given in favor of plaintiff.

Charles Martin and Carl Left, Beaver Islanders, who were tried before a jury on three charges of malicious destruction of property, were found not guilty Tuesday afternoon. The jury was out about 15 minutes. The charges resulted when Henry Sullivan, Cross Village, claimed they cut his pond nets.

The case of James Tryon and Geo. C. Martin, violation of the prohibition laws, was nolle prossu Tuesday afternoon on motion of Vincent Lofreda, Traverse City, and F. Wetmore, Hart, attorneys for defendants, on the ground that the search warrant was void. Tryon and Martin were immediately re-arrested on a warrant charging manufacture, sale and possession. The case came to trial Wednesday morning and is still in progress as we go to press.

MOVE TO HOLD LEVEL OF PROPERTY VALUES

Equalization Committee Resolve to Request There Be No Cut

City officials from Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls, meeting at the court house here Monday night with members of the committee on equalization of the Charlevoix county board of supervisors, passed a resolution asking that assessments of various townships and cities be held equal to 1930 for the current year.

Hurry A. Craig of Charlevoix, chairman of the board of supervisors, presided at the meeting, which was attended by 25 or more representatives.

The resolution reads as follows: "Resolved, that it is the sense of the committee on equalization of the board of supervisors of Charlevoix county, that in our opinion no general cut in the assessments of the several townships and cities of said county for the year 1931, should be made; and that as nearly as possible, the assessment rolls for the several townships and cities show a total assessment as for the year 1930." Signed by William F. Bashaw, C. C. Schaub, Frank Partridge, John W. Green, committee.

This action was taken to stem, if possible, the gradual decrease in property valuation which has been apparent during the past ten years.

Miss Richardson was absent for the first time, on account of illness. Lyle Smith will teach the class next Friday evening.

It is marvelous the way the tractor has revolutionized the farming industry. A person passing through the farming communities last week could not help but wonder at the amount of work that was done by means of this new improvement in farm machinery. Jerry Ardema plowed an 18-acre piece of land last week for O. R. Morse, north of town; Herbert Finch for himself and Frank Blakeley, several acres northwest of here; Ed. Hebben and Henry Vaner-venter east of town probably have turned over a hundred acres this spring, and only three weeks ago Sunday a car could not get over the reads out that way on account of snow drifts. Allen Ardema is cultivating a large cherry orchard on his farm with tractor power and Jerry Ardema is working Prof. E. C. Rowe's large cherry orchard with the same kind of power. If the frosts of the next few weeks do not injure the fruit the outlook for a good cherry crop is flattering. There are a lot of insects for the fruit grower to fight this year also. But most important of all—the big business fellows let their money out of the banks, put it into circulation so the consuming public can get the cherries out of cold storage, get the money into circulation and make a market for this year's cherries? There is more money in the United States today than ever before and less of it being used by the common people. Everyone is saying, "I wonder what will be the outcome." This much everyone should strive to do, and that is, raise sufficient staples for their own consumption.

POULTRY

EARLY BIRD GETS RICH EGG RATION

February Chicks Should Make Rapid Growth.

Lechorn chicks hatched in February should be fed rations that make for continued rapid growth, is the advice offered by the poultry department of the New Jersey Agricultural college.

Pullets from early hatched chicks cannot be expected to produce a profitable number of eggs during the summer and fall. If their growth is stunted in any manner. Any good baby chick ration will prove satisfactory until the birds are eight or ten weeks old. After that date, the specialists advise that they be placed upon a ration similar to a good laying ration, but containing a larger amount of minerals. To have the bird come into production as soon as possible and at the same time have her continue her body growth is the poultryman's aim.

No matter how they are fed, February hatched birds can always be expected to go through a moult in the late fall. They can use this period for any increase in weight or growth that has not been accomplished previously.

One must remember that an early hatched bird is an entirely different individual from a late hatched bird. The later hatched should have a much slower development in order to prevent an early winter moult, but with the early hatched stock the aim is to get all of the eggs possible before the early winter moult.

Feed Turkey Breeders for Vigorous Poults

Too much corn in the turkey's winter ration may make the birds too fat for the production of eggs of high hatchability. Some breeders feed 3 parts of oats to 1 of corn and find that the stock come through the winter in condition to produce vigorous poults. Equal parts of corn, wheat and oats make a good grain ration for turkey breeding stock. The addition of cull vegetables, and alfalfa or clover is necessary until the turkey can forage in the spring.

Before the turkey hens begin to lay, it often pays to give them a hopper of the same balanced laying mash which is used for the chickens. Where they have had nothing but grain they may be reluctant to eat the mash but if it is kept before them, some of the mash will probably be eaten and it will help to improve egg production and keep up the vigor of the turkey hens while they are laying. Keep a hopper of oyster shells before the turkey hens to help in producing firm shells on the eggs and reduce breakage in the nests.

Feeding the turkey breeding stock on soil away from the chickens is a help in preventing blackhead and other turkey diseases. Diseases are often spread through the medium of the droppings which have contaminated the feed. Some losses may be prevented by feeding both the grain and the mash in loppers so that none of the feed will touch soil which might be contaminated with disease.

It pays to rid hens of worms.

One water fountain is needed to each 25 chicks.

A hot, stuffy brooder house is as undesirable for chicks as it is for the attendant.

Cold liver oil isn't just a fad. It helps to remedy the lack of sunshine and green feed at this time of year.

If there were losses from bacillary white diarrhea last year it is not safe to use infertile eggs for the young poultry this spring unless the eggs are so well cooked or hatched that all bacilli are destroyed.

Warm water is fine for hens in cold weather. A safely-heated water fountain will return several times its cost in eggs.

If the litter gets damp in a short time it means poor ventilation—and then there's danger of roup. A straw loft overhead will help.

It pays to study your flock and make the birds like you. Doulsters may laugh, but hens will lay better for a caretaker that they know well and are glad to see.

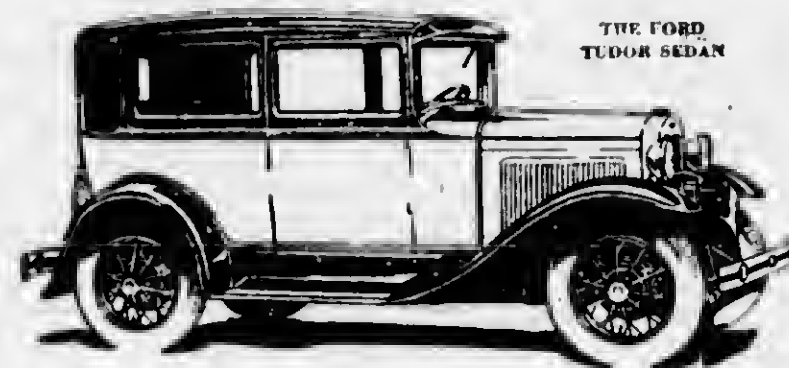

It is not considered good practice to take brooding cockerels from the same brood from which you get your pullets.

It is said that if alfalfa hay is used for hens' nests and scattered around the chicken coops the chicken mites will beat a hasty retreat.

Protein derived from animal sources, such as meat products and milk, is of greater value to the hen than protein from vegetable foods, such as cottonseed and linseed.

FORD RELIABILITY

Long, hard use shows the value of good materials and simplicity of design

EVERYWHERE you go you hear reports of the good performance and reliability of the Ford.

One owner writes—"The Ford Tudor Sedan I am driving has covered 59,300 miles through all kinds of weather. It is still giving perfect satisfaction."

Another owner describes a trip of 3217 miles in 95 hours over bad roads and through heavy rain and sleet in the mountains. "Throughout the entire trip," he writes, "the Ford performed excellently and no mechanical trouble of any kind was experienced. The shatter-proof glass undoubtedly saved us from serious injury when a prairie chicken struck the windshield while we were traveling at 65 miles an hour."

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the Ford. Then, from your own personal experience, you will know that it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

COW NEEDS CARE IN WINTER TIME

Much of Feed Given Animal Goes for Warmth.

Extra feed cannot be substituted for shelter for the comfortable cow is the profitable cow. When the animals are exposed to wintry winds and rains, much of the feed goes to keep the bodies warm instead of to produce milk.

"Therefore, some effort should be made to keep the dairy cows comfortable during periods of disagreeable weather," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at the North Carolina State college. "Their stalls should be well lighted and properly ventilated but free from air currents. Ventilation is important but should be so arranged as to prevent the air currents from striking the cow's body. This is accomplished by making the sides of the barn or cow shed tight and admitting fresh air through properly arranged windows."

Mr. Arey states that the practice of requiring the cow to wade through mud and ice some distance to get drinking water is too common and too expensive in the dairy industry. Such needless exposure chills the animal and prevents her from drinking the amount of water that she normally would consume.

Normal milk, says Mr. Arey, contains 87 per cent water and a cow producing around 30 pounds of milk daily will need from 85 to 90 pounds of water each day. She will not drink this much on a cold day unless the supply is convenient and not too cold.

The dairy cow of high producing breeds is a creature of habit. Unusual treatment makes her nervous. If she is accustomed to a regular routine of feeding and care, a change from this system will make her nervous and distrustful. She should never be run with horses or dogs not treated roughly while being put in a barn. No other farm animal, says Mr. Arey, will give greater returns for good care than the cow and the herdman who keeps his animals comfortable in winter will be amply repaid.

WARM DRINKING WATER FOR COW

Specialist Favors Tank Heater and Windbreak.

Milk cows should drink about four gallons of water for each gallon of milk produced, but they will not drink sufficient water if it is cold, or if they are compelled to go into the cold wind to get the water, advises John O. Toliver, deputy state dairy commissioner, at the Colorado Agricultural college.

A tank heater to warm drinking water, and a windbreak to protect the tank and vicinity so the cow will not be exposed to the cold winds of winter while drinking, are recommended.

Toliver states that a cow naturally drinks as little cold water as possible, and will not produce nearly as much milk as she would if the water were warm, about 15 to 20 degrees above freezing point. Cows will stand with their backs lumped and shiver after drinking ice water. Their hair is rough and stands on end, due to the contraction of the skin.

To produce milk economically the cow's ration should consist largely of the more bulky, cheaper foods, the deputy commissioner states. These foods require considerable moisture in the process of digestion, and therefore large quantities of water are essential.

A tank heater can be purchased for $15 or $20, and will soon be paid for by increased milk production. Heaters that will burn either wood, coal or coke may be obtained.

Difference in Quality of Mixed Dairy Feeds

By A. H. MITCHELL, Dairy Specialist, Connecticut Experiment Station.

Whether the dairyman shall mix his own feeds or buy ready mixed rations is still an important question. Before it is definitely decided the dairyman should ask himself these questions:

1. Are the feeds he can buy as good as are contained in the ready-mixed rations?

2. Is it possible to secure a continuous supply of a large variety of ingredients?

3. Can the ingredients be mixed as thoroughly as they are in the commercial mixtures?

Undoubtedly he may be able to add a ton or less money than he will have to pay for a similar commercial mixture, but when all things are considered there may not be the advantage that formerly existed. The last few years have witnessed a wonderful change in the quality of mixed feeds offered for sale. This improvement of quality has removed one of the reasons for home mixing. It also means that better feeds are being used in our commercial rations.

Low-quality feeds are still on the market and many of these find their way, as separate ingredients, to retail dealers. When a dairyman buys feeds for home mixing, he should be sure of quality or his supposed savings on the low price may prove a loss on the part.

Proper Winter Feed for a Fall Calving Heifer

What feed should be given dairy heifers in order to winter them satisfactorily for fall calving?

a. When legume hay and corn silage are available—lay and silage at will and two pounds daily of corn, tame, or kafir grain.

b. When legume hay but no silage is available—legume hay at will and two pounds of grain per day.

c. When corn silage but no legume hay is available—silage at will, some dry roughage as hay or fodder, and two or three pounds of a grain mixture consisting of one part of some high protein feed as cottonseed meal, flaked meal or gluten feed, and one part of corn, oats, or bran.

d. When neither corn silage or legume hay are available—buy legume hay. Feed one-half legume hay, one-half nonlegume roughage, and two pounds daily of a mixture of two parts corn and one part high-protein feed.

Unclean Utensils Traced to Filthy Dish Cloths

The dish cloth may be justly charged with being responsible for a lot of the unclean utensils now being used to handle milk and cream. Dish cloths fail to reach the cracks and crevices where dirt and bacteria are prone to lodge; they fail to cut grease and dirt, and it is almost impossible to keep them in a sweet, sanitary condition. If you are a dish-cloth user, throw it away and wash your dairy utensils the modern way, with a good stiff brush.

DENVER, Colo.—At the American Institute of Banking convention held here last month the growth in the effort among bank employees to provide themselves with banking education was shown by the fact, as reported by one speaker, that 12 years ago the institute had 50 study chapters, today 208, and that its enrollment in the study courses had grown from 11,000 to 45,000, or an increase of over 300 per cent. The graduates number nearly 14,000. The institute is the educational section of the American Bankers' Association through which bank workers are given instruction in theoretical and practical subjects relating to their business.

Community Building

Regular Cleaning Up for American Cities

American cities are getting their faces scrubbed, and a new industry is rapidly assuming very interesting proportions, says Merle Thorpe in Nation's Business Magazine. Send your office building to the laundry, and get it back by Saturday night, nicely washed and ironed. Washington, a number of northern municipalities, and, in the South, Atlanta, and other cities, are going in for cleanliness, and as the dingy buildings shake off their soot and dust, and emerge with shining facades, all dolled up and well-lathered behind the ears, one has to rub his eyes to recognize his own home town.

In Washington, for example, a new white city, spick and span, is coming into view by the magic of soap and water, and within the past year, the artistic beauty of the nation's capital has been greatly enhanced. It costs around $2,500 to steam clean and press an office building of average size, while the job of spick and spanning up the treasury or the Union station might run up as high as $12,000. It is worth it. Beauty and cleanliness are real assets to any community.

Retain Roadside in Its Natural Beauty

The problems of attractive communities in advertising their recreational and residence advantages should be linked up in the mind of the community authorities with the advisability of protecting the town's beauty by keeping the roadways approaching it free from everything but their natural beauty, according to a report which has just been made by the Division of Housing and Town Planning for the commonwealth of Massachusetts. The building of a new main highway is not merely an engineering problem. On the contrary, it is primarily a social and economic problem, a problem of killing or making the region, the report holds.

"A region rendered uninhabited except by filling stations, hot-dog stands and billboards is blighted, not helped," the report says. "Let a town, particularly what we call a good summer town, protect every residence by a good zoning plan, and keep its road-sides free from everything but their natural beauty, and the whole country will know that town. No town differently treated can compete with it."—Detroit News.

Beauty in Common Brick

No other exterior material offers such a rich variety of colors as the common brick. And color is imperative in present-day homes. Nor is any other so adaptable in the working out of softened textural effects. The common brick is in a class by itself in this respect. Other brick stress their uniformity of color and texture. Common brick is never alike; always there is a pronounced variation not only in color tones but in texture and form. They burn unevenly, their lines are irregular, their fire-bashings never the same. And in these ever-present variations lie their greatest charm.—Building Economy.

Prohibits Overcrowding

An attempt to limit the density of population in residence areas is made in a unique building code restriction adopted by the city of Madison, N. J., a suburban community which is attempting to protect itself against the piling up of congestion in its residence sections.

An amendment to the building code prohibits the erection in any part of that community of buildings to house more than one family for each 2,500 square feet of lot area. This is equivalent to limiting the maximum density of population to 17 families to the acre.

Qualities Needed in Roof

A roof that is tricky is to be despised. It is to be made over, it can't go on with its undependable character. The worst thing about a defective roof is that its meanness will show when least expected and least desired.

There are artistic roofs that endure. Beauty and utility will be found the winning team in any building proposition. Nothing sets off a domicile to such good advantage as a top that is picturesque. But it must be waterproof and fire-resisting as well.

Eliminate Excess Signs

The North Shore (Illinois) Real Estate board is working to eliminate excess "For Sale" signs on North shore properties. The board recommends that in order to prevent the injury to the sale value of properties occasioned by the presence of too many signs on a single lot, as is sometimes seen in a site facing a highway, the present signs be removed and a single sign put in its place reading: "See Your Realtor."—Chicago Daily News.

EXTRA CARE NEEDED TO DEFEAT DROUGHT

Thorough Tillage Operations Will Conserve Available Soil Moisture

Unusual Michigan weather conditions which began in March, 1930, have caused a moisture deficiency in the southern part of the state equal to a layer of water 13.57 inches deep on the entire area, and the northern part of the state is only slightly less deficient in water which is needed to produce crops and to replenish surface and underground streams, according to records kept by the U. S. weather bureau at East Lansing.

The shortage of rainfall complicates the problem of preparing seed beds for this year's crops as the dry subsoil makes plowing difficult at a time when soils specialists at Michigan State college say it is essential to obtain an excellent seed bed which will conserve every drop of rain. Tillage operations after plowing should be thorough enough to kill all weeds and to leave the soil in a spongy condition. No crust should be allowed to remain on cultivated fields.

It is not possible, from past records or present knowledge, for weather observers to predict when the present drought conditions will end. Michigan farmers are advised by the staff of the agricultural division of Michigan State college to maintain their usual crops program while using every care to preserve all pastures and meadows that show fair promise of furnishing forage for livestock.

SEEK NEW FOOD FOR FINGERLINGS RAISED

Refrigeration and Transportation of Meat Too Expensive

Some dry food to replace or supplement fresh meat as food for the millions of fingerling trout annually raised by the state, and some effective method of artificial feeding for bass, are being sought by the fish division of the department of conservation at several of its hatcheries and rearing stations.

Refrigeration and transportation are big problems at some of the more isolated feeding stations and the use of a dry food that would be suitable for trout would be desirable. Experiments are now being conducted with oat meal, chum meal, shrimp meal, fish meal, dried salmon eggs, dried meats such as horse flesh, horse livers and various other meat products. At least one season will be required to determine anything definite as to the effectiveness of these materials. However, early reports indicate that some progress is being made.

The usual food for trout in the past has been beef and sheep liver, beet hearts and other fresh meats. It costs between $25,000 and $30,000 a year to feed the present production of fingerlings before they are ready for planting in the lakes and streams. Most of this money has been spent for sheep liver, almost an exclusive food for fingerling trout while they are being reared in the feeding stations scattered about the state.

MAY ELIMINATE STATE TOURNEY

TOO MUCH BASKETBALL IS SITED AS REASON

Basketball Season May End With Regional Meets—Overtime Play Favored to Return

(By Lew Holiday)

From what we've heard among northern Michigan athletic men, together with the sentiment expressed by fans and coaches at the March tournament in East Lansing, it is not far-fetched to say that:

In 1932 there will be no state basketball finals—that the official tossing will end with the regional meets;

Overtime periods (at least one) in tournament play will be reinstated; There will again be elimination in the northern Michigan district tournaments, in class B, as well as C and D. There are no class A schools in the area.

There is a growing storm of criticism against "too many tournaments" for the athletes' good. It is true that a team of youngsters, if it is successful, must engage in from eight to ten games within the space of three weeks to gain a state title—contests which more often than not are gruelling and exhausting. To somewhat relieve that situation the state tournament committee this year ruled to bar overtimes, yet that seems indeed small cure, when the number of games required is taken into consideration.

Then, too, barring overtimes appears to create a very unsatisfactory situation in some games. Several instances of the sort cropped out in the 1931 district, regional and state eliminations, when results were decided on a point system. It is just possible that a "sudden death" overtime period might be authorized next spring, with victory to the team first scoring two points.

From some quarters there was complaint the past tournament season regarding a new class B alignment in the district meets of northern Michigan, providing for four eliminations, with four class B survivors proceeding to the Petoskey regional. The new plan, however, operated satisfactorily—admitted even by some of the former objectors—and will likely be continued as the best means yet devised for taking care of a region in which there are so few class B schools.

GOV. BRUCKER SIGNS REDISTRICTING BILL

First Election Under New System Will Be Held in 1932

Governor Brucker has signed the Harding congressional reapportionment bill which gives Michigan's four new congressmen to Wayne and Oakland counties.

He attached his formal approval to the measure last Thursday in the presence of the apportionment committee of the two houses.

The bill gives Wayne county six congressmen out of the state's new delegation of seventeen members. In the new set-up Oakland county is divorced from the Sixth district and coupled with a portion of Wayne. In the second district a portion of Wayne county is removed. Aside from these changes the out-state districts are undisturbed.

Unless unforeseen litigation develops the first elections under the Harding plan will occur in November, 1932.

The governor also signed two bills prepared by Senator William F. Turner, of Morley, which permit banks to secure county, township, school district, city and village deposits with collateral instead of the old requirement of bonds.

NEED MORE PRUNING IN STATE ORCHARDS

Removal of Wood Will Decrease Moisture Requirements for Trees

Additional pruning of fruit trees and shrubs to decrease their water requirements, and the use of mulches to conserve all available moisture are two practices recommended by the department of horticulture at Michigan State college for use in Michigan orchards and ornamental plantings this year.

Woody plants which have received light or moderate prunings should be given an extra pruning immediately. The amount of wood removed should total that taken in heavy pruning.

Materials such as old straw stacks can be used to form mulches around trees or shrubs. This mulch will decrease evaporation of moisture from the soil and will help retain any rainfall. The decay of the material also adds plant food to the soil. In orchards where sad mulching is practiced, the mulch should be cut comparatively early and straw or other material should be used as a supplemental mulch.

The same practices recommended for fruit trees will help ornamental shrubs in dry seasons.

CATTLE-HARM GRASS IF PASTURED EARLY

Cheap Source Partly Ruined Unless Plants Given Time for Growth

Turning stock on pasture before the grass has a well-established top and root growth will result in damage to the pasture and will reduce the season's total of feed from the pasture lot which is the cheapest source of nutrients for milk and meat production.

Cows on good pasture can produce milk at a cost of ten cents per day, but the grass must be thick and have a good growth to enable the cow to gather enough grass. In a few hours to supply feed to maintain her body weight and to manufacture a profitable amount of milk. If the cow has to range over a large area to get the required amount of grass, part of the nutrients obtained are wasted in providing energy for the cow.

A 1,000 pound cow which is producing 25 pounds of milk daily will need 100 pounds of grass each day. An area of pasture 40 by 40 feet will produce this amount if the grass is eight inches tall.

FUNERAL FOR MRS. MCCANN SATURDAY

A large number of Charlevoix residents attended brief funeral services at Brookside cemetery Saturday afternoon, paying their last respects to Mrs. Lawrence McCann, former local resident, who died recently at Pomona, California.

TRAVERSE CITY SEW-AGE SUIT THIS WEEK

Case Opens Today With Judge Fred S. Lamb Presiding

Judge Fred S. Lamb of Cadillac will sit for Judge Parm C. Gilbert in circuit court at Traverse City this week when the state's suit to force Traverse to build a sewage disposal plant is heard.

The hearing begins Wednesday, April 22, with the prospect that it will occupy two full days. The state will offer testimony and exhibits intended to show that Traverse City is committing a dangerous nuisance in emptying its sewage into Boardman river and the bay, while City Attorney John Patchin will have witnesses on the stand to deny that the city sewage menaces health, property or fish life or is even to any extent a nuisance. One of his witnesses will be former mayor, George Lardie.

Judge Gilbert in a recent decision overruled the city's objections to the legality of the suit and ordered the case to trial on the 22nd.

A Young Man's Motive-- for saving, we feel, should not be fear of the future—of dependency or poverty in old age—but hope for the future. His aim should be to prepare himself for opportunity, by setting aside a portion of his income, regularly, as a fund of "working capital" that will help him realize the glowing future he visions.

But whether or not you are a young man, isn't that motive enough for coming in and opening your Savings Account now?

MISS EDITH ADAMS IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Succumbed Tuesday at Ann Arbor—Funeral Thursday Afternoon

Residents of Charlevoix and vicinity were shocked to learn of the death at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning of Miss Edith Adams, who succumbed at University Hospital, Ann Arbor, where she had been taken for medical treatment.

Miss Adams had been in ill health many years. On Sunday, April 12, she was taken to Ann Arbor. For several days it appeared as though she was responding favorably to treatment, but last Sunday took a turn for the worse, and death followed Tuesday morning.

Deceased was born January 11, 1877, in Wayne county, the daughter of James H. and Sarah Adams. She came with her parents to Marion township in 1881. She received her education and lived her entire life there.

Miss Adams was gifted in art work, and her creations were in constant demand. She will be sadly missed by a host of close friends.

Surviving are her mother, Mrs. Sarah Adams; a sister, Mrs. Robert Gregory, and a brother, Jny Adams, both of Marion township.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock standard time from the home in Marion township, Rev. John E. Lockyer of the Methodist church officiating.

When it gets too dark to work, the regular weekly meeting will be held. Don't forget—the supper is a pot-luck. Call or interview Warren Kibbe and find out what to bring in the way of eats.

Senior Play

"Graustark," the play by Grace Hayward dramatized from George McCutcheon's novel "Graustark" has been chosen as the senior play this year. A short resume is as follows: Grenfall Lorry, an American, meets a Miss Guyenslarker who is touring in the United States. It was love at first sight and after she left the country, he started searching the world for her.

Grenfall Lorry and his Harry Anguish find themselves stranded in Eidelveiss, the capital of Graustark an imaginary kingdom located in the Balkans. There he meets Miss Guyenslarker in a most unexpected fashion and is drawn into the intrigue and mystery of the royal government.

In the meantime Harry Anguish and the Countess Dagmar (a close friend of Miss Guyenslarker) have fallen in love, which adds further complications to the plot. The play is well supplied with romance, villainy, suspense and lively humor.

The cast is as follows: Grenfall Lorry, Bill Brown; Harry Anguish, Bob Foster; Prince Gabriel, Bill Novak; Baron Dangloss, Pat Moran; Prince Boloroz, Robert McCall; Prince Lorenz, David Coulter; Sitzy, Lee Shapiro; Ostrom, Charles Celler; Danox, Dixie Warner; Countess Yvonne, Lola Fessenden; Countess Dagmar, Angie Scott; Therese, Doris Gleason; Yette (Miss Guyenslarker), Agnes Brown.

J-Hop

Spring is here and with it a thing of no less importance than the J-Hop. For doesn't spring come every year of our lives? Certainly. But truly, to our still excited juniors, the 15th of May is the one thing they are living for now (which is logical, for after they spend all that money they will probably have to go out of business).

The night of the 15th of May with the lovely Belvedere Casino and the moonlight lawn and the gentle music of the waves slapping against the clean, white sand—say, it would be funny, wouldn't it, freshmen, if it should rain? But pardon me, that music part is wrong. The orchestra is composed of a group of heavenly musicians. The decorations from what we have been able to gather will either be green and white, the senior class colors, or tangerine and silver, the junior colors.

Now let's all join hands and wish these juniors much joy at the forthcoming celebration!

Girl Scouts

The girl scouts are putting on a bazaar next Saturday, April 25, at the Staley Bros. hardware store. The proceeds from this sale are to be used to cover the expenses of taking the troop to Boyne City, May 2, to the girls' conference of northern Michigan. Your aid is solicited in making this a big success.

Shorthand and Typewriting Contest

On May 2 Charlevoix will send students to Cheboygan to the district fifteen shorthand and typewriting contest. The following will represent our school: Lola Fessenden and Eloise Tillotson in second year typewriting; Leone Block and Lauretta Stutzman, first year typewriting; Hilda Ogden and Lula VanDusen, shorthand; Hilda Ogden, Lola Fessenden, Eloise Tillotson and Lauretta Stutzman, team typewriting.

Last year the contestants from Charlevoix made an excellent showing and gave the leaders a very close run. Dare we venture to hope that this year they will win the coveted honor.

"What Is Success?"

Last Wednesday afternoon Dr. Fisher of the University of Michigan talked to the students of C. H. S. on the subject of "What Is Success?" He brought out five distinct thoughts which he thoroughly developed. The first was freedom, freedom from imitation. The freedom of being yourself and no one else. The second, breadth, which he said meant a broad-mindedness of character developed only by seeing the other person's side of the question and by arising above our failures. The third, inspiration. He defined this as a quality you derive from books, pictures, persons, etc., which draws out the best in you. The fourth is faith. Faith in God and faith in yourself. The last was perseverance, the ability to keep on after repeated failures which he illustrated by a story of Sir Douglas Mawson at the South Pole.

Civics Class Visited Court Wednesday Morning

Wednesday morning the Civics class went to court as the conclusion of their studying pertaining to courts. They had finished the work in both U. S. courts and state courts and in order to have the court procedure more vividly in their minds the instructor arranged this observance of a civil case. Judge Gilbert was very considerate by taking time to explain a number of court terms as the case proceeded.

The class received a good idea of what court procedure is like and will probably remember it more completely than anything memorized from books.

Mother Goose

Miss French is organizing her pupils so that they can present a nursery rhyme play. The characters, Mother Goose and her children, have not been chosen as yet.

Hi-Y Induction

Friday, April 10, was a big day for the local Hi-Y group. It was the day that they became full fledged, all wool and a yard wide Hi-Y members. The ladies of the First Congregational church served a very lovely dinner to the boys and their guests, the Cheboygan Hi-Y group. The boys from Cheboygan managed the induction very well. The induction was very solemn and impressive. Several of the prominent business men were present and remarked what an impressive ceremony it was. Rev. Parker also gave a very inspirational talk.

Cerebral Meeting

The Campfire Girls' cerebral meeting was held last Wednesday night at which time honors were given. The Woodgatherer's rings were conferred on the following: Helen Loskot, Rosetta Gillis, Lucile McCurtney, and Vivian Eike. Emblem of Woodgatherer's ring is a ring which is representing the fagot of 7 twigs. Seven laws of the campfire: Seek Beauty; Give Service; Pursue Knowledge; Be Trustworthy; Glorify Work; Hold on to Health; Be Happy.

Last Thursday's Hi-Y breakfast was a bit different from the preceding ones. The difference being that the usual burnt offering was not offered. The menu consisted of oranges (peel yourself style) various kind of cereals and cocoa. The breakfast was prepared by the two great (that is to be great) chefs, Novak and Coulter. After partaking of the repast we all joined in during the regular discussion period led by Mr. Otterbein, the Hi-Y's faithful leader.

To make hard sauce that is a little different, use brown sugar, and grate into it a little orange rind for flavor.

VIGOROUS TUBERCULOSIS CAMPAIGN IS PLAN

Societies of Michigan to Join in One-Month War on Disease

A vigorous one-month campaign to discover tuberculosis in the sector of youth will be launched this week by the anti-tuberculosis societies of Michigan, according to announcement of Dr. B. A. Shepard, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis association.

The campaign, part of a country-wide educational effort, will be directed at those years of life from 16 to 25, in which past work to reduce the tuberculosis death rate has met with least success.

"In this age period," states Dr. Shepard, "tuberculosis continues to for out-strip any other disease as a cause of death. In Michigan alone approximately 800 young men and women in this first decade of maturity died of tuberculosis last year. The campaign starting April 1 represents a concerted effort by anti-tuberculosis groups of the state to save hundreds of other young people from a similar premature and unnecessary death."

The campaign will show that tuberculosis may exist unknown in young people, with no physical symptoms whatever, and that the tuberculin skin test and the X-ray often are the only means by which its presence can be discovered.

Plans for the campaign, which is financed solely by funds derived from the sale of Christmas seals, include distribution of posters, showing of motion picture films, talks, health programs in high schools, and distribution of pamphlets at meetings, in schools, factories, and churches.

OPEN POTATO PITS TO EXAMINE STOCK

Field, Frost Injury May Compel Growers to Replace Pitted Seed

Michigan potato growers who stored their seed stock in pits last fall are advised by members of the farm crops department at Michigan State college to examine the pits immediately to determine whether frost injury has damaged the seed to an extent which makes it necessary to buy seed from the restricted supply now available in this state.

At the present time, there is a small amount of certified seed for sale, there is a moderate supply of No. 2 size potatoes from the certified stock, and there are some uncertified potatoes grown from certified seed but the crops men predict that all of these classes of stock will be exhausted before planting time.

Considerable field frost injury in the pitted potatoes makes them unsuitable for seed. The injury will be shown by flabby tubers and by discolored spots, usually near the stem end, in the flesh of the potato. If it is necessary to use seed from frost injured stock, every tuber showing flesh discolorations should be discarded when the seed is cut.

COUNTY NORMAL NEWS

The normal class enjoyed a very interesting talk on Rome, given by Miss Button last Friday. Last Friday the class, under the direction of Miss Guilford, made some pretty May baskets of all colors and shapes.

The History book reports of this term promise to be very interesting, judging from the first review, "Atlantis," given by Mr. Manley, which carried the hearers back to the time before the flood. Among other interesting periods to be portrayed are "Rise and Fall of Egypt," "Religious Controversy in England," "Early Colonial History" in the United States.

The state P. T. A. president has sent complimentary tickets to the county normal class to attend the state P. T. A. convention at Traverse City, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Misses Spaaiak and De Maio entertained the normal class with an April shower party, Monday night—consequently—the showers this week.

The normal class has been invited to attend the county 4-H club achievement day celebration at the gymnasium, Thursday p. m., April 23.

Training Room

Seven children are now on the dental honor roll in the training room, Glen Hull and Marjorie Lusk having been added this week.

A window box of hepatica plants is a new addition to the training room. Foliage and method of propagation are to be made a study of. Another box is to be planted with seeds. The training room extends thanks to Henry Reist, Lawrence Elzinga, Emil Krehak, and Franklin Ochs for the construction, painting, and filling of the boxes with earth.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our darling, Clara C. Daugherty, who passed away one year ago April 23, 1930: Precious darling, she has left us. Left us, yes, forever more; But we hope to meet our loved one, On that bright and happy shore. Lonely the house, and sad the hours. Since our dear one has gone; But oh! a brighter home than ours. In Heaven is now her own. Sadly missed by her mother, Mrs. Ruth Daugherty, and Eleanor.—Adv. 1931 pd.

ORCHARD
CLEANINGSWINTER DAMAGE
TO RASPBERRIESCanes Are Wholly or Partially Killed in Fall.

Winter injury on raspberries consists of the canes being partially or wholly killed some time after the plants have stopped growth in the fall. The tips of the canes are usually affected first, because this portion of the cane is the youngest wood. The extent of the winter injury is probably dependent on two factors: first, the state of maturity of the canes, and second, the degree of the fluctuation of the temperature. If the plants go into winter with a large amount of soft young wood the amount of injury is much greater than where the wood has had time to mature. Since the wood that is designed to bear the fruit is nearest the tip of the cane, it frequently is responsible for crop failures.

Such dead or injured wood affords a splendid point of entrance for wood parasites which continue the destruction of the living wood. Thus we often find the disease called cane blight, Coniophthora fructigena, which occurs as a follower of winter injury.

The most practical way of preventing winter injury that has been observed is to lay down the canes in the fall and cover them with dirt. This may be done with a spade or by throwing two furrows together, thus burying the canes in a ridge just over the crowns of the plants. This practice has been observed to effectively prevent winter injury. If this practice cannot be followed, then every effort should be made to bring the plants into the winter condition with the minimum amount of immature wood.

PRUNING DONE TO IMPROVE ORCHARDSimple Directions Are Given to Help Orchardist.

Pruning is the first work of the season in the orchard and is the first step to be taken in improving an old or neglected orchard. It is a waste of time and spray material to spray unpruned trees, as much diseased and insect-infested wood is removed in pruning.

Following are simple directions for pruning:

1. Step away from the tree to get a good look at it, noting its general shape and habit of growth. Keep its form in mind while pruning.
2. Cut out all dead branches.
3. Cut out all branches which are badly diseased, or infested with insects.
4. Remove the poorer of crossed and crowded branches.
5. Go over the entire tree with hand shears removing small branches here and there to admit sunlight and air evenly to all parts of the tree.
6. Remove water sprouts.

Here are a few "don'ts" to keep in mind when pruning:

1. Don't head back. That is, do not cut the end of a limb off the top of the tree in hope of controlling the length or height of its growth.
2. Don't leave stubs when removing branches.
3. Don't use the saw any more than necessary. Shears is the tool with which an inexperienced pruner can do the least damage.

Propagating Grapes by Cutting Is Best Plan

The only method of propagating grapes, to be sure they will come true to name, is by cuttings. Grape varieties, of course, are not pure lines and therefore would not reproduce themselves. For instance, from the Concord grape you might either get a blue, a red, or a white variety. It might be equal to, better, or inferior to the Concord in size and quality. It is not difficult to propagate the grape, however. Cuttings should be taken after the wood is well ripened this fall, making a cut at the base of a limb and allow two to three buds to a cutting. These should then be tied in bundles in a well-drained place until early spring. Or, they can be placed in a box of sawdust or sand and put in a cold, moderately moist place. In the spring the cuttings that have survived should be set out in the garden, leaving only the top bud above the ground. At the end of the first or second year they can be transplanted to their permanent location.

Winter Pruning Points
From New Hampshire

The New Hampshire station gives the following advice:

The swivel saw is becoming most popular for ordinary pruning work. Whatever implements are used, they should be kept sharp and make a clean cut, without leaving a stub.

In pruning old trees, care should be taken to thin out the small wood in the outside of the tree in order to admit more light. Thinning out the tree is a valuable help in seed control, and also keeps the tree more thrifty and productive. By pruning trees in winter fruit growers can help avoid a rush in the spring work, and December is ordinarily a time when the job can be done to advantage.

If any trees are affected by canker, all tools should be disinfected after cutting with a solution made of one 75 grain tablet of bichloride of mercury in a pint of water.

Control Scale Insects
by Use of Lime-Sulphur

The common material used in control of all scale insects is lime-sulphur. This is a combination of stone lime and flowers of sulphur in water which, when applied to scale insects, cuts off the air supply and smothers them. Spraying for control of scale must be done at this time of year, as the material is highly caustic and will burn the foliage if applied when the plant is in leaf.

The formula is one gallon of commercial liquid lime-sulphur to eight gallons of water. Dry lime-sulphur may be substituted for the liquid where only small quantities of spray are needed. Use it at the rate of 12 or 15 pounds to 50 gallons of water. These quantities, both liquid and dry, may be increased or decreased in proportion to the amount of material needed.

Pruning Trees Good Job for Cold Weather

Pruning of the trees should be looked after right away. It is safe to do so any time from now up to the time the leaves begin to expand. Thinning out the surplus branches will greatly aid one in operating the sprayer when that time comes, and the job of spraying will be much more efficient, because the spray can be more evenly applied to the surface of both foliage and fruit. There will be very little damage to either fruit or tree if a film of the spray covers the surface of both. Naturally old apple trees that have not been pruned cannot be treated as effectively as those that do not carry so much bearing wood. Probably then the greatest gain obtained by pruning is indirect, that is, by making it easier to do a good job of spraying. Good spraying will account for 90 or 95 per cent of the combined gain brought about by both pruning and spraying.

Horticultural Facts

Do not head-in or cut off the tops of twigs or branches.

Do not try to change the habit of the growth of the tree, nor take out enough wood to greatly alter its shape.

The scale insects cannot be killed by a poison which will soak into the pores, as they are too well protected by a gummy scale of wax, beneath which the insects operate.

Charlevoix County

A dairy profits conference is being planned for Charlevoix county, which, according to County Agricultural Agent Mellencamp, will be held at Boyne City on May 12th. This conference will be a business meeting of representative farmers and dairymen who will discuss the dairy problems of the county with the county agent and extension dairyman from the Michigan State college.

The conference will be devoted to outlining a long time plan of work. This plan of work will help put the dairy business of Charlevoix county on a more highly profitable basis. Means of getting more economical production will be discussed with the thought that profits lie in economy of production rather than increased total production.

About fifty delegates selected from every part of the county will participate. These delegates will be farmers with many years of dairy experience. This experience combined with the many years of scientific yet practical information collected by the Michigan State college should result in some lively discussion for real good to the community.

Quality Spuds to be Talked on Penns Soil Train

Beginning with Ravensara April 20th and following on through to and including Pellston, a potato meeting will be held at 9:30 central standard time each forenoon in the lecture coach of the lime and fertilizer train operating over the Pennsylvania railroad, April 17 to May 2, 1931.

This is in co-operation with the potato interests in western Michigan which are at present sponsoring a state-wide program based upon the production of a higher quality potato.

C. L. Nash of the economics department, and H. C. Moore, chief of potato work, will be in charge of the meetings.

Mr. Nash will present the present economic status of Michigan's potato industry, using as a basis for his talk, the information he has gleaned from a study of the potato situation which he has been making for the past few months. The facts and figures he has obtained are said to be mighty interesting, and should be of great value from a money making standpoint, to the Michigan potato grower when properly interpreted.

Mr. Moore will discuss the state-wide program recently launched by the potato interests, designed to place upon the table stock market a much superior potato.

Western Michigan potato growers are offered this opportunity to get this information first-hand and will be able to find out at this meeting what they can do to regain Michigan's prestige in the potato markets, which for the past two years has been largely usurped by some other states.

It is hoped that at the completion of this series of meetings held in connection with the soil improvement special, that a greater effort will be made by potato growers, each having in mind the goal of producing superior table stock potatoes.

Remember, while the soil testing is going on in the laboratory, ear this meeting will be held in the lecture coach.

Bankers, business men and others interested in and depending on a stabilized potato industry are invited to attend.

Following is the schedule of the soils train in this near vicinity; potato meetings to be held in the forenoon; in afternoon each day, lecture coach will be used for soils conference. All meetings central standard time:

Kalkaska, Saturday, April 25; Manton, Monday, April 27; Lake City, Tuesday, April 28; Kingsley, Wednesday, April 29; Mancelona, Thursday, April 30; Boyne City, Friday, May 1; Pellston, Saturday, May 2.

Seen in "The Lash"

Richard Barthelmess' favorite chapel was reproduced on a stage at First National-Vitaphone studios. A chapel of delicate colorings, of blue and gold and silver; an ancient shrine of old Mexico.

A year and a half ago Barthelmess, accompanied by his wife, made a pleasure trip to Mexico City and while there visited many of the old landmarks, one of which was a church just outside the city limits.

Entering this ancient building he was spellbound with its reverent beauty—its quiet, serene loveliness. "What a lovely thing for a picture," thought Barthelmess. Forthwith he purchased postcard photos of the church interior. The result is that now motion picture audiences will be able to see the selfsame room of worship in "The Lash," coming to the Palace theatre on Saturday and Sunday.

Film Couple Reunited in "Mothers Cry"

When "Mothers Cry" comes to the Palace theatre on Wednesday and Thursday audiences will see the film reunion of a couple who have been happily married for twenty-five years.

Charles H. Mailes and Claire McDowell, who play the mother and father of Dorothy Peterson, the lead, haven't played together in a picture for eight years. They were married while playing in the original "Clansmen" company, the play from which "The Birth of a Nation" was adapted.

The couple were signed by the old Biograph company to play featured roles in picture stock. They worked together six years with this organization and have played together in several pictures since, but none recently. The fact that they have been married so long, and have children of their own lends a note of realism to their scenes.

"Mothers Cry" is First National's screen adaptation of Helen Grace Carlisle's popular novel of the same name.

Featured in a splendid cast are David Manners, Dorothy Peterson, Helen Chandler, Edward Woods, and Pat O'Malley. Robert Benley directed.

The oil in "dustless" cloths may be renewed by applying a few drops of kerosene, or light lubricating oil on one corner, rolling the cloth, and letting it stand until the oil has spread evenly. Or add a little oil to the rinsing water after washing the duster. One tablespoon of kerosene or one-half tablespoon of light lubricating oil to one quart of water gives good results.

The tests were conducted by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association. The results when compiled will be certified by it.

Early in May, the test cars will start on long individual tours. They will visit auto dealers to deliver the certified results and to allow inspection. At the same time they will be gathering more lubrication data. Watch for these cars.

L. E. Bentos, secretary of the Charlevoix county poor commission, has made available for publication a copy of the annual report of superintendents of the poor of Michigan for the year ending September 30, 1930.

With the care of the state's indigents growing in cost by leaps and bounds and threatening to reach unheard of proportions, Charlevoix's situation in respects to the balance of the state is of more than usual interest.

The report shows that the whole number of poor persons maintained in the infirmaries during the period was 20,713, of whom 17,050 were males and 3,663 females. The average number of persons maintained the entire period was 7,729.73. The number of persons temporarily relieved outside the infirmaries was 213,408. The number of permanent indigent persons outside the infirmaries was 37,821; the number of persons supported at public institutions was 1,826, and the whole number of different persons who received assistance in any form during the period was 273,768.

The whole amount expended in the care and support of the poor is reported at $14,774,789.15, distributed as follows: Infirmary and farm expenses, $3,611,777.82; expenditures from temporary relief, $10,180,046.52; cost of maintaining permanent indigent persons outside of infirmaries, $148,472.59, and other expenditures $334,492.82. The farms and appurtenances were valued on September 30, 1930, at $14,485,849.89. The report was compiled by Frank D. Fitzgerald, Secretary of State.

The total cost in Charlevoix county during the period above mentioned was $21,648.19, which was 49th place out of the 77 counties reported. However, the above total is for the year 1929-30, and so far, during the years 1930-31, the total has gone beyond figures for previous years. Charlevoix county is not alone, for nearly every county in the state is facing a similar situation, some much worse than our own.

OLDER BOYS' CONFERENCE ELECT OFFICERS

Large Group of Northern Michigan
Boys Attend 2-Day Meeting

At the Northern Michigan Older Boys' conference, held Saturday and Sunday at Boyne City, Hugh Allen of Maacelona, was chosen conference president; Stewart Bell, Cheboygan, vice president; William White, Boyne City, secretary-treasurer.

The young men adopted as their conference slogan, "Youth Looks Out at Life," and the two days together were spent in intensive study of the ways in which a boy should make his decisions regarding the choice of a life work, the selection of a college, and the courses best fitted to his needs. Other subjects on which they wanted help were: the use of spare time, the best use of Sundays, adjustment to home problems, and understanding between parents and youth. Some time was also given to the discussion of boys' financial problems, both in regard to the spending of money and the financing of school and college courses.

The discussions were led by Ray Johns of the State Y. M. C. A. and President Crooks of Alma college, and the men and boys who were present spoke of it as the most practical and helpful conference they had ever attended.

STATE DEER TRAPS PROVE A SUCCESS

MANY ANIMALS TAGGED OR REMOVED TO NEW COVER

Last Winter's Efforts Rewarded Despite Adverse Conditions—Plan to Be Continued

The first serious effort by the state to live-trap wild deer in Michigan has been completed, with 100 deer trapped and tagged and 96 removed to other locations by sleigh and truck.

The game division of the conservation department, which made the experiment, feels that the first year's results have been successful enough to indicate the practicability of trapping deer in crowded winter yards and "transplanting the surplus to areas where deer are less abundant."

The experiments were conducted in the Fletcher swamp on the north edge of the Turtle lake district in Alpena county. The management of the winter deer herd in this swamp has become a serious problem because of the increasing number of animals crowded every winter into a small "yarding" area where lumbering operations plus browsing by deer has left less and less adequate supplies of natural feed within reach of the deer.

Last summer this and the neighboring swamp areas were covered mapped in detail by the game division and in January experiments with live-trapping operations were started. Because of the exceptionally mild winter the deer did not "yard up" as much as in normal seasons.

A new type trap designed by J. H. Stephenson, game refuge inspector, proved to be more successful than earlier models.

Even with an open winter, 129 deer were trapped and several repeated a number of times so that the average catch was one deer for each trap every two days.

The deer were marked with aluminum ear tags carrying a serial number and bearing the legend: "Notify Department of Conservation, Lansing." Ninety-six deer were crated and hauled to other locations. Sixty-five were taken to the Isosco state game refuge, 11 to the Luaua state game refuge, 11 to Wolf creek swamp and 12 to the Alpena state forest. The rest were released again in the Fletcher swamp.

"The experiment was successful in spite of an unfavorable season for trapping," the game division comments in a report on the experiments.

"We now feel assured that with a normally severe winter and with enough of the new traps operating over a period of two and one half months we could reasonably expect to take and move many hundreds of deer from such over-crowded yards. It seems quite sure that whenever it proves necessary we can capture deer in the over-crowded areas, transport them in crates and release them in places where natural feed is abundant."

"BAD" LANSING PAIR HELD IN JAIL HERE

Arrested Friday by Cheboygan State Troopers Following Complaints

Wesley Stickney, age 17, and Lbur Hietzer, age 19, both of Lansing, were arrested last Friday night near Mancelona by State Troopers McGuire and Barton of Cheboygan, following complaints that the pair were totting a gun and making themselves generally a nuisance.

According to available information Stickney and Hietzer had been making their headquarters around East Jordan for several days. They were frequent visitors to dance halls and gave out the impression they were "hard." They were said to have frequently displayed a gun to prove their assertions.

Investigation revealed they had taken the gun from the vacant home of Efton LaValley near East Jordan. The pair have been held in jail for hearing since Friday night. They will likely be charged with carrying a concealed weapon and possibly with breaking and entering.

NATION OBSERVES CHILD HEALTH DAY

MAY DAY HAS NEW MEANING
BY ITS OBSERVANCE

Churches and Schools Asked to Plan Appropriate Programs in Furtherance of Efforts

For a number of years May day has not only been a day commemorated by the hanging of May baskets, but has taken on a new meaning, for May day has been dedicated to our children.

Each year the first of May is set aside by the President of the United States as National Child Health Day.

And over and over an appeal has been made throughout the nation asking each community to share in this program by planning and undertaking some definite project which will be of benefit to the health of its children.

Ministers are asked to observe this day, remembering the children in the sermons they deliver on that Sunday. School teachers and pupils will celebrate with a special program in the classroom.

This year the program is to be based upon the findings of the White House conference on child health and protection, which has been expressed in the nineteen fundamental points now known as the Children's Charter. The keynote adopted for 1931 is "Community Responsibility and Cooperation in Child Health and Protection."

The Children's Charter follows: President Hoover's White House conference on child health and protection recognizing the rights of the child as the first rights of citizenship pledges itself to these aims for the children of America.

For every child spiritual and moral training to help him to stand firm under the pressure of life.

2. For every child understanding and the guarding of his personality as his most precious right.

3. For every child a home and that love and security which home provides; and for that child who must receive foster care, the nearest substitute for his own home.

4. For every child full preparation for his birth, his mother receiving prenatal care, mental and postnatal care; and the establishment of such protective measures as will make child bearing safer.

5. For every child health protection from birth through adolescence, including: periodical health examinations and where needed, care of specialists and hospital treatment; regular dental examination and care of the teeth; protective and preventive measures against communicable diseases; the insuring of pure food, pure milk and pure water.

6. For every child from birth through adolescence, promotion of health, including health instruction, place, safe, sanitary, and wholesome, physical and mental recreation, with teachers and leaders adequately trained.

7. For every child a dwelling place, safe, sanitary, and wholesome, with reasonable provisions for privacy, free from conditions which tend to thwart his development; and a home environment harmonious and enriching.

8. For every child a school which is safe from hazards, sanitary, properly equipped, lighted and ventilated. For younger children nursery schools and kindergartens to supplement home care.

9. For every child a community which recognizes and plans for his needs protects him against physical dangers, moral hazards and disease; provides him with safe and wholesome places for play and recreation; and makes provisions for his cultural and social needs.

10. For every child an education which through the discovery and development of his individual abilities, prepare him for life, and through training and vocational guidance prepares him for a living which will yield him the maximum of satisfaction.

11. For every child such teaching and training as will prepare him for successful parenthood, homemaking, and the rights of citizenship; and for parents, supplementary training to fit them to deal wisely with the problems of parenthood.

12. For every child education for safety and protection against accidents to which modern conditions subject him, those to which he is directly exposed and those which, through loss or maiming of his parents affect him indirectly.

13. For every child who is blind, deaf, crippled, or otherwise physically handicapped and for the child who is mentally handicapped, such measures as will early discover and diagnose his handicap, provide care and treatment and so train him that he may become an asset to society rather than a liability. Expenses of these services should be borne publicly where they cannot be privately met.

14. For every child who is in conflict with society the right to be dealt with intelligently as society's charge, not society's outcast; with the home, the school, the church, the court and the institution when needed, shaped to return him whenever possible to the normal stream of life.

15. For every child the right to grow up in a family with an adequate standard of living and the security of a stable income as the surest safeguard against social handicaps.

16. For every child protection against labor that stunts growth, either physical or mental, that limits education, that deprives children of the right of comradeship, of play and of joy.

17. For every rural child a satisfactory schooling and health services (Continued on page 8)

SCHOOL MUSICALS THURSDAY, MAY 7

COMBINED CHORUS TO PRESENT
"THE CHINA SHOP"

Cast Has Spent Many Weeks in Preparation Under Mrs. Ethel McKee—Mrs. Stelter Accompanist

The big event in the year's work in music will culminate Thursday evening, May 7, at the high school gymnasium with presentation of "The China Shop," an original operetta by Arthur Penn, by the combined high school glee clubs.

The comic element plays a large part in the plot, but patrons are warned not to come with the intention of merely laughing, but rather to come prepared to enjoy truly fascinating songs, real philosophy and beautiful costumes in a setting of enchanting Chinese beauty.

Success is insured if for no other reason than that the operetta is being directed by the same teacher who last year sponsored "The Belle of Barcelona," which was such a success that it was played two nights by request. Many of the members of the cast last year have leading roles again. This is another assurance that to see "The China Shop" will be to spend an evening which will long be remembered because of its high class acting.

The chorus of seventy voices is made up of members of the boys' and girls' glee clubs. Both the cast and the chorus have been working diligently during the entire second semester, for a truly good production cannot be prepared in a few weeks' time. It takes many hours of practice and a chorus that is sympathetic with the plot before the correct atmosphere can be portrayed.

All these qualities have been perfected, and it is hoped that everyone will respond to this opportunity to encourage our young people to produce a high class entertainment.

Following is the cast of characters: Prologue, Four Chinamen: Lee Shapton, David Livingston, Wallace Saunders, Hugh Parker.

First Sing, tenor, a wealthy merchant, Robert McCall; Sing Fong, tenor, his son, Wayne Belding; Mush Lush, bass, Sing Fong's secretary, a woman hater, Lee Shapton; Tannyu, bass, a fisherman, Bill Clark; Wan Tun, tenor, a politician, Robert McCall; Mr. Juscot Karfair, a Reformer, Howard Davenport; Lotus Blossom, soprano, Dorothy Struthers; The Three Belles, Ting a Ling, soprano, Ping Pong, soprano, Ping Ping, contralto, Gwendolyn Miller, Marian McKee, Myrtle Kelderhouse; Hay Tee Toy, contralto, a Chaperone, Evelyn Buddy.

Mrs. A. J. Stelter will be the accompanist.

NEW STATE MAPS WILL BE DISTRIBUTED SOON

About the first of the month the joint maps of the Michigan state highway and conservation departments will be ready for distribution. Not only will the trunk lines be given but the fish hatcheries, state parks and forests will be shown in addition to other valuable information. The merger of the two separate maps will be novel, but better for all concerned.

DIST. HEALTH UNIT ADDS WORKERS

CHILD HEALTH COMMITTEE ORGANIZED TO AID WORK

Initial Meeting Held Thursday Afternoon at Charlevoix—Rotates Meetings Each Month

The initial meeting of the recently appointed Child Health Committee for Charlevoix county, was held last Thursday afternoon at the office of the District Health Unit on Petoskey avenue, with an attendance of fourteen members and five visitors.

Members present were: Mrs. Lena Bergeon, Charlevoix, general chairman; Miss Pearl C. Bigge, Charlevoix, secretary; Mrs. Fred Denise, Boyne Falls; Mrs. Florence McGhan, Marion township; Mrs. Clarence Heise, Norwood; M. Otterbein, Charlevoix; Howard Porter, East Jordan; Herman Meyer, Boyne Falls; William C. Palmer, Charlevoix; Bayard K. Reichen, Boyne City; E. A. Ruegger, Boyne City; and Kenneth Usher, Charlevoix.

The organization and working of the Child Health Committee was outlined by Miss Edna L. Hamilton, director of the nursing division of the Children's Fund of Michigan.

The purpose of organization of this committee is to assist the health department in its child welfare program. The committee consists of representatives of each township. The township chairmen form local committees, appointing such members as they see fit. This township committee may set for itself any program for health promotion, according to their local needs.

Miss Hamilton briefly reviewed the origin of the Children's Fund and its growth in the two years of its existence.

Dr. Dean announced the clinic for crippled children to be held in Charlevoix on Thursday, May 21. He urged that all cooperate in seeing that needy children be given the benefit of this clinic.

It was agreed that the meetings be rotated among the townships of the county. East Jordan extended an invitation to meet there in May.

Regular meetings of the committee are to be held the first Thursday of each month at 2 o'clock central standard time, the next meeting being held at the library in East Jordan on Thursday, May 7. All committee members are urged to be present and a most cordial invitation is extended to any who may be interested.

COUNTY 4-H CLUB CHAMPS SELECTED

PICKED BY MERIT OF ACHIEVEMENT DAY EXHIBITS

Over 200 Boys and Girls Display Work Here and at Boyne City Last Thursday and Friday

One of the most successful achievement day exhibits in the history of 4-H club work in Charlevoix county was held last Thursday and Friday.

On Thursday, 4-H clubs of the western portion of the county exhibited at the Charlevoix school gymnasium before a large and enthusiastic crowd of visitors. On Friday, outstanding exhibits shown at Charlevoix were taken to Boyne City to compete against exhibits of clubs from the eastern portion of the county. In this manner county-wide championships were chosen by A. G. Kettunen and Miss Sylvia Wixson of the club department of Michigan State college.

At Charlevoix over 300 parents and children saw the exhibit, which included 58 individual collections of Clothing club displays and 39 Handicraft exhibits. Over 200 boys and girls took part in the program at both Charlevoix and Boyne City.

A feature of each program was the style show, in which over 75 girls appeared wearing garments they had made with their own hands. The creations were a revelation, as were also exhibits of handicraft clubs which included such articles as tie racks, bird houses, taboretts, foot rests, etc.

County championships were awarded as follows:

Clothing Champions

2nd year—Christina Withers, Marion Center, Charlevoix.

TOUR PATHFINDER PLANE HERE MAY 2

TO VISIT THIS CITY BETWEEN
11:15 A. M. AND 1:00 P. M.

Plans for Third Michigan Air Tour Well Under Way—Charlevoix May Be Stopping Place

The Third Annual Michigan Air Tour, which is being sponsored by the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce, is well under way at this time. With a full eight weeks before the start, the officers are assured of an extremely successful tour. The pathfinder planes which will stop at Charlevoix on Saturday, May 2, took off from the Grand Rapids airport Monday.

Enthusiasm of the cities is high, and many, particularly those of the upper peninsula, are planning on making the tour stop their major aeronautical event for 1931. Many cities not included on the pathfinder itinerary, have contacted with tour officials, with a request that they be placed on this year's tour. This is also true of cities that have been visited on the past two tours. Tour officials, however, feel that the itinerary this year should include cities that were not on the routes of previous tours, in order that new airports and air-mindedness be created in other localities.

An innovation in this year's tour is that more than half of the stops will be made in the upper peninsula, which is virgin territory and up to the present time has received very little recognition from outside aviation projects. The Michigan Air Tour in two years has caused to be built, eight new airports and an extensive amount of improvements on nine other fields. It is felt that this year's tour will do even more good along these lines.

This year's tour is being managed (Continued on page 5.)

Rev. G. R. Parker performed the ceremony in the presence of a small group of friends. The young couple were attended by Miss Clementine Browne and Don Miller, both of this city.

Mrs. Snyder was attending local high school at the time of her marriage. Mr. Snyder is employed on the government lighthouse supply ship, Sumac.

TROUT SEASON OPENS FRIDAY

LOCAL ANGLERS PREPARED TO ENJOY POPULAR SPORT

Cold Weather Hinders Prospects for Opening Day—Open Streams in Region Are Listed

Figuratively speaking, Friday, May 1, will be a holiday (legal or otherwise) for many Charlevoixians. You probably all read about that "nut" found casting a hookless fly down on Manistee river a couple of weeks ago. He couldn't wait—just wanted to get out and have the "feel" of it.

Well, there are a lot of "nuts" just like that fellow here in Charlevoix, and May 1, which marks the official opening of Michigan's 1931 trout season, will find them all in evidence on streams scattered hereabouts in this region.

Taking everything into consideration, conditions don't look too good for the opening day. The past several days of cold, weather, rain, snow flurries and hail have just about wrecked hopes of the early-season fly fisherman. However, streams are at the lowest stage in recent years, and a couple of warm days before Friday ought to induce the trout to do a little jumping for bugs.

Regardless of opinions to the contrary, though, it looks as though the plunker, with his enticing morsels of muddler, minnow and "barnyard hackle," will be the guy to bring home the bacon.

A consolation to many is found in the heavy planting of fingerling trout throughout this region during the past year. This system of planting fingerlings instead of fry is being carried out generally now, and the results are by far more satisfactory. Closing feeder streams is another big item towards helping trout to hold their own. Most experienced anglers will say the 1930 season was one of the best in years and fingerling and closed feeder streams are big contributing factors.

The size and creel limits for 1931 are the same as last year. All main streams in Charlevoix and nearby counties are open, those closed being confined largely to feeders. Following is a list of open streams in Charlevoix and Antrim counties:

DEATH OF STANLEY HEISE IS MOURNED

Untimely Passing Saturday Following Extended Period of Illness

The sympathy of this entire city was aroused Saturday by the untimely death of Stanley Herbert Heise, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heise, who succumbed at 2:30 p. m. following an extended illness.

Stanley had been in ill health for a period of six years following a serious attack of scarlet fever, which resulted in a complication of ailments. Throughout this period he had been a patient and uncomplaining sufferer. This disposition won him a host of friends.

Stanley was born August 1, 1914, in Charlevoix. He attended local schools up until almost a year ago and would have been a junior in high school had not illness compelled him to withdraw. His record as a student was a brilliant one.

Surviving besides his parents are a sister, Lila, of Lansing, and a younger brother, Junior.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Methodist church, Rev. John E. Lockyer officiating. Interment at Brookside.

COMPARISON OF PREPARED FEEDS

Surest Way to Find Values Is to Compare Costs.

With so many prepared feeds for live stock on the market, and numerous salesmen offering them, the farmer is sometimes at a loss to know the value of these feeds when compared to natural live-stock feeds grown on his farm.

The surest method of determining these values is to compare the costs, and the complete chemical analysis of the prepared feeds as given on the outside of the sacks in which they are sold, with the chemical analysis of farm-grown feeds and the well known commercial concentrates. This is the statement of E. J. Maynard, associate animal husbandman at the Colorado Agricultural College.

A distinction should be drawn by the feeder between prepared feeds sold under a trade name and commercial concentrates such as cottonseed meal, linseed oil cake, beet molasses and dried beet pulp. These last named are well-known by-products in the manufacture of standard commodities with which feeders are familiar. They have a well-recognized place in fattening rations which has been established by years of practical feeding and experimental work. They are usually high in either carbohydrates or protein, and for this reason are often conveniently used in balancing farm-grown rations.

Prepared feeds of the other kind may be of simple or complex composition. They may contain only molasses and a cut hay, or they may contain other feeds such as corn, barley, dried beet pulp, mill screenings or sweepings, ground oat hulls, straw molasses, linseed meal or cottonseed meal with possibly some minerals, usually salt and charcoal.

"If a concentrated feed is needed and a prepared feed is considered, it can be compared to other feeds available on the basis of the protein and carbohydrate it contains," says Maynard.

Although the analysis of a feed is often given on a digestible nutrient basis, this basis cannot be used in a comparison of home-grown feeds or ordinary commercial concentrates with most prepared feeds.

Lambs Preferred by Experienced Feeders

Experienced feeders usually prefer lambs of 60 pounds each or below, provided the lambs are not stunted cut runs. Young, thrifty lambs usually do not leave the range under 60 pounds each. The weights mostly available are between 60 and 70 pounds each.

Black-faced lambs are always a favorite in the feed lots. There is no reason to believe, however, that smooth-bodied, white-faced lambs are not good, profitable gainers and are considered by many feeders as absolutely satisfactory.

The place where the lambs were raised is more important than the face color. Thrifty mountain range lambs are much to be preferred over "hot bellied" desert lambs with wool full of hurs. There are all sorts of variations between these two extremes. Prices and available supply are according to the desirability of the feeding.

After the lambs arrive on the farm there seem to be a number of methods conditions. Some feed dry hay, salt and water, and turn on a short blue grass pasture for a few days. Others feed a dry feed and then an hour or more on rank growing weeds or after growth in the meadow. Corral the lambs for two hours and then dry feed.

Live Stock Notes

Too much grain at the start may result in death of some of the lambs.

Feed damaged grain to your hogs and convert grain losses into pork profits.

Altogether too many pigs have been run on pasture without any or a very small amount of grain.

Pigs fed on hulled oats or hulled oats and corn eat less tonnage than when fed corn as the only grain.

The water supply of the cow flock should be clean and fresh and of moderate temperature. Free access should be given to salt.

Farmers who take an annual inventory—and all would find it well to do so—should not forget the dog. He may be an asset or a liability, for he has to be fed and an annual tax has to be paid on him.

Pigs weighing from 100 to 150 pounds are the best size. Smaller pigs are not so well able to look after themselves running among the steers and seldom do as well. As soon as the pigs are fat enough for market, they should be sold and replaced by thin pigs.

Healthy trees can be killed, in from two to three years, after they have become infested with the scale pests which suck the sap and destroy the vitality of the trees, making them more susceptible to other diseases or insects.

Cuttings of grapevines should be made in the fall, or at least before there is any starting of sap in spring. When made in fall, there is time for a healing or callusing of the cut ends, so a better stand may be had.

The number of apples on an overloaded tree may be reduced as much as 25 or even 50 per cent, without reducing the yield. That means that you have just as many bushels of apples, but since the apples will be larger they will be more easily harvested and marketed.

Cut out all dead, diseased or insect-infested wood and burn it.

Do not allow fallen fruit to remain under the trees to harbor insect pests.

The first thing to learn about the red raspberry and the point to keep in mind all the time is that it suckers, like quack grass.

There is an old saying, "Prune when the knife is sharp," meaning of course that any old time is the time to prune. Fruit men know better nowadays, and confine their pruning work largely to the winter season.

The scale infests plums, peaches, cherries, apples, pears, raspberries, blackberries, gooseberries, currants, roses, lilacs and other shrubbery of like nature, also most of the shade trees.

Spraying for the control of scale must be done before the buds have opened and the solution is very caustic and will burn or burn the foliage, if in leaf. It is also very hard on hands, and heavy leather gloves should be used, else the hands will soon begin to bleed.

BUSINESS PITFALLS IN FARM DISTRICTS

Bankers Point Out Hazards of Unsound Practices and Help Farmers to Avoid Them.

WAYS in which bankers may discourage unsound farm practices are described by President F. D. Farrell of the Kansas State Agricultural College in the American Bankers Association Journal. He says:

"In Kansas in connection with the importation of dairy cattle, a large shipment of very inferior animals came into a county to be sold at auction to local farmers. The county agricultural agent informed the bankers that the cattle would be a detriment to the community. The bankers refused to finance the purchase of the cattle and the sale was abandoned. The cattle were shipped to another county. The county agent and the bankers there did as was done in the first instance and the second county escaped."

"A year ago creamery promoters began trying to capitalize the Kansas farmers' desire to improve his markets by luring communities of farmers to purchase creamery plants before production and local conditions justified them. Informed of this by the State Agricultural College, the bankers association sent warnings to every bank in the state, leading many to refuse to support the creamery promoters until the college approved the plant for the community concerned. This saved many communities loss from the premature establishment of plants."

"A third way bankers can discourage unsound practices is to refuse to finance farmers who wish to pyramid their enterprises, a temptation difficult to resist. This is illustrated among farmers who buy cattle for feeding purposes. A farmer feeds two or three cars of cattle one year and makes a good profit. This induces him to buy twice or three times as many the second year, still more the third and so on until he finally loses more by having too many cattle on feed in a year of bad prices than he made in several previous years with smaller numbers and better prices. When bankers discourage bad practices their action is a positive benefit to the farmers concerned."

WHAT A KEY BANKER DID FOR HIS COUNTY

The farmers of one county in Tennessee are receiving $400,000 additional annual income from now farm enterprises started since 1925 through the efforts of a "key banker" and the county agent, according to estimates from the Tennessee College of Agriculture. A "key banker" is a part of the state bankers' association voluntary field force cooperating with the American Bankers Association in its nationwide plan for bringing about better agricultural conditions through combined banker-farmer effort. New projects started in this particular county are tobacco, Irish potato and cabbage production for cash crops, and dairy-lug and poultry raising for livestock.

The key banker, looking for something to do to better his community, first attempted to procure a county agent to make the necessary appropriation, so he and other leading citizens made up the requisite funds through private subscription among farmers and business men and an agent was employed.

Up until 1925 grain was the principal farm production in the county. The banker recognized the disadvantages of this. It afforded a low cash income, and the land was too hilly and rough for profitable grain raising. His idea was to introduce cash crops that offered more return per acre and were better fitted to the county. It was decided that the county should standardize on the Green Mountain potato and to market it in carload lots. Through his bank he sponsored the buying of a car of certified seed potatoes. He likewise bought some high quality tobacco seed and several hundred settings of parobred eggs. These supplies were distributed at cost through the banks to the farmers.

After considerable effort a market for dairy products was assured the farmers when in 1928 a national cheese company located a factory there. A county appropriation was secured for county agent work in 1928.

In 1929 the cash crop program resulted in farmers selling $150,000 worth of milk, $150,000 worth of tobacco and fifty-five carloads of potatoes and cabbage, mostly through cooperative sales. "This was some step from the $25,000 worth of cash crops in 1928," the county agent says, "and indications are that this amount will be doubled."

Calf Scours Prevented by Giving Proper Feed

Ordinary scours in young calves are caused by indigestion resulting from overfeeding, or feeding milk that is too cold, or feeding it in dirty pails.

When scours come on while the calf is nursing the cow it gets too much milk, or the milk of the dam is too rich, which may be the case with Jerseys. When scours occur while the calf is fed milk it is usually due to feeding too much milk or feeding it in dirty pails.

The best way to handle a case of ordinary scours is to reduce the amount of milk to about one-half the amount the calf should have, until the bowels become normal. An ounce or two of castor oil will help to clear the bowels.

"PASSION PLAY" TO BE SHOWN AT M. E. CHURCH

Literary and Sewing Club Sponsors
Presentation Friday Night

In 1633, the Village of Oberammergau, in Bavaria, was visited by a terrible plague. On its cessation the entire population made a vow to perform the passion play of our Saviour every tenth year, out of gratitude, and as a means of religious instruction—a vow which has ever since been faithfully observed.

The inhabitants of this secluded village have a rare union of artistic ability and cultivation, with perfect simplicity. Their familiarity with religious subjects is even beyond what is usual in the Alpine parts of Germany, and the spectacle is looked upon with the same feeling with which it originated—devout and edifying.

The impersonator of Christ considers his part an act of worship. He and all the rest who are to participate in the enactment are selected for their holy life, and are consecrated to their work with prayer and fasting. In fact it is the ambition of every child in the village to act a part in this great event, and in order to do so they must show in their daily life that they are worthy of such an honor.

Every village girl has an ambition to portray the part of Mary, the mother of Christ. In order to attain they must not, even in thought, do anything contrary to the virtuous and pure character of the mother of our Saviour. Not to be considered fit to take part, however small, in this grand play, is in Oberammergau, considered a great disgrace. To take a

METHODIST NOTES

When Jesus closed his Sermon on the Mount he said some things that touch right home to those who ever have been persecuted or slandered falsely and to whom the world has not been too kind. DISTRICT BODY TO CONVENE IN JUNE

American Legion Posts of This Region to Meet at Charlevoix

In spite of the raw weather, sixteen members of Leslie Shapton Post, American Legion, attended the district convention at Mackinaw City, Sunday, April 26. At this meeting, it was voted by the delegates to hold the next district convention, numbering some 400 people, at Charlevoix, at a date in the month of June, 1931, to be fixed later on. It is the present intention to hold the banquet at the Charlevoix Beach Hotel.

Last Tuesday afternoon and evening, members of the post turned out in force and policed the grounds around the legion hall on East Garfield. A casual inspection of the scene of action will reveal the fact that considerable progress was made. Anyway, all of the participants were observed to do full justice to the tasty pot-luck supper that rewarded their labors. For the first time, the snappy bugle notes of the mess call and the "mess sergeant's" stentorian invitation to "Come and get it" was heard by South Side residents.

hy officials who have been connected with past tours and the cities on this year's itinerary will be able to benefit from the experience gained by these officials.

Due to the rapid development of the light plane and to the increased number of women pilots, it is necessary this year to divide the tour into three divisions; the first to consist of women pilots, the second to consist of light planes and the third to be made up of the main body of the tour. This, together with many new features which have not been carried along on past tours, should make the Third Annual Michigan Air Tour one of the outstanding events of 1931. Several distinguished guests will be carried this year and there will be many well-known pilots, including several of national importance.

The Grand Rapids airport is already being placed in condition for handling the large number of entries and immediately after the pathfinding trip, the work of laying out the definite itinerary will get under way.

LOCAL DEALER IN ATTENDANCE

DEMONSTRATION OF GOODYEAR
TIRE INDUSTRY TUESDAY

Motion Pictures Included Interesting
Views of Goodyear Airship
Dock at Akron

Benj. Brown, local Goodyear dealer, attended an unusual meeting Tuesday at Traverse City when sound movies were utilized for the first time in the tire industry, in a discussion of merchandising and business conditions.

Tire dealers from over a considerable portion of the state attended.

A feature of the gathering was a sound motion picture, "Every Third Wheel" based on the tire industry.

The motion picture, "Every Third Wheel," utilizes professional stage talent, including John R. Hamilton, who played in the original "Lightnin'" and "Seventh Heaven," companies, George Sweet of "Greenwich Village Follies," and "Little Jesse James," and other well known players. The music is by Jean Goldkette and the newest sound reproduction was used, making the film rank in technique with feature pictures shown in regular theatres.

The picture included interesting views of the Goodyear airship dock at Akron, Ohio, where the great navy dirigible, twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin, is nearing completion. There are some unusual pictures also of famous aeronautical visitors, including Col. Lindbergh, Commander Richard E. Byrd and Dr. Hugo Eckener.

Besides the merchandising features "Every Third Wheel" showed the latest developments in tire manufacture, accompanied by detailed explanations telling the why of every step. Many remarkable shots of rugged machinery for testing tire mileage in the factories are included, as well as a rapid tour of the company's world wide activities in rubber growing, cotton growing, fabric manufacture and its seven tire manufacturing plants.

SANATORIUM BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Senate Expected to Take Favorable
Action on Measure

The House of Representatives placed its expected stamp of approval on the northern state tuberculosis sanatorium this week when it passed the measure establishing the institution.

Similar action is looked for in the senate, which less than two weeks ago passed the malt tax bill, providing funds for building the sanatorium. Likewise, the malt bill is expected to have clear sailing in the House, unless entirely unanticipated opposition arises.

The original form of the sanatorium measure was changed in committee by its sponsor, Representative Ward of Grand Traverse county, to agree with the provisions of the malt bill. As reported out of committee and passed by the House, the bill reads:

"The people of the State of Michigan enact:

"There shall be erected in the northern portion of the lower peninsula a state sanatorium for the care and treatment of tuberculosis patients to be known as the 'Northern State Tuberculosis Sanatorium.'"

"The tuberculosis sanatorium commission, as created by Act No. 115 of the Public Acts of 1929, shall select the location thereof and it shall have supervision and control subject to the conditions prescribed in said act, of the construction, equipping, maintenance, and operation thereof.

"As soon after July 1, 1932, as the necessary funds are available the necessary lands for this purpose shall be acquired by said commission and the work of construction and equipping said sanatorium shall be instituted and carried to completion as rapidly as the condition of said fund will permit.

"Upon completion of said sanatorium it shall be operated, maintained and controlled by said commission in accordance with the powers and duties delegated to it by said Act No. 115 of the Public Acts of 1929."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m.

Topic, "Everlasting Punishment."

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to all services.

"Prohibition After Death" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, April 26.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity. I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon." (Hos. 14: 5).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "To ascertain our progress, we must learn where our affections are placed and whom we acknowledge and obey as God. If divine Love is becoming nearer, dearer, and more real to us, matter is then submitting to Spirit." (p. 239).

The American people are urged to go back to the soil, and anyway they have to use the soil to play baseball on.

POULTRY FACTS

COD LIVER OIL AIDS EARLY CHICK

Three Tests Made at North Carolina Station.

Three separate tests made lately at the North Carolina experiment station prove the value of 1 per cent of cod liver oil in the mash feed supplied to early hatched chicks.

"Chicks reared in our laboratories where we could control nearly all conditions have proven the value of cod liver oil in the mash feed," declares Dr. B. E. Kaupp, head of the poultry department at State college. "One lot of chicks fed a complete ration except for the vitamins, broke in health in the fifth week. The chicks receiving 1 per cent of the tested oil in the same kind of mash did not break in health and were strong and well developed. In a second test, the chicks which were not allowed to run out-of-doors nor receive direct sunlight gave us exactly the same results. Those receiving the oil were strong and well and were sold as broilers. Those receiving only the straight mash and grain feed broke in health at the end of the fifth week."

Doctor Kaupp states that a third flock was carried on the basic ration without oil but were given all the tender rape that they would eat. These broke in health in the seventh week indicating that they secured some vitamins from the green feed but not enough to keep them in good health.

In another test, at the coastal plain station, one lot of chicks was allowed to run on a fresh, green pasture three or four hours during the middle of the day with the result that they did break in health but the chicks in the cod liver oil flock, Doctor Kaupp states that those chicks which run out-of-doors pick up other things which are required for good health and development, but usually this is not sufficient as the tests with the cod liver oil show.

As a result of all the tests, Doctor Kaupp believes that the expense of using 1 per cent of this oil is well worth while. It helps up the health and gives stronger constitutional vigor.

Coccidiosis Is Very Destructive to Chicks

Coccidiosis is a disease of the intestines and while it affects all birds it is especially destructive to chicks up to two months old. The cause is a microscopic organism. The transmission of infection from diseased to healthy birds occurs by contamination of the feed, water and ground. The coccidia multiply with great rapidity in the intestines and enormous numbers are discharged in the droppings.

The most prominent and characteristic symptoms in nearly all cases are white, diarrheal discharges and the rapid wasting away of the affected birds. Adult birds have considerable resistance to this germ and the disease is frequently seen in the chronic form.

There is no satisfactory cure for this disease in young chickens.

Balanced Ration for Hens Very Important

Until about fifty years ago chickens were fed only grain and since they were permitted to range at will they secured their essential requirements so they could live and lay some eggs during the spring. About this time it was discovered that additional protein in form of meat or milk fed with the grains became known as the balanced ration—a ration in which the surplus carbohydrates in better proportion by adding a protein concentrate. It was the balanced ration that first made commercial poultry keeping possible, but in the light of recent information on the nutrition of chickens, the poultryman's feeding problem of today is to complete the balanced ration.

Every dairy farmer should provide himself with a milk house to be used exclusively for the handling of milk and milk products. In building a milk house, do not place it too near the stable. Make it an entirely separate building with sufficient window space. Sunlight is a good disinfectant.

FAIRM STOCK

SHIPPING STOCK
IN ALL SEASONSMake Careful Inspection of Car and Remove Refuse.

Before loading a car for shipment of live stock, it should be thoroughly cleaned of all manure and refuse. The car should also be carefully inspected to eliminate all defects such as holes in the floor, projecting nails, etc. In winter it should be well bedded with straw and if the weather is extremely cold, the north side should be covered with building paper. Covering all sides is not advisable, however, because it may smother the stock. In summer the car should be bedded with sand rather than straw and thoroughly wet down for cattle and hogs but need not be wet down for sheep. For hogs in hot weather it is a good plan to suspend 50-pound cakes of ice in sacks at intervals of about four feet along the center line of the car. The mation of the car sprays the hogs with cold water. Handle the stock carefully and do not get them excited. Load uniform grades if possible.

The following details should be observed for the different classes of live stock:

Cattle.—Keep grain-fed cattle on their accustomed ration up to loading time as nearly as possible. Take grass-fed cattle off pasture for a few days. Reduceilage if a heavy silage ration is being fed. Feed timothy hay or wild hay in addition to other roughage as much as they will clean up. If near market keep them off water for 9 to 12 hours before loading. If not, allow it up to finish. Use a shiplock made of canvas or leather instead of a club or prod for handling cattle. Ship cattle that have been fed together rather than mix them from different feed lots. Pen off cripples and the bulls securely when shipped with other cattle.

Hogs.—Reduce the last regular feed before shipping and hogs that are fed on slop rations might be benefited by changing the last feed to middlings and ground oats. The hogs should be rested after the last feed to prevent indigestion. Use short, strong pig hurdles instead of clubs for moving and separating hogs. It is a serious mistake to feed hogs heavily before loading.

Sheep.—Reduce the grain ration about one-half on the day before shipping and feed wild hay or timothy. Water right up to the time of shipment. Withholding water before shipping in order to get a bigger fill on arrival at the market is not only cruel but usually results in the disadvantage of the shipper since it causes hiccups of the skin and may result in bloating and similar digestive troubles. Feeding salt before shipping is likely to cause similar disorders.

TREATMENT AND CARE OF SHEEPOverfeeding Stimulates Too Great Flow of Milk.

The treatment and care of the ewe soon after lambing is of great importance. Overfeeding stimulates too great a milk flow, which may cause digestive trouble in the lamb or garget in the ewe. A ewe will hardly eat too much hay and this need not be limited, but it is better to give no grain until the lamb can take all the milk. Hays or mangolds in addition to hay make an excellent feed at this time as they are very mild and cooling to the system.

If the ewe is troubled with garget or caked udder, she should have immediate attention. Garget was formerly thought to be due to the lamb's not taking all the milk; however, it is now considered a germ disease. Heavy feeding of grain to milking ewes overtaxes the digestive organs and is in part responsible for the disease. Sometimes it is brought on also by colds, phills, etc., due to ewes being compelled to lie on wet ground.

No prescribed remedy has proved an effective cure. As soon as the disease appears give a dose of epsom salts and bathe the udder with hot water to which one ounce of baking soda has been added. Then dry the udder thoroughly and apply a mixture of lard and turpentine, which should be mixed in the consistency of cream and be well rubbed into the udder. Milk the ewe thoroughly and manipulate the udder several times a day. In bad cases nothing seems to check the disease.

After the lamb is taking all the milk, the ewe should be well fed. About one and one-half pounds of grain and three pounds of bright clover or alfalfa with two or three pounds of roots or silage make a full feed. This ration should be continued until the flock is turned out to grass, as good milk flow is essential to the production of strong, vigorous lambs.

When about 12 to 14 days old the lambs will begin nibbling at hay or grain. As grain may be made very cheap at this time, the lambs should be encouraged to take all the hay and grain they will eat, besides the milk from their mothers. This may be done by means of a creep, which is a small pen constructed so as to admit the lambs but exclude the older sheep. It may be made of slats like a picket fence, spacing them seven or eight inches apart, according to the size of the ewes. The creep should be put at a convenient place in the barn so that it will be easy for the lambs to enter it. Clover or alfalfa hay should be before them at all times. A good grain ration for young lambs is chopped oats and wheat bran, two to one.

Young lambs are sometimes troubled with sore mouths. A very good remedy is to wash the affected parts with a two per cent solution of the common coal tar dip. At the same time combs may be found on the teeth of the ewes. If these occur, they should receive similar treatment.

An epidemic of sore eyes may find lodgment in the lamb flocks. The same treatment as for sore mouths should be given and care taken that the solution gets well into the eye.

Lack in Minerals Is Cause of Accidents

When a hog detains at the market with a broken leg or two, or all bruised up in the freight car, the man who raised him calls on the railroad to make good the loss. Usually the producer's conscience is clear—clearer than it might be if he realized that many of the accidents to hogs on the way to market are the results of faulty production methods.

"Losses between the farm and the packer's cooler are an important item reflected in the price which the producer receives," says J. W. Walchert, of the animal husbandry department of the extension service of the Ohio State university in "Pork Production," a bulletin issued by the extension service.

"Losses in transit, covering both crippled and dead hogs, and losses from bruised and diseased meat, are largely within the control of the producer. It is a well-known fact that hogs which have received a ration deficient in minerals or vitamins or both, are more easily crippled due to lack of strength in bone, muscle, and nerve development. Hogs that are heavily sloped or fed out in close quarters frequently die in transit because of lung congestion due to this type of feeding and the lack of sufficient lung capacity."

Avoiding Flu Attacks

It would seem, in the light of our present knowledge of the cause of flu and the conditions which usually surround the onset of an outbreak, that hog owners might well look upon what we have come to look upon as a "bad cold" in humans. That would lead us to say, then, that reasonable feeding, avoidance of unnecessary and extreme exposure, living in dry and properly ventilated quarters go a long way toward avoiding attacks of flu.

SCHOOL NEWS

"Don't despair, the sun has a sinking spell every night, but it rises all right the next morning."—M. C. A.

Indian Princess

An Indian princess from the Chipewewa tribe talked to the high school assembly and junior high, Friday morning. She was representing the tuberculosis association and gave a very interesting talk on health.

She told of the superstitions of her tribe and how they believed in keeping sickness away from her people many years ago. This was by a member of the tribe casting himself into the Niagara Falls and this would make all evil spirits disappear. Later the chief of the tribe became more intellectual and did not believe these superstitions. When sickness came to his tribe a very beautiful Princess wanted to sacrifice herself, but he would not listen to this, but prayed to a God to tell him a better way to bring health to his tribe. The spirit of his wife came down and told him to tell his people to sleep with their tents open and eat proper food and have lots of exercise, sunshine and sleep. They followed these instructions and found that it cured their sickness so they no longer had to sacrifice a member to get well.

She also told us many other superstitions and showed us how they wrote by signs and played a Tom Tom.

She ended by telling that the best way to prevent tuberculosis was to have lots of fresh air, sunshine, proper food, exercise and sleep.

Senior Play

The senior play, "Graustark," sponsored by Mrs. Dowd, will be given May 29.

We feel that it is truly a senior play for every member has an important part in making it a success. Members of the cast, which has not as yet been announced, are Franklin Ross and Wallace Saunders, who will act as Royal Guards.

The staff is as follows: assistant director, Bill Clark; business manager, Noisette Tillotson; assistant manager, Marjorie Manley; stage manager, Glenn Heise; assistants, Chas. Cellner, Lillian Manley, Gwendolyn Miller, Doris Gleason, Dorothy Struthers, Hilda Ogden, Marian McKee; costumes, Mary Simmons, Esther Cuse; electrician, Dixon Warner; ushers, Annabelle Cunningham, Edith Hamlin, Edith Hewitt, Phillis Lyman.

A special meeting of the cast was held Monday evening to study voice and stage technique. By the end of the week all lines will be learned and will be ready for rehearsal at the gymnasium immediately after the operetta is over.

High School Operetta

"The China Shop," a high school opera, will be presented in the auditorium Thursday, May 7, by the Charlevoix high school mixed chorus. This is a clever comedy, set to sparkling music. The setting, a Chinese garden of rare beauty. The costumes will come from Breusser's, Detroit.

English II

The sophomores, at the conclusion of the study of the "short story," were assigned the task of writing an original one. The best stories were written by Dorothy Peterson, who wrote "The Little Blind Orphan Girl," Lin Tillotson "As Advertised," and Jany Oliver "Echo and Beeyan."

Thursday afternoon the 4-H club held its annual exhibit at the local gymnasium. County leader, B. C. Mellenkamp, presided over the affair. The boys and girls of five of the rural schools showed unusual workmanship in each of their accomplishments. Each school presented a short program and the meeting was concluded with a style show, both boys and girls exhibiting their art. Marion Center school made an extremely good showing, winning several first places.

Prof. Robinson of Western State Teachers College

Last Wednesday morning the assembly was favored with a short speech by Prof. Robinson of Kalamazoo Teachers college. His topic was "Success," and he introduced under this such topics such as faith, truth and inspiration. Especially did he speak of inspiration and said that "Every day one should either read a good piece of literature, listen to good music or view a beautiful piece of scenery or painting, and by this way would he receive inspiration." His speech was appreciated by all the classes and certainly he was an inspiration to us.

Soundly built to serve you long and well

The person in the picture is showing one of the many advantages of a Chevrolet Six.

If you could see the new Chevrolet Six being built, you would understand why it performs so well, lasts so long and brings so much satisfaction and pleasure to its owners. The quality of raw materials is held to standards unsurpassed anywhere in the automotive industry. In the manufacture of the engine alone there are hundreds of separate inspections. Pistons are matched in sets to within one-half ounce. Piston pins must be within 1/32 of an inch of their specified size. Connecting rods are matched to within one-quarter ounce and are individually fitted by hand. The special alloy steel crankshaft is the subject of truly amazing care and precision in manufacture and cannot vary from perfection in balance more than 1/16 of an ounce!

These few examples of Chevrolet standards indicate the care used in the manufacture of every part of the car.

Soundly built to serve you long and well! No compromise with quality in manufacture means no compromise with complete satisfaction in ownership.

Chevrolet precision instruments are regularly checked against master gauges which are accurate to one millionth of an inch.

HIGH SCHOOL ON ACCREDITED LIST

RECOGNITION RENEWED UNTIL MONTH OF MARCH, 1932

Local School Meets Standards Required by North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools

Supt. Otterbein of Charlevoix public schools, has received notification that our local high school has been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for the period ending March 20, 1932. This school has been on the accredited list since 1927.

In explanation of the term of accrediting the local school authorities have been advised that it is the established policy of the Association to prepare each year a new list of approved secondary schools accorded this honor and that no school is accredited by the North Central Association for a period longer than one year.

Before any school can be considered for accrediting by the North Central Association it must be on the highest list of schools approved and accredited by the school authorities of this state. In addition it must meet the high standards which the Association maintains with respect to the school building and its equipment, the school library, laboratories and instructional equipment—and apparatus, school records, the requirements for graduation, instruction and spirit, salaries of teachers, the training and preparation of teachers, the teaching load, pupil loads, and the school's program with reference to physical education and to its athletic relationship with other high schools as determined by the state athletic association.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is an accrediting agency comprising twenty states and is the largest regional accrediting agency in the United States. The object of the Association is to establish closer relations between the secondary schools and the institutions of higher education within the North Central states and in such other territory as the North Central Association may recognize. All decisions of the Association bearing on the policies and management of secondary schools and institutions of higher education are understood to be advisory in their character. The accrediting of schools by the North Central Association is a cooperative undertaking. Membership in this Association is purely voluntary. It must be the desire of the local authorities of a high school to have the school accredited by the Association in order to have it considered for accrediting.

Advantages that high schools realize as a result of being accredited by the North Central Association can be summarized as follows:

1—The graduates of an accredited high school are privileged to enter institutions of higher education within the North Central states without entrance examinations, provided that they have studied in the high school subjects required by the college or university for admission. Since other accrediting agencies recognize schools accredited by the North Central Association, this privilege of entering institutions of higher education without examination is extended practically throughout the United States.

2—The graduates of accredited high schools have the assurance that their high school diplomas will be acceptable to state boards having to do with the granting of certificates for the various professions of medicine, dentistry, law, etc. In states requiring graduation from approved high school as prerequisite to the obtaining of a teaching certificate, the graduates of schools accredited by the North Central Association meet the requirements of such a law.

3—A high school approved by the North Central Association must maintain high standards and consequently the community is assured of a program of modern high school education.

4—The examination of the school at regular intervals by inspectors and supervisors serves to stimulate progress and to prevent the development of questionable practices and tendencies.

5—A high school accredited by the North Central Association enjoys a greater prestige in the surrounding country and therefore finds it easier to attract non-resident pupils.

6—The patrons have more confidence in, and are generally more willing to support, an accredited high school.

CIRCUIT COURT ADJOURNMENT FRIDAY

Postponed March Term Concluded After Lengthy Session

With the sentencing of criminal cases, the postponed March term of circuit court for Charlevoix county closed last Friday morning following a session of nearly two weeks. Practically all cases on one of the largest calendars during the past year were disposed of.

William Algire of Ellsworth, was sentenced by Judge Farm C. Gilbert to serve from 7 to 12 months at Ionia state reformatory. Algire had previously entered a plea of guilty to violation of the liquor law.

Wesley Stickney and Lburr Hetzer of Lansing, who were arrested near Mancelona by Cheboygan state troopers for totting a revolver, were charged with carrying concealed weapons and held for further investigation. Leo Florenski of Boyne Falls, taken on a similar charge, was placed on probation until the October term of court.

Robert McPherson and Lewis Flood, who were arrested near scene of the recent Camp Manitou fire and later confessed to a series of cottage robberies in Oceana, Antrim and Charlevoix counties, were ordered returned to Oceana county to be sentenced for previous crimes. The lads gave their homes as Mears, Michigan.

James Tryon of Boyne City, and George C. Martin of Traverse City, were acquitted by a jury of violating the liquor law.

CHILD HEALTH SPECIALIST TO SPEAK HERE

Will Give Address for Achievement Day Next Thursday

Michigan mothers and fathers are receiving the most recent accepted knowledge of the scientific world as it relates to child training through the work of Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde, child care and training specialist in the home economics extension department of the Michigan State college, who has chosen "The Playing Family" as the topic of her address for the achievement day to be held Wednesday, May 6, at the Congregational church.

Mrs. Lynde spent a recent year at the universities of Minnesota and California as a National Fellow in child development under the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Memorial fund. She has a splendid background on which to base her courses of study, having had seven years experience as a homemaker, also as a teacher of home economics in Indianapolis, where she worked with underprivileged and under-nourished children.

An upstairs telephone saves running down to answer calls

Often, when you are upstairs, the telephone rings. Perhaps it is the grocer, or your husband, or Aunt Sue.

Each time, you must hurry down the steps to answer, and then plod back up again to finish your work.

An extension telephone installed upstairs would save that wasted energy. And at night, it would be a safeguard in emergencies, such as sickness or fire.

Such telephone convenience and safety costs surprisingly little . . . less than 3 cents a day.

Complete and authentic figures on the population of Charlevoix county, compiled by the Bureau of Census, U. S. Department of Commerce, are now available since the 15th census, taken in 1930.

At various times while the census work was in progress, incomplete figures by precincts were made available, although these returns were not complete.

Charlevoix county has had a decrease in population since 1910, of 7,176 and a decrease of 3,707 since 1920. In the city of Charlevoix, the drop since 1910 totals 173, but since 1920, this city enjoyed an increase of 29.

Boyno City and East Jordan suffered the heaviest losses. The former city has taken a slump of nearly fifty per cent over the 20-year period. The population in 1910 was 5,218, as compared with 2,650 in 1930, a loss of 2,568. East Jordan population 20 years ago was 2,516, as compared with 1,523 in 1930, a decrease of 993.

Charlevoix township and the city of Charlevoix are the only two precincts to show a gain since 1920, while Norwood township held its own.

TRAVERSE PLANS CHERRY FESTIVAL

July 15, 16 and 17 Dates Set—Program Being Prepared

Word comes from the executive committee of the Michigan Cherry Festival that this year's festival will be held in Traverse City, July 15, 16 and 17. A program wider in scope than anything that has been hitherto attempted is being formulated, says Don C. Weeks, chairman of the committee.

Of course, a cherry queen will again be chosen, but the committee as yet is not at liberty to reveal the nature of the triumphant procession that is being arranged for her. Details of the queen contest will be announced soon. Last year's queen, it will be remembered visited Chicago, New York and Washington by airplane. In the capital she presented President Hoover with a gigantic Michigan cherry pie, thus attracting national interest to the chief product of the Grand Traverse region.

This will be Traverse City's fourth cherry festival. Starting modestly, the event has grown from year to year, until now it numbers among the leading regional celebrations in the Middle West. There will be the usual program of parades, sports contests on land and water, musical and social events, says the chairman, in addition to certain new features, announcement of which are likely to come as a surprise to those who count on taking in the festival.

STATE PARKS OPEN TWO WEEKS EARLIER

Michigan's state parks will open officially May 15, two weeks earlier than in former years, it was announced by the parks division of the conservation department.

Decision to open the parks earlier this season came as a result of the advanced spring and the large number of people who have already visited the parks.

It is possible that some of the parks will not be reopened this year, but no definite decision has been made.

DAIRY CONFERENCE AT BOYNE TUESDAY

DELEGATES GUESTS OF BANKERS' ASSN. AT LUNCHEON

Program to Facilitate Dairy Industry in Charlevoix County Will Be Outlined

Delegates to the Charlevoix county Dairy Producers conference, to be held Tuesday, May 12, at Boyne City, will be guests of the Charlevoix County Bankers' Association at luncheon at 12 o'clock eastern standard time.

The Bankers' Association believe that the conference to be held Tuesday will provide a splendid means of creating a more profitable dairy business in Charlevoix county, and also, with each town and farm independent as they are, it will reflect in added prosperity for the entire community. For this reason, among others, they will be hosts to delegates at the luncheon.

Delegates to the conference will meet at the Boyne City library at 10:30 eastern standard time. Interest in the outcome is being eagerly anticipated throughout the county by dairymen who are interested in the advancement of their industry.

The program has been completed with a full day's work for everyone. Except for a few talks outlining dairy conditions in the county, the entire meeting will be one of free and open discussion by the delegates, who will decide for themselves upon the proper program of dairy improvement for the county.

A. C. Baltzer, in charge of dairy extension, Michigan State college, will bring before the delegates the results of 70 years research work conducted at the college.

Following is the program for the conference:

- 10:30—Registration of delegates.
- 11:00—"Local Dairy Situation," by B. C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent.
- 11:15—"Factors Affecting Dairy Profits," by A. C. Baltzer.
- 12:00—Luncheon.

TROUT FISHING IS LIGHT FIRST DAYS

TOO MANY ANGLERS OUT AND DAY WAS TOO BRIGHT

Opening Day Set Record for Number Anglers on Streams and Rivers in Northern Michigan

The initial week end of the 1931 trout season is past, and, in all likelihood, the speckled inhabitants of Northern Michigan's many trout streams and rivers are mighty glad of it.

It is quite probable that a record was set last Friday for the number of anglers out on the opening day. Local sportsmen returned with reports that there was hardly standing room or parking space in and along streams and rivers. Sunday, and in fact, the entire week end, saw hundreds of local and down-state fishermen on the streams. The Jordan, Boyne and Cedar rivers, Orr, Monroe and Horton creeks drew the largest portion of local sportsmen. On the Jordan and Cedar rivers it looked like a Fourth of July celebration crowd. Every few rods one would encounter fishermen, and the ponds on the Cedar and other rivers had about as many boats as they could accommodate.

Low water, too many fishermen and too bright a day had their effects. In direct contrast to a year ago, when many record catches were made throughout this region, results so far this season have fallen below expectations as far as local anglers are concerned. A year ago, many streams which had been closed over a period of several years were opened. The result was record catches of large trout. With the exception of a few isolated instances, no big trout have been taken since May 1.

There were few limit catches made the opening day. Even some of the old-timers who seldom fail to fill up on May 1, returned home with lightly-laden creels.

With the first week end rush now over, the trout will have a breathing spell, and from now on, the old "died-in-the-wool" fishermen will have their inning. What we mean is those boys who stay by 'em all season—the ones who aren't bothered by a little heat, too many bugs and other trifling things which don't mean a thing to the honest-to-goodness fishermen.

MALT TAX MEASURE PASSED BY HOUSE

Provides Funds for Northern TB Sanatorium—Up to Governor

The malt tax, providing funds to finance construction of a Northern Tuberculosis Sanatorium, was voted through by the House of Representatives on April 30, by a majority of 60 to 25.

The senate having previously approved the bill, it now rests with Gov. Wilbur Brucker, who may, and again, may not affix his signature to it.

In the event of a veto by the governor, legislative leaders in back of the bill plan to begin at once steps toward securing its re-passage with the necessary two-thirds majorities.

AIR TOUR PATHFINDERS HERE SATURDAY

GROUP ENTERTAINED AT NOON BY LOCAL OFFICIALS

Tour Stop at Charlevoix Airport Improbable—Officials Believe Cost Too High to Warrant Visit

Four of five airplanes which started from Grand Rapids a week ago last Monday on a 1500-mile pathfinding trip of the upper and lower peninsulas for the third annual Michigan air tour, to be held June 18-27, visited Charlevoix airport last Saturday.

Charlevoix citizens and officials entertained the group on the pathfinding trip to a luncheon at Monte's restaurant, where details of the proposed tour visit were discussed. Among local representatives were Alderman Clare Webster, chairman of the Association of Commerce aviation committee, Dr. C. J. Winder, president of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, Alderman J. M. Foster, Harley Ochs, Fred E. Cartier and others.

Members of the pathfinding group were Wayne Sheldon, tour referee; "Ted" Ahrens, Lansing, president of Ahrens Aerial Survey Corp., and his passenger, Charles Sapp of the Grand Rapids Herald; Sheldon B. Steers, inspector, state board of aeronautics, who had Thomas Walsh, manager of Grand Rapids airport, as his passenger; Irving Woodhams, operating a Curtis Robin cabin plane, with Richard Boullard, Standard Oil Co. representative, as passenger; Byron D. Contes, tour manager, and Roland Pierson of Grand Rapids.

Charlevoix was asked to take a noon stop on this year's tour. Following considerable discussion of the proposition by the city council and other interested citizens, the general consensus of opinion was that the expense of entertaining the stop here would come higher than its value justified. Expense of the visit is usually met by charging autos for parking and a percentage on tickets sold on passenger flights.

It was pointed out that Charlevoix is too close to the Emmet county airport, where the tour will make an over night stop, to draw large crowds here the following day. While the matter has not been definitely closed, in all probability the tour will not be invited to stop here.

The cost would come to a rather high figure, and Charlevoix has other places where the money could be spent to a better advantage.

Northern Michigan Girls' Conference

The Campfire Girls under the leadership of their guardian, Miss Helen Batton, and the Girl Scouts, with their captain, Miss Mary Lemieux, attended the Northern Michigan Girls' Conference at the gymnasium in Boyne City, Saturday, May 2. This was the first girls' conference ever held in Northern Michigan and was voted by everyone a tremendous success. About 200 girls of junior and senior high schools represented nine of our northern towns. These girls belonged to Girl Scouts, Campfire, Girl Reserve and Girls League groups.

The meeting started off splendidly with an opening prayer by Rev. Smock, a get-acquainted meeting for all girls and leaders, and then the address by Miss Bertha Roman, Dean of Women at Mt. Pleasant Normal college, was given. Miss Roman proved a delightful speaker to girls and her address was inspirational, instructive and helpful in many ways. After a delicious banquet at the Wolverine hotel the girls again met in the gymnasium for demonstrations, games and group meetings, while the leaders met to discuss ways and means for another Northern Michigan Girls' Conference next year. Miss Bilton of Charlevoix, Mrs. H. R. Schubert of Petoskey, and Miss Josie Hammond of Boyne City, were appointed as the committee to carry on future work. It was agreed that some town should extend a welcome to the girls next year.

At the group meetings of the Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls from the various towns, the Charlevoix groups found much encouragement and plan next year to add more girls to their present enrollment. They have a splendid start toward being girls of whom Charlevoix may well be proud. They are learning in these activities the opportunities that make for healthful, happy living, usefulness to their families and community, and living up to the highest ideals which they know.

In and About School

(By S. J. C.)

A new book is being written at present by several high school girls. The name of the book is "How To Put One Over." For further information inquire of Betty Carlier, Kathleen McCall or Dorothy Griffin.

We wonder what has happened to our artist that used to fill the bulletin board with cartoons of the prominent men of the day.

Report cards went out again this week; something else to remind us that we've just five more weeks of school, and so many things yet to come. —J.Hop, Senior Prom and exams.

We have had very good attendance this week except for the mumps victims. Mr. North tells us that the weather has been so cold that he thinks the "spring fever" germs can't live.

Congratulations seniors, on the clever trophy cases you have presented to the school.

You can't keep a good man down, not when the fish are biting—at least not Coleman. Last Saturday he tossed aside his books, and with rod and reel he went out to bring home the bacon. He did—six dandy brook trout.

Operetta

The staging for the operetta, "The China Shop," is completed and ready for presentation Thursday evening, May 7. The expense of such a production is necessarily high, and it is hoped there will be a good attendance. Come early to get your seat!

Results of Band Contest

Another laurel for Charlevoix was won when the band placed first among the class C bands of this district at the music contest in Traverse City last Friday. There were nine bands competing besides orchestras, woodwind and brass quartettes, boys and girls glee clubs, and mixed choruses. Charlevoix entered a band, a woodwind quartette, and an orchestra. The woodwind quartette, consisting of Hugh Parker, Esther Case, Wallace Saunders, and Bill Brown, also carried away honors by winning second place. Those who were members of competing organizations, and others attending the contest, had a very fine opportunity to enjoy a day's program of music and to see what other communities are doing in this field.

The members of the band are very grateful to Mr. Ter Wee, the director, and are proud to say that a judge complimented the members for having one of the best directors present at the contest.

Commercial Contest

The commercial contest took place Saturday at Cheboygan. Charlevoix representatives were Dorothy Griffin and Lila Van Dusen, for shorthand, and in the team typing, Lola Fessenden, Eloise Tillotson, Lauretta Stutzman and Leone Block. All the girls did well, and Charlevoix was awarded a certificate for proficiency in team typing.

Debater's Trip

The Charlevoix debaters left for their trip to Ann Arbor, for the purpose of attending the state championship debate, April 28. The debate coach, Mrs. Dowd, and two of the debaters, Dorothy Staley and Virginia Nickerson, made the trip in Mrs. Dowd's car. They left Wednesday afternoon at 4:20 and made the trip to Lansing in 5 hours and 15 minutes.

Thursday the trio went sight seeing in Lansing and were taken through the state capitol. At noon they continued to Ann Arbor, where "The Charm School" was presented by youthful actors in Hill auditorium, Thursday night.

A very interesting lecture by Dr. Angel, president of Yale University, was given Friday morning, after which he was presented the "Degree of Doctor of Law" by the president of the U. of M.

A campus tour and a baseball game between Michigan and Colgate, Michigan being the victors, was the program for the afternoon.

Friday evening, May 1, the state championship debate was held in Hill auditorium. Both teams did splendidly.

Saturday morning the debaters motored to Detroit, where they attended one of Shaw's plays in the afternoon, at the Civic theatre. The trio left for Charlevoix late Sunday morning.

MILK RULES ARE BASED ON HEALTH

States Are Now Seeking the Same Level for Butterfat.

That the rules for health are becoming standardized throughout the nation and they are becoming more uniform in the respective states is indicated by figures compiled from the latest government reports by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America and put in a condensed summary of "A Few Facts to Be Considered in Drafting a Milk Ordinance or Milk Regulations."

They show that 44 states have their own regulations in regard to the butterfat and total solids content sold as whole milk and that five use the federal regulations in this regard. Forty-two states now have fat requirements of 3.25 per cent or less, compared to 30 states in 1926. One has a fat requirement of 3.5 per cent, two require 3.25 per cent, and four require 3.50 per cent. Since 1926, three more states have found it advisable to change the requirement from 3.50 to 3.25 per cent. No state requires 4 per cent fat and the federal score card no longer requires 4 per cent fat in order to have a "perfect" milk.

Chicago and New York recently considered the advisability of requiring the high fat standard of 3.5 per cent fat in whole milk but decided that 3.25 per cent was a better requirement. Doctors generally oppose a high fat requirement, especially for children and invalids, and some advocate 2 per cent fat in milk as more satisfactory for children. Commercial milk companies have discovered this same fact on their milk routes as they find that more butterfat (and consequently more milk) will be used by their patrons when the fat content more nearly approaches that of mother's milk which is comparable in fat content to that of the average cow.

Clean Utensils Assist in High Grade Cream

(By JAMES W. LIND, Extension Dairyman, Kansas State Agricultural College.)

Past experience shows that it is impossible to make a truly high grade butter from butterfat that has come from frozen cream. It is not uncommon for cream to set on the floor of the kitchen or some other room and be a long time in cooling. Such a practice is no more desirable in the winter than in the summer nor is it best to add warm cream to cool cream or to stir cream without first cooling the new cream.

For most profitable results recommendations call for clean utensils so that when the milk comes in contact with them it will not be contaminated. The dairyman who is after high grade cream in the winter will pay attention to the cleanliness of his cows. Clean stalls, clipping of the udder and udder and right tank so that it will not retain the dirt and filth, and removal of loose particles of dirt with a damp rag or sponge will help in securing quality cream.

Salt and Mineral Cups

Increase Production

Salt and mineral cups, which are a rather new piece of farm equipment, have been responsible for increased milk flow. These cups are used in connection with automatic drinking bowls, and attach to the stanchions within convenient reach of the cows. Besides supplying needed mineral food for milk production, constant access to salt also stimulates thirst and results in consumption of greater quantities of water. Many dairymen find that the definite increase in milk flow will pay for the cost of the cups in about two months time.

Much investigation has been made to determine the best design and shape of salt cups. It has been found that cows will waste much of the mineral if the containers are shallow and wide topped. Consequently the tendency is to make the cups with rather narrow openings so that the cow can reach the salt with her tongue only.

Heating Hog Houses

Insures Pig Crops

Rather significant developments are occurring in hog raising methods in cold climates. Farmers want to have their crop of spring pigs early so that they will be ready for the full market just as quickly as possible. The advantage of the early start is very material. However, in the northern states the weather in early spring sometimes is very cold and new-born pigs are likely to suffer severely.

The well-known practice of using brooders for small chickens is being extended to the hog-raising business. Special houses are being built in which young pigs can be given extra good care. Heaters are installed and it is interesting to watch the little pigs scramble around to get into the area of warmth around this heater. It shows that they appreciate it.

Practical hog raisers who have tried out artificial heat in a practical way testify to the value of this improvement. The cost of utilizing it is not very great but it certainly is good insurance of big pig crops.

Heated Water Helps

Porkers Make Gains

For winter hog production, experiments carried on last winter at the Iowa experiment station showed that heated water in automatic hog waterers paid good dividends by helping the porkers make quicker and heavier gains. Such heaters use a small ker-

AUTOISTS MUST REGISTER EVERY 3 YEARS

Brucker Signs Measure; Have Six Months to be Re-examined

Governor Wilbur M. Brucker Friday signed the Brady-Campbell bill which provides for re-registration of auto drivers every three years. The bill was given immediate effect and drivers whose present licenses were issued prior to 1925 must be renewed within six months from today. Drivers whose present licenses were originally issued since 1925 have an additional six months for renewal.

The bill was drafted by the attorney general's department at the request of Governor Brucker and received the approval of a special group which he called into conference. Originally the measure called for re-examination with each re-registration but this proviso was stricken. Brucker also signed Senator Calvin A. Campbell's bill which contains general amendments to the act creating the state board of aeronautics and particularly adds two new members, the commissioners of public safety and highway.

DAIRY INDUSTRY LOSES TAX FIGHT

Butter Protection Bill Turned Down by Senate as Too Vicious

Agricultural forces in the legislature, seeking to protect the dairy industry by imposing a tax on oleomargarine, last Thursday suffered one of the most serious setbacks of the present session. The senate with a margin of a single vote, sent Rep. Milo A. Johnson's bill back to the general taxation committee with the frank explanation that it will be "buried" there. The vote was 15 to 14.

The bill, continually amended during its passage through the house and in the senate public health committee which had reported it out without recommendation, provided for a tax of six cents a pound on all butter substitutes.

Motion to reconsider the measure to committee was made by Sen. Ari H. Woodruff of Wyandotte, who said that it was one of the most vicious proposals to be made at the present session.

"If this is designed to be a tax measure," Woodruff said, "it is taxation directed against those who can least afford to pay. It would be placing another burden upon those who buy oleomargarine because they cannot afford to buy butter."

The senate also passed the Carpenter bill which provides for expenditure of $200,000 for purchase of 2,000 acres of land in northern Michigan to be used as a penal camp for short term prisoners.

The ladies of the Church of God will hold a baked goods sale at the Lusk Dry Goods store, Saturday, May 9th.—Adv. 1811.

CONSIDER SITES FOR PRESIDENT VACATION

Mackinac Island, Petoskey and Turtle Lake Club Mentioned

Suggestions for the location of a summer capitol for President Hoover, should he decide to accept the invitation of the Michigan legislature were requested last week by a House and Senate committee.

The committee was appointed following passage of a resolution inviting the president to come to Michigan to spend his vacation this year. The committee said, in a written statement, that it has under consideration several locations which will be suggested to the president, but it feels that perhaps there are others equally as attractive.

In its communication the committee said that it has under consideration sites at Mackinac Island; the Turtle Lake Club, in Montmorency and Alpena counties; Au Sable district; Point-Aux-Barques, Leelanau county; Rock River ranch; Petoskey and Isle Royale.

The formal invitation to the President may be taken by the committee via airplane. In the meantime suggestions as to where the summer capitol might be established are to be mailed to Sen. Albert J. Engle of Lake City, chairman. Other members of the group are Reps. Earl I. Burhans, Conrad J. Netting, and Dana H. Hinkley; and Sens. Norman B. Horton and Herbert J. Rushton.

Atmosphere and Rhythm Give Screen Production Convincing Life Spark

Every veteran of the entertainment world knows that atmosphere, an elusive something which gives a production background, color and the quality of being convincing, is essential to the success of a motion picture. It is the spark that has given life and reality to most of the dramatic offerings of great producers. This element is not injected into a picture by accident. It is carefully planned from the very beginning.

An illustration of the way atmosphere has been blended with sound and action is Lionel Barrymore's direction of the Columbia picture, "Ten Cents a Dance," featuring Barbara Stanwyck, which will be seen at the Palace theatre for two days starting Saturday.

The important sequences occur in a dance pavilion. In order to convey the joy crazed restlessness of the characters, their desire for dazzling lights, for jazz music, for the intoxicating embrace of the dance, a large crystal ball is used to gain an unusual effect.

This brilliant globe of light revolves incessantly, its reflections shimmering with the same rhythmic syncopation as the insistent notes of the tantalizing saxophones. And the characters are swept past in a wild procession . . . a bacchanalia of light and music. The entire story has been told with the use of varying rhythms to express the moods of the characters.

This Columbia picture was based upon the popular song "Ten Cents a Dance."

Widely known as a romantic screen hero, Hamilton is both leading man and gangster-crook in "The Widow from Chicago," First National's most recent production, which is coming to the Palace theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

A few years ago Hamilton's fine physique made him a favorite model in art schools. He also posed for photographic and commercial artist's studies of "collar ads" and so on, between plays in New York City.

For five years he was on the New York stage and for three years on the road. D. W. Griffith gave him his first chance in pictures.

"The Widow from Chicago" boasts a very fine cast, including such celebrities as Edward C. Robinson, Frank McHugh, Alice White and Betty Francisco, in addition to Neil Hamilton. It was directed by Edward Cline, and was adapted by Earl Baldwin from a story written by himself.

CORN PLANT NEEDS GOOD FOOD SUPPLY

Rapid Growth Helps Yield and Matures Grain Before Time of Frost

One way to increase the profits from the corn crop is to reduce the cost of growing each bushel and this can be done by feeding the corn plant well enough to permit the production of the maximum number of bushels on each acre, according to members of the soils department at Michigan State college.

The corn plant is a heavy feeder and, in Michigan, must grow rapidly to become mature before there is danger from frost. To enable the plant to make this growth, the soil must contain an abundance of plant food which is readily available.

Barnyard manure is an excellent source of plant food for corn, and, if the supply is large enough, a heavy application will supply the necessary plant food. It is also possible to supplement barnyard manure by adding 30 or 40 pounds of acid phosphate to each load of manure. The phosphate helps to supply needed plant food and also hastens the growth of the plant and aids it to mature earlier.

TREATED SEED STOPS DISEASES OF POTATO

Simple Method Controls Ills Which Seriously Damage Tubers

Treatment of seed potatoes with corrosive sublimate will prevent the damage caused by scab, black scurf, and black leg which seriously injure the quality and sometimes reduce the yields of Michigan potatoes, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

The seed should be treated before sprouting has begun and before the seed is cut. Corrosive sublimate corrodes metal and the treatment must be given in wooden containers.

The treating solution is made by dissolving four ounces of the chemical in a few quarts of hot water which is then added to 30 gallons of water. The potatoes must be submerged in the solution and left for 30 minutes; after which they should be removed and spread out in a cool place where they will dry quickly.

Suffering is the price paid for waste.

When we waste, someone suffers, because someone has produced what we waste at the cost of great effort, health, or deprivation.

We learned this lesson hard, the war taught it to us, but let us not forget it.

New Christian Science Publishing House

BOSTON, Mass. - Continued growth of the activities of The Christian Science Publishing Society has necessitated expanded facilities. To meet this condition The Christian Science Board of Directors of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, will erect, as soon as plans and arrangements are completed, a new Publishing House.

Here provision will be made for the needs of The Christian Science Monitor, The Christian Science Journal, The Christian Science Herald, and all other literature published by the Society.

The new building, which will cost approximately $100,000, will occupy approximately 10,000 square feet of ground situated on Massachusetts Avenue, between Falmouth and Broadway Streets, Park Pay.

These are to be hastened in accordance with the public and private building program which Mayor James M. Curley of Boston has been urging in conjunction with President Hoover's recommendations for relief of unemployment.

The structure will have a varying height. The Massachusetts Avenue end of the building, which will be used for offices, will be a three-story building. The other Church end will be a two-story building.

The building now occupied by The Christian Science Publishing Society, completed in 1908, will be used for the administration offices of The Mother Church.

be an all-stone building of the Italian Renaissance type, the lower story to be of granite and the upper stories of limestone.

Special attention will be given to the installation of modern heating and ventilating devices. The central plant will be housed in a building adapted to it, with an ornamental tower inclosing the stack, the tower to be of brick and stone conforming with the beauty and symmetry of the main building.

The architect is Chester Lindsay Churchill, and with him is associated Lockwood-Greene Engineers, Inc., of Boston, which will have charge of the plan layout.

THE INDIVIDUAL AND HIS BANK

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Association

BANKERS recognize that their business carries especially heavy public responsibilities and welcome all sound measures to aid them meet the duties this imposes. Unceasing efforts to bring about continually improving methods to safeguard depositors in banks of all kinds have long been uppermost in the plans of bankers' organizations throughout the nation. They are not the outgrowth merely of the past year of business adversity, but have been carried on actively for many years and have resulted in great progress along lines of better, safer banking methods. Although banking along with all business has suffered reverses, conditions in this field have been far less severe than they would have been had not bankers been widely successful in their endeavors to develop the high standards of banking that now generally prevail.

R. C. STEPHENSON

The American Bankers Association and bankers' organizations in every state actively support the principle of government supervision of banking. The national banks, which receive their charters to do business from the federal government, are under the supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington. Through his efficient staffs of expert bank examiners in every section he has the duty and powers to keep watch of the way every national bank is being conducted, to suggest desirable changes in its policies or methods and even to step in and take control for the protection of the depositors if such action is warranted. The state banks, also, which are chartered by the various state governments, are subject to similar supervision and control by state bank officials. In addition banks in many places have long maintained voluntary clearing house associations which enforce even closer supervision over their members.

Bankers Favor Public Supervision
Present laws adequately enforced contain ample provisions for government supervision. Bankers universally believe in strong, capable banking departments manned by officials with the discretion and courage to enforce these laws and not under them as the common welfare demands. They believe that these public officials should be paid sufficient salaries to command the services of men of character, ability and a resolute spirit of public service. They believe also that the banking departments should be kept free from all political or other special influence in order to be able to act at all times with single-minded independence solely for the benefit of the public interest.

Although banks in the United States operating under state or national charters are thus subject to supervision of public authority, they are strictly private business enterprises. They are owned by their stockholders and administered by officials chosen through the boards of directors which their stockholders elect. No bank is owned or operated by the United States Government, nor, with one small exception in a western state, by any state government. The function of government in banking is to promote and enforce careful banking administration through the system of examination and supervision which I have described. This, however, does not relieve the individual depositor from the necessity of judging and choosing carefully as to his banking relations, just as in his other business or professional relations. He must inquire for himself into the character and type of institution and men he shall do business with, satisfying himself as to their reputation, reliability and capability. These qualities are essential to complete the element of safety and dependability in any human institution.

An Illusory Law

The bank deposit guaranty law in any form is a sure and a delusion, declares a banker in a state where it has been tried, adding: "It is a license and encouragement to irresponsible banks and banking and penalizes capital solvency and prudent banking. It creates a sense of security in the minds of the unthinking and uninformed that is false and impossible to be realized on ultimately. To compare it to legitimate insurance is without reason and absurd. It jeopardizes the solvency of all banks and the safety of all depositors for the theoretical safety of a few. Guaranty schemes always have been, are and always will be impotent, futile and disastrous. It is not new. Has been tried, failed and discarded at intervals for more than 100 years in this country. No well-informed, honest and intelligent mind can accept it in principle or practice. Competent bank supervision and restriction of banks to territory that will warrant sufficient capital investment and accounts is the only sane and honest course and will afford all the guaranty the depositing public is entitled to as compared with all other human affairs."

Farm Service by a Bank

A farm service department was inaugurated a year ago by a bank in Olympia, Washington, and a farm advisor appointed. Close cooperation has been maintained with the state college extension service. Work in dairying is carried on in conjunction with the Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Also a pasture contest was held in cooperation with the four banks in the county which offered prizes amounting to $100. Work in poultry was carried on in cooperation with the Co-operative Poultry Association and assistance was given in organizing an economic conference for the benefit of berry growers. The farm advisor of the bank is active in the Agricultural Council of the county composed of farm and other organizations interested in agricultural development, and also in the Farmers' Market. Six hundred farm business analysis blanks were distributed while farm account books and poultry record books were also provided to farmers and have been helpful in starting many farmers in keeping business records.

Banks Favor Diversification

Emphasis was placed on the strategic position the banker holds through the use of direct credit at a recent meeting of the Alabama bankers' agricultural committee. Alabama is confronted with the problem of over-production of cotton. The committee recommended to banks that credit be extended on the basis of a twenty-five per cent reduction in cotton acreage. The value of growing other crops than cotton was strongly stressed and county outlook meetings are being planned with the thought of bringing about a more balanced agricultural program in the various communities.

American cars were prominent among the 350 shown at the "Hand show" conducted by the agricultural society at Johannesburg, South Africa, this year.

Doctor Dublin finds that 65 per cent of automobile fatalities occurred to pedestrians, which will surprise those of us who didn't suppose there were that many pedestrians.

An engineer in England has perfected a "clutchless car" which does not do away, however, with the clutch around the neck when the car is started.

SURVEY OF DAIRY INDUSTRY IN PROGRESS

Information Wanted for Dairy Profits Conference May 12

A county-wide survey is being made in Charlevoix county in anticipation of the dairy profits conference at Boyne City on May 12. This survey is being made by eighth grade and high school boys. One boy from each school district will do the work under the official guidance of the delegate from the district.

The information will be used only at the conference, in outlining a long-time program of work that will fit the dairy needs of the county. It will include the number of dairy cows and heifers, the number of bulls over 12 months and under that age, and whether they are scrub or registered, and the breed of dairy animals owned. This will indicate the true status of dairying in every district, township and the county. This survey will have an important bearing on the effectiveness of the conference.

The roster of delegates to the 1931 Dairy profits conference for Charlevoix county has just been completed, with one delegate from each school district. The delegates were appointed by a committee consisting of School Commissioner, William C. Palmer, County Agent B. C. Mellenkamp, and County Key Banker W. G. Cernell of East Jordan. The entire group of delegates will meet at Boyne City on May 12, together with the County Agent and A. C. Baltzer, in charge of dairy extension, Michigan State college.

PLANS FOR VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL MADE

Congregational Church to Conduct Classes Under Mrs. C. R. Parker

Only five more weeks of school. That thought brings cheer from the youngsters who have spent from nine to ten months in the school room. But there is a feeling of concern upon the parts of many parents. "What will we do with Mary and Jack?"

The Congregational Sunday school is offering a solution. Beginning immediately after school is out they are planning to open a daily vacation Bible school. The work will be in charge of Mrs. C. R. Parker, who has had extensive training in this field of activity. For several years she was connected, as one of the teachers, with the Kent County Sunday School Association while in Grand Rapids. She had charge of several of the largest vacation schools conducted by that association. While in Watervliet she directed schools several seasons. With this background one can judge that Mrs. Parker is well prepared for the proposed school.

ANTRIM IRON COMPANY TO SHUT DOWN

Close Operation Temporarily to Make Necessary Repairs

The big Antrim Iron company plant at Mancelona plans to shut down some time in May for the remainder of the summer. Just how long the institution will be closed is not known.

The plant will not be shut down entirely as some repairs and other work will go forward and the saw mill will continue operations.

The company has notified its regular crew members to plant large gardens this summer and raise as much as possible for the summer and next winter. The company will aid the men by plowing gardens with a tractor.

Chevrolet has struck a popular new note in motor-car styling

Chevrolet's front-end is a fine example of the latest trend in modern design.

Many factors have contributed to the remarkably widespread popularity of the new Chevrolet Six. Among these are smooth performance, low price, matchless economy, exceptional riding ease and driving comfort. But no feature has been more strikingly evident in the enthusiastic public reception of the car than its smart new style.

Lines, sweeping fenders and massive wire wheels strikingly suggest the car's fitness and power. And the appeal of Chevrolet's beauty is made more pronounced by the fact that all models are available in a variety of colors.

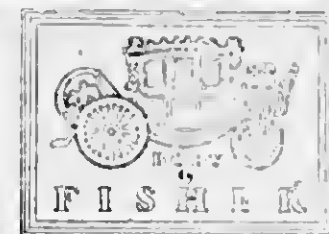

In Chevrolet's smart appearance is the de luxe wire wheels, with fenders, steel spokes and massive chrome-plated hub caps.

Interiors, too, are unusual in every way. The upholstery is carefully tailored. Seats are roomy, deeply cushioned and invitingly soft. And the interiors are tastefully appointed.

Fisher Body craftsmen, with their background of fine-car designing, have made this new Chevrolet an exceptionally attractive automobile.

Study it from any angle and you find it extremely pleasing. Look at it from the front and you are impressed by the modish ensemble of deep radiator, large headlamps and arched, tie-bar—glamorous in rich chromium plate. Viewed from the side, the long hood, low-awing body

This emblem, known as Fisher's, is a symbol of supreme body craftsmanship—exclusive with Chevrolet in the four-price field.

In fact, the new Chevrolet Six is such a thoroughly fine-looking automobile that it has become a very popular choice with every type of buyer. You find it not only the smart family car, but the smart personal car as well—a worthy companion to the expensive automobiles of the two- and three-car household.

MAY TWENTY-NINTH IS LEGION'S POPPY DAY

Proceeds Go in Part to Disabled Men
Who Served in Great War

At a meeting Tuesday evening, of Leslie Shapton Post, American Legion, it was decided to establish Friday, May 29, 1931, as the date of the annual poppy sale. This year, the Girl Scouts under the leadership of Miss Mary Lemieux, will sell the poppies.

Please remember that these poppies are made by crippled and otherwise incapacitated veterans in the various government hospitals and that they derive a certain revenue from them. When you buy a poppy, your money helps to make life a little more endurable for the men who interposed their lives between your safe and sheltered existence and the horrors of the greatest war in history.

On next Tuesday evening, the regular meeting night of the Legion, the members are asked to turn out for another clean-up "bee" to finish painting the grounds around the Legion hall on East Garfield avenue. Those who are able to come Tuesday afternoon can get a good start on the work. On Friday, May 8th, the painting committee wants volunteers to finish up the painting on the outside of the building. You don't have to be an expert painter, as there will be plenty of jobs for the unskilled. Bring a paint brush if you have one. This will be an all-day affair. Quite a bit of repair work has been done on the inside of the building and the walls are all ready for sizing, work which will be done at night, by volunteer workers.

It is understood that Glenn Adams, new manager at The Inn, is now enroute from Florida to Charlevoix to assume his duties.

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, May 3.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand, O king." (Dan. 3:17).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let us remember that the eternal law of right, though it can never annul the law which makes sin its own executioner, exempts man from all penalties but those due for wrong-doing." (p. 385.)

SMELT RUNS DIFFER IN NORTHERN REGION

East Jordan and Beulah Have Record Runs This Year

The 1931 smelt run in rivers and streams in the northern part of the lower peninsula of Michigan has been termed a season of "varied luck."

Reports coming from various localities are that the fish in some instances were more numerous than in previous years while in sections where they were abundant last season little success was reported this spring.

At Beulah the season lasted eleven days in which time, it is estimated by conservation officials, about 12 tons of fish were dipped. The season started at a considerable later date than it did in streams further north. Approximately 20,000 persons visited local streams it was reported.

An early run was experienced at East Jordan, due principally, it is said, to the temperature of the water in the Jordan river. Docks are to be built in the river next year to enable fishermen to use nets without wading the river.

At Boyne City where the run is usually heavy, little success was reported this spring. This was due, according to conservationists, because few anglers went up-stream. Dipping activities were confined for the most part near the mouth of the river.

Petoskey experienced its first smelt run, and although the dip was generally light the size of the fish taken exceeded those caught in most other streams nearby. A lot of 100 fish taken from Bear river weighed 42 pounds.—Petoskey Evening News.

COUNTY NORMAL NEWS

Charlevoix county normal alumni banquet at M. E. church, May 23.

The third meeting of the Charlevoix county normal alumni association organized in 1928 will be held at the M. E. church Saturday, May 23, at 6:30 p. m.

All former normalites are urged to attend, making this the biggest and best banquet ever. Such an informal gathering brings out "good folks" and the "good in folks." Come along and see how much you will enjoy the evening. You may meet a friend you haven't seen for years.

Get in touch with the local committee, Miss Juanita Baker, secretary, or the county normal department, and make your reservations, now.

The normal class enjoyed the program which was put on by the Pennsylvania Railway company, Friday, May 1, at Boyne City.

The "stay at schools" hope to hear from members of our class, who are representing the normal class at the lecture on "Landscape Gardening" on Tuesday at 1:30 at the court house. Representatives are also planning on attending the women's county achievement day held at the Congregational church Wednesday. The class wishes to thank Mr. Mellen-camp for the invitation to attend the latter.

Training Room

The first grade children have their kites nearly completed.

The first grade are enjoying the Holland sand table made up under the direction of the Misses Salisz and Szepelak.

Each child in the first grade has planted nasturtium seeds in a flower pot and hopes to have blossoms before school closes.

METHODIST NOTES

Another of those joyous Sundays comes next on the calendar, Mother's day, and it will be fitting if the children celebrate "her" day by allowing mother to have an off day, attending church and finding dinner all cooked by the children. Let's not make Mother's day a day we celebrate while she works harder for us. Make it both a holy day and holiday for her. Service is at 10:30, with a special sermon on "God Bless Our Home." We shall print special hymns for congregation and one for mothers only to sing. Also a male quartette will sing "Mother My Dear." We will also distribute appropriate souvenirs of the day.

Church school meets at noon with classes for all ages.

Epworth League has a session at 6:30 for all youth. This program develops leadership. It is a young folks own meeting.

Tuesday next the Ladies' Aid meets with Mrs. Hooker.

This Thursday the Literary club meets with Mrs. Harrison Trimble as hostess.

On Wednesday evening at 7:30 the pastor will conduct mid-week service instead of Thursday.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to neighbors, friends and all for their acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement, also to those sending floral tokens. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Heise and family.—Adv. 1811p.

FORD BRAKES ARE UNUSUALLY EFFECTIVE

Reliability and safety due to simple design and careful construction

ONE OF the first things you will notice when you drive the Ford is the quick, effective action of its four-wheel brakes.

They are unusually safe and reliable because they are mechanical, internal expanding, with all braking surfaces fully enclosed. This prevents mud, water, sand, etc., from getting between the band and drum and interfering with brake action.

Other outstanding features of the Ford are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, torque-tube drive, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, Rustless Steel, reliability, economy, and long life.

You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

ANNUAL REPORT OF CHILDREN'S FUND

REVIEW HISTORY AND WORK DONE THRU COUZENS FUND

Much Work Accomplished in District No. 3, of Which Charlevoix County Is a Part

Two years ago Senator Couzens appropriated ten million dollars to use to promote the health, happiness, welfare and general development of children in Michigan primarily, and elsewhere in the world. This fund was named the Children's Fund of Michigan, and the trust required that the secretary give an annual report.

The second annual secretary's report of the Children's Fund shows the vast amount of work that is being carried on by this organization among the children of Michigan.

During the second year of the fund's existence, April 30, 1930, to May 1, 1931, appropriations were made of $1,166,024.48. The work has centered in four major divisions: child health, child guidance, research and dependency. Of these the child health division, under the direction of Dr. Bernard W. Carey, has received the greatest emphasis, there now being 163 workers in different sections of Michigan. They examined and directly helped something over 150,000 children during the year and indirectly influenced many more.

Dental Program. The largest volume of work was done in mouth hygiene by the staff of 22 dentists and four oral hygienists administering to the dental needs of the children of 35 counties in Michigan, and two suburban districts in the Detroit metropolitan area. In granting dental services, the requirements have been that there should be a county nurse, or some other nurse, working in the county to assist the dentist, and to follow through his recommendations; that operating space should be provided; and that a committee of responsible people should be found to advise and cooperate with the dentist sent to the county. Going from school to school inspections were made of the children's teeth. Those in need of correction were referred to local dentists, unless they were indigent, in which case the Children's Fund dentist made the needed corrections.

The regular staff made 73,471 examinations, gave prophylaxis to 17,558 children, inserted 42,870 fillings, and made 21,070 extractions. This work was augmented during the summer months by a special relief program limited entirely to indigent children, in 10 additional counties; 3,845 children received this attention.

County Nursing Program. The county nursing program through which the Children's Fund gives the services of a public health nurse for child health purposes to certain counties hitherto without such services, has not changed materially in this second year, except in size and volume of work. Thirty-three nurses are now in the service of the Children's Fund, and at work in 32 counties. County committees of local citizens are an important part of this work. Through them knowledge of child health practices is spreading widely.

While school health still holds the major position in the program, the importance of prenatal instruction and medical supervision, as well as of the proper feeding and care of infants and pre-school children, is being recognized.

Inspections given school children have numbered 40,439. Visits numbering 16,006 have been made in the interest of infants, pre-school and school children.

Consolidated County Health Units. Two "consolidated" county health units have been added to the two established last year. Unit No. 3 consists of the counties of Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim and Otsego. Unit No. 4 consists of the counties of Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Montmorency and Alpena.

The purpose of the consolidated county health unit is to show that it is practicable for counties with limited taxable resources to unite in a health district for the welfare of their children. Supervisors of each cooperating county vote to join a health district and appoint two or three of their members to a district board of health. The Children's Fund finances a staff composed of a health officer, the needed number of nurses, a dentist, and a sanitary inspector. This staff attacks the problem of child mortality and child morbidity all along the line. Inspection of school children, mouth inspection, improvement in sanitary conditions of schools, of water and milk supplies, control of communicable diseases, and attention to individual needs of individual children are among the things done.

Assistance and support from the district boards of health has been extremely encouraging. Milk ordinances have been under consideration by several communities, and in one instance, has been adopted.

Infant and Prenatal Classes. During the first half of the year the two women physicians engaged in this program, held mother's classes in series of six weeks each including as topics, prenatal care, infant care, the pre-school child, food for the family, child management and training, and home hygiene.

In October a new type of program was introduced which combined mothers' classes and health examinations, and lengthened the period of service of the health educationist to three months in a county. The new program has included some work in tuberculin testing and in immunization.

The physicians have worked in 12 counties during the year. In addition to reaching directly 3,000 children, they have conducted 365 classes with a total attendance of 5,793.

DRIVERS' LICENSE BLANKS ARE HERE

CHIEF JEFFERIES TO HANDLE WORK IN CITY

Money Order, Draft or Certified Check for $1 Must Be Paid With Application

The work of re-registering Michigan's automobile drivers and chauffeurs has started at the office of the Chamber of Commerce information bureau, with Chief of Police Jefferies serving as examining officer for Charlevoix and Sheriff Dave Vaughan for the county. Blanks are on hand at the Chamber of Commerce where Secretary F. V. Tyler will issue them to all applicants. The forms are entirely new, conforming to the recent laws passed by the state legislature. The blanks also serve for new applications as well as those being re-registered.

Persons applying for driver's license must be over 14 years of age. Such persons who are under 18 years of age must have their application blank signed by their parent or guardian. Chauffeurs must be over 18 years of age. Chauffeur applicants must bring with them a small but distinct photograph of themselves. The size is not to exceed 1 3/4 by 2 1/2 inches in size. In case chauffeurs are to drive persons for hire their application must be accompanied by a certificate of health from some physician before it can be accepted.

The fee for a chauffeur's license is $2 and the money must be by certified check, draft or money order made payable to the secretary of state. No cash or personal checks will be accepted by the examining officers. All applicants for driver or chauffeur license must present himself or herself in person for examination.

Chauffeur licenses are good until January 1, 1932, but the driver licenses are good for three years from the date of issue. Persons who have driver's license issued prior to January 1, 1925, must have these renewed inside of six months' time. Persons having licenses issued after January 1, 1925, have one year in which to renew their licenses.

The chauffeur's license also serves as a driver's license for the applicant. Heretofore both a chauffeur's license and a driver's license were necessary for persons who drove cars for hire.

Persons learning to drive cars may secure a temporary permit good for sixty days. The permit entitles the holder to drive only when accompanied by some person holding a regular driver's license. No charge is made for the temporary permit.

It is necessary for car drivers to carry their licenses with them when operating a car. Police or state police, or sheriff's officers may call for the license and failure to present same will be termed a violation of the law.

FISH LAW CHANGES APPEAR FAVORABLE

REQUESTS BY LOCAL ANGLERS IN ROD LICENSE BILL

Representative Louis E. Anderson Reports Bill Likely to Pass—Measure Now in Senate

Word that satisfactory progress is being made on certain fish law changes affecting Lake Charlevoix is contained in a recent communication received by Dr. C. J. Winder, president of Charlevoix Association of Commerce, from Louis E. Anderson, representative from Charlevoix district in the state legislature at Lansing.

The communication, in part, follows:

"The rod license bill passed the House on third reading yesterday (May 5th) and is now in the Senate. The provisions that your communication of January 6 contained are included in the bill, and unless the Senate takes them off, I believe everything you wanted is taken care of. The restrictions on hook and line fishing for lake trout in Lake Charlevoix has been taken out, as well as the $10.00 license fee.

"I am glad you and your Association has taken sufficient interest in matters of legislation to appeal to me concerning the things that affect Charlevoix district.

"Assuring you of my willingness to cooperate with you, I am."

The two important changes in fish laws asked by local sportsmen were removal of the $10.00 license fee, which, it is believed, placed the hand line angler in the same class with the commercial fishermen if he desired to sell his catch. This law worked a hardship on anglers who in the winter were able to make a small amount of fishing for and selling mackinaw trout and perch.

Protest was also made of the law which closed Lake Charlevoix to trolling for mackinaw trout during the month of April, a period during which all inland lakes of the state are closed to fishing. It has been pointed out that mackinaw trout are about the only species biting during April, and the sport has proven an excellent early-season tourist attraction.

It will indeed be a great source of satisfaction to local interests if the law changes mentioned above are made, and Mr. Anderson's efforts in behalf of requested legislation will be appreciated by all concerned.

NEW CHARLEVOIX BOOKLET IS OUT

Changes in Golf and Tennis Pages Enhance Appearance of Folder

Through the efforts of the advertising committees of the city council and Association of Commerce, another 28-page booklet, depicting the advantages of Charlevoix as a summer playground, has been secured from the printer and placed in circulation.

This year's booklet is a re-run of the 1929-30 edition, with changes in the golf and tennis pages and descriptive literature. The golf page now portrays an array of views taken during the Great Lakes Open tournament and new views of the Michigan Riviera Tennis Championships are shown on the tennis page. The booklet will be given wide-spread circulation.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY WAS BIG SUCCESS

FOURTEEN STUDY CLUBS REPRESENTED LAST WEDNESDAY

Highly Interesting Display of Work Shown—Varied Program Enjoyed by Many Visitors

The Achievement day program held in the Congregational church last Wednesday was pronounced the most successful ever put on in the county.

Fourteen study groups were represented. One of these from the southeast part of the county had traveled nearly forty miles to attend the meeting. Walloon Lake group sent the largest representation. Those in attendance were clearly representative women and this extension work is the link which binds them together in community and county service.

The women arrived early and spent an hour or more visiting and viewing the exhibits on display in the lecture room.

The exhibit included bulletin boards, yearly calendars, efficiency note books, books and magazines for home-makers, crocheted rag rugs, treated dustcloths, and homemade floor wax, furniture polish, wall cleaners, moth preventives, stain removers, etc. Among the most admired of the exhibits was a dust-proof, moth proof doll's wardrobe, made by the Horton's Bny group, which could easily be enlarged for family use; and an evergreen wreath adorned with cones made by the Church of God group, Charlevoix.

The community singing of appropriate words to familiar tunes was an enjoyable feature of the occasion. In the morning Mrs. Robert Russell of Walloon Lake was the leader, with Miss Gwendolen Miller at the piano. In the afternoon Mrs. Archie Livingston led, with Mrs. A. J. Stetter at the piano.

Rev. G. Russell Parker, pastor of the church, welcomed the guests and spoke briefly on "Child Psychology" and the right kind of home surroundings.

There were solos by Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Livingston and an instrumental duet by Mr. and Mrs. William Sanderson of Ironton. The evangelists from the Church of God gave two inspiring vocal numbers during the luncheon hour.

County Agent B. C. Mellencamp gave a talk on the development of leadership through the Michigan State college extension service and presented certificates to ninety-two women who had completed the home management project assignments for the current year.

Miss Oona Stuntz, the project specialist, reported the year's work and announced the 1931-32 project will be "Home Furnishings."

The address, "The Playing Family," by Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde, child specialist from the Michigan state college, was the big event of the day. Among her many fine suggestions were family night, appreciation night and the equipment of a back yard play ground.

Mrs. Maud Kittlinger of Boyne City, who presided at the sessions, was re-elected county chairman for next year and Mrs. William C. Palmer of Charlevoix, will be secretary.

Appreciation was expressed through the county agent for the use of the church and the satisfying luncheon served by the Pilgrim Circle.

A resolution committee, consisting of Mrs. Verna Hartell, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith and Mrs. Annie B. Saltonstall, prepared on request the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted by a standing vote.

Resolutions
Whereas, the county agricultural extension work is of inestimable benefit to hundreds of women throughout the county and even beyond,

Therefore be it resolved, that we take this means of expressing to the board of supervisors our appreciation of the county extension program of the past as sponsored by them, the state and federal board, and our anticipation of future work.

DRUNKEN INDIAN IS FOUND ON P. M. RAILS

At First Thought Dead, But Revived to Treatment at Jail

An unidentified Indian, quite full of what apparently was wood alcohol, was found lying on the tracks near the Pere Marquette Railway Company freight house Monday afternoon.

The sheriff's department was notified and the man brought to the local jail. He was revived after a physician's treatment, slept off his "jag" at the jail and departed Tuesday morning—sober and maybe a bit wiser.

Those having cottages, rooms or other accommodations to rent in Charlevoix or vicinity for the resort season of 1931 are requested to list them with the corresponding secretary of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce at the information bureau on Bridge street, as soon as possible.

Full details are desirable. State number of rooms, whether furnished or unfurnished, number of beds in each bedroom and whether single, twin, double or three-quarter, rate per person and for two in one room, per night and by the week or month, if it is desired to rent for the latter periods; whether or not laundry facilities, such as stationary tubs, water-haters, etc., are available; the street number of the property, or its location with respect to intersecting streets, whether or not there is a telephone and the number thereof, and, in case of a farm, its location with respect to nearby lakes, streams, etc., and how to reach it from the highway. There is a considerable demand for this class of accommodation and such farms as will be available this season will be furnished with questionnaires to fill out, detailing what they have to offer. These questionnaires will be sent in to the Information and Travel Bureau of the Detroit News and placed on file for the inspection of prospective patrons.

If you have a boat or a bicycle or a car to rent during the season, or an article of furniture, list this also at the information bureau, describing it in detail and stating rate or price.

Card catalogue records will be made of all this information for the benefit of those inquiring at the bureau during the summer for accommodations of various kinds.

SCHOOL OPERA IS GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

SCENERY, COSTUMES AND ACTING HIGHLY ACCLAIMED

Plot of Unusual Interest Well Portrayed by Cast—Production Staged Two Nights

"The China Shop," which was ably presented by the high school glee clubs on Thursday and repeated on Monday night, has been proclaimed a great success.

Although an entirely different type of operetta than the one put on last year, many people believe it to have been even better than "The Belle of Barcelona."

The scenery was an appropriate setting for the portrayal of the plot. Much time and expense was spent in securing the most beautiful scenery and costumes possible. The stage was housecleaned with flowers and Chinese lanterns. A Chinese cherry tree added much to the realism and beauty of the scene.

The plot was chiefly carried on by means of music, which is a characteristic of a high class operetta.

Fat Sing, a prosperous old merchant of the town of Ping Pong, is tired of life and weary of wealth. He decides to disappear. Before doing so, he arranges to bequeath all his property to the indigent orphans of his native town, thus dispossessing his son, Sing Fong, who has to shift for himself. The business remains in Sing Fong's hands, but the profits are to go to the orphans. The exact terms of Fat Sing's will are not to be made public for a year. In the meantime, Hoy Tee Toy, an elderly spinster who is chaperoning three charming Chinese girls, tries to marry one or the other of them off to Sing Fong, as she believes he is to inherit the old merchant's money. Sing Fong is not anxious to marry any of the three belles. A poor fisherman has a niece, Lotus Blossom, whom he describes to Sing Fong as a beautiful doll, and he offers to sell her as such to Sing Fong. This results in the meeting of Lotus Blossom and Sing Fong with the result of love at first sight. Lotus Blossom, with refreshing incensiousness, does the love-making. Sing Fong is not too enthusiastic as he realizes that he is practically a nauper.

At length Fat Sing disappears, and the populace, under the impression that Sing Fong is now the richest and most influential citizen, elects him to the office of chief magistrate of Ping Pong. The second act shows how he is pestered by the women who want to see him married, and how he retaliates by issuing some more or less effective and embarrassing edicts. At last he resolves to marry none but a wealthy orphan, thinking thus to end his troubles because there are none of that type of orphan in the city. The denouement of the story shows how he is very agreeably and unexpectedly deceived in this, and how he not only falls heir, after all, to the Fat Sing millions, but to the idol of his heart as well.

The comedy element is furnished largely by Mr. Juscut Karfin, an American reformer, the efforts of the three belles to "land" Sing Fong in their matrimonial nets, and by Mush Lush, a woman-hater. Hoy Tee Toy also contributes her share of the comedy. The three belles are not left in the lurch finally, for in Mush Lush and two other Chinamen they find what they may properly be supposed to regard as "the next best thing."

The characters in the play were: Fat Sing, Robert McCall; Sing Fong, Wayne Bolding; Mush Lush, Lee Shapton; Wan Tun, Robert McCall; Tannyu, Bill Clark; Mr. Juscut Karfair, Howard Davenport; Lotus Blossom, Dorothy Struthers; Ting A Ling, Gwendolen Miller; Ding Dong, Marian McKee; Ping Pong, Myrtle Kelderhouse; Hoy Tee Toy, Evelyn Buddy.

STEWART COLEMAN CAPTURES LARGE RAINBOW

Stewart Coleman, local high school instructor, has proven to Charlevoix citizens that he is proficient in lines other than scholastic. A beautiful specimen of rainbow trout, weighing 7 1/2 pounds, fell victim to his skill as a fly fisherman Saturday. The prize, taken from Monroe area, drew much attention while on display at the Charlevoix Hardware company.

RAIN MAKES CROP OUTLOOK BETTER

CONDITION REPORTED TO BE 88
PER CENT OF NORMAL

Plantings Throughout State Are Generally Below Average of Previous Years—Fruits in Good Shape

Warm weather during the early part of April followed by showers which partially relieved draught conditions brightened the outlook on the Michigan winter wheat crop, according to Irvin Holmes, assistant agricultural statistician, and Herbert E. Powell, commissioner of agriculture, in their comments on the crop report which has been released.

The condition of the crop May 1 was 88 per cent of normal or 6 points better than for a month previous. While the acreage planted last fall was below the 1929 sowings, winter abandonment was very small and the acreage remaining for harvest on the first of this month is estimated to be the same as last year or 819,000 acres. The ten-year average harvested acreage for Michigan is 917,000 acres. Abandonment, as a percentage of the acreage sown amounted to only one per cent, whereas last year it was 3.0 per cent, and the long-time average about 3.7 per cent. Losses of acreage were the smallest since 1919, since the mild weather accompanied by a shortage of moisture prevented heaving.

The probable production on May 1 was estimated at 15,970,000 bushels as compared with 19,246,000 bushels harvested last year, and a ten-year average crop of 16,234,000 bushels.

The nation's probable winter wheat crop was forecasted at 652,902,000 bushels on May 1 for nearly 49 million bushels above the amount harvested last year, and 105 million bushels above the amount harvested last year, and 105 million bushels greater than the five-year average crop for the years 1925-29.

Rye
The state's probable rye production is estimated at 2,484,000 bushels which compares with 2,565,000 bushels harvested last year, and 4,869,000 the ten-year average crop. The condition on the first of May was reported at 86 per cent or only one point below average. The United States rye crop will amount to 50,676,000 bushels, if present prospects should materialize. Such a production would be only slightly above that harvested last year, but approximately 4,500,000 bushels greater than the five-year average crop.

DUAL BANK SYSTEM FAVORED BY BANKER

State and National Institutions Supplement Each Other in Serving Country's Varied
Financial Needs

RECENT suggestions that all banks in the United States be under Federal jurisdiction, doing away with the chartering of banks by the various states recalls the opposition to this plan presented at the recent convention of the American Bankers Association by F. S. Hecht of New Orleans, Chairman of its Economic Policy Commission. Mr. Hecht said:

"There are just as good reasons why there should be state as well as national banks, as that there should be state as well as a national government. I do not think that analogy is far-fetched. The states should not surrender all political jurisdiction to the central government, and the local business life of the states should not be made to surrender all control over financial functions to national financial instrumentalities. There are many variations of business conditions from state to state and there are special fiscal requirements of the various states."

"It is entirely logical, therefore, that the states should retain the right to charter banks so as to mold and direct their affairs in accordance with the states' governmental and business requirements and keep them adapted to localized sentiment and conditions."

"The argument is sometimes advanced that the dual system jeopardizes the life of the Federal Reserve System because under it there is a large group of banks that are free to remain out of or to withdraw from the system. Facts and figures prove that this is a specious argument."

"It is true that there has been some shifting from national to state charters especially in cases of mergers of large national banks with banks operating under state charters. However, the Federal Reserve System was not weakened in this process because the merged institutions almost universally retained their membership in the system on a voluntary basis. Moreover, the records show that state bank members are just as good members of the system as national banks and the ratio of state bank resources in the Federal Reserve System is constantly growing. In 1922, national banks held about 65 per cent of the resources of reserve members, and state banks about 35 per cent, while in 1929, the nationals held only 60 per cent and state banks 40 per cent."

Banking Systems Help Each Other

"Reciprocally the state and national banks systems have helped each other. If the national banking law has served in some respects as something of a model code toward which state banking laws more and more have approached year by year, so have the state codes developed valuable reforms which have suggested improvements for the national laws. A great many undesirable competitive inequalities have been wiped out by this mutual evolutionary process and further progress along the line of uniformity so far as is desirable is anticipated."

"However, I do not believe that it is a disadvantage to have two banking codes that differ in some respects. It is quite probable that the state banking code in many instances represents a closer adjustment to local conditions than could be had under the national banking laws, and this is a situation that should be retained. There should, however, not be competition between the two banking codes. Competition should be between banks themselves and not between the laws under which they operate. The effort to offer ten great allurements in one code as against the other could lead only to weak banking laws. But I do think that there should be the alternative opportunities that now exist which banking institutions and local business interests may choose, so that they can function or conduct their business relationships under that banking code which best meets the conditions of the times and of the place as they see them."

"What has been illustrated in both directions. In states where such sound measures as the guarantee of deposits were operative state banks had the opportunity to escape the baleful effect of such laws. On the other hand, when a court decision was handed down in Worcester, Massachusetts, which rendered uncertain the position of trust assets acquired by a national bank through a merger with a state bank, it was a real advantage for national banks affected to take out and operate under a state charter, either on a temporary or a permanent basis, as circumstances make expedient."

"In my opinion, bankers, national as well as state, should combat the thought that conceives of depriving us of the vitalizing benefits of our dual system."

Cattle Abortion Can Be Completely Eradicated

The complete eradication of abortion disease from cattle herds is possible, and would mean stopping a serious source of loss to the dairymen, according to Dr. H. J. Metzger of the New York State College of Agriculture, who recommends the blood test and the isolation of infected animals as a means of stamping out the disease.

These measures are complete isolation of the diseased animal, complete cleanliness, the rearing of all animals on the farm to keep from re-infecting a clean herd. A more complete dis-were generally favorable during the first three weeks of the month. Heavy to killing frosts were quite general from the 23rd to the 30th, and considerable damage occurred to vineyards in Berrien county on the latter date. Cherries also suffered from the freeze, but the damage throughout the fruit belt was quite spotted. May 1st reports pointed to the following percentages of a full crop: apples, 81 per cent; peaches, 87 per cent; pears, 70 per cent; cherries, 83 per cent; plums, 82 per cent; grapes, 81 per cent. Since these reports were collected before it was possible to estimate the full damage, later reports will undoubtedly show some reductions, especially in the case of cherries and grapes.

Hay

Although the mild winter was conducive to light feed consumption, the retarded condition of pastures this spring and the light production of hay last year left only 8.5 per cent of the 1930 hay crop unfed on Michigan farms on May 1. This is equivalent to about 301,000 tons. Last year at this time hay stocks on farms amounted to 10 per cent or 502,000 tons. The condition of this year's time hay crop is reported at 70 per cent or nine points below this time last year and fourteen points below average.

Pasture

Last year's drought with a continued deficiency of moisture during the entire winter has resulted in pasture conditions that are below average. The May 1st figure this year, as a percentage of normal, was only 68 per cent; last year on May 1st reports showed 76 per cent, and the ten-year average far the month is 72.

FOREST FIRES MOUNT IN STATE THIS YEAR

10,000 Acres Already Burned—Damage 4 Times Greater Than 1930

Approximately four times as many forest fires have raged over northern Michigan so far this year, than had been reported up to May 1, 1930, and more than that proportion of acres have been burned over. The forest fire division of the department of conservation, issuing comparative figures to show the seriousness of the present forest fire situation in the state, said that approximately 400 fires have been reported so far this season in the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan. It was estimated that more than 10,000 acres have been burned over.

On May 1, 1930, the division had reported 117 fires for the season with 2,839 acres burned over.

The heaviest loss has occurred in Dickinson, Iron, and Menominee counties. One fire in this section of the state burned over more than 2,000 acres before it could be placed under control.

With no prospects of any radical changes in fire hazard conditions, the continued increase in fire losses is all that may be expected according to the forest fire division.

BELVEDERE CLUB WILL EXTEND BATHING PIER

Lowering of Lake Charlevoix Level
Makes Improvement Necessary

War Department permits are being awaited before work is started on an extensive improvement to the Belvedere Club bathing pier on Lake Charlevoix.

Due to the gradual recession of water levels during the past two years, depth at the end of the present pier has lowered so that there is only about 3 1/2 feet of water.

To overcome this difficulty and safeguard against the future, a 35-foot extension will be built onto the pier, giving a depth of 12 1/2 feet.

Franklin C. Sears has the contract for the improvement, and plans were prepared by R. F. Sloan of the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Company. Cribbs will be lowered and filled with stone. The surface will probably be plank to conform with the adjoining structure.

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, May 10.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ." (Gal. 4:7).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The great truth in the Science of being, that the real man was, is, and ever shall be perfect, is incontrovertible; for if man is the image, reflection, of God, he is neither inverted nor subverted, but upright and Godlike." (p. 200).

Fifteen townships of Charlevoix county were represented at the second meeting of the recently organized County Child Health Committee, held last Thursday afternoon at the East Jordan library building.

Chairmen of the various township groups were called upon to report progress in their respective districts.

The committee was extended an invitation to hold their next meeting at Deer Lake Grange hall on Thursday, June 4.

MICHIGAN PARKS TO OPEN ON THURSDAY

Summer Parks Open Fifteen Days
Earlier Than Other Years

Twenty-six Michigan state parks will open for the season May 15. These will be in addition to the 29 parks which have been open throughout the year.

The parks open only during the summer season are reopening 15 days earlier than in previous years. An early demand from the public for park service has made this early date necessary, according to P. J. Hoffmaster, superintendent of state parks.

During the 1931 season 46 parks will be under management and open to the public.

Parks employees have been at work for several weeks preparing the parks for the opening, painting and repairing buildings and equipment, putting the picnic and other grounds in suitable shape and cleaning out the bathing beaches.

The people of Charlevoix who regret the good old days, usually demand all the modern improvements.

NEW VARIETY OF FISH IS BEING DEVELOPED

A new variety of fish, said to be extremely pugnacious, but which mature at a rapid pace, has been obtained through crossing of two species at the University of Michigan.

The cross, made between the fish commonly known as the "punkin seed" and green sunfish, produces a species much larger than either of its parents, Dr. Carl Hubbs, in charge of the work, states. The only drawback to the experiments, according to Dr. Hubbs, is that no female species can be secured.

Rapids High School Principal

The deadlock which has tied up renewal of teachers' contracts at Big Rapids for two months, because the board split on the re-naming of Glenn E. Loomis, high school principal, was broken last week through the resignation of William H. Rowe, anti-Loomis man.

Ernest Frost, who favors Loomis, was named to fill the vacancy, thus assuring Loomis' reappointment by a four to two vote at the next meeting of the school board, May 13.

Glen Griever, a board member, however, said he would take legal steps to prevent Loomis' appointment. Rowe was secretary of the board 18 years.

Methodist Vacation Bible School

In the daily vacation Bible school the church has found something that the children enjoy as well as profit by educationally. We are therefore planning such a school for the first two weeks after public schools close. The school will be staffed with teachers who are trained in the art of teaching and the subjects will include Bible study, Bible dramatics, religious education through handwork, moving pictures and recreation. This will be just what you would choose for your children and just what they will gladly run to each morning. Plan to enroll with us in this session. This will be a fine opportunity for children who are not in the habit of attending any church school on Sundays.
